I am sure that Government dare not oppose this motion in all fairness to this House. This department does deserve a vote of censure. We heard the explanation to-day by the honourable member Mr. Bell that there is a difference between permanent servants of Government and temporary servants of Government. Is it not ridiculous that the honourable member the Secretary of the Department should make this distinction to-day for the first time ? There are many temporary servants in the Port Trust. Will the Chairman of the Port Trust shirk his responsibility for the reason that a mistake was made by a temporary servant ? It is ridiculous that this argument should have been brought forward. This Government is a most powerful Government ; it commands a resource of 15 crores of rupees, which they can spend in any way they like. They support an officer whether he is right or wrong against a member of this Council who wants to bring certain facts before Government to enable them to function properly. The straightforward and honest course for the Honourable the General Member in this instance will be to come forward and accept that his department has failed to perform their function properly. I may say—I do not want to take credit for it—I may say that at the very inception of this department my Chamber warned the Government. And in 1924, the Bombay Chamber of Commerce which very rarely joins with us, protested against the methods of this department. But Government have not paid heed to these warnings. Now, to-day, there is nothing left for them to say in their defence. Therefore, the straight-forward course for Government is to accept this motion and admit that the department has failed to function properly. An investigation of this department must then be made by a committee of the members of this House, and I hope the public will help that committee by bringing before them serious cases of irregularities. The people of this presidency have to contribute towards this loss for a period of 60 years. Government should not forget that they have done an injustice not only to the present generation but also to the future generation of this presidency by leaving them this legacy of a heavy debt. Government cannot deny that the revenues of this presidency have been pledged for the amortization of a debt running for 30 or 60 years. I do not think there is any argument in defence of Government. I hope Government will accept this motion and do everything they can to rectify their mistake. There is nothing dishonourable in accepting the motion which is quite fair and which is quite reasonable. I hope that this House will unanimously pass this motion and record their vote of censure on this department which has mortgaged our resources for several years and thereby stopped all progress in our nation—building departments.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Sir, I support the vote of censure. We who come from the mofussil have always protested against the existence of this department. We have been from the very start opposed to it on the ground that the department will stew in its own juice, that the department will be creating a situation by which it will bring the finances of this presidency into ruin. All these anticipations were made then, but Government did not pay any heed to us. They pitted Bombay City members against the mofussil members by saying : "Now, look you : so much provision is made for labour, etc., in Bombay and the mofussil people are charged for it, and that is why mofussil members oppose it, and not on any grounds of finance." But, Sir, we took our stand on the great economic principle that no Government can successfully enlarge a distributing city like Bombay far in excess of the requirements of the mofussil. As the mofussil areas are poor they cannot sell or purchase that much of goods which an enlarged Bombay has got to deal in. In fact, so long as the mofussil people are poor, none can expect the progressive development of the Bombay city. But in spite of those warnings, Government went headlong into this sorry affair. Now, what do we find ? About three or four years ago, the honourable member from Bombay (Mr. Nariman) brought in a motion for just such an enquiry as has now been proposed by the honourable member from Sukkur. But unfortunately the present Honourable the General Member did not take steps to examine the allegations made then which in fact was asked for at that time. Government, if my memory be correct, at that time only made a sort of a general enquiry through a committee and as a result curtailed their activities.

The honourable member from Bombay, the representative of the millowners, pointed out yesterday that this Government have unnecessarily spent about Rs. 80 lakhs on the Suburban Railway. This amount of Rs. 80 lakhs has been spent by Government on the Salsette Railway and though this Railway has been in existence for some years, the revenue that is derived from it, is only Rs. 5,000. Government has already spent this large amount of about 70 lakhs and the wonder of it is that Government has still budgetted about Rs. 78,000 for land acquisition and other purposes. I wonder why Government should incur this expenditure. "Is it for this purpose of meeting deficit, that the poor agriculturists are taxed heavily," I ask. I have always observed that when merchants come to see us to purchase cotton, their first deduction is the town duty that is levied in Bombay. I may remind the honourable member, the Settlement Commissioner, that he is taking away a large part of the profits of the agriculturists by way of direct taxation, whatever may be the value of agricultural products, and this combined with the indirect taxation that is levied on the poor agriculturists for the convenience of others does, in fact, take away the profits of the agriculturists. I submit, Sir, that Government should not trouble the agriculturists both ways. They cannot levy the indirect tax on them and at the same time put a heavy burden of direct taxation on their shoulders. That is quite unfair and unjust on the part of Government.

I would, therefore, request the Honourable the General Member to pay particular attention to the matter of finances. I would say that all the schemes that were undertaken by his department were either failures or partly successful. Only one or two small schemes, I think, were successful. I, therefore, cannot understand why he should go on spending money on such schemes, especially the suburban schemes. Is it not possible for Government to return the suburban area to the agriculturists who were dispossessed of their lands and who supplied the wants of their city ? If that is done agriculturists can again produce vegetables, etc., in the suburban area for the Bombay City. What we find to-day is this. By the policy of land acquisition, a large number of families are ruined and what ought to go to them is denied to them. I, therefore, ask the Honourable the General Member on what principle he has been incurring this heavy expenditure. It is very unfair on their part and I personally do not feel inclined to grant them a pie even for wasting money in this way.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Will the honourable member tell me how many acres of land was denotified ?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : I do not know how many acres of land were denotified, I cannot say that. But I say that even now Government are trying to acquire land and rob the agriculturist of his means of livelihood. Some lands are acquired simply to meet the whims of a particular officer of the Development Department. The Executive Engineer or somebody else there in the suburb writes that a certain area should be acquired under the Land Acquisition Act as that plot is a very nice one and Government will surely make a profit of Rs. 10,000 out of it by way of re-selling that plot. When that officer writes in this way to Government, the Government, sitting in their chambers in the Secretariat, would give their sanction to it.

That is the way in which the Development Department is managed. Speaking about debt, I may state here that we have to pay a debt of Rs. 14 crores ; out of this amount about Rs. 3 crores or so will be realised in the backbay scheme, but that amount, I am afraid, will be absorbed in the administration charges. Now, take the instance of Khopoli Water Works. On that scheme Government have spent Rs. 3 lakhs and the revenue derived from that source is only Rs. 1,500. That is the situation. You will find that Rs. 3 lakhs is the actual expense incurred by Government for that scheme and the annual realisation from that source is only Rs. 1,500. The most astonishing feature is that Government are going on spending more and more on such schemes.

Now, coming to the case of the honourable member from Bombay, I may request this honourable House to look at the question from this point of view. I may here submit that it is the privilege of the honourable members of this House—the non-official members of this House, who are the representatives of the people,—to bring all the facts to light before the public. They should bring forward all the facts which according to their light, deserve to be investigated into. That is the right and duty of every honourable member of this House. But what do we find here ? We find that when an honourable member makes any statements against the Government Officers in the course of any enquiry, Government indirectly launch a prosecution against that honourable member. Now, in the case of my honourable friend, Mr. Nariman, what has happened ? We know that the honourable member Mr. Nariman brought to light grave mismanagement of the affairs of the Development Department, of which Mr. Harvey was one of the chief officers. Government, instead of appointing a Committee to investigate fully into the affairs of this department, asked Mr. Harvey to launch a prosecution against Mr. Nariman, when he made certain statements before a Committee of enquiry. In this way this Government go to the extent of asking their officers to launch a prosecution against a respectable member of this House. My honourable friend, Mr. Nariman, made those statements in the discharge of his duty to the public. I ask " Is this the way in which Government reward the honourable members of this House for bringing certain facts to light ? " I, therefore, say that this House should support this vote of censure; if it is not carried, then I think it will be an encouragement to the Government Officers. My honourable friend, Mr. Nariman, has done this with good intention. He brought all these facts before the public as he is in duty bound to do so. He had no other axe to grind. He was not a contractor himself having anything to do with the Development Department. He had no other intention except to bring honestly before this House and before the public the corrupt practices that were going on in the Development Department. And I am sure that if the Honourable the General Member is not prepared to accept the proposed cut, the impression of the maltreatment which was given to a non-official member of this House by Government would be that such maltreatment they would be prepared to give to any member of the House in future, if he acted as the honourable member, Mr. Nariman, did. This impression would for ever remain and the better course for Government would be to accept this cut and do all in their power to set their house in order.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM (Chamber of Commerce): Sir, as the honourable member who represents the Indian Chamber of Commerce has mentioned the fact that in past years the Chamber of Commerce found it necessary to criticise the working of the Development Department, I feel it incumbent on me to explain what is my position in connection with this token cut which has been moved by the honourable member from Ahmedabad. It is perfectly true that in the past we have had occasion to criticise the working of the Development Department. But we do not belong to the school of thought which is in favour of visiting the sins of the fathers on the children unto the third and fourth generations. And I should like to make it perfectly plain that in my opinion there is no justification for the passing of a vote of censure on Government whose only sin—if indeed it be a sin—lies in making an honest endeavour to carry out the wishes of this house. Last year at budget time Sir Joseph Kay was responsible for getting a cut passed in opposition to Government's wishes in connection with the Development Department. That decision of the House has during the past year been loyally respected by Government, and I honestly believe that they have done their best to curtail expenditure and to see that the work is carried on with the maximum of efficiency.

[Mr. G. L. Winterbotham]

There appears to be a great deal of mixed thinking and mixed motive about the House, as far as I can judge from the speeches of the honourable members to which I have listened. A committee of enquiry to look into the question of corrupt practices or malpractices is called for. Well, if that is the wish of the honourable House and Government are prepared to meet it, I have nothing whatever to say. I personally am of the opinion that if that is done, it will only result in more mud slinging, and as enough mud has been slung already, I think it would be much better if it were allowed to find its way to Back Bay. That is my personal view. But, if the House considers such a committee is necessary, I should certainly not vote against it. But at the same time, for honourable members to say that Government are endeavouring to shield the membere of the services and the members of the department, and to imputs motives of this nature seems to me to be prejudging the issue on which we would naturally expect a decision to come from the committee of enquiry, for which those members are pressing. Therefore, it seems to me that if the honourable members want to press for the appointment of this committee of enquiry, then they should drop the vote of censure on the Government, because you cannot, to my mind, at one and the same moment say Government are to blame and call for a committee of enquiry, because it is quite possible that the committee of enquiry may find that Government are not to blame. If I may say so, the honourable member who represents the Millowners' Association did not do anything to clarify the issue, when he alluded to the costly mistakes of the department. I am the first to acknowledge that the department has committed very costly mistakes. But I do not see what that has got to do with the demand for the committee of enquiry into the charges of corruption. I should say that the logical conclusion to draw was that the amazement at the judgment in the Harvey-Nariman case should be not at the enormous extent of the disclosures, but at the extraordinarily moderate disclosures to which it gave rise. For if you take into consideration the enormous schemes which were undertaken by this Department, hastily improvised to see them through, and the speed with which in their initial stages they were being carried out, it is to my mind amazing that with all his acumen and ingenuity the honourable member from Bombay has been unable to unearth more serious charges or more serious wrongs than he has been successful in doing. I would, therefore, like to say that in my opinion there is no case whatever for the passing of this token cut. It is not for me to say whether there is any case for the appointment of a committee of enquiry. But I do think that we should give credit where credit is due and not seek to impute motives to the present Government, who, in my opinion, have done their best to carry out the wishes of the House and not to oppose them in any way. Moreover, for the last speaker to say that Government encouraged an officer of theirs to bring a libel action against a member of this House is to my mind a distortion of the truth.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, I had no intention to participate in the debate on this matter, which has been discussed at great length. But certain remarks of the honourable member the Secretary of the department and also the member who spoke last lead me to make a few observations. It is taken as if the Harvey-Nariman case has disclosed the whole of the scandals or mismanagement or corruption or whatever it is. But it is nothing of the kind. It is not a fraction, I should think; because in the particular case, Harvey-Nariman case, Mr. Nariman was on his defence, and in order to save himself he was confined to the issue which formed the subject matter of the particular charge against him. The honourable member the Secretary himself stated that he does not minimise the gravity of the conclusions reached in the magistrate's enquiry and he read out a portion from the concluding part of the judgment, in which although Mr. Harvey has been acquitted of the corrupt motives attributed to him, there are certain observations about the incompetency, negligence and other matters which have been brought out so far as the officers of Government were concerned. Further, with regard to the attempt made by the honourable Secretary to reply to certain allegations that were made in the course of the debate yesterday, he stated that he had no time to investigate all the cases or allegations. Certainly, I quite agree that it is not possible for a single member or all the collective members taken together to investigate all the charges or the allegations.

But it is exactly for this reason that the committee of enquiry is suggested and I thought that the honourable members on the other side would fall in with the suggestion made by my honourable friend from Sukkur.

It will be seen that it was stated that the servants were temporary servants and not permanent servants, but I say it does not matter whether they are permanent or temporary because, if the charges are investigated and brought home to them by a prosecution in a criminal court, it might certainly have a very salutary effect. If no sufficient evidence for prosecution is forthcoming, at least such steps may be taken as, in future, will prevent a recurrence of such a state of things. That is the object of the public enquiry which has been suggested on the non-official side of the House.

The last speaker said that Government has been all along conceding the wishes of this House. If that is so, in the matter of this Development Department now we have arrived at a stage, after seven years, which was the result of the sanction of the prosecution of Mr. Nariman, which was a blessing in disguise, and I do believe that but for this prosecution the discoveries and the disclosures that have been made and that have opened our eyes, would not have been made and would not have come to light. Therefore at this time, after these disclosures which are only a fraction of the whole field of the activities of the Development Department, does it not stand to reason that Government should institute an enquiry? It is only by such an action as that that the confidence of the public will be restored in the Government and the members responsible for the government of this country.

Previous speakers said that Government members have done their best, but I would ask whether the public at large and the people are satisfied that Government have done all that they ought to have done. It is exactly for this reason and to meet the wishes of the public and to give them no ground for any further complaint that an enquiry of this kind should, I think, be undertaken. I do not suggest that there is or will be any occasion for any vote of censure as the honourable the previous speaker said and the result of the enquiry will probably be that Government will be completely exonerated. It will be to their credit and I think therefore it is desirable once for all to start an enquiry, in which, as was suggested by the honourable member from Sukkur, the people should be called upon to come forward and assist the committee. The honourable member the Secretary, Development Department, said that unless Government had assistance from the public and the members of this Council, it would not be possible to make any further investigation. It is exactly for this reason that it is only by giving them an opportunity and by giving them the necessary protection that the members of the public will come forward to assist in the enquiry that may be launched. For all these reasons I do submit that Government member and the Honourable the General Member speaking on behalf of Government will please make a statement accepting the proposal and that proposal is, I submit, to the interest as much of Government as of the members on this side as well as on the opposite side.

Mr. B. T. DESAI (Bombay City, South): Sir, we have heard in the courts of law that when an accused is indicted his plea is taken and he gives as a matter of fact the plea of " not guilty " but he makes certain admissions which on the face of them prove his guilt. I think that is the position in which the Government is, at present, with regard to this matter.

Before I go into details, I may just bring to the notice of this House that from the inception of the scheme, which went out with the blessings of my friends Sir Dinshaw Petit and Sir Pheroze Sethna who had I think declared on public platforms that the scheme went out with their blessings, now finds itself condemned by all sections of the people and Sir Dinshaw Petit and Sir Pheroze Sethna now wish that they would have withheld their blessings, because the blessings did not have the desired effect. The reason that was given at the time of giving those blessings was that there were estimates placed before them which were encouraging and which have now proved to be absolutely incorrect. Now take the very inception of the scheme : In what indecent hurry did this Government try to take or rather extort the consent of the Indian Government to the scheme ? In what indecent hurry were people appointed as experts to prepare estimates ? Now one of the admissions of Government is that the loss now calculated on a scheme estimated to cost four crores, is three crores. This admission is a condemnation in itself of the department. It is an admission of the guilt so far as it springs from incompetency, inefficiency and the negligence of the department. For a vote of censure my submission is that no evidence of such a cogent character is required as is required in a criminal trial to prove the guilt of the accused, but if you have got sufficient materials before you whereby you cannot keep any confidence or whereby your confidence in the ability and efficiency is shaken to a certain extent, then, Sir, the House will be justified in passing a vote of no confidence or censure on the Government. Sir, may I ask all the Government officials concerned in this matter, how is it that a scheme that was estimated to be finished within four crores of rupees now has made a loss of three crores and what is the meaning of this? Why were wrong estimates made, excessive stocks ordered out, dredgers ordered out, machinery ordered out based on those wrong estimates? Why have you played with the public funds in this scandalous manner? That is my indictment against Government. What right had Government to play with public money in this scandalous manner? What is their answer? There is no answer whatsoever so far except "unavoidable matters which had not been thought of, or unforeseen circumstances, crept in." What were the experts appointed for? To say that they did not know of certain circumstances, that certain things were not disclosed to them, that certain circumstances were not brought to their notice and were not therefore thought of. What sort of experts were they? And what should be said about the person who employed such experts? What should be said of a person holding a very high and responsible position in the State, who would appoint a man of that type? Is he not responsible, Sir?

From the very beginning the scheme that was going to cost four crores showed a loss of three crores. Then the advisory committee was appointed, and of course by now we all know what sort of a committee it was. My honourable friend the honourable member Mr. Petit was on that committee. What a sorry tale he gave to-day. Being on the committee with Mr. Baptista, he swallowed everything and anything that was said by Sir Lawless Hepper who is really responsible for this matter. He gave certain figures and these members of the advisory committee accepted those figures without making any enquiry whatsoever. Then when the matter turned out to be quite the other way, stung by compunction these members go for explanation. The explanation itself is self-condemnatory, it condemns the Government of negligence and inefficiency.

Then, Mr. Subhedar, who was on the advisory committee, exposed and exposed mercilessly all that had been done though he was not given access to all the papers that were required. It was his complaint that obstacles were put in his way and several exposures which he made as to the miscalculations were tried to be defended. Ultimately it was admitted that it was a miscalculation—I believe—to the extent of forty lakhs. Whoever the officer of Government concerned in this is, what does it show? It shows that there was something which was not satisfactory from the public point of view, that there was something for them to conceal from open public criticism, and therefore the man who was appointed to go impartially into the matter was baulked at every step of his inquiry and thus prevented from proceeding with the inquiry in the way in which he ought to have been allowed to proceed. I had once heard the Honourable the General Member say that certain files had been taken away by Baron Lloyd. Well, Sir, if that statement is a true one, what could be said with regard to that person who was at the head of the Government. A person who had no right to take away the files of the Development Department has carried them away with him, and for what reason one can very well understand.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Mr. President, I think in justice to.....

Mr. B. T. DESAI : I think there could not be any question with regard to those files. I may repeat it that files regarding and connected with the Development Department have been carried away by Baron Lloyd, and that was the statement that the Honourable the General Member had made.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : What I said was with reference to the private correspondence of Lord Lloyd. I said that all files containing the private correspondence of Lord Lloyd were taken away by Lord Lloyd.

Mr. B. T. DESAI : Now, Sir, what an explanation ? Private correspondence with regard to the Development Department. It passes one's comprehension ; and he has given an explanation of this kind to this intelligent House. I think the Honourable the General Member ought to have kept quiet instead of giving this explanation. What should I call it ? An explanation which is an admission. The Honourable the General Member must have been browbeaten, I am quite sure, to part with these files, and these files must have been taken away. Well, Sir, this step is such a one that by itself is quite sufficient an indictment against the department for a vote of censure.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Did the honourable member say that I parted with some files ?

Mr. B. T. DESAI : Yes, you have said so.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I parted with the files ? Where ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. The honourable member has said that the Honourable the General Member must have been browbeaten to part with the files. The Honourable the General Member may deal with that when his turn comes.

Mr. B. T. DESAI : The files evidently belonged to the department over which the Honourable the General Member presides, and they contain documents which ought to be with him. How, I ask him, did those files go into the possession of the head of this presidency ? If he did not part with them, if they did not go from his department, did they fall from heaven for the sake of the enlightenment of that person, so that they were found on his desk ? Of course, this is a matter in which I would request the Honourable the General Member to be very cautious in giving explanations, because it is a thing which cannot be defended; and if he gives an explanation with regard to it, the explanation also would be of a similar character. So, the less said the better about these things. With regard to the documents themselves, I say they have been taken away from the department, and is that not sufficiently strong to condemn the Government with a vote of no-confidence ? Government is expected to be very careful with regard to its records ; they must be there, and yet the fact remains that these records are taken away. Sir, what can you say with regard to the efficiency of a department of Government, and what can you say with regard to their sense of taking care and sense of protection to be afforded to the persons whose money they are entrusted to spend, when such things occur ?

Then, Sir, if we go a step further, what do we find ? My honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji made it amply clear that he tried to do something in this matter, but at every step, at the meetings of the Public Accounts Committee, he was baulked in his efforts to come to some conclusions. He wanted Mr. Harvey to come and explain matters, but Mr. Harvey was especially kept back by the department. Why ? My submission is that this step on the part of Government is such a gross breach of duty that it should not be tolerated by any member of this House, because we expect Government to help us with all the facts and with all the documents which are at their command ; we expect Government to be very frank and honest and plain with us. and say " Yes, you are making these charges ; here are these documents ; go on and find out the truth. What information do you want ? We shall help you with the information ; try to find out the truth ." Instead of doing that, they put obstacles in the way of members trying to unearth the mysteries that have taken place, and take shelter under the plea that they are privileged documents. This is a matter which ought to be very seriously considered. Government must not think that they can do whatever they like, and ignore even our reasonable demands, and then go scotfree. It is up to the House to teach, and teach in unmistakable terms, a lesson to the Government. We should tell them " Do not trifle with us ; if you trifle with us, then you will have to pay the penalty. "

Then, Sir, we come to the very recent occurrences that have taken place in Mr. Nariman's case. Now, Mr. Nariman had, from time to time, demanded that certain files and certain Government papers should be given to him for inspection. But Government, that is to say the Department of Government that is concerned with Development, instructed their solicitors to say that the particular documents are privileged. Now, that is their way of assisting the enquiry. All right. Those particular files were not forthcoming. But one particular instance that I noticed in the case was very amusing. That was with regard to the order for the mild steel bars. Mr. Harvey was questioned by Mr. Nariman about it. Mr. Harvey said that he could not find out who had done it. But after several hearings of the case, accidentally, Mr. Harvey, while going through the files, found out a slip of paper, and that was the order written by Mr. Hamid or somebody else ; I do not exactly remember the name. Is this not absolutely an outrage on fairness ? You indict a man, and when it comes to a question of the documents which he has a legal and moral right to inspect, those documents come at the sweet will of the officer concerned, and the documents disappear at the sweet will of the officer concerned. Such things can never happen in any enlightened and civilised country's government. Of course, it is only possible in the Government of India where, we are sorry to say, we are divided and not united, because of the particular mentality that is prevailing; it is therefore that these things are possible. It would not be possible anywhere in any civilised country, and it would not be possible for the Government to make this sort of defence.

The next point, which condemns the Government is this: Mr Harvey admitted that certain answers that were given in the Council by the Honourable the General Member, under the instructions of his department were false, were not true. Now, Sir, what safety is there if members who are in charge of such departments are so confiding in their subordinates as to accept any kind and every kind of statement and to give it out in the Council. You cannot controvert such a statement, because it comes from a Government officer. But it now turns out that those statements were absolutely false, and they were supplied to the Honourable the General Member. May I know what the Honourable Member has done with regard to these things? Did he ever analyse or verify the statements that were submitted to him? He knew very well the allegations at the time they were made. Why did he accept statements which were incorrect? I would like to have an answer from him on the floor of this House, and I am quite sure that he will give a satisfactory answer, and not an answer of the type that he gave about the files that disappeared. May I ask Government what safety is there then for the public; with what face they can come before the public or ask this House not to pass this vote of censure? Have they not already accepted this vote of censure by their own admissions of the facts that I have related. Then, I do agree with my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji that if Government is honest enough, if Government is candid enough, if they find what the non-official members have stated are facts, then they must as an honest accused say: "My lord, I have committed the crime." That ought to be the attitude of Government. I find my honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham coming forward and saying: "Government have done whatever they can do. Government have tried their utmost to minimise the losses." He says that Government have done everything to satisfy the House—satisfy the House of what? He knows best. Sir, I was watching the honourable member Mr. Winterbotham's face when he was speaking and giving lame excuses, and I detected from his face that he knew that they were lame defences.

One thing more I would say, and it is this. The affair regarding Balkissan, I am told, took place in 1925, and that he was placed, I understand, on the black list in 1925. Now, we are in 1928. May I know what Government have done up to now? Was it not the duty of Government to make enquiries not only into the conduct of the contractor but also as to how he happened to be taken as contractor who were responsible for bringing him and who were responsible for taking him up? To an intelligent person at the head of the department these things would have struck. If he were candid enough and sincere enough to perform his duties, certainly he would have gone into these matters without waiting for any member of this House to ask him to do so. May I know what has been done by the Honourable the General Member or the Secretary Mr. Bell? Nearly two years have passed; nothing has been done. It was a very sorry sight to see the honourable member Mr. Bell getting up and trying to defend the matter in the way in which he defended.

Then, the affair of the mild steel bars was brought to the notice of the House in 1922-23. What had Government done in the matter before they were questioned by the honourable member Mr. Nariman, to find out what really was the fact? On the contrary, the mentality of this Government is exposed by the supplementary grant No. 17 which they are going to put before the House. Notwithstanding all that has been brought out, Government have the courage to come before this House and tell us: "Never mind. Our agreement was that if the complaint was dismissed, if certain things were proved, then Mr. Harvey would not be given his expenses. But as the magistrate has found that Mr. Nariman acted in good faith and acquitted him on that ground, our contract stands and therefore we should pay Rs. 63,000 to Mr. Harvey for his expenses." This is the sort of Government we have to deal with. The less said the better about everything that has taken place. I will not go into other matters but I ask Government: "Are you not convinced that although Mr. Harvey cannot be indicted and convicted for bribery, there are sufficient materials before you to prove that bribery was rampant in the department—that, I think, is the finding of the magistrate—and that Mr. Harvey had acted negligently and not in the way in which a superior officer of his type ought to have acted?"

Now, Sir, a suggestion has been made that a committee should be appointed to go into the affairs of this department. The Honourable the General Member may get up and say: "If you withdraw this vote of censure, I will consent to a committee being appointed." Perhaps that may be construed as a climb down by Government. Perhaps persons like myself may say that Government have no other alternative except either to accept a censure motion or to climb down. If they did either, it would be tantamount to admitting the guilt. But I may tell you quite frankly that I have no faith in this Government and I have no faith in such committees, because such committees are for the mere purpose of white-wash. It will depend upon what the personnel is and what the terms of reference are that are to be made to the committee. At the present moment the Honourable the General Member, in order to escape this vote of no confidence may climb down and say: "I accept the suggestion that a committee be appointed." But he may put such persons on the committee as will serve his purpose; he may limit the terms of reference of the committee so that certain matters may not come out. Sir, such personnel or such terms of reference would not do in this matter. We have known of many committees who made enquiries and reported. We had the experience of the Muddiman Committee and the Currency Commission. We all know that people with pre-conceived notions are invited and things are white-washed. I may, therefore, say that I have no confidence in a committee that Government will appoint. I believe no good will come out of such a committee. I warn those honourable members who think that something is going to be achieved by such a committee, to be careful as regards the personnel of the committee as well as the terms of reference.

Sir, I do not wish to say much further. As one who is going to suffer by the mismanagement of this department, I see that the public have to pay in sinking fund and interest charges 32½ lakhs a year for a period of 60 years—20 lakhs on account of Back Bay Reclamation : 7½ lakhs on account of the Suburban Scheme and another 5 lakhs. Any man's blood will boil at the mention of these large sums, and one will try surely and sincerely to see that no nonsense of this kind takes place any further. The sooner Government shuts down this department the better, as it makes such an inroad into public funds. That is a matter apart.

Now, Sir, so far as this cut of Re. 1 is concerned, it is by way of a vote of censure on the department itself. I think that this House will be well advised in passing this motion. This is the time when you can make yourself clear to Government and I do not think that there will be any other opportunity in this House to express our sentiments in this respect to Government. I, therefore, support this cut.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN (Bombay City, South) : Sir, from what we have heard so far during all the speeches of the honourable members and we find that this honourable House is not at all willing to attach any blame personally to the Honourable the General Member for the colossal bungle of the Back Bay Reclamation Scheme. But I have not the least doubt that the Honourable the General Member himself will be the first person to admit that this resentment and disappointment expressed by this House is quite justifiable.

Sir, I may submit that everybody knows that corruption has been going on in every public department.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : Oh, I see.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : My honourable friend, Mr. Nariman, exclaims "Oh, I see." I do not know why he is surprised at my remarks. I ask him this question : "Is it not that the corruption goes on in the Corporation, does it not go on in the Police departments and elsewhere"? I say the corruption does go on in every department. But it is just like calling "a thief when he is caught as a thief." Whatever it may be, I cannot help saying that this Development Department has brought this Presidency on the verge of bankruptcy. It is for that very reason I request the Honourable the General Member to seriously think over the situation, and meet the wishes of this honourable House in appointing an independent committee of enquiry to investigate into the bribery and corruption that is going on in the Department. Sir, I am fully aware that the Honourable the General Member has done his best in this matter. I know, as a Journalist, the correspondence that was passed between the Honourable the General Member and my honourable friend, Mr. Nariman, before Government launched the Harvey-Nariman case. The Government also took the opinion of the Advocate General and it is on his opinion that this case was launched. I think I am not making a mistake when I say that the Government of Bombay even took advice of the Government of India in the matter. In that way, Sir, the responsibility in this matter partially lies on the shoulders of the Government of India too.

I know, the Honourable the General Member is a custodian of a very large department and he is the first Indian to be at the head of the administration. I, therefore, think it is his duty to come forward with every means in his power to allay the public prejudices by saying "Come on, gentlemen, I have already appointed two committees. I am now prepared to appoint another Committee an Independent Committee of Enquiry, that will meet your wishes." That is the best thing that the Honourable the General Member can do at this juncture. I appeal to him to do this last graceful act on the eve of his retirement and assure the public that Sir Cowasji Jehangir is always for the interests of the public.

Sir, I was not present yesterday at the fag end of the proceedings, but I see from the newspapers that my honourable friend, Mr. Bechar, said: "Government was too strong." I may tell my honourable friend that Government is too strong, because we are too weak. Their strength lies in the weakness of the representatives of the people. If we combine by laying aside all party prejudices, I am sure Government will come down on their knees. In making this remark I refer to a few particular gentlemen who are sitting on the opposite bench (pointing to the non-official members).

So, I do hope that the Honourable the General Member will come out with an open mind to offer a Committee of Enquiry and thus prove to us that he is in reality the people's man. And if he does so, I would request the honourable member the mover of the censure motion to withdraw it and accept the appointment of the Committee.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu): Sir, when any honourable member attacks Government on matters of finances or any other item, they say "It is a very trifling matter and it is no use making a mountain out of a mole-hill." But I ask, Sir, "is this question of the Development Department such a trifling matter?" From the general revenue of the presidency, about Rs. 38 lakhs have been taken away every year for this department to meet the debt incurred on that account. And I think that cannot be wiped off even for another 50 years which posterity down to the second generation will have to bear. Before estimates were passed by the Council, orders for dredgers to the extent of 1½ crores were sent with the result that we got real value of only 75 lakhs, thus Rs. 75 lakhs of public money has been wasted by this one transaction. Rs. 16 lakhs brokerage went into the pockets of the so-called consulting engineer for his advice for hardly three or four years bearing some such name as Sir George Buchanan. All the big officers of Government had a jolly good time of it and they made heaps of money out of this department. Now, my honourable friend Mr. Nariman and Mr. Walchand, gave evidence before the Mears Committee, and you know all the disclosures that have been made now. In spite of all this, even when there is merely a token cut of Re. 1, there are some members in this House who are ready to say "No, no; we should not do like this. Things will improve." Why not, I ask. We have already got this big bungle and scandal of the Back Bay, and we are probably going to have another in the Sukkur Barrage. Therefore, we want a committee to investigate into all these things. My honourable friend, Mr. Winterbotham, says four years have gone by and you are bringing a vote of censure now to-day. Well, Sir, let me tell him that honourable members of thisHouse have been bringing all these matters to the notice of Government every time all these years. But Government have turned a deaf ear to all that. Now, what more power have we got? We have no power to remove the Government or dismiss its officers. The fault, therefore, lies not with us, but with the Government. Even if we pass this vote of censure, is there any chance that Government will not do it again? No. But they may take more precaution. In any case, we must pass this vote of censure, if for nothing else than to record our disapproval and protest.

Now, as regards Balkissondas Seth, the work of painting Pontoon pipes was given to him amounting to one lakh or a lakh and a quarter every year and instead of three coats he used to apply one coat and swallow in conjunction with officers balance of the moneys. That painting work is given to William Jacks and Company, now only for Rs. 20 thousands and full three coats are being applied. In spite of all this mismanagement, the "Andher" on the part of the department, we are told it is not the fault of Government. This is one instance, and there are many other things. But the Government officers are so clever that they will always try to keep us the non-official members in the dark as to what is actually going on, by giving misleading information and vague information or giving no information at all. Now, my honourable friend, Mr. Marzban, said that in all the big departments and in the municipalities also thefts and corruption go on. But, if the members of the municipalities come to know of them, when the thefts or corrupt acts do come to light, do they say "Oh, we ought not to take any action?" If such things come to light in the case of a Government department, should Government say or are we to say "No, no action is necessary; let us keep quiet?" For the last three or four years we have been continuously drawing Government's attention to all these matters of mismanagement and bungling, and it is a surprise to me, indeed, that there should be any members ready to say we have no right to pass a vote of censure and we must allow Government to go scotfree for all this.

The Honourable the General Member accepted a cut of Rs. 1,79,000 yesterday. In doing so, he said that all that was possible by way of retrenchment had already been done, and that if he found that in spite of his efforts he could not give effect to this cut completely. then the House should be prepared to sanction a supplementary demand later on if he is forced to come before the House for it. Now, if you turn to page 240 of the Blue Book, what is the reduction in establishment that you find ? There was a chief engineer before ; now also he is there. His salary is shown as Rs. 2,200 ; but he gets a pension of Rs. 750 also. That means the officer concerned gets a pay of Rs. 2,200 plus Rs. 750. He is kept permanently. Under him there is one deputy chief engineer on a salary of Rs. 2,300 more than even chief engineer and there is also another deputy chief engineer with a salary of Rs. 2,200 ; three big officers. Last year there were two executive engineers who have been removed this year. Why should you not remove all of them and save Rs. 1 lakh and twenty-five thousands and have only one executive engineer. In the whole of Sind or in the whole of the Public Works Department in the presidency, there is no such andher. One executive engineer and two assistant engineers for the reclamation should be quite sufficient. The Honourable the General Member says he cannot reduce further.

There is a provision of Rs. 26,508 for the Chief Engineer ; Rs. 27,600 for one Deputy Chief Engineer, Rs. 26,400 for another Deputy Chief Engineer and so many other officers and allowances have been provided for. In addition there is the Secretary to Government, Development Department, drawing Rs. 3,000 per month with annual expenditure of Rs. 72,000 for staff and Rs. 20 thousands for allowances. If you merge this with the Secretary of the Public Works Department you will save Rs. 1 lakh 50 thousands. In the Housing and Suburban Circle there is one executive engineer drawing Rs. 1,200. As an assistant engineer in the Public Works Department he was drawing Rs. 470. Why has he been put on Rs. 1,200 in the Housing and Suburban District ? When an assistant engineer is posted as acting executive engineer he gets Rs. 50 extra and since this branch has been handed over to Public Works Department why Rs. 1,200 salary and Rs. 150 motor allowance is being paid to him. Even the Auditor raised objection and the Secretary explained away by applying Development Department scales. Is this not partiality and favouritism ? Has not the Honourable the General Member endorsed it ?

I hope that if the committee of enquiry is appointed as suggested, it will not set about sending away people who get small salaries but people who draw fat salaries and than retrenchment will come from the top. And the Honourable the General Member will sit strong upon his subordinates and prevent such things from happening in future.

(After Recess)

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, there has been a very lively discussion on the one rupee cut that I have moved.

[Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan]

I understood from the very beginning that this one rupee cut, if carried, would not compel Government to resign because, under the constitution under which we are working, the irresponsible half part of the Government Cabinet, though censured, would continue to hold office. Therefore, the object with which I have moved the censure motion is that Government may be alive to the sense of responsibility which they owe to the taxpayers of the whole presidency.

Sir, the disclosures that were made in the Harvey-Nariman case are such that Government must at once begin to take action upon them. The honourable member Mr. Bell tried to refute some of the allegations, but I think he has utterly failed in bringing conviction to this House that there has been nothing wrong in the department. It is necessary, therefore, that a thorough investigation should be made into the affairs of this department. I was particularly struck by the way in which honourable members of this Council who were appointed to the advisory committee were misled and were made to put their signatures upon documents on the assurance that the work would go on all right, and the whole work must be done as quickly as possible. The disclosure made by the honourable member for the Millowners' Association (Mr. Petit) was such as to convince every member of this House that the way in which the department works is wholly unsatisfactory. In respect to many questions put in this House with reference to this department, several instances have been given which go to show that the information supplied was wrong. Sir, it is therefore necessary that a thorough investigation must be made in this department. Of course, the department was brought into being in hot haste by the late Governor of this presidency, and the predecessor of the present General Member, who was holding office at that time also improvised the persons who should work this department in hot haste and gigantic and costly errors—my honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham admits that there have been costly errors—have taken place at the time of bringing into being this department in hot haste. Sir, it is therefore necessary that, when these allegations have been admitted by the magistrate who tried the Harvey-Nariman case, Government should set its house in order. Therefore, I make this suggestion to the Honourable the General Member. He must be amenable to the idea of appointing a committee with the widest terms of reference, with powers to investigate the whole scheme from its very inception, and with powers to have access to all the Government records; all assistance should be given to that committee, and all the records should be placed before that committee; at the same time, Government should not at that time say that some files are missing, or some documents have been misplaced, or some documents have been lost. All Government records should be placed at the disposal of this committee, and this committee should have power to examine witnesses, and these witnesses must be given perfect immunity and perfect protection, so that they would be able to come forward and make disclosures in matters in which, otherwise, they would remain silent. Sir, there was a committee appointed in Sind; that committee was called the Sind Rasai Committee, and Government had given protection to all the witnesses who wanted to come forward and speak out their minds before that committee. In the case of the Rasai Committee, if full protection had not been given, nobody would have come before the committee and spoken out what he himself knew, because the men would be fearing that if they disclosed the real state of affairs, they would bring themselves under the displeasure of the authorities that be. Therefore, if this committee is empowered to examine witnesses and those witnesses are given protection and immunity for the disclosures which they would come forward for making, and also if that committee is given access to all the records of the department, and if the committee is allowed to examine all the branches of the department in every detail, namely, the Back Bay reclamation, the industrial housing and the suburban schemes, and also the personnel of the committee is such as could be acceptable to this House, then there is no necessity to press this motion. If we merely accept an assurance from the Honourable the General Member that he would appoint a committee, and if that committee happens to be merely a happy family affair, then nothing would be gained out of it. Therefore, if the Honourable the General Member satisfies the House that he is going to appoint a strong committee, having on it men like the honourable member Mr. Nariman, who has worked so indefatigably in this matter and who has suffered so much in this matter, if such men are included in this committee ; if a strong committee with full powers is appointed to make investigations from the very inception of the scheme : if such a convincing statement is made by the Honourable the General Member, then certainly I assure him that I do not want to proceed with this vote of censure any longer. But if the House is not convinced about the bona fides of Government, then certainly I shall be compelled to take this vote to a division.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Mr. President, it will not be possible for me to reply to every point that has been made by honourable members during this discussion. So, I propose to touch upon the salient factors of the debate. The mover of the cut made a statement, as an argument for moving this cut, which I should first like to correct. He stated that Government had not yet handed over to the Military Department a single inch of land. That is not correct. I should have thought that he was aware of that fact. The budget takes credit for about 20 lakhs of rupees for land handed over. It is perfectly true that we expected to hand over the whole of block 8 by the end of this month, but I had informed honourable members at the October sessions, while asking for a supplementary demand, that things were not going as well as we expected, and while asking for this demand I had also stated further that our engineers were encountering difficulties which were unexpected : and that efforts were being made to get the block ready as soon as possible.

A good many honourable members have naturally alluded to the Harvey-Nariman case, and I would like clearly to state that Government were prepared to go on with the supplementary demand for the costs of the case which they propose to ask for, but at the express desire of the opposite benches that demand was postponed to the 14th of March. Therefore, it will be seen that, as far as Government were concerned, there was no desire to evade the issue at the present time, but that falling in with the wishes of the opposite benches Government went on with the order already settled, and therefore we are to-day discussing demands.

Now, Sir, the most important matter that I have got to explain is as to what action Government took when rumours first came to their ears that corruption prevailed in the department. That has been specifically asked of me by more than one honourable member, and therefore I propose to give you a short history of what we heard and what action we took when such facts first came to our knowledge. I think it was in 1921—or may be 1922—that Government had serious cause to suspect one of the officers of the department, and they were compelled to dismiss him. (Mr. N. A. Bechar: Who was that officer?) He was a man called "Mehta," a Punjabi. Shortly after that, Government received an anonymous letter. It was in the time of Sir George (now Lord) Lloyd. Generally Government put such letters into the waste paper basket, but the Governor of the day, having perused that letter, clearly saw that the writer must be a man who had inside knowledge and most probably an officer of the department, and therefore he ordered an enquiry into the allegations made in that letter. I find from the papers that, after having heard the explanations, the Governor of the day expressed his opinion that he was satisfied with the explanations. A short time afterwards, a similar letter making some allegations was again received. At that time the letter was placed in my hands, and it was my duty to go into each and every one of those allegations to the best of my ability. I called for the past records which had already been prepared on the previous letter, and I went through them with the Director. I also asked for certain further explanations, and, finding that it was not possible to go any deeper into those allegations which evidently came from an officer who had been dismissed from the department, I took no further action.

The next step was the allegations made by my honourable friend Mr. Nariman in the Legislative Council on the 3rd of March 1925. (Mr. Nariman: In October 1924). In October 1924 he made no allegation of corruption. I will remind the honourable member that he moved for the appointment of a committee. While moving for that committee, he made no allegations of corruption. He will find he was informed so in a letter we wrote to him. There he asked for a committee to go into the administration of the department to see whether retrenchment was possible. The first time he openly made allegations of corruption was on the 3rd March 1925. The only specific allegation that he made was about the purchase of mild steel bars. Government had in reply to a question admitted that a mistake had been made in the purchase of those bars and had explained in that answer how that mistake occurred. I find that the magistrate has held that a mistake was made. At any rate, without going into further details, I will say what action Government took on the allegations made. They were allegations of a character which could not be investigated without further information about them.

[Sir Cowasji Jehangir]

I then in reply to my honourable friend (Mr. Nariman) spoke in Council as follows on the 3rd of March :—

"I ask my honourable friend in the interests of Government, in the interests of the opposite benches, to give one name to me privately, if not publicly, and I promise him that I will give him every assistance and I feel sure my honourable friend sitting behind me (Sir Lawless Hepper) will also give him every assistance to try and prove any allegations not only in public, not only before this House, but even privately. I am prepared to say that I will take such action as will give him satisfaction, provided he proves his allegations."

Mr. President, on further examination of these allegations, it was found that no steps could be taken, that nothing further could be done without the honourable member Mr. Nariman's assistance. And therefore within a little more than a month and a half of that debate, that is on the 28th April 1925, Government wrote a letter to the honourable member Mr. Nariman and made him the offer which I will read to you : The first paragraph of the letter reminds Mr. Nariman of the allegations made and the offer that I had made to him in Council. The letter states :

"In the absence of any communication from you giving more specific information regarding the allegations which you made in the Legislative Council, I am directed to inform that Government are prepared to appoint an officer of high judicial attainments to investigate any definite charges which you are now prepared to make and to advise Government regarding the action which they should take on his findings.

In this connection I am to state that Government do not ask you to supply information sufficient to prove definitely the accusations which you made in the Legislative Council, but only to provide such definite information regarding (1) the acts which you described as frauds, (2) instances of mis-application of funds which under ordinary circumstances would have resulted in proceedings in a Court of law, and (3) cases of receiving secret commissions, together with information regarding the parties believed to be implicated as will enable the Enquiring Officer to direct his enquiry and to frame definite charges against a particular officer or officers.

In particular you are requested to inform Government of the names of persons who are likely to be in a position to substantiate the charges which you make.

Government are prepared to extend to you, in pursuit of this enquiry, the same facilities as are given to Government servants who may be incriminated, namely, permission to be present when evidence is being recorded, to cross-examine witnesses and to see documents which are admitted as exhibits by the Enquiring Officer."

Mr. President, this offer was made to Mr. Nariman in all sincerity. It was made with the object of enabling Government to punish officers who may have been corrupt. It was made with the intention of trying and setting an example to the department and to other departments. But I regret to say that Mr. Nariman did not take advantage of the offer we made to him and he gave us no assistance. He refused our offer on three grounds.....

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : May I know if the Honourable the General Member is right in addressing Mr. Nariman as "Mr. Nariman."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. That point of order has been raised over and over again. The Parliamentary procedure to be adopted by honourable members is to address as "honourable member, Mr. Nariman" or "the honourable member from Bombay." But when we find that the Honourable the General Member has repeatedly addressed Mr. Nariman as "honourable member, Mr. Nariman" and if he addresses him as "Mr. Nariman" once in a way, I do not think that he has done it intentionally. This is an unnecessary interruption.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Sir, I referred to the offer made by Government to my honourable friend Mr. Nariman, but he refused to accept the offer on three grounds.

[Sir Cowasji Jehangir]

The first ground was that Government refused to appoint a Committee, which he had suggested, to go into the question of retrenchment.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: May I speak a few words?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I am sorry I have to refuse to hear my honourable friend.

That was the first ground. His second ground was that he had no confidence in any of the officers of Government, including the officers belonging to his profession. I may inform this honourable House that the officer we intended to appoint was a man of high judicial attainments. His third ground was that he felt insulted because we offered him the same privileges which are offered to any Government servant who may be suspected of corruption. We generally give officers who are charged with corruption the greatest privileges in order to defend himself. So, Mr. Nariman was to be present, was to cross-examine witnesses, and see and call for all documents admitted as exhibits.

I, therefore, ask honourable members who are sitting on the opposite benches but who are not here according to the dictates of others, to judge for themselves, whether any more sincere offer could have been made to Mr. Nariman than this. We wanted his co-operation and therefore we made this offer, which he thought fit to reject. So, in the meantime we could do nothing further. We could not proceed with the investigations, unless we had more facts.

In February 1926 a number of contractors suddenly invaded my office with a complaint that the Chief Engineer of the Reclamation Branch had opened some tenders without their (contractors') presence, and they suspected that there would not be fair-play, because they were deliberately kept out of the room. I immediately communicated with the Director and asked him whether the contractors had been kept out of the room. His first reply was that it was generally the practice to allow contractors to go into the room. The next day I was informed that the contractors were not allowed to go into the room. I ordered the tenders to be sent to me for disposal. The only honourable member of this House, who came forward to give me any information privately about the allegations of corruption, was my honourable friend, Mr. Hooseinbhoy Abdullabhoy Lalljee. Sir, I have now before me the file on which I took notes, of the information he gave and I do not think there is any harm in taking the House into my confidence. My honourable friend, Mr. Lalljee, has himself alluded to the matters. When he gave me the information, he told me that he gave it to me confidentially. Up to now I have not betrayed his confidence, but as he has now alluded to it, I believe he will agree that I am at liberty to place the facts before the House.....

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE: Certainly.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: As I have said, Mr. Hooseinbhoy supplied me certain facts. They are in a note dated 11th March 1926. His first allegation was that a contractor named Balkishandas Seth had been convicted of forgery and sentenced to three years' rigorous imprisonment in 1911. His second allegation was that a contract for loading rubble was given to this contractor at Rs. 12-8 per wagon and then it was reduced to the following rates: Rs. 7-8, Rs. 5, Rs. 3-14 and Rs. 1-14 per wagon. His third allegation was that a contract was given to the same contractor at Rs. 3-10 per lorry and then at Rs. 3-8. A contract given to the Bombay Transport Company at Rs. 3 per lorry was suddenly stopped and given to this Balkishandas Seth at Rs. 2-14. Another allegation was that this contractor supplied bazar to the higher officers of the Development Department free and gratis.

I told him that as regards the other charges, I could undertake to investigate them. But it would be difficult for me to investigate this charge of supplying bazaar free and gratis. He then very kindly informed me that he had already employed a detective for this purpose. I asked him to come back and tell me the result of the work of the detective and he agreed. I assured him that if he get any evidence he could take it from me that I would at once take action in the matter. But to finish the little story about the bazaar, my honourable friend Mr. Husseinbhoy, informed me after some time that he was not successful in his attempts.

Since a detective had failed, nothing could be done beyond cross-examining the officers.

Now, Sir, going into the other allegation, as to Balkishandas Seth, a wire was immediately sent to the Punjab to ascertain whether the facts given me were correct. The facts turned out to be correct. I sent for this Balkishandas Seth and this was the first time I ever saw him. I faced him with these facts. He admitted them, and I told him he could walk out for ever, and he did. Then, as to the contracts that he had received, I asked for the original tenders, and this whole file shows the investigation that took place. I examined all the tenders, and I found that Mr. Balkishandas Seth had been given some contracts, but his tender was the lowest in every case. That was a fact found from the records and can be corroborrated still from our records. Now, Sir, in the contract about which I had stopped further action, I found afterwards that the allegation was that Balkishandas Seth was alone in the room. No allegation of that sort was made to me by the contractors and it has been found to be incorrect. But at any rate, I sent for the tenders and settled them myself, and Balkishandas Seth did not get the contract. I found, as I have just said, that of all this man's tenders were the lowest. There are reams of explanation, and all the original tenders were brought up and, if I may be allowed to say so, I made as thorough an examination as one could make on the facts placed before me. Now, Sir, that is so far as the information supplied by my honourable friend Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee is concerned.

The next step is the allegations made by Mr. Nariman before the Mears Committee. He made the same allegations as he had made in this Council, and the only specific allegation he made was one about the mild steel bars. I ask you, Sir, what was Government to do? Allegations were being again made. They themselves were becoming suspicious and doubtful. They asked the assistance of the only one man who had information. That assistance was refused to them. One member of the committee had advised that a prosecution of Mr. Nariman should take place. Another member said Mr. Harvey should be allowed to do what he liked. The third member expressed no opinion. Was it any use appealing to my honourable friend again ? Would we have met with any success ? And to judge that, I will ask honourable members to consider the conditions under which my honourable friend is a member of this House, the conditions under which he co-operates or non-co-operates with Government, I will ask my honourable friends to reflect on what conditions he is at present a member of this honourable House. Could we have expected any assistance from that quarter ? And it is evident from the evidence given by Mr. Nariman that he was the only man who had information and he was the only man before whom men who had given bribes were likely to admit it. Under the circumstances, in order to clear up this matter, and if the officer who had been defamed was prepared to run the risk of losing his reputation, and his fortune, I say it would have been wrong for Government not to clear up the matter, and the only way in which they could insist upon Mr. Nariman producing his evidence, was to sanction his prosecution. I am glad to find that one or two honourable members have to-day admitted that, had it not been for this prosecution, we should have been none the wiser than we were when Mr. Nariman made those allegations in Council, and that it would not have been possible for Government to find out anything. No man who has given a bribe is likely to come and tell a Member of Government that he has done so. As soon as he knows that a Member of Government is trying to find that out, the evidence would disappear. That is not the case with Mr. Nariman. We appealed to him for help, for assistance. We made him an offer, which no Government would make, namely to appoint a judicial officer of high standing who would investigate into these matters, who would help him in sifting the evidence, and who would frame a charge against the officer or officers. Mr. Nariman refused that offer. And when Government, in order to push this matter further, insisted upon Mr. Nariman coming into court and proving his allegations against Mr. Harvey, was Government wrong ? And had this Government not taken every step in their power to ask Mr. Nariman to supply the evidence even privately and confidentially ? And what chances had they of success ? None. And, therefore, Sir, Mr. Nariman went to a court of law and Mr. Nariman has produced some evidence.

Now, Sir, I do not wish to delay honourable members in this House for very much longer. I have said enough to show what information came to the ears of Government, what action Government took, and how Government appealed to the only man in Bombay who seemed to have information. I trust honourable members who are free to think for themselves, who are not bound by party ties, will admit that Government were anxious to bring their officers to book and were not anxious to shield anybody, and if they were anxious to shield Mr. Harvey, surely they would not have allowed him to go to court to prove his innocence.....

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: You did not anticipate that.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Now, Sir, I will come to the specific questions that were asked of me by some honourable members who wanted to know: What has Government done to see that such corruption does not take place again? I must again mention a fact referred to by the honourable member the Secretary of the department, and that is, that the officers, who are accused of corruption, were temporary officers of Government. We have now got in their place permanent officers of Government. In the Reclamation branch there is Mr. Framji and Mr. Duggan. In the suburban branch there is Mr. Advani, executive engineer, under Mr. Moraes, the superintending engineer. We took this action, I may say, long before these revelations.

Now, Sir, as to what we propose to do. It is very difficult, my lawyer friends will admit, to explain in detail in a matter of this sort what action Government has taken because anything openly and publicly stated at this stage may do harm to both the interests of those on the opposite benches and of us here, but I am prepared to say that Government is absolutely in agreement with every honourable member who has expressed the opinion that officers who had taken bribes must be brought to book.

We are prepared to say that we will take such actions as will make these culprits an example to the Development Department and to all other departments of Government. The papers are all before our legal advisers and the legal members of this House will excuse me and will understand that it is a difficult matter to speak about just now. To show the bona fides of Government that their intentions are similar to those of the honourable members opposite, I am quite prepared to accept the assistance of a committee of members of this honourable House and I will mention the names I have in mind.

(1) Mr. K. F. Nariman (Laughter). I do trust and hope and I have good reasons to believe that on this occasion he will give us that 9/10ths of the information he has in his possession. We rely on him a great deal indeed and I have great hopes that the beginning of this co-operation may go a long way (Laughter).

(2) Mr. Lalji Naranji,

(3) Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad, and

(4) Mr. Hooseinbhoy Abdullabhoy Lalljee.

These are all honourable members who have taken an interest in this question of corruption and we shall welcome their assistance. The committee will advise Government as to the steps they are taking and will have to take in connection with the allegations of corruption made in the course of the Harvey-Nariman Case or any other allegations of corruption. I might inform the public through this honourable House that we will be only too pleased, and we will be only too anxious, to receive any information which will really be of use.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: What about immunity ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: They will get all the protection that Government can give.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: To this list, I would add the name of the honourable member Mr. K. M. Munshi.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I accept Mr. Munshi's name.....

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA: I suggest the name of the honourable member Mr. B. T. Desai.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: The honourable member Mr. Balubhai Desai will excuse me. I think we have secured considerable legal talent on this committee of which I have high hopes and I trust honourable members will leave the committee at that strength and not make it unwieldy.

One other point, I would like to refer to, is, that my honourable friend Mr. Balubhai Desai stated that I had made a statement that Lord Lloyd had carried away Development Department papers. The statement that I made was before the Mears Committee in answer to a question as to whether I could give certain information and I said that the information, if it was available, would only be available in the private correspondence of the Governor and that the Governor had taken his own private correspondence away with him. Then, my honourable friend Mr. Balubhai Desai went on further to state that as the member in charge of the department I had handed over Government files to the ex-Governor. I do not think he was serious and I do not think my honourable friends in this House will require me to deny such an allegation. I never handed over to the late Governor any files which were the property of Government; I never handed over to the late Governor any files at all.

Now, my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji is very fond now-a-days of making accusations. He has accused us of having not given him certain information which he required in the Audits Committee. As far as my recollection goes (and here are the minutes) the questions he asked were not quite in order and he was not entitled to ask them; nevertheless, I agreed to give him all the information he asked for although he was not entitled to it and we tried our very best to give him all the information that we possessed. In fact my honourable friend, the Secretary, Development Department, had to come up from Bombay and he brought all the information that was available and when the honourable member Mr. Lalji Naranji asked for more, more was brought. I do not know what Mr. Lalji Naranji expects us to do.....

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: Why was Mr. Harvey not produced ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: The Harvey-Nariman case was then in progress and I see from these minutes that all the documents were in the court. Mr. Harvey could not very well come up and bring with him documents that were in the court. We were trying to give Mr. Lalji all the information that we could scrap together.

[Sir Cowasji Jehangir]

I will leave this matter at the present stage. I have nothing further to state. I am sorry to have troubled the House with such a lengthy speech.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, in view of the assurance given by the Honourable the General Member that he will appoint a committee and that he will give them full latitude to go into the whole scheme, I ask for leave to withdraw my motion.

Question put and leave granted.

Question that the total demand of Rs. 46,05,000 under 59—Bombay Development Scheme be granted was put and carried.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, I move for a grant of Rs. 7,71,000 under Public Health—Transferred—56-A, Capital Outlay on Improvement of Public Health. (Civil Estimates, page 277.)

Question proposed.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Sir, I beg to move the motion which stands in my name as under:—

Reduce by rupee one—Total Grant—Rs. 7,71,000.

My object in moving the cut is to bring to the notice of Government the fact that they are not treating other local bodies as well as they are treating some local bodies.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I have repeatedly said that a one-rupee cut means a censure.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: That is exactly what I mean. It was represented to Government that the Poona Municipality and the Poona Cantonmment required a drainage scheme, the approximate cost of which was going to be Rs. 30,00,000. At that time Government generously came forward and agreed to give half the cost, viz., fifteen lakhs of rupees, as a free grant and Government supplied the other half, viz., fifteen lakhs of rupees, as a loan.

It means that Government found all the money that was required for that drainage scheme. Now, I have no grievance about this. I am in favour of Government helping the local bodies, as far as they possibly can, but what I object to is that they should give preference to those local bodies who are near the seat of Government and who are able to influence Government's decision.

Now, the Ahmedabad city municipality has also got a big and ambitious drainage scheme, the cost of which is in the neighbourhood of Rs. 50 lakhs. This municipality has repeatedly approached Government for giving them a suitable grant, but I am sorry to say that till now Government have not agreed or shown any willingness to contribute even one rupee for the drainage scheme of the Ahmedabad municipality. Now, Government could give Rs. 15 lakhs for the drainage scheme of Poona city and cantonment, when the scheme was going to cost Rs. 30 lakhs. They gave a grant and met the other half of the cost by advancing the money to the municipality. The Ahmedabad municipality is prepared to raise loan by pledging their own income. Naturally, it will have to pay a much higher rate of interest than that at which Government could find the money. When the Ahmedabad municipality is prepared to find the amount which will have to be spent on the scheme, I do not see why Government should refuse to give it any grant.

Then, Sir, Surat city requires a drainage scheme very badly. Since several years Surat city has got water works. But that water is going underground ; it is soaking down, and it may be that several houses may come down, because the foundations have been getting unsound by this continuous soaking of water. Sanitary engineers tell us that it is improper and undesirable to have water works and not to have a drainage scheme for draining off the water. The estimated cost of the drainage scheme for Surat is in the neighbourhood of Rs. 30 lakhs. The municipality has repeatedly approached Government for giving it assistance by way of a grant and a loan, and yet I am sorry to say Government has till now turned a deaf ear to the request of the municipality. Now, I do not want preferential treatment for Gujarat or for any other part of the presidency. What I want is that Government should not treat particular districts or particular places as their pet children and they should not give step-motherly treatment to other centres. If for purposes of giving a grant Government sets up any standard, that standard should be brought to the notice of all the municipalities. If they look to the amount the different centres contribute to the Provincial exchequer, then they should say so. We would then know positively the grounds on which Government grants would be made. Because Poona happens to be the seat of the Government for some months in the year, and it happens to be near the seat of Government, it can get the attention of Government concentrated on its wants. I think that is a poor ground to give preferential treatment to such centres. I hope honourable members will vote for this cut, in order to bring to the notice of Government the fact that we desire all the parts of the presidency should receive equal treatment.

Question proposed.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT (Surat City) : Sir, I want to offer a few remarks on the motion that has been put before the House by my honourable friend Mr. Shivdasani. Only recently we were talking about the wastage of money on the development of this city. If the amount that has been spent on the Development Department had been placed at the disposal of the mofussil places for improving the sanitation and public health of the several cities, I think we should have done far more good to the humanity of this presidency than what they have been able to do for Bombay city.

In this connection, I should only refer to the huge grant, to the extent of Rs. 50 lakhs, that was made by Government to the Poona municipality for the construction of their drainage works. Last year, when we discussed the budget, I pointed out very clearly that the city of Surat very badly wanted a drainage scheme, because of the very high infant mortality that prevailed in that city. There are several reasons why the city of Surat very badly wants a drainage scheme. The lives of infants and human beings are much more precious than the houses that might fall down by the soaking of water to which the previous speaker referred. The infant mortality and the total mortality of the city are a disgrace to the Public Health Department of this Government. It may be pointed out that the Surat municipality did not approach the Government for some time, but I do remember that this question was discussed in the corporation more than half a dozen times, but every time the corporation did not consider it desirable to pass the scheme for want of any assurance on the part of Government to come forward with a grant to the extent of half the amount that would have to be spent for the construction of the drainage works. A resolution was adopted by the corporation and communicated to Government, that Surat was prepared to have a drainage scheme, provided Government came forward with half of the cost as a grant. Since then it was pointed out that a comprehensive drainage scheme in Surat would cost about Rs. 64 lakhs. That was found to be very expensive for Surat city to take up, without help from Government. When this matter was discussed in the Council last time, the usual plea of financial difficulty was brought forward by Government. I do not mean to say that there is no difficulty with Government so far as finances are concerned. All the same, public health and sanitation of the Bombay presidency must weigh first with Government and it should have the first claim on the finances of Government to the best extent possible. They have been spending money in many other ways. A few lakhs given to the city of Surat every year, say Rs. 5 lakhs to Rs. 10 lakhs continuously for 6 to 7 years, would give this city a very good comprehensive drainage scheme, and save the lives of infants and adults that are lost every year. This point cannot be too strongly pressed as far as this particular city is concerned. Surat is at present unhealthy. It is full of mosquitoes. I am not ashamed to say that it is a regular hell. Those honourable members of this Council who have had occasion to go and stay there would have found, and when you, Sir, came to Surat, you would have found that Surat is a regular hell after sunset. You cannot sleep without mosquito nets, and during the hot weather you cannot sleep with mosquito nets; but poor people who form the bulk of the population cannot afford to use mosquito nets; and it is simply intolerable that Government should not come forward with any help whatsoever for the construction of the Surat drainage works. The water works in the city have been existing for the last 32 years. Government have not contributed anything to the Municipality in the construction of its Water Works. Every day, the city is supplied with 25 to 30 lakhs of gallons of water, and not a drop goes out. All the water sinks in the sub-soil, and you can imagine very easily the amount of mischief that this sub-soil water does to the health of the city. Therefore, a scheme of drainage cannot be too strongly pressed. The resources of Government must be utilised first for the sake of sanitation and public health, and I would request the Honourable Minister to set aside a certain sum of money, if the sanitation of the mofussil places is to be improved, for the construction of drainage schemes in the various cities that are in need of such schemes. The first and foremost necessity of any city is water works and drainage. If both are available at one and the same time nothing like that, but wherever water works exist drainage schemes must be taken in hand; otherwise they work to the great detriment of public health and sanitation of the city. With these remarks I would request the Honourable Minister to pay special attention to this scheme of drainage to which I have referred.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City): Sir, my honourable friend from Surat has raised the question of a drainage scheme for the city of Surat. Sir, during the last budget session I stated very clearly that if anything was required to be done by Government it was certainly in the villages. Somehow, it has been the practice to help the cities first, largely because, I think, people living in cities can agitate against Government, even frighten them, take them to courts and compel them to act up to certain obligations, whether moral or legal. But, Sir, if you look at the figures of population you will see that the larger part of the people of the presidency dwells in the villages, and yet out of the capital expenditure of Rs. 7,71,000 provided for the improvement of public health, the Honourable the Minister in charge of the Department has not found it possible to spend even one rupee to improve the health of the people in the villages, from whom he derives most of his revenues. I want most respectfully to enter a very strong protest against this state of affairs. The part of the country from which I hail, Sind, is suffering from the same conditions which prevail more or less in other parts of the presidency. Upper Sind usually suffers very considerably from malaria, largely because during the rainy season big pools of water collect there without the slightest care on the part of the authorities to see that they are cleared off or filled up, so that mosquitoes may not breed and destroy precious human lives. But it seems that there is no value attached to the people of the villages, and we find that no steps are taken by Government to improve their lot. I therefore want to suggest to this Government that the sum of Rs. 7,71,000, which is provided in the budget may very well be spent, but that the specific manner in which it is proposed to be spent may be altered. The whole amount proposed to be spent in the city of Poona, which happens to be the monsoon capital of the Government, should not be spent in that one particular city, but some part of it should be distributed equally to the several divisions of the presidency and to Sind. In his reports the Assistant Public Health Officer of Sind has made recommendations to Government for the improvement of health in Sind. I would like to know from the Honourable Minister in charge of this department, when he rises to make a reply, what he has done in regard to those recommendations.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I am not entitled to reply.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: He or anybody else can reply. It is enough for me to ventilate the grievances of the province from which I come. Do not spend all the money in any particular province, but do distribute almost the whole amount in the villages rather than give it to the cities.

[Mr. N. A. Bechar]

Therefore, I hope, Sir, that Sind will receive its share to be spent not in the cities but in the villages.

The real intention of my honourable friend who has moved this cut of one rupee is not to reduce the amount but to increase it. But the constitution does not allow him any other procedure; we can ventilate our grievances only by raising a discussion; we have no power to increase the amount unless the Honourable Minister agrees to increase it himself in the budget. I therefore take this opportunity to appeal to him to see his way to benefit the people of the villages.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): Sir, I am glad the honourable member from Surat has given me an opportunity of calling on Government to explain their policy towards the mofussil. I find in this budget a perfectly rational treatment being given to the Bombay city, where the Honourable Members of Government reside and whose amenities of life they enjoy. I find, also that Government is very solicitous about the personal safety of the people of Bombay City and that the Honourable the Finance Member is prepared to give Rs. 72,000 for police protection in the city of Bombay, although the Honourable the Home Member has been unable to obtain any for that protection in the mofussil. This one special item of Rs. 7,71,000, which is an expenditure out of the capital loan account in Poona Municipality and Cantonment is an illustration of the treatment that is being given by Government to their headquarters. Poona is the second capital of the Government of Bombay; Bombay is the first capital. Poona requires 49 lakhs of rupees, that is half a crore, for its drainage. The Honourable Member in charge of Local Boards placed before the Council three years ago a proposal to give to the Poona Municipality alone a contribution of half the amount. This House was not unwilling to extend that treatment to the Poona Municipality. But, Sir, when Poona and Bombay are represented in the Cabinet by the seven Government Members, is it not fair for this side to bring to the notice of the seven Members of Government the needs of the mofussil and also to tell them that they are perhaps making the mofussil jealous of the first and second capitals of the Presidency. Now, what is the state of affairs? The honourable member from Surat has placed before you Surat's case for drainage. I will give you another instance, the instance of the municipality of Sukkur, which is certainly a flourishing municipality. Sukkur had its water works in 1895. It was started in 1895 purely out of its loan at a cost of 2½ lakhs. At that time the distributary system was for a population of 25,000 or 30,000. Another system was started at the instance of Government, and that system was finished at about 1923 or 1924. Government asked us to pay half and Government paid a little more than half (Rs. 1,000 or so more), and that scheme has been completed so far as the water supply is concerned. Then immediately after the water supply the distribution system came in and caused greater anxiety. The distribution system was formerly for providing water for 30,000 people and now it is for 45,000 people. Unfortunately, Sir, the distribution mains put some years ago have been so reduced that during the last one and half years there had been breakages and cracks in the mains and in about 15 cases the municipality had to pay damages. Suits were filed against the municipality and they had to pay Rs. 5,000 as damages. What do the municipalities and the local bodies want? They require money from Government. They want Government to carry out the undertaking made since 1914, given in a Resolution according to which, the local bodies have to provide half the money of cost and the Government will give their half share. I find that the local bodies are prepared to bear their half share but there is no response on the part of Government. The Government resolutions are there, but they are not put into effect. I may submit, Sir, according to that scheme, my municipality—I shall omit other municipalities—has applied to Government to sanction the half amount and my municipality agreeing to bear its half share. This application was made in the month of June, upto now there is no reply from Government. We always find that when Government do not want to do anything, they do not give any reply. Only ten days before I left Sukkur there were further three breakages and the municipality has been called upon to pay damages. That is the position. It is only unfortunate that our place is not near Bombay, the second Capital of Government. Otherwise we would have got the special privilege as Poona is getting. Government find money to spend on other schemes in the Bombay city, but they do not find money to spend on the schemes in the mofussil. They are now spending Rs. 12 lakhs on the hospitals in Bombay. We do not grudge Bombay, but at the same time Government should consider the difficulties of the mofussil. We—the people in the mofussil—cannot cry, because there are no newspapers which can compel Government to attend to their writings and thus their cry is in the wilderness. But we are the constitutional representatives of the people, who can certainly call the attention of Government to such matters. When they do so, the Government quietly sleep over the matter and do not condescend even to reply. I, therefore, ask the Honourable Minister, who is a representative of the people—an elected representative—"is it fair and proper that the mofussil should be treated as a step-daughter?" I would request Government not to continue to treat mofussil as a step-daughter, because we in the mofussil are at a distant.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, before the contagion spreads, I rise to speak on the subject and make matters clear to honourable members. My honourable friend, sitting opposite (Mr. Pahalajani), in trying to plead the cause of the mofussil, was pleading the cause of Sukkur. All along he was saying that the mofussil is neglected, but in the end what do we find? We have observed that he was pleading the cause of his own place. That is to say, he wants all facilities in his place at the expense of the rural areas and the general taxpayers.

Before I deal with his arguments and the arguments of my other honourable friends in detail, I must bring to the notice of this House that this item is for the second section of the Poona Drainage Improvement Scheme. This honourable House should remember this in the first place. The amount which is to be spent on this scheme is not a gift that we are making to the Poona municipality. It is merely capital expenditure that Government are incurring on the scheme. I am sorry my honourable friend, Mr. Pahalajani, has not read the item carefully. This is a scheme of which the expense will be borne by Government and excepting the cost of certain works, they will charge this amount to local bodies other than the Poona City Municipality, and will be recouped by means of rent for the use of the common server. The second Section deals with the disposal of the sewage. It has to be sold for irrigation purposes, and Government expect a return of six per cent. on the expenditure that they are going to incur. So, you will find, Sir, that it is not a gift at all to the Poona municipality.

As regards the Poona Cantonment Water Supply, I may submit that it is a commercial concern. I refer to the work that is in progress. We sell to the Cantonment and others water out of this Supply; and this is a paying concern. We realise about six per cent. on the capital outlay. This grant has nothing to do with the grant that is allowed for Poona Drainage or Poona Cantonment. This is only capital expenditure that we are incurring, and we hope to realise money on our investment. That is the difference which my honourable friends should bear in mind.

Coming to the various complaints made by my honourable friends from the mofussil, I may assure this honourable House that the mofussil is dearer to me than Bombay. Now, my honourable friend Mr. Pahalajani, admitted that in 1923 he got for his municipality more than 50 per cent. as a grant-in-aid for its water works. Yet, he is not satisfied with that. He imagines, perhaps, that the whole world is made up of the Sukkur municipality alone. My honourable friend ought to think of other municipalities as well, who also expect to be treated like the Sukkur municipality.

Now, Sir, we have another honourable member who joined the chorus, my honourable friend from Ahmedabad (Mr. Swaminarayan). He said that no money was given to him for the Drainage Water Works scheme in Ahmedabad. I may inform this honourable House that lakhs of rupees were spent on the Water Supply Scheme of that city and I ask: "Is it fair that we should make a grant for the other scheme of the same municipality, without considering the claims of other municipalities?" My other honourable friends will accuse me of partiality, if I go on acting in that way. We have to look to the interests of all the municipalities and local bodies.

Now, my honourable friend representing Karachi (Mr. Bechar) made a remark in connection with public health. But I may inform him that I am not in charge of Public Health. Now, my honourable friends the representatives of Ahmedabad and Surat always talk of Ahmedabad as the great industrial centre, the great commercial city next to Bombay. Ask the honourable members from Bombay whether we give them a single farthing as grant-in-aid for water works, for drainage, on which they have been spending crores of rupees. When it suits my honourable friends, they say Ahmedabad is next to Bombay in wealth and importance. When we tell them we do not give anything to Bombay, they say they should get something whether Bombay gets anything or not. Now, coming to Surat, the honourable member for Surat described the city as full of mosquitoes, as "hell." That does not speak very well for the president of the municipality. Well, I have not said a word against his administration so far. But he condemned himself to-day from his own mouth. Now, Sir, when he made an application, in spite of our financial position we offered to give him something, and in all fairness my honourable friend ought to have mentioned that. But he did not do so. Now, Sir, consider the magnitude of these schemes ? Rs. 60 lakhs, Rs. 50 lakhs, Rs. 30 lakhs. That means the whole of the provincial-revenue should go to the bigger cities, cities which boast of being industrial and commercial centres. And they always say "We are the best cities, we are the greatest cities," and they want to deprive the poor ratepayers of the rural areas of their amenities. Now, Sir, my honourable friend from Sukkur has got more than 50 per cent. Yet, he is not satisfied. That means all our provincial revenue should go to the big cities and nothing should be left for the rural areas. Again, all the three honourable members who have been the loudest in asking for more money, when it comes to the question of taxation, say "No more taxation, but give us more money." I cannot reconcile the two positions, Sir.

(At this stage several honourable members rose).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Several honourable members wish to speak, and there are only two minutes to time. I think the debate will have to go over to to-morrow. But before we adjourn I have to remind the honourable House of the statement I made yesterday regarding the Government House Party, and said that as usual we shall adjourn at 4 o'clock to give opportunity to such members as would join it. But the question which I left over was in connection with the fact as to when we should meet in order to make up for the one and half hours that the House would lose. I, therefore, have consulted the Honourable the Leader of the House, and he is agreeable to meet to-morrow at 12. If the House is agreeable to that, we may meet to-morrow at 12. (Honourable members indicated assent). The House will, therefore, adjourn till 12 o'clock to-morrow and will go on till 4 o'clock without rising for tea. The House is now adjourned till 12 o'clock to-morrow, Thursday, the 1st of March 1928.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. I think I should make a statement to the honourable House in connection with something which has come to my notice. I find that questions which are not put and answered in this Council are reported in papers as if they have been asked and answered. Honourable members are aware that questions which are not asked and answered are understood to be withdrawn and lapse. I do not know who is responsible for the publication of such questions, but I should like honourable members to bear in mind that if they have anything to do with it, they would make it clear to the press people that such a thing should not be repeated again because that is very misleading and is not the correct procedure.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: I think the printed lists are circulated to the press people here and that is how they get printed in the papers.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I am not expected to address the press people in this House but the honourable members concerned ought to know what the correct procedure is.

There is another matter which the honourable member Mr. Chikodi raised yesterday in connection with the Harvey-Nariman judgment and he said that it did not go into the proceedings and did not form part of the proceedings. All papers which are submitted to the Council office in connection with the replies are part of the proceedings but they are not published because of their length and inconvenience that they may cause if they are printed. The reply shows that such and such a paper is put on the Council Table or in the Secretary's office and that goes into the proceedings and gives full facility to the honourable members to trace the reference.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI: Even when the reply is short and when the reply given here is that the document is placed on the Council Table, still it does not go into the proceedings. I will give you one example. With regard to my question as regards the doings of the Ministers, there is only one copy in the office and we have got no other means of reference.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The reference is in that reply itself and that would enable honourable members to trace the thing. The reply which states that a certain paper is put on the Council Table or kept in the Secretary's office is included in the proceedings and goes into them.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI: The longer replies sometimes go but the smaller replies do not do so.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I think the Council office studies that part very carefully and the proper procedure is followed, but the difficulty does not exist with regard to any reference so made.

Question again proposed :

Reduce by Re. 1—Total Grant Rs. 7,71,000.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Sir, I would like to make a few observations on the motion that was moved yesterday. The remarks of the honourable mover were principally made with regard to the municipality of Poona. I am a resident of that place although I have nothing to do with its municipality, but I should like to say that honourable members made remarks and actually sent in a motion of censure without ascertaining from the Honourable Minister whether it was for the sake of the capital towns of the presidency, Poona and Bombay, that he deprived them or their municipalities of their proper share. One honourable member called his mother city " a hell. " I think it was Dr. Dixit who, I believe, is the president of the Surat municipality, but the discovery that it was a hell he seems to have made after he was defeated in his presidentship.....

An Honourable MEMBER : No, no.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Very well, he ought to consider that it is no more a pandemonium but a paradise. I would also say a few remarks with regard to the observations which have fallen from the honourable member for Sukkur. Sukkur in Arabic means " Hell " (Laughter). In Arabic it is also said that Hell always says " هل من مزيد " i.e., " I want more and more. " Hell is always hungry. I believe when the honourable member from Sukkur asked for more money for his municipality, he was somewhat in that position. (Laughter) I think it is perfectly clear now that the Honourable the Minister for Local Self-government has dealt very impartially with all the municipalities and I regret to see that the worst remarks against him were made by members coming from his own province, but I really do not see why a vote of censure in such a matter like that should have been proposed. Even you, Sir, expressed surprise and asked the honourable mover of the motion whether he knew that it was a vote of censure and he deliberately said that he knew it. If Ministers were to be censured for such small matters like this without obtaining any explanation from them, I think the vote of censure will lose all its value. I would ask honourable members wishing to make such motions not to put us into an awkward position because if we do not address the House, then our silence is likely to be construed to be in favour of such motions. The other day my honourable friend Mr. Nariman said that all members were in favour of a particular motion because none spoke against it and that they were deliberately supporting a vote of censure against Government. Therefore I thought it necessary to oppose the motion and to address these few remarks in a sporting spirit to all the members that have spoken in favour of this motion. I hope that this motion will be defeated or withdrawn.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD (Poona City): Sir, the honourable member who moved this motion, I believe, was under a wrong impression when he said that the amount given by Government was a gift to the city of Poona, and probably being under a wrong impression he thought that the Honourable Minister was not justified in treating one municipality with favouritism or partiality, and so he wanted to move this motion. Now, as has been explained by the Honourable Minister, this amount is not only not a gift, but it is a loan, and it is a loan under circumstances which I will briefly relate. Now, Sir, the history of the Poona drainage scheme is of very long standing. Almost since the year 1890 Government have been pressing upon the municipality the introduction of drainage. Poona had its old drainage of the time of the Mahrattas, but it was rather out of date. Government wanted to do away with the old drainage, and wanted to saddle a new drainage on modern lines on the municipality ; the municipality did not want it. Khan Bahadur Dorabjee Pudumjee, who was regarded as the Sir Pherozeshah Mehta of Poona, was for a number of years the non-official president of the Poona municipality, and for several years he resisted the demand of the Government to saddle the municipality with a modern drainage scheme. Ultimately however, in the year 1910, when the city was visited by plague, Government introduced a drainage system. Unfortunately for the municipality and the Government, however, a raw man was selected to carry out the work. Mr. Mandy, who was, I believe, an assistant engineer in the Calcutta water works and who had very little experience of drainage works, was selected as the head of this scheme.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Who selected him ?

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD : Government selected him. The scheme was to be financed by Government. The scheme was conceived by Government, it was to be conducted by Government, and the costs were to be saddled on the municipality. The municipality had absolutely no hand either in the inception of the scheme or in the conduct of the scheme. The scheme, if it was bad in design, was worse in execution. It was, so to say, a failure. There was a hard struggle between the municipality and the Government, and the Government ultimately had to appoint one Mr. Watson from England as an expert to inspect the drainage works carried out by Mr. Mandy. The expert did admit that the system was full of mistakes, to say the least ; and it must be said to the credit of Government, that they remedied all the defective connections free of cost ; all the defective connections were remedied by Government. After a time, the drainage system was handed over to the municipality. However, I am sorry to say that the municipality was not in a position to work it satisfactorily, and the drainage was handed back again to Government. At present Government is in charge of the drainage works and the costs are to be recovered from the municipality.

Lastly, Sir, as the question has been brought up, I may make an appeal to the Honourable Minister that before he lays down the reins of his office he would see that the drainage system there is a perfect one. At present the worst of it is that this drainage is let into the river. You know, Sir, that the river is a confluence of the two rivers, the Mula and the Mutha, and the place is considered very holy by both Hindus and Mahomedans, and the horror of the thing is that at the place where we take our bath all this drainage water is let into the river; the result is that instead of taking our bath in holy waters, we have to take our bath in drainage water, sullage water, and what not. There is also another difficulty. During the monsoon, when the river is overflowing, it is all right, but on account of the Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy bund or dam put across the river, at other times, the river instead of being a river becomes a stagnant pool of putrified water, and on account of that Poona is full of malaria. Some call it malaria, some call it Mandy fever. Call it malaria, Mandy fever, or anything else that you like, but as long as this river remains in the condition in which it is at present, no amount of money spent on the drainage would improve the health of the city. This river has become a constant source of danger and nuisance to the health of the city. Poona is not an industrial place like Ahmedabad or Sholapur. We cannot boast of any mill industry like Ahmedabad or Sholapur, nor is it a city with any indigenous trade like Surat. Poona is a very poor place, and poor as we are, we are very heavily taxed. We have to pay per capital Rs. 10 as municipal tax; as compared with Sholapur or Surat we have to pay a higher tax. Not only have we to pay a higher tax, but we have the notoriety of having the highest mortality, and the Honourable Minister perhaps may have read in the papers that the mortality in Poona city has become so appalling that there was the other day an interpellation in the House of Commons about it. Of course the figure given there is not quite correct, but there is no doubt that we are notorious for high mortality. Perhaps, ours is the highest. Therefore, my appeal to the Honourable Minister is that, before he lays down the reins of his office, he should see that this drainage scheme is complete, by levelling down completely or partially the bund. We have been carrying on a correspondence with the Government for many years that the Government should take steps to take down the bund at least partially if not completely. On account of this bund the water remains stagnant, and not only is it a nuisance to Poona city, but it is a nuisance to the villages situated lower down, for instance Vadgaon, Manjri and Mundhwa. All these villages use river water for drinking purposes, and I leave it to the House to see what must be their state when this water is putrified by being mixed with all the drainage and sullage water. So, not only for the sake of Poona city, but for the sake of these villages also, it is absolutely necessary that the bed of this river should be purified.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Does the honourable member mean that the bund should be taken away ?

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD: Yes.

MOULVI RAFIUDDDIN AHMAD: It is maintained for the Boat Club.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD: If the bund is partially removed, the Boat Club can be maintained.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : It can go on dry land.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD : Whatever it be, I assure the Honourable Minister whatever steps he takes he will have the hearty co-operation of the Poona city municipality. We are ready to take our burden of the finances, but please do something by way of improving the drainage and by way of improving the bed of the river. With these remarks, I support the Honourable Minister and oppose the motion for a cut of one rupee.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District) : Sir, I thank the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government for his assurance that he has the interests of the rural areas at heart more than some of the honourable members on this side of the House. The Department of Public Health is not under his control but as the subject has been discussed, I want to offer a few remarks. In the first place, I would like to know how much money has been spent under public health in the way of capital outlay or recurring charges for the rural areas during all these years.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : May I rise to a point of explanation to curtail the debate ? I have nothing to do with Public Health. These are only water works and drainage schemes of municipalities. Public Health will come afterwards.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : I will then refer to only one point, and that is the point raised by my honourable friend Dr. Dixit yesterday about the drainage scheme in Surat. We all know that water works were established in the city of Surat 32 years ago, and not a farthing as far as I know was contributed by Government towards their construction. It was introduced at the instance of Government and at the same time side by side with that the drainage works also ought to have been introduced. I quite agree with my honourable friend Dr. Dixit when he said that the city was full of malaria and that one would not like to live there. Very recently the Surat municipality launched a scheme for the improvement of the water supply. They invited Sir Vishweshwara Ayya to inspect the water works, investigate the whole question and make a report. After making careful inquiry he made a report to the municipality giving the opinion that the water supply should not be increased more than the bare minimum requirement even by a gallon unless the drainage works are taken into hand, because the health of the city would deteriorate still further. You will also see, Sir, that the mortality of the city is very high. Recently the municipality wanted to improve the water supply in the suburbs, where people are not getting even a bare-minimum requirement of water. But it hesitates to take it up for want of drainage. The Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government said yesterday that the Bombay municipality had put into operation a scheme of its own and carried it out without any State aid. But there is a great deal of difference between the economic condition of the Bombay municipality and that of the Surat municipality. It must not be forgotten that the trade and prosperity of Bombay port have flourished at the cost of Surat Port. It may be remembered that once

[Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik]

Surat had a population of 7 lakhs souls, which is now reduced to one lakh. This is due to the Port of Bombay and for this state of affairs the Government is responsible. Surat is not now an industrial city like Ahmedabad or Bombay. It is a poor city and cannot bear the whole cost of a drainage scheme. Municipal taxation per head of the population in Surat is nearly as much as that of the Poona city. Looking to the economic condition of the Surat municipality, I think this scheme will never come into being unless Government come to the aid of the municipality.

As for the health of the city, the honourable member Moulvi Rafiuddin may not have known much. He might have hardly lived there for a day and if at all he would have stayed with Mr. Shaikh in a ventilated palace-like building. I would certainly suggest to my honourable friend Dr. Dixit to invite the honourable member Mr. Moulvi Rafiuddin, the Honourable the Minister for Local Self-Government and the Minister for Education to come and stay there for a day in the heart of the city and enjoy the hospitality of mosquitos so that they may know the actual condition. When this matter is brought to the notice of the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government he says that he is not in charge of the portfolio. Any way he is the custodian of local self-government and as such it is his duty to compel the Honourable the Finance Member to provide money for this scheme.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI (Bijapur District): Mr. President, I support this cut. I have the highest regard for the personal abilities of the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government; but he often commit-blunders, because to err is human. As regards the drainage of Bijapur we have got a great grievance. Bijapur in bygone times was one of the biggest cities of India—I think bigger than the present day Bombay and Madras put together. It is a city of grandeur even now.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Has the Bijapur municipality submitted any scheme of drainage to Government?

Mr. D. A. JANVEKAR (Southern Division): A scheme has been submitted by the Bijapur municipality long ago; and it has been approved by Government.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI: It has been prepared by the engineer of the municipality. Sanitary Engineer has approved of it and submitted to Government. It may require a lakh and odd rupees. It is not a city like Ahmedabad or Surat. A drainage scheme is badly wanted for Bijapur. Although it is not a town of great commercial importance it is famous for its monumental buildings constructed in bygone times by the Badshahas of the Adelshai dynasty. Globe-trotters from America and Europe visit this place to see these monumental buildings. When they see that the city has no drainage they will remark that the department managed by an eminent Indian has not provided a drainage scheme for such an important city. All this will be a censure upon the Minister for Local Self-Government. Therefore he should take the earliest opportunity to secure gift and loans for carrying on the drainage scheme in Bijapur. Bijapur is a healthy place and certain doctors are thinking of reserving a certain portion for opening sanatorium ; but only for want of a drainage scheme people are suffering much. There are malaria breeding places because water becomes stagnant as there is no drainage. There are so many dirty things thrown and for want of a drainage Bijapur suffers most. I request the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government, as other honourable members requested him, that Bijapur like other cities should have its fair share of gift and loans for its drainage scheme. As was pointed out by the honourable member from Surat, Surat also is a big city. Nearly 22 years back I had gone there and stayed for 10 days. Surat is a very pleasant place, because there is always rainfall. It is not notorious like Bijapur for scarcity ; there is plenty of milk and butter and people are cheerful. The only drawback is the want of a drainage. Up till yesterday I was under the impression that the Surat city had a drainage. Only yesterday after the Honourable Member Mr. Shivdasani spoke I came to know that there was no drainage. It is a sad affair. As regards Ahmedabad also I think there ought to be a drainage scheme. We members, although representing particular districts, should not care only for the districts we come from ; we should take all the presidency into account just as a Member of Parliament is concerned with all the countries in the world which are under the British Government. So, I request the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government not to treat other parts of the presidency in a step-motherly fashion but give aid to all the cities according to his convenience. I request him once more to secure some gifts and also a loan for a drainage scheme for Bijapur, which, in this matter, has been neglected for a long time. With these few remarks I support this cut.

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER : Sir, I feel that the honourable members of the House are under a serious misapprehension of the actual facts. They think that Government have not done their best to help the local bodies. The existing orders, whereby Government undertook to give 50 per cent. grant-in-aid were passed in 1907. That was a time when Government was not in serious financial difficulties, and they were able to meet the demand for grants-in-aid, which amounted in 1907 to Rs. 39 lakhs for about half a dozen schemes. Up to 1915-1916 they gave in grants roughly about 21 lakhs of rupees. Since 1915-16 the grants-in-aid every year have been as follows :—

	Rs. (in lakhs)
1916-17	6·93
1917-18	8·56
1918-19	10·46
1919-20	20·74
1920-21 (which was the year when the Reforms were introduced)	18·35
1921-22	22·70

[Mr. C. W. A. Turner]

	Rs. (in lakhs)
1922-23	23·44

From 1925-26, as you all know, Government began to feel very serious financial difficulties and they were then faced with the fact the total cost of schemes then under consideration in Karachi, Ahmedabad, Surat, Hubli and other cities of the presidency, came to Rs. 1,96,00,000. If, therefore, Government continued this policy for the schemes under consideration in 1925-26, we would have had to put down one crore of rupees. The honourable members of this House are aware of Government's financial difficulties. Since 1920-21 we have given very nearly 80 lakhs of rupees. If the honourable members desire that the Government should give one crore of rupees, the Honourable Minister will be only too pleased to do so, if he is provided with funds. But the question of finance is the whole difficulty.

I may also point out that in addition to these grants, Government have supplied their staff free of charge for preparing these schemes. The honourable member Mr. Chandrachud referred to the defects on the original drainage scheme in Poona. I am afraid there was a great deal of truth in what he said. But I may inform the honourable House that Government had not then an expert sanitary staff. I do not think that with our present staff we shall be making any mistakes, and I think that all such schemes will in future be prepared very carefully.

There is one other point which was made by the honourable members Rao Bahadur Naik and Mr. Bechar, and that is that Government have not done all they should for rural areas. It is true that there is not much demand for public health amenities in rural district. I should like to assure my honourable friends that Government have now under consideration the question of tackling health questions in rural areas. They are considering a scheme for a Malaria Survey in Upper Sind, which is necessitated by the changed conditions which will be introduced there when the change from seasonable to perennial irrigation begins and will probably come before this Council for a Supplementary grant to give a grants-in-aid for their survey.

I do not think there is anything more to say, but I do hope that those honourable members who have supported this cut will now vote for the demand.

Mr. N. R. GUNJAL (Poona District) [Addressed the House in Marathi] : Sir, as reference has been made to the Poona drainage scheme, I wish to say a few words regarding its history. There was originally a drainage scheme for Poona. That was put into execution, but it proved unsuccessful ; not only that but it also aggravated the evil it was intended to remove. The water of the river was spoiled and malaria spread throughout the city. Not only Poona, but the surrounding villages also were affected by this scheme as the pollution spread to other rivers flowing through ten or eleven villages surrounding Poona. I may also state that the dam put up near the Bund Gardens should be removed, and that will help to remove malaria from Poona City and the Cantonment.

I may tell this House that the amount which has been given by this Government is for the improvement of the drainage in the Poona City. I have already told you that there is malaria in the whole city and it is very urgent and necessary that the scheme should be carried out. I therefore, express my feelings of gratitude to the Honourable the Minister for local self-Government for this scheme. As a citizen of Poona and as the member of the Municipality I congratulate him and oppose this cut of Re. 1 very vehemently.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, we have heard just now the speech of the honourable member the Secretary for the local self-Government. He says that up to 1925 Government had adopted a policy of giving 50 per cent. for drainage and water works schemes, but after that year they have changed their policy.....

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: He never said so.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Sir, you will remember that about two years ago the Stamp Act Amendment Bill was brought forward by the then Honourable the Finance Member, Sir Henry Lawrence. At that time the Honourable the Minister for local self-Government, in supporting that bill, told this honourable House that that bill was necessary on account of the demand that the Government were getting from the municipalities for their assistance in the matter of water works and drainage schemes. I will quote his exact words here. On page 418 of the Council Debates (Vol. XVII) of 1926, you will find his speech. He says:

"Surat wants water supply and drainage to the tune of several lakhs; so also Ahmedabad and Karachi."

These are his words. He further states:

"I, therefore, submit that unless they raise taxation locally, they must accept taxation here."

Now, you are aware, Sir, that that taxation bill, in support of which the Honourable Minister put his arguments, was accepted by this honourable House. At that time we were told that there were demands for funds from Surat and Ahmedabad for the water supply and drainage schemes. We, therefore, supported that bill. That bill has been passed and it has been working for the last two years. This year also it has been extended. But the purpose for which it was passed and extended has been lost sight of by the honourable the Minister for local self-Government. That is the way in which Government manage the finances. We are asked by them to pass money bills and once they are passed, Government do not give the amount for the purpose for which they are meant. It was mentioned even by Sir Henry Lawrence that that bill was meant for the urban area. Still Surat and Ahmedabad have still been refused any assistance in the matter of primary necessities of life. Therefore, I support this Re. 1 cut, because Government did not act according to the policy which was enunciated two years ago. This Re. 1 cut means that Government should change its policy.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Sir, I had no desire of taking part in this debate, but I do so, only because I know that Re. 1 cut means that it is a vote of censure against the Honourable the Minister for Local Self-Government. I, therefore, thought it my duty to oppose this cut of Re 1. I may submit, Sir, that it is not the fault of the Honourable Minister for not providing money for drainage works to other districts and cities complained of by previous speakers just as the Honourable Minister has done for Poona. I have always found that whenever anything for the convenience of the people of any district is asked for and it is possible for him to do so, the Honourable Minister is ready to help that district when funds permitted. He has been giving facilities not only to the districts, but also to other places since he has been in charge of this portfolio. When we have got such a Minister as Sir Ghulam Hussain in charge of this portfolio, it is very astonishing that some honourable members should come forward to move a vote of censure against him. We have been watching his work for the last seven years and there are so many motions on record passed by this House sanctioning the amounts asked by the Honourable Minister for some good and useful schemes. In the face of this if any honourable member brings such a motion, it only shows his ignorance as to how to work in this honourable House and nothing else. He also forgets the good work that has been done by the Honourable Minister for such a long period as seven years. If honourable members at all wished that a discussion as regards the administration of the Local Self-Government should take place in this honourable House, they should have done so by asking for a bigger cut in the grant and not a cut of Re. 1 which means a vote of censure against the Honourable Minister, and also against the administration of such an important department. He is not only doing good and important work for the big cities but also for villages, talukas and districts in the whole of the presidency.

We are also told here that the City of Bombay has been provided by Government with money for drainage and water works schemes, while they are neglecting the districts. But I may tell this House that such is not at all the case. The Bombay Government has not given a single pie to the Bombay municipality for such schemes. The Bombay municipality has borrowed loans either from the people of Bombay in the Bombay Market or from the Indian Government for the schemes of Bombay City for the convenience of the people residing in Bombay. It should also be borne in mind that among the people who are residing in Bombay, a majority of them have come from the districts and villages. I tell this fact to my honourable friends from Ahmedabad, Surat, Poona and even Bijapur. They should not forget the fact that residents of Bombay have come from districts and villages and whatever monies spent in the city of Bombay are for their benefit and conveniences. The Bombay municipality has been doing this good work for them all. And all these honourable members ought to be thankful to the Bombay municipality and the Bombay people in particular when they are doing such a good and beneficient work for the mofussil people. Instead of doing this they come forward and complain that Government is giving more facilities to the Bombay municipality than to the mofussil municipalities. With these few words, I oppose the cut moved by my honourable friend, Mr. Shivdasani.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : I move the closure, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I accept it. The honourable mover will reply.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District) : Sir, I was expecting to receive a reply from the Honourable Minister or the Secretary of the department as regards the demand made by me on behalf of the other cities and the rural areas. But, as we well know, the members on the Government benches are very clever in drawing a red herring and confusing issues. When I asked why Ahmedabad could not receive a grant-in-aid for drainage, the Honourable Minister replied, because they received a grant for water works. Then, my question was whether Poona did not receive a grant for water works as well, and he turned a deaf ear to that question, and I did not receive any reply. The honourable member the Secretary to Government stated that till a certain year Government policy was to give 50 per cent. of the expenditure required for drainage and other schemes, but that owing to financial stringency, Government could not afford to give grants on that scale. That is no reply to my demand. If Government cannot afford to give grants at the rate of 50 per cent., let them give them at a lower rate, say at 25 per cent., but my demand was, let all the areas in the presidency be treated equally ; do not give preferential treatment to certain areas ; do not give 50 per cent. grant to certain municipalities and refuse to give even 1 per cent. grant to other areas. That is the chief demand, and to that I was expecting a satisfactory reply. My honourable friend from Bombay city has used a very amusing argument. He says that most of the residents of Bombay are not born in Bombay. They are born in outside places, and they come up to Bombay, and so, whatever the Bombay Municipality is doing for persons who are their own citizens they are doing for the districts, and so the districts of Bijapur, Ahmedabad and Surat, and so on, should all be grateful to the Bombay Municipality for providing drainage schemes in the streets and roads of Bombay ! I think to bring forward such an argument before this House is an insult to its intelligence, and I hope that the honourable member will not bring forward such arguments which are quite misleading and which are obviously erroneous and wrong. What the Bombay Municipality is doing it is not doing for the sake of the citizens of the mofussil. But it is doing for its own citizens who are working in Bombay, who are contributing to its taxes, and who are helping to promote the welfare of the city. I would again appeal to Government to give us a sort of undertaking that they will in the first instance try to give as large an assistance to public health schemes like drainage and water works as they can consistently with their financial circumstances, and that whatever amount may be available to give such grants, grants would be given to all places and will not be given to certain places in preference to other areas. The honourable member for Poona city tried to make out that Government was generous to the Poona city regarding the drainage scheme not because they wanted to be generous, but because they brought forward an expert, who committed such mistakes that Government was obliged to make large grants in order to rectify the mistakes of the expert. I hope the Honourable Minister will have something to say about this matter. Moreover, the Poona city had a drainage scheme even before Government gave this money. But Surat has got no drainage whatever. As regards the Surat City, instead of giving a reply, the Honourable Minister said that Dr. Dixit, who is the president of the municipality, should be ashamed that in his administration the state of the city should be such that he should call it a hell. That is not a reply to be given to a demand for money which is going to make that city something different from "hell." I hope we will receive more direct and more straightforward replies, and that issues will not be confused by drawing red herrings across their path. With these words I support my motion.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, I assure the House that I have been doing my level best to get as much money out of the Honourable the Finance Member as I can, though he is a very hard nut to crack. Now, Sir, first I will deal with the Poona drainage scheme, about which some misunderstanding and confusion has been created. Whatever the mistakes which were committed in the past, I have nothing to do with them, because they were committed in 1910, even before I was a member of this House. I think the people of Poona ought to be grateful to me (An Honourable Member: They are) for having come to their help by giving a large grant for this purpose. I had many conferences with the former president of the Poona municipality, Mr. Kelkar; and if the honourable members were to consult him, he would tell them all that Government has done for the Poona municipality and that the Poona citizens should be grateful to Government on that account. We have always been trying to push on with this drainage scheme of Poona. But the delay was on the part of the municipality. I have been budgetting amounts, very liberal amounts, for this scheme ever since I came into office. If the honourable members look at the budgets of 1921-22, 1922-23, and onwards up to this date, they will find provision for this scheme in them. So, it will be seen that Government is as keen on completing the Poona drainage scheme as any of the residents of the city of Poona, and specially I much more than any one else. Now, Sir, my honourable friend, the representative of Poona, complained that this drainage may be discharged near the bund. Well, as I understand it, it is not going to be discharged near the bund, but below the Manjri farm. So, he will have no cause for complaint on this score.

Now, Sir, I have heard various honourable members representing the Poona municipality and other municipalities. Each one wants to have everything for himself Now, before I come to that, Sir, I wish to reply to the argument of my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan representing the Ahmedabad district. I have heard the words that he quoted. But in 1924-25 I gave a grant of nearly Rs. 26 lakhs for this purpose. Whatever I said, I carried out. But, after that, a large number of schemes came before Government, and the total cost of all the schemes was Rs. 1,95 lakhs. If we were to give a grant-in-aid of one crore to these bodies, where is the money to come from ? That means we would have to give Rs. 1 crore as a grant-in-aid in one year. (An Honourable Member : Note every year ?) Every year a large number of these schemes come up, I will deal with these various schemes presently. Sir, my anxiety to improve, as far as lies in my power, the drainage and waterworks of the various municipalities is clear. The honourable member the Secretary has quoted figures, and shown this House that after I came into office I have been giving larger and larger grants. Now, I come to the various complaints of the honourable members who were vieing with each other in saying that they have got less and that they want more. They are quite right, Sir. I do not blame them. As representatives of their districts, they must urge the needs of their particular areas. My honourable friend from Sukkur has been getting a 50 per cent. grant. Yet he complains he has not had enough. Then, Bijapur has already got a grant for water works. Ahmedabad too has already got a grant for water works.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : But Surat has not got.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I am coming to Surat now. Now, Sir, is it fair, when we have demands for water works from various other municipalites, that we should not help those municipalities and keep on giving money for the drainage schemes of the same cities which have already enjoyed Government aid ? My honourable friend the mover of this motion was talking of equal treatment. Is it equal treatment, may I ask him, that when his city has received such liberal amounts for water works, we should give them at the same time grants for drainage also, and give nothing to those who have not had a single grant-in-aid either for drainage or water works ? Is it fair ? I put it to him.

Coming to the city of Surat, I am sorry the honourable member, the president of the Surat municipality, did not mention that Government had already made an offer of a grant to that municipality.

The whole thing depends upon the financial position. If we have the money, I will be the last person not to ask and get as much as I can. I have been hearing complaints in this House for three days during the general discussion on the budget that the budget was most unsatisfactory, and now my honourable friends turn round and ask for crores of rupees by way of grants. When the budget is unsatisfactory, how can we give away crores of rupees ? Suppose we consider only the claims of the big cities, what about the rural areas which have been contributing their share to the provincial revenue ? Should we cut down their grants ?

Honourable MEMBERS : No, no.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Then, where is the money to come from ? Honourable members should either have provincial taxation for provincial purposes or local taxation for local purposes, or they may allow us more taxation here and then we may give more liberal grants.....

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Was any grant made to Surat after these water works ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I do not remember. However, we have to look to the various cities and the various rural areas. We cannot be partial to Ahmedabad, as Ahmedabad has already had one grant, and in spite of that my honourable friend is bringing forward a motion for a cut of one rupee in order that I should be unfair to other cities and other rural areas. That is hardly fair on his part. I thought I deserved well of him after what I have been doing in the interest of local self-government, but I am afraid my friend is never satisfied with whatever is given.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : As regards the grant to Poona, may I know whether the three bodies in Poona, the Cantonment, the Suburban and the city municipality are going to share it equally ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Government is undertaking the second section of the drainage scheme and will charge them rent. We will sell the sewage from the drainage. That has nothing to do with the grant.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : I beg leave to withdraw my motion.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : I object to the withdrawal. It must be rejected.

Question put and leave granted.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Before I put the whole demand, I should again like to impress upon the House in a way supporting the remarks made by the honourable member Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad that these one-rupee cuts which are nothing short of censure motions should not be as frequent as they appear, and I bring it seriously to the attention of the House that day by day, as we get along, the honourable House should adapt itself to Parliamentary procedure and practice ; that it should remember that a one-rupee cut is a censure and a censure should be rarely moved and moved only when it is seriously meant ; and not to raise a general discussion. It is no use telling the President that censure is meant when practically the President sees that time is taken up in raising a sort of a general discussion. There is a method for that and I would say that if any cut above one hundred rupees—or I would say a round figure of one thousand rupees—is tabled, that would enable honourable members to raise a general discussion on the policy of a department, but these one rupee cuts I find are too many and frequent and mean practically nothing.

I now put to the House the demand for Rs. 7,71,000 under 56-A, Capital Outlay on Improvement of Public Health.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Mr. President, I rise to make a demand for Rs. 2,14,07,000 for capital expenditure on irrigation works in this presidency under the head 55, Construction of Irrigation Works not charged to Revenue.

The total budget estimate for the ensuing year under this head is Rs. 2,71,54,000 against the current year's budget estimate of Rs. 2,45,90,000. This amount of the next year's budget is made up of Rs. 2,49,23,000 provided for the Lloyd Barrage and Canals Construction Scheme and Rs. 22,31,000 for other irrigation works in Sind and Deccan and Gujarat. The provision for the Lloyd Barrage and Canals Construction Scheme is arrived at after deducting, as usual, from the Chief Engineer's original demand, Rs. 25 lakhs on account of probable savings and taking a credit of Rs. 20,000 by debit to 5, Land Revenue for half the cost of the Assistant Revenue Officer and his establishment employed on preliminary investigation of the land grants, etc., under this scheme, as about half of their time is spent in the preparation of the reports for the revision settlements debitable to 5, Land Revenue.

Mr. President, I shall now briefly explain how the figure of the demand has been arrived at. From the total estimate of Rs. 2,71,54,000, we have to deduct firstly, the non-votable expenditure of Rs. 6,55,000 for the salaries of the Lloyd Barrage and Canals Construction officers appointed by the Secretary of State; secondly, the non-votable amount of Rs. 46,45,000 for interest charges in connection with the Lloyd Barrage and Canals Construction Scheme, and thirdly, Rs. 4,47,000 representing the amount of percentage charges for establishment and tools and plant on the provisions for works other than the Lloyd Barrage and Canals Construction Scheme which are included in demand No. 27 for "Civil Works" as usual. Thus, if we deduct these amounts aggregating Rs. 57,47 lakhs from the total budget estimate of Rs. 271·54 lakhs, we come to the amount of Rs. 214·07 lakhs for which I ask for the vote of the honourable House. Full details of the progress of works done up-to-date and of the proposed expenditure during the ensuing year on the Lloyd Barrage and Canals Construction project as well as important provisions made for other works in Sind and Deccan have already been given in the Blue Book for the information of the honourable members of this House; and I do not wish to go over the same ground again beyond making a few general observations in respect to the Lloyd Barrage and Canals Construction project.

As honourable members are aware, I informed this House during the last budget session that on the information then available, an excess of Rs. 60 lakhs over the project provision of Rs. 1,835 lakhs for the Lloyd Barrage and Canals Scheme was anticipated by the Chief Engineer.

During the past year every item in the project has been subjected to a careful examination by the Chief Engineer and Government have quite recently received detailed information which forecasts a possible net excess of Rs. 168 lakhs. Although Government have not had sufficient time to examine the Recapitulation Statement, they have decided to place its salient features before the Council at the very first opportunity. I would emphasize the fact that Government have yet to consider the figures in detail, and that they are liable to re-adjustment after such consideration. It is the opinion of the Chief Engineer that these figures are very conservative, and may, therefore, be taken to err on the side of safety. In dealing with an estimate of this magnitude, it is absolutely necessary to err on the safe side.

The excesses work up to a total of about Rs. 333½ lakhs, counterbalanced by a saving of Rs. 165½ lakhs. Reviewing the position, briefly, the chief items of excesses are :

(1) Customs Duty .. .. .. Rs. 22 lakhs.

(2) Rectangulation .. .. .. Rs. 10 ,,

(3) Inclusion of an additional area of 1,14,000 acres of excellent land in the tail command of the Rohri Canal .. .. Rs. 9½ ,,

(4) Extra cost of land acquisition .. .. Rs. 51 ,,

(5) Additional expenditure on excavation of distributaries on the Rohri Canal and Right Bank system .. .. Rs. 126 ,

(6) Earthwork excavation on the Main Rohri Canal .. .. Rs. 22 ,,

(7) Widening the Eastern Nara Channel .. Rs. 20 ,,

(8) Land Grant and Revenue Officer's establishment .. .. Rs. 28 ,, (9) Establishment .. .. .. Rs. 45 ,,

No customs duty was imposed on the import of Government stores when the project estimate was prepared, or, indeed, until after it was sanctioned. This liability accrued with the revision of the Sea Customs' Act in 1924.

In March 1927, I mentioned to this House that we estimated our liability under this head at Rs. 55 lakhs. The reduced liability now expected is due mostly to the fact that a lower duty was leviable on more substantial items than was originally forecasted.

The work of rectangulation is a work normally done by the Civil administration of the country, but has been undertaken by this project with a view to more economic working when the scheme is in operation.

[Sir Cowasji Jehangir]

The extra tail area in the Tando Bago Taluka of the Hyderabad district was not expected to be irrigable when the project was prepared. Subsequent detailed contouring of the country showed its inclusion to be practicable; and as the greater part of the land is of excellent quality, this area has now been included as an economic proposition. The estimated revenue from this new area is Rs. 2·8 per annum, which gives a return of 29·4 per cent. on the estimated additional expenditure of Rs. 9½ lakhs. Further, taking very conservative figures for land sales in this area, we estimate Rs. 20·25 lakhs as proceeds from the sales of Government lands in this area, which sum is more than twice the cost of bringing the area under command of the Rohri Canal.

As regards land acquisition, the excess is due mostly to the increase of actual over projected rates for acquisition and to an increase in the area now expected to be required.

Regarding the excavation of the distributaries, I informed this honourable House in my speech of the 4th March last year, that the project provision was based on acreage rates, whereas the detailed estimates were under preparation for each channel based on the close contour surveys carried out since the project was prepared. Sufficient details have since been taken out, and as a result we now anticipate an excess of Rs. 126 lakhs as against the Rs. 135½ lakhs mentioned in my last budget speech.

The earthwork on the Rohri Canal and branches has been worked out in detail. The excess of Rs. 22 lakhs now forecasted is due partly to greater quantities of bank-work now found necessary and to a slight increase in the working rate over the projected for the canal and branches in their narrower reaches.

As regards the Eastern Nara Channel, the extra provision for widening the bed of the channel between mile 12 and Jamrao head has been found necessary after further detailed investigations.

The existing conditions of this channel were not fully known when the project estimates were prepared. The results of the careful investigations made since 1923 were not known in sufficient detail to permit of any increased provision being announced in March last. The information now to hand shows that it is necessary to make provision for the widening of the bed of the channel—an old river course—to take the greatly increased discharge that will have to be passed down it when the Barrage operates. It is estimated that Rs. 20 lakhs will be required for this widening of the Nara bed.

For the Land Grant and Revenue Officer's establishment, Rs. 28 lakhs will be required. No provision for this special establishment was made in the project. The question whether the whole of this amount should be included in the cost of the project is a matter for further investigation. As regards the increased figure for establishment, the estimate framed in 1919 could not take cognizance of the various improvements in the pay of establishment of all grades effected since that year. It had to be based on facts and figures then available.

For the purposes of this revised recapitulation, it has been deemed necessary to be more cautious in the rate of reduction of the expenditure under this head, as the rate of mergence of the construction establishment into that of the ordinary "open canal" establishment is difficult to compute accurately.

The items of excesses I have mentioned above will be partially set off by savings totalling to Rs. 165½ lakhs on the following items:—

(1) Canal excavation of Right Bank canals .. Rs. 49 lakhs.
(2) Manchar Drainage .. .. .. Rs. 42 ,,
(3) Unforeseen items under the Barrage .. Rs. 27, ,,
(4) Special tools and plant under the Rohri, Eastern Nara and Right Bank canals .. Rs. 25 ,,
(5) Mithrao Canal improvements .. .. Rs. 8 ,,
(6) Minor branches of Right Bank systems .. Rs. 5 ,,
(7) Other items .. .. .. Rs. 9½ ,,

I may point out that even if this excess of Rs. 168 lakhs now forecasted proves in practice to be necessary, the excess over the original sanctioned provision will be 9·1 per cent.

I may specifically point out that out of the forecasted excess of Rs. 168 lakhs, an excess of Rs. 114 lakhs is due to items which no engineer or Government could foresee or provide for when drawing up the project in the years 1918-19. Deducting this Rs. 114 lakhs from the Rs. 168 lakhs forecasted above, we are left with an increase of only Rs. 54 lakhs, which is 2·9 per cent. excess over the sanctioned project estimate. With these remarks, Mr. President, I ask for the demand.

Question proposed.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District): Sir, I move:

"Omit Item No. 69,—Remodelling Gharkhadan ex-Fuleli Canal— Rs. 35,000."

This item relates to the provision of moduling Gharkhadan ex-Fuleli Canal. This amount is being demanded year after year. The main argument of the Honourable the General Member for making this demand is that the Irrigation Department in Sind are very anxious to see that the water in each canal is distributed equitably on a scientific basis to all the zamindars, because they hold the view that the zamindars at the tail get inadequate supply of water. This point is of a very controversial nature. The people in Sind, the general public, have always been opposing the introduction of modules and reduction of sluices and similar improvements which are considered to be of great importance by the Public Works Department. It is held by the department that the tail people have been asking for the modules and reduction of sluices. It is not so. Always the tail people have been asking for improvements on a scientific basis, that is, widening the canals raising and strengthening banks at the tail to accommodate more water and by clearing the silt. But the policy adopted by the Government is one of robbing Peter to pay Paul. As a matter of fact the little water that Government propose to save for tail people does not reach the tail end at all, or even if it reaches the tail is infinitely small. Those people that have been getting a fair supply of water will get considerably less by this arrangement, and out of all the quantity that is saved for tail people they will get hardly 25 per cent. of it. The Honourable the General Member in the note shown in the Blue Book, for this demand, mentions that because assurance was given at the time when the Barrage was being sanctioned in the year 1923, for improving this canal, this money is provided, as the first instalment in earnest of the improvements which are to be undertaken. In fairness to the House I shall read the paragraph from the speech of the Honourble the General Member in 1923.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I was not here then.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO: Your predecessor.

The Honourable Sir Chimanlal Setalvad then said:

"Mr. President, I think it is necessary for me to refer to certain misapprehensions with regard to the effect of the project particularly with regard to the Fuleli canal. Fears are entertained with respect to:—

Firstly, the rabi cultivation at the tail of the canal; Secondly, the irrigation of the garden lands some 4,000 acres on both banks of the canal; and Thirdly, the withdrawals by the Sukkur Barrage scheme causing such a drop in the water level at the mouth of the Fuleli as seriously to endanger its kharif supply."

He then continued:—

"The perenial rabi about 26,000 acres is a comparatively recent institution on the Fuleli and was occasioned by there being no kharif supply in the tail. In former years, it was all kharif and the zamindars will therefore gladly revert to that crop. When the Barrage and the new canals come into operation a large supply of water will be set free in the Fuleli. As regards the garden lands on the Fuleli, these are safeguarded on the left bank, as they will be irrigated direct by the new Rohri canal. As regards lands on the right bank of the Fuleli, irrigation can and will be guaranteed by passing into Fuleli the quantity of water required. The improvements of the canals below the Fuleli will be systematically taken up, and their supply will not be affected.

As regards the apprehension about the drop of water level at the mouth of the Fuleli, Government are assured that there will be no appreciable drop whatever, on the contrary a gradual increasing rise."

From this paragraph one can readily come to the conclusion that it is a complicated matter and it will be wiser to wait and watch with due patience as to what the effect of the Barrage is going to be on Fuleli Canal. In my opinion therefore and in the opinion of all my colleagues from Sind it is premature to enunciate the policy of modulling the canals until the barrage results are known. We do not know what is going to happen after the barrage is completed. The zamindars are not anxious to effect improvements by modulling the karias but by clearing the silt. It is also maintained in some quarters that the Sind members in this Council represent the zamindars at the head of canals. We represent the zamindars at the head as much as we represent the zamindars at the tail. We want to do our best for our constituency. We want to take a rigidly fair attitude which should be appreciated by all the sections of public alike and we try to do as much good to the general public as we can. Let it therefore not be misunderstood that we are here for advocating the cause of individuals or a particular class of people and hence that sort of propaganda is spurious.

I have heard that the Public Works Department have issued a resolution enunciating a new policy of regulating water and modulling, which as a matter of fact has not been received by any one of us ; nor the public affected have had any occasion for the consideration of that resolution. I therefore think that a demand of this nature should not be hurried through and such policy should not be enunciated in haste when the public are not fully conversant with it. Therefore I think it will be more advisable for the Honourable the General Member to withdraw this motion and not to introduce the modulling question at present. The resolution was probably issued some time back but none of us have received it yet. I do not think I need detain the House any longer as both sides of the House are well aware of the controversy over this question as it has been discussed fully on many previous occasions here by us. With these remarks I move the cut.

Question proposed.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I rise to oppose this cut. My point is this. This question was raised last year and the Honourable the General Member with all his flight of oratory explained the advantages of the modules that by this system the water would be distributed equitably not only to those at the head but also to those at the tail. It was urged by my Sind friends that the trial of this system should be postponed for one year. The Honourable the General Member agreed and did not press the demand. Now, I rise with great reluctance and at the risk of being misunderstood by my honourable friends from Sind. This is not a party question but it is above party politics. I have thought over the question, and I feel it is my duty to raise my voice on behalf of the zamindars at the tail. As the system of modules, which has been advocated by the Honourable the General Member, has worked well and no argument has been advanced to show why it should not work well in Sind, I feel that that system should be tried. If my Sind friends can prove that the zamindars at the tail derive no benefit in the shape of equal distribution of water and that the zamindars at the head lose, then I may assure my Sind friends that I will be the first to support them and to press Government to introduce a new system. But now I feel that it is due to the tail zamindars that water should be evenly distributed. I do not want to go into the question in detail, but I want the House to give this new system a chance. If we find that by this system the tail zamindars do derive the benefit of equal distribution of water, then certainly the system ought to be established.

Mr. ALLAHBAKSH walad Khan Saheb HAJI MAHOMED UMAR (Sukkur District): Sir, I congratulate the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla for supporting the people at the tail. But he does not know the whole system of water distribution by modules. It makes no difference to the zamindars what system of distribution is adopted; the controversy is about the duty. The Honourable the General Member gave last year an assurance to the zamindars of Sind that they will not be deprived of their present supply of water, but that on the contrary they will be given 15 per cent. more. If that is so, I do not think that we need object to the introduction of modules. I would only request the Honourable the General Member to give us a chance, by holding a conference, to satisfy ourselves that whatever has been approved regarding the project, we are not going to be deprived of our water-supply. I know that last year the Honourable the General Member agreed to postpone the introduction of modules. He should give us one more chance. With these words I support the cut.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District): Sir, the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla knows nothing about Sind irrigation, and yet he speaks like a member of the Public Works Department. He does not know anything about karia heads or Sind water distribution. This gentleman.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED: The honourable member, I am sure, has no idea of land in Sind and its irrigation. He knows much about Back Bay and liquor shops and things of that kind, but certainly nothing about "Karias" and yet he comes forward as the spokesman of "the tail" zamindars of Sind. Indeed he does not know the head or the tail of the thing. He said that if the system of modules did not work well, a better method may be found out later! There was no argument in his speech. I am sure he does not know what a module is. Probably some gentlemen have spoken to him about modules and he has mentioned it. I hope he will in future deal with Sind affairs in a more responsible and in a more reasonable way than he has done this morning. Our grievance all along has been that the Bombay Presidency is composed of in such a way that one part of the presidency does not know anything of the other parts. What the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla has spoken this morning strengthens the case for the separation of Sind. The honourable member Mr. Ginwalla may be knowing labour questions very well; but what does he know of Sind and its agricultural problems. I hope the honourable member will forgive me if I say that we possess more knowledge than he does of Sind. Before he speaks again about Sind, I hope he will acquaint himself with the real conditions in Sind better than he has done this morning.

Last year the Honourable the General Member did withdraw the grant. But that should not induce the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla to support him now. We hear the Honourable the General Member has issued a resolution regarding modules, but none of us has yet seen that document; we do not know what that resolution is; we do not know what policy Government have laid down in it. The Fuleli Canal is the canal which will be most seriously affected by the Barrage, because as soon as the Barrage is in operation all that water which now comes to the Fuleli Canal will be suddenly reduced. That is an admitted fact. Last year we had requested Government to give us a chance of discussing the policy with Government. But we have not been given any chance yet. When the Honourable the Revenue Member came to Hyderabad-Sind a deputation of zamindars waited on him and represented to him that the question of modules was a very controversial question. When the Honourable the General Member came to Hyderabad, zamindars waited on him and asked for a definite policy with regard to all the improvements that Government wanted to make on the Fuleli Canal. When we come here we do not say anything in an irresponsible way. Nobody is more interested than I am in the welfare of my constituency; and certainly I am more interested in my constituency than the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla. I think the Honourable the Minister for Local Self-Government will bear me out when I say that I prize the good opinion of my constituency more than anything else, and that I will not press anything in this House which is against the interests of any section of my constituency. I take the fullest responsibility for appealing to the Honourable the General Member to give the zamindars a chance of studying this question in the light of the resolution which Government is issuing or has already issued but which none has yet seen in my constituency.

With these remarks I certainly support the motion. I trust that the Honourable the General Member will not, in all fairness, bind us down to a policy which we consider, from our point of view, ruinous to the zamindars in Sind.

SYED MUHAMMED KAMIL SHAH (Landholders, Jagirdars and Zamindars, in Sindhi): Sir, I beg to support the motion. I have now an experience of seven years of this honourable House; and I do not know of a single Sind member who has at any time said anything in favour of modules. The fact is that modules on innundation canals, that have always uncertainty about water-supply, can never work well; and in Sind, permit me to say, they have not worked well, whatever the Engineers may say to the contrary. They have failed in Jamrao and on Mithrao canal they have created a great discontent. I am sorry to say that sometimes an effort has been made to show to the honourable the General Member that Zamindars of the Muthrao Canal and the Thar Wah are quite satisfied with the working of modules on those canals; but I make bold to say that that is not in reality true.

Sir, Four years ago the Honourable the General Member at a conference held at Hyderabad-Sind announced that he would order experiments to be held on certain canals in the matter of silt clearance and modules. So, Sir, silt clearance was ordered to be made on a canal from the Fuleli, and modules were introduced in Nawabshah district, though the canal selected for silt clearance on the Fuleli was an old, long neglected, in fact the worst canal in the district, the silt clearance did yield good results. There was decidedly better supply of water in it, and more cultivation. Had there been no restriction on land grants, the area of cultivation would certainly have been much bigger. On the other hand, the experiment with regard to modules in Nawabshah district have very disappointing results. No definite orders, so far as I am aware, were passed on the results of those experiments. Suddenly last year Government wanted to introduce modules on the Fuleli canal; but after considerable discussion in this honourable House, the Government agreed to introduce modules on two small distributaries of the Fuleli. Except two or three zamindars, all complain against the results obtained from that experiment. Any way towards the end of July last there were heavy floods in those tracts ; and most of the area was submerged. Hence no one can say that the working of modules on the two branches was successful. Zamindars maintain that they were not ; and they stoutly maintain that view. The venerable Mir Ghulam Mahomed Khan Bahadur said so openly before the Honourable the General Member and the officers of the Public Works Department when we waited on him during his last visit to Sind. And now Government want to proceed further to Gharkhadan. I beg to be forgiven for saying that Government are slowly and steadily pursuing the policy of putting modules on the whole of Fuleli against the wishes of the zamindars, to whom all sorts of promises were held out in order to win their support to the Sukkur Barrage Scheme.

When the Sukkur Barrage Scheme was under discussion, the Association of the Tando Zamindars protested against the construction of the Barrage at Sukkur, on the ground that by its construction, the water supply in the river for the Fuleli canal and the Karachi district would very considerably decrease. Mr. Shoubridge, the Chief Engineer of Sind, came down to Hyderabad specially to assure us that our fears were groundless. He argued that most of the canals above the Fuleli now drawing off from the river would be closed after the construction of the Barrage ; and that saving of water would pass into the Fuleli canal and the canals of Karachi district. He therefore argued and assured us that as a result of the construction of the Barrage the Fuleli canal would benefit and not lose in water supply. We now know, as definitely as can be, that water supply in the Fuleli is to decrease and not increase. If that is so, is it just that modules be introduced on the Fuleli to restrict water supply. In any case, Government is in duty bound to wait and watch the effect of the Barrage on the Fuleli canal. If the water-supply decreases, Government cannot put modules. Putting of modules would, in the circumstances, be against the promises made to us and all the hopes held out to us. In the meanwhile Government should really push on the work of silt-clearance on the Fuleli canal and its branches. Every zamindar insists on silt-clearance ; and when it yields beneficial results, I cannot understand the reluctance of the Government to do it. I therefore support the motion.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Gujarati): Sir, I rise to support the cut proposed by my honourable friend, Mr. Khuhro.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Why has the honourable member changed his usual language of speech? He was addressing the House in Urdu for so many days, and now he is addressing the House in Gujarati.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: I am addressing the House in Gujarati, because my speech may be understood properly by the Honourable the General Member as his mother tongue is Gujarati.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: May I inform the honourable member that I am not so suddenly changed? If I understood Urdu for so many days, it cannot be that I have forgotten it so soon.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Do I understand that the honourable member chooses hereafter always to speak in Gujarati?

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: I shall always speak in Gujarati henceforward. I know that it is a fact that the water does not reach the tail of the branches in the kharif season. I, therefore, support the motion. But I would point out to Government one mistake that they always commit. They rely much on the reports of their subordinate staff, namely, Executive Engineer, or Assistant Engineer. Whatever is recommended to Government by these subordinate officers is accepted by Government and Government do not take much trouble to investigate the question. If they take more care, then I think whatever complaints I have got to make will be removed. I think that remodelling is not necessary if my suggestion is carried out. There is much silt coming from Indus and this silt settles in branch canals. For the removal of this silt Government always make provision in the budget and the work is given by contract according to the estimates. The contractors take the work in hand by employing few men nominally in the beginning, but when the level of the water rises and at the time of the arrival of the Superintending Engineer, the officers open the branch canals and receive the water in them without clearing the silt. By so doing the silt is deposited in the branch canals year by year. But the payment according to the estimate is made in full without any work. Hence there is always cry for the shortness of water.

Nearly two lakhs of rupees have been spent in widening the main bund and the small bridges for the motor traffic. This amount has not been sanctioned by this honourable House. This amount is spent from the savings on other works. In this way the amount provided for the clearing of the silt is not properly spent and hence every year the expenditure on remodelling is provided in the budget which is unnecessary. It is hoped the Honourable the General Member will see his way to instruct his officer to spend the money on the works for which it is provided. The honourable members from Sind say that till the completion of the Sukkur

[Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch]

Barrage this work should be postponed. I hope the Honourable the General Member will agree with us and accept this cut.

Khan Bahadur JAN MAHOMED KHAN (Sukkur District) (Addressed the House in Sindhi): Sir, I support the motion. In doing so, I request the honourable the General Member to think of the harm that would be done to the Fuleli zamindars, who are particularly to suffer by the construction of the Lloyd Barrage and to whom Government have given specific guarantees, on the basis of which they consented after all to the Sukkur Barrage Scheme. It seems to be an admitted fact now that the Fuleli Canal will have shortage of water after the Sukkur Barrage begins to work. Are zamindars to be compensated by the additional hardships of "modules" which, so far as my information goes, have never worked in any part of Sind. The late Mr. Bhurgri always agitated against their introduction and we see to-day that cultivation both on the Jamrao as well as on the Mithrao Canals has suffered very considerably, and even to-day the farmers of Thar Canal are agitating against them. They know what has happened on the Jamrao and the Mithrao which are near them and know what is in store for them. If that be the case on these Canals, the position of the Fuleli Canal becomes at once pitiable, in as much as after the Barrage operates there will be much diminished supply of water, on the Fuleli, as well as it would be uncertain, and modules cannot even in theory, work well on canals which have a low and uncertain supply of water. The Fuleli zamindars have therefore every justification to complain against the introduction of "modules" and in my opinion "modules" are a very poor way of compensating them for the loss of water which they are to undergo after the completion of the Barrage. Government must employ some other means of effecting improvements on the Fuleli to guard against that loss, which is bound to occur to the zamindars. Modules are hardly an improvement. They will only serve to accustom the zamindars to a restricted supply of water and that is hardly the way of compensating them. In the circumstances, Government would be acting only fairly to the Fuleli zamindars if they abandon the policy of introducing modules and carry on silt clearance in the manner desired by zamindars. Howsoever much Government be unwilling to spend money on silt clearance, the necessity of it will always remain on all canals from the Indus, and they cannot give up silt clearance without permanently harming agricultural industry in Sind.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District): Sir, all the speeches that we have heard were in support of the motion with the exception of one speech which was made by my honourable friend from Bombay Mr. Ginwalla, but he said nothing appropriate and to the point that I should refute. I do not know whether the Honourable the General Member followed one important point which my honourable friend Syed Muhammed Kamil Shah raised in his speech. So, I will repeat what he said. The main point that he raised in his speech was that a year ago the Honourable the General Member started an experiment of moduling two Karias and asked for money for that experiment to be tried on the canals ex-Fuleli, and those modules were probably completed in that year and it was expected that the results of the experiment would be known to the members of this House. But so far they are not known to us. And the other point was about clearance. Experiments were tried on some canals, and my honourable friend pointed out that there were restrictions for the cultivation of land owing to the shortage of water, and these restrictions were not removed, otherwise the zamindars might have been in a position to show that they were able to cultivate more. As a matter of fact, we are still in the dark as to what the real results of the experiments on both sides are. Therefore, it will be necessary that the Honourable the General Member should inform the House by giving us actual figures and statistics of the advantage from either schemes, and, therefore, in this state, this demand, I think, is rather premature and the Honourable the General Member will see the advisability of withdrawing it.

The Honourabe Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Mr. President, although my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla may have heard the word "module" for the first time quite recently, I am certain there are a large number of honourable members of this House who have been acquainted with the controversy that has been going on for the last four or five years, and I am sorry that the honourable mover of this motion should have brought up the merits or demerits of moduling. At any rate, Government have now formulated their policy and have accepted the principle of moduling in Sind. The policy is enunciated in a resolution which is dated the 13th of February and I had hoped that it would have been in the hands of the public by to-day. And, therefore, when my honourable friends contend that they have not seen this resolution or studied its contents, they are correct. A press note is to be issued, but evidently it has not appeared yet in the Sind Official Gazette. I do not propose to take up the time of this honourable House by explaining the details of this resolution, but I would content myself by saying that the results of all the experiments carried out since 1923 are contained in the papers attached to this press note, and honourable members will be able to judge for themselves whether modules have been a success or a failure up to now in Sind. Government have taken the precaution also of embodying in this resolution certain conditions which they feel sure will safeguard the interests of all zamindars in Sind and will, I trust, allay their fears that an injustice will be done to head zamindars. But the cut moved by my honourable friend is not going to be used only for modules; only a very small portion of it will be used for modules. The money was intended....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: The Government Resolution or the press note is not in the hands of the people yet. Does the honourable member still persist in going on with the demand just now?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: One minute. Let me just finish. The money that has been provided is not all for modules. It is for the improvements of the Fuleli, and ordinarily, one would have expected that my honourable friends would have been anxious to push on with the work. But they have chosen to take up a different attitude. They naturally take the responsibility for all delays in the improvement to the Fuleli, leaving aside the question of modules.

If they believe that it is to their interests that the Fuleli canal should not be improved immediately and that they can afford to wait for a year or two longer, I must remind honourable members that one year has already been lost, and if this cut is accepted another year will be lost, and if they feel convinced that they can afford to lose two years in critical times, they are the best judges, being representatives of the area most affected. They take upon themselves the responsibility in moving this cut, and I must warn my honourable friends that it is a grave responsibility but they seem to be prepared to take it up as representatives of the area, and under the circumstances Government must seriously consider their request. But in seriously considering that request Government do not associate themselves in any way in the opinions expressed just now by my honourable friends against the principle of moduling or that the Fuleli district will not be injured or harmed by a delay in the improvements to the Fuleli canal. The principle of moduling has been once and for all decided by Government in this resolution and since my honourable friends are not aware of the contents of that resolution, I can understand their demand that this matter be postponed. With the warning I have already given, I trust that they will study this resolution carefully and again reminding them that these are the final decisions of Government on moduling, I will accept this cut.

Question put and carried.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District): Sir, I beg to move:

Omit item 70—Providing regulating gates to Karia's Ex-Begari Canal—Rs. 60,000.

The obvious reason of the Honourable the General Member for making this demand appears to be that extra water is used by the zamindars between miles 31 and 76 of Begari canal and that the surplus water be saved by the use of regulating gates and given to Sirwah and Edenwah at the tail of Begari. I am not here to contest the point whether the extra water is taken by these people or not and whether it is wasted by them or not, because I have not studied the case myself, and it is for my honourable friends sitting by my side who possess lands on Begari canal to deal with that question, but so far as I know I may mention here that for the last few years the practice there has been that whenever there is deficiency of water, the rotation system is resorted to and therefore "Shahs" are used for a few days to spare some water for the tail people and also regulate the water distribution properly and equitably. These "Shahs" are a temporary measure always introduced and applied with the co-operation of all the zamindars at the head, mid and the tail, and it is done clearly with a view to help them and protect them against deficiency of water and in order that equitable distribution of water should be made among the zamindars on the Begari canal. This system has been in vogue for about 3 or 4 years and the zamindars more or less have got used to it. I am very glad and so is everyone of us that the Honourable the General Member has very kindly provided a lakh of rupees for expenses of clearance at the tail.

[Mr. M. S. Khuhro]

When the Honourable the General Member was last at Sukkur on the 3rd of January 1928, he met most of the zamindars of the Begari canal—zamindars both of the head and those of the tail—in a conference. They, with one voice, held that the clearance was the only remedy for the plight in which they find themselves to-day, namely, shortage of water, and for this reason we are glad that something will now be done for this clearance. But this question of providing gates was never brought up before the conference; it was never discussed with the people present, namely, the zamindars of the Begari canal, and it remained an absolute secret all along when the Honourable the General Member was in Sind. This is a matter of vital importance and hence should have been discussed there, precisely when the whole Begari regulating system of water was being discussed so thoroughly and freely with the zamindars. If the zamindars had known that there was any idea of this kind in contemplation that gates would be provided between miles 31 and 76, they would have been able to prove how these gates would turn out to be a real nuisance to the zamindars and how they would only be placing a weapon of oppression and terror in the hands of the subordinates of the Public Works Department in whose hands the working of those gates would be placed. I for one seriously object to the provision of gates because they would give a handle to the local officials to tyrannise over the people. All the zamindars on the Begari canal from mile 31 to mile 76 would be at the entire mercy of the subordinates of the department. It will not be the Executive Engineer himself who will be opening and closing these gates. I dare say the Sub-divisional officers, sub-overseers, the Daroghas and the balighars will be the persons who will open and close the gates and they will be the persons on whom the entire livelihood of the Begari canal zamindars will depend. You can imagine, Sir, whether officers drawing Rs. 20 Rs. 50 and most upto Rs. 300 a month will always be above temptation. These gates will give rise to a lot of corruption and this corruption will spoil the officers to such an extent that they will not afterwards be at all useful anywhere else. That will completely spoil the reputation of the department. I look upon it from this point of view. The zamindars will suffer considerably because nobody of these petty officials will be satisfied unless he gets some payment. For these reasons I have a very strong objection to the provision of these gates, and I hope that the Honourable the General Member will realize the consequences of the policy that he is going to enunciate. I think it would be better if the Honourable the General Member maintained the policy that is already in existence namely "Shahs" and thus he will save Rs. 60,000 of Government, as well which might otherwise be lost on an experiment which does not promise of happy result, and we do not know also at present what results are achieved by doing the clearance and whether the people will really gain anything as a result of such clearance or not. Besides the present system of irrigation will completely change the remodelling of the Begari canal which is going to be taken in hand shortly. At present I have very grave suspicions of the utility of these regulating gates. It is a matter which is causing serious anxiety to the minds of the zamindars who will be affected adversely by the introduction of these regulating gates, and who will be hopelessly subjected to the Public Works Department officers.

I therefore think that this amount should not be sanctioned, or there should be some satisfactory statement coming forth from the Honourable the General Member.

Question proposed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I oppose the motion. This is a matter to which serious consideration must be given by this House. Last year, the Honourable the General Member delivered a very forceful speech, and said that the question of the distribution of water was very important in Sind, and when the presidency is sinking crores and crores of rupees in Sind after the Sukkur Barrage, the question of equitable distribution of water must be seriously considered and put into practice by Government. If Government fail in their duty, and do not bring about an equitable distribution of water, then this big project, on which the presidency is sinking crores and crores of rupees will be a failure.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED: Sir, I rise to a point of order. The question here is of provision for constructing gates to karias on the Begari canal, whereas the honourable member is talking on the Sukkur Barrage. Is he relevant? I submit he is not talking on the subject under discussion, and he is quite out of order.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: I am perfectly in order. Unless and until the people at the tail are provided with water, and the water is equitably distributed, certain people will suffer, and Government will not derive any revenue. The note on the item points out without any ambiguity that there is a great complaint from the people of Sirwah and Edenwah. The note says:

"For years past the two tail branches of the Begari Canal (viz., the Sirwah and Edenwah) have been starved of water owing to the excessive draw-off and increase in rice cultivation on the karias between miles 31 and 76 of the Begari. Although the full supply discharge of the Begari has gradually been increased by over 2,000 cusecs, this extra discharge has, for the above reason, given no increased discharge to the Sirwah and Edenwah."

Sir, if on this important question Government climb down, and year after year delay what they have to do in the interest of the equitable distribution of water, then I think Government are failing in performing an important duty. There have been similar instances on our side also, and the Honourable the Revenue Member will remember that there was a case in the High Court about the 12 villages of the Khari Cut. Those villages fought, and a supply of water to which they were entitled has been given to them. It is, therefore, necessary that the water that would be taken from the Indus by means of these canals should not go to a few favourites. Certainly, I believe that these tail zamindars have not got a potent voice in this matter. I believe they are not able to have their strong voice effectively heard in this House.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : Sir, I rise to a point of order. I submit that the honourable member is making reflections on the other members from Sind. He is, therefore, I submit, out of order. He means that the honourable members here are deliberately keeping back the views of the " tail " zamindars and are thus casting reflections on honourable members.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think the honourable member did not mean it so seriously as that. He fully understands that each representative who comes here elected from Sind has the support of both kinds of zamindars from Sind.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : This is a very important matter, and I do not wish that Government should give any concessions in this matter year after year. Last year the Honourable the General Member stated that Government are committed to the policy of equitable distribution of water, and we endorsed that policy. Therefore, Government should take immediate steps to put that policy into force, and should not be deterred by any opposition that they would come across in the process of having an equitable distribution of water secured to all the zamindars, whether they be zamindars at the head or zamindars at the tail. The zamindars at the tail have been clamouring for water for years and years, and still they are starved. The note says that they are crying for water. Sir, it is not desirable that some portions should be starved and should be ruined altogether at the expense of others. Therefore, I think this expenditure for the purpose of supplying gates to the karias should be allowed by this House. It is an important policy on which Government have embarked, and this House should give complete support to Government in this policy, which will bring about an equitable distribution of water.

Khan Bahadur S. N. BHUTTO (Larkana District) : Sir, in order to make the case a bit clearer, so that there may not be any misunderstanding or confusion, I would like to put before the House the facts as they actually are. I do not blame my honourable friends who are opposing this cut, simply because they do not realise what this really means. Sir, I have got the largest holdings on this canal, at the tail and in the middle, and therefore I would put before the House all the facts as they actually exist. There is no question of head and tail here. We do not at all object to water being passed to the tail. We are equally anxious that the tail people should get the supply, if not enough, at least as much as conveniently could be spared, after safeguarding the interests of the zamindars of upper reaches dependent on this canal. During the last two or three visits of the Honourable the General Member to Sind this question was discussed with him each time, and he himself must have realised the anxiety of all zamindars at upper reaches who were equally interested in the welfare of the zamindars at the tail as well. Sir, this demand has been made with the object of providing water for the Edenwah and Sirwah. There has been a deficiency of water in these two branches of the Begari at the tail for the last few years. Now, on this canal there have been repeated reductions in private karias from 1911 onwards, and during the last 16 or 17 years reductions have been effected repeatedly three times. But that has not helped the tail people at all. On the other hand, whenever Government have provided some money for the clearance of silt at the tail for two or three years continuously, they have got a very fair crop, and they have been getting full advantage out of the clearance. On the last occasion when the Honourable the General Member was in Sind, there was a cry from all zamindars from the head to the tail, and they appealed to him so that he may kindly provide some money for clearance at the tail, because the tail zamindars were fully convinced that whenever there was a reduction of karias it did not help them at all, but it was only when a clearance was effected that they got the water. This is a controversial question, and I do not know whether the Public Works Department and we zamindars will ever agree on it, unless there is a joint conference in which the zamindars are given a fair opportunity to put forward their case. From time to time, when these conferences were held, they were limited only to Government officials. The Commissioner in Sind quietly invites the District Collectors and the Executive Engineers. The District Collector is not a technical man, his voice in protest does not go great way and the only safest course left to them is to accept the theory of Public Works Department people because they find no justification to contradict technical men and the results of the one-sided conferences held in camera have always been detrimental to us. The policy of the Public Works Department for some years past has been not to have any clearance, and because of the adoption of this policy from year to year, for nearly 17 years, silt has accumulated to a considerable extent in most of the canals particularly at tails. It is not possible now unless they spend fortunes, to have clearance effected. Therefore the Public Works Department considers that the easiest method is by effecting a reduction in one shape or the other in karias of upper reaches to carry water at tails.

My honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan has stated that the presidency is sinking millions of rupees to have the Barrage constructed, but I should like to inform him that this canal has nothing to do with the Barrage or the Barrage area at all. This is far above the Barrage say about 30 to 40 miles.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Government are placing modules on the canals of the Sukkur Barrage.

Khan Bahadur S. N. BHUTTO: Nothing of the kind. There is no question of modulling canals for the Sukkur Barrage. This shows the total ignorance of my honourable friend.

I have just explained that question. The Begari canal is the oldest canal. If Government wish that it should be worked on the barrage lines, the Honourable the General Member may consider the proposals and provide money for its remodelling immediately. Already Rs. 1½ lakhs for its survey, plans and estimates have been spent, which have been found faulty, after their careful scrutiny. If this proposal is brought forward before the Council for its sanction we shall support it wholeheartedly. In that case we will be the first and foremost to support Government in modulling the karias. So long this canal has not been re-modelled, being old and inundation canal, how can Government justify their action by proposing gates on modules on private karias ex this canal. When this question was last discussed at Sukkur we informed the Honourable the General Member that the modules would reduce the supply of water of private karias and that the zamindars would not consent to have them. As the officers of the Public Works Department attempt to create division among zamindars by putting up some of their own puppets to have their own theory supported, I begged the Honourable Member in charge that he should enquire and satisfy himself from one and all zamindars at the tail whether sincerely and honestly they believed that it was only clearance alone that would give them a benefit. The honourable member was pleased to express that he could see that only one of the zamindars that was present asked for clearance. We are grateful to the honourable member for having provided money for clearance. But at the same time Government propose to put gates on private karias. This amounts to giving with one hand and taking away with the other. People sincerely believe that as the reduction of sluices has not improved matters, it is clearance alone that would give them benefit ; they further believe that this new innovasion of proposed gates is done simply with the object of punishing the zamindars for having brought their grievances before the honourable member contrary to their own methods and policy ; it is therefore, that they have managed side by side with clearance reduction of sluices in shape of gates so that in future we may consider twice before we dare to represent our grievances to the heads of departments. We cannot expect the Public Works Department to be more solicitous for the welfare of the tail zamindars than the tail zamindars themselves. What is more is that this is only a temporary arrangement for 2 or 3 years only till water can be supplied from the barrage area as these two canals, Edenwah and Sirwah, at the tail at Begari are included in Barrage area and are to receive water from there ; even on that consideration this expenditure is not justified.

In case there is no escape from these gates I have made some suggestions to the Honourable the General Member at least to provide some safeguards, though I know I have to face strong agitation on my return back to Sind at the end of the Council session. I have taken a great responsibility in making these suggestions to the Honourable the General Member. My friends the honourable members Mr. Soomro Allabhaksh, Khan Bahadur Bijarani and Khan Bahadur Pathan are zamindars and representations of Bigari canal. Every one of them is opposed to my submitting those proposals to the Honourable the General Member as they are entirely against introduction of this lock and key business. However, my proposals if accepted by the General Member will provide some safeguard, it will be a lesser evil. The difficulties we face in this particular district of Upper Sind are not known in any of parts of the presidency or province of Sind. If I may be permitted to say, something like Russian law prevails there, where people are condemned on suspicions only and a police constable has more power than the Commissioner of Police in Bombay. The Commissioner of Police in Bombay dares not use high-handedness which a constable of police in the Upper Sind Frontier would do without any hesitation. It is only in this place where the armed police is invited by the Public Works Department to terrify the zamindars and enforce charges on them when they are not willing to consent. The owners at karias on occasions are not allowed to go even near their karias. The inhabitants of the Upper Sind Frontier mostly are Baluchis and in order to terrify them the subordinates of the Public Works Department bring in armed police, when owners of karias have not only to look after Public Works Department subordinates and feed them but in addition police subordinates as well. By providing these gates, it will give an addition handle to the Public Works Department subordinates to harrass the zamindars but they will at least escape harrasment by police. If gates are to be provided they are to be provided in place of chops and no discretion should be vested in the executive engineer, as otherwise it will not serve the purpose which the Honourable the General Member has in view. I sincerely trust that the clearance of silt will give the required benefit to the tail zamindars and there will be no necessity to resort to them. It is I understand a temporary arrangement to put these gates until the whole of Begari canal is remodelled. There are about 250 karias between miles 31 and 76 and if these gates are used properly by cutting off the supply of few inches from each karia, the difference in the volume of water in these karias owing to these gates should not be much. If there would be a necessity these gates should be used with great care with mutual consent and the zamindars I think should prefer these gates instead of chops if all safeguards are provided. I hope the Honourable the General Member will see that no additional weapon is given in the hands of the Public Works Department to terrify the zamindars and tyrannise them, as the circumstances there in that part of the country are quite different than in the rest of the presidency.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North): Sir, I oppose this cut on the same grounds on which I opposed the last cut. I am still unconvinced, in spite of the arguments of my honourable friends Mr. Khuhro, Mr. Noor Mahomed and Khan Bahadur Bhutto. I do grant that Government should take proper measures to remove silt and to deepen canals, but so far as modules are concerned they have been successful in the Punjab, and I do not know why they should not be successful here.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: These are not modules.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA: I now come to the point raised in this motion, namely gates to karias. In the note which has been appended at page 282 of the Blue Book the Honourable the General Member has tried to convince honourable members that there will not be any loss or injury to any of the zamindars whose karia discharges will be slightly reduced on account of this work, whereas it is vitally necessary in the interest of the zamindars on Sirwah and Edenwah. The argument advanced by the honourable member Mr. Khuhro is that if you spend Rs. 60,000 now it will be all wasted, and they should wait till the Begari canal is remodelled. He said that the water going to the tail will not be reduced. But, Sir, my common sense tells me that if I happen to own land at the head I am bound to get water first, and those who hold land at the tail cannot get water if there is not sufficient level of water in the canal. In order to make equal distribution, Government suggest a certain system. So far, Sir, no argument has been advanced by my honourable friends as to why this system should prove a waste of money. They only say " Please wait till the Begari Canal is remodelled. " I am not prepared to accept this argument. I feel that in the interests of the tail zamindars there should be equal distribution. The honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed stated that he is representing both the tail zamindars as well as the head zamindars. It is not the monopoly of my honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed to represent this district. It is as much my privilege as his, and my duty as his, to represent and protect the interests of any district in this presidency, the interests of all men and women in this presidency. Therefore, Sir, I say that so far as this demand is concerned, it is absolutely necessary that some means should be devised to give even distribution of water to the zamindars who hold land at the head and at the tail.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): Sir, I rise to support the motion for the cut, and with the full conviction that I do so in the interest of the zamindars both at the head and the tail. After I came to Bombay and had the pleasure to see the proposed amount to be provided for the purpose of regulating gates, I took occasion to correspond by telegram with the zamindars at the tail in order to know their views. It is after receiving three telegrams from the zamindars at the tail, who belong to Shahdadpur taluka, that I rise to support the cut moved by the honourable member Mr. Khuhro. Honourable members who do not belong to Sind and have never been in Sind are under the impression that the zamindars at the tail must necessarily suffer, because Government say they must suffer. For the last five or six years there has been a regular dispute between Government and zamindars of all kinds, zamindars at the tail and zamindars at the head, as regards the wisdom of the policy of modules. But Government seem to have come to the conclusion that modules are good, a conclusion which is open to dispute and is a subject of further controversy. But here we are concerned with regulating gates and not modules. The difference between modules and gates is this. While modules are constructed after taking actual calculations of the quantity of water necessary to cultivate a land, after calculating the minimum quantity of water necessary in cusecs, and while modules are incapable of being meddled with after once they have been put in, the regulating gates have not those virtues. The regulating gates after they are put in will be under lock and key, which will be in the possession of the Public Works authorities, and will be adjusted and locked by them at intervals. Government do not want to put in any restriction in the upper reaches of the canal, between mile 0 and mile 31, which consumes a considerable quantity of water. But Government want to put in this lock and key arrangement between mile 31 and mile 76 in order to regulate the water that may be required there. Have Government made any calculations in this case, as they are bound to do in the case of the modules, as to the number of cusecs that will be necessary for a particular area ? If Government have made no calculation, then the regulation of water through the gates will be in the hands of Public Works authorities. The person who is in charge of the regulation of canal water supply is not the Executive Engineer whose headquarters is in Jacobabad, but the Sub-Divisionl Officer, who has under him sub-overseers who have under them again what we call balighars, people who will be drawing Rs. 20, uneducated men drawing Rs. 20 or so. These are the people who will be in charge of the distribution of water in this area extending from mile 31 to mile 76, that is 45 miles. To make these people responsible for the regulation of water in these reaches will be to introduce into the canal territory a situation which will promote resistence on the part of the zamindars who require water. Does the Honourable the General Member want to introduce a spirit of defiance to the administration of the canals in these territories ? Has he consulted the Deputy Commissioner, the District Magistrate, who is responsible for peace and order ? The Honourable the Revenue Member has been the Commissioner of Sind ; he knows the Baluchi country ; will he advocate the handing over of the distribution of water in that country to Sub-Divisional officers and overseers and uneducated men ? I have got here the telegrams received from the zamindars both at the tail and the head stating that they have nothing to do with this remodelling. They further state that when the Honourable the General Member was there, he did not, in any way, bring this matter before them for discussion On the 3rd of January the Honourable the General Member was there and I agree that he gave us—I mean the zamindars—a patient hearing and he listened to the various grievances of the zamindars. But the Honourable the General Member did not say anything on the point of providing karias. Whatever it is, the zamindars have refused to do anything with the regulating gates and they are against this proposal. I, therefore, say that it will be entirely against the tenets of administration of justice and administration of British policy in that part of the country. My honourable friend, Syed Muhammad Kamil Shah, has already complained about this new arrangement of the proposed gates ; and I have also received by telegram the opinion of the zamindars at the tail and the head against the proposed gates.

Mr. C. S. C. HARRISON : Sir, I admire the eloquence of the honourable member from Sukkur, but I do not agree with him in the facts he has placed before this House. He has tried to paint a lurid picture of gates versus modules and " chabs." There is, in the item under discussion, no question of modules ; the question is the provision of gates to replace

[Mr. C. S. C. Harrison]

"chabs." Chabing is done by means of brushwood obstructions, a very primitive method which is open to grave abuse. The operation of the gates will be under the orders of the Executive Engineer and not under those of "beldars." The actual manipulation of the gates will be under the immediate control of the Sub-Divisional Officer and the Executive Engineer can at any time, by inspection, see whether or no his orders are being carried out. This operation of the gates is simple and can be carried out very promptly. It is not so in the case of "chabs" which depend on the collection of brushwood and dilatoriness in the making of the "chab." We do not claim that these gates are a perfect method of control of supplies to karias but until the canal is modernized they are the best substitutes for 'chabs."

I will now turn to the remarks made by my honourable friend, Khan Bahadur Bhutto. He has also drawn a very fanciful picture of the state of the district officers when they come to any conference called by the Commissioner in Sind. He says that these officers know very little about irrigation. Sir, I deny this. I can say that most of the Collectors take a great deal of interest in irrigation and the distribution of water far more than they do in the Presidency proper. Having had long experience of both the Deccan and Sind, I speak not without some knowledge. So, I cannot accept that portion of his speech in which he says that the Collector is practically suborned by the opinions of the Superintending and Executive Engineers.

This matter of providing gates has been very carefully gone into, and I ask the House carefully to consider whether it is really believable that the engineer exists simply as an oppressor of the people.

I maintain that he is there to try to the best of his ability to maintain an equitable distribution of water, and I cannot see, Sir, with his knowledge of over 80 years of distribution of irrigation water in Sind, that he must invariably be written down as an ass. If he is not written down as an ass, then his motives must be dishonest. That is the point and I maintain it is untenable. The irrigation Engineer is ever striving to effect equitable distribution of water, and I say, Sir, that on this point of equitable distribution the engineer's ideas cannot always be in consonance with the zamindars' ideas. Selfish interests must be affected by any effort in trying to distribute water equitably. The aim of equity in this world is ever a thorny question. I firmly maintain that our endeavour is an honest one and it has throughout been in the interests not only of the tail zamindar, but of every zamindar. What we desire to see is that every zamindar gets his rights not his self-prescribed rights.

The honourable member from Larkana (Khan Bahadur Bhutto) also suggested that we might wait till the Begari is remodelled. If there was any hope of remodelling the whole system immediately or in the very near future, I would be at one with him. I would immediately recommend to the Honourable the General Member to accept this motion for the cut. But, Sir, the remodelling of the Begari as a whole will take many years to complete. It cannot be done in one season for it is a very large project.

[Mr. C. S. C. Harrison]

I am still reviewing the project sent up by the Superintending Engineer who prepared it. It is a project running into Rs. 50 lakhs, and Government will be required to give it very careful consideration before it is taken up either piece-meal or in its entirety. It will probably have to be taken up piece-meal, and it will therefore be a long time before the whole of the Begari is remodelled.

A further point that I would like to mention is that at the Sukkur Conference with zamindars in January last the question of gates was mentioned.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : I am in a position to contradict it, and every other zamindar present here would do the same.

Mr. C. S. C. HARRISON : I do not withdraw the statement I have made. The question of gates was discussed in the conference at Sukkur. The Chief Engineer stated he would only agree to the silt clearance provided we had gates in the middle reach of the Canal.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Where was it stated ?

Mr. C. S. C. HARRISON : That matter was discussed before the members present at the conference ; the Chief Engineer in Sind was then and there asked to submit his estimate. His estimate has now been received by Government both for the silt clearance and for the gates. It is of very little use providing a large sum of money for the clearance of silt in the tail reaches unless we have got water to send down and, I submit, Sir, that it will be in the interests of the zamindars at the tail, of the finances of this presidency, and of every notion of fair play that the grant now asked for should remain.

Mr. ALLABAKSH walad Khan Saheb HAJI MAHOMED UMAR (Sukkur District) : Sir, this question of distribution of water in the tail branches of the Begari is discussed since a long time. It was expected this year that the Begari would be modulled in order to supply the need of water in the two branches of Begari tail. We are very thankful to the Honourable the General Member, who during his visit gave us an opportunity of hearing us, and, then it was decided that, until the Begari is remodelled it was not necessary to put the modules. The Honourable Member Mr. Harrison has pointed out to the house that the Zamindars were informed about the question of putting the gates, but it is not so. We were neither informed, nor consulted. I do not know if it was decided between the Chief Engineer in Sind and the Honourable the General Member or Mr. Harrison. I hope the Honourable the General Member will bear me out in this that there was no discussion of any kind whatsoever about the gates being introduced. Now, Sir, the point is how the deficiency came at the tail of these branches. I only want to inform this Honourable House that about 25 years ago a portion of land which was not formerly settled on the Begari was brought on it. It was for the Public Works Department to have first arranged for this extra supply of water to Begari and then brought this area on it. They have brought it without doing that, Very well, Sir. Now that is gone, and we all are willing to support that the tail zamindars should get water. We do not say they should be deprived of it, although it was a mistake on the part of the department to have brought this extra area on Begari. Now, Sir, in 1911, or so, in order to give a good water-supply at the tail it was proposed that the karias at the head should be reduced to provide water for the people at the tail at the cost of the head zamindars. Well, Sir, we agreed with reluctance that our Karias should be reduced. We said it is not going to help the tail zamindars. And when it was done, it was found that the water was not reaching the tail. The reason assigned to the zamindars was, that the karias were reduced from mile 40 to mile 52 and the saving effected was all taken up by mile 52 to 76 there being no check on them from taking this extra water and, therefore it would not reach lower down. It was no fault of ours, Sir. It was a mistake on the part of the Public Works Department experts that it did not reach the tail for which it was meant. Now, Sir, the putting of gates is the third mistake going to be committed.

With regard to gates, I would wellcome this proposal from the Honourable the General Member, but the house must know that this is not going to give the tail people the necessary supply of water as proposed by the Honourable the General Member. In his note regarding his demand he says :

> " Although the full supply discharge of the Begari has gradually been increased by over 2,000 cusecs, this extra discharge has given no increased discharge to the Sirwah and Edenwah."

Sir, may I point out to the Honourable the General Member how this excess of 2,000 cusecs has been caused on the Begari ? Has Government spent money in order to bring more water to Begari ? The reply is in the negative. The Honourable the General Member has said that " Although the full supply discharge of the Begari has gradually been increased by over 2,000 cusecs, this extra discharge has given no increased discharge to the Sirwah and Edenwah."

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Yes, that is correct.

Mr. ALLAHBAKSH walad Khan Saheb HAJI MAHOMED UMAR : I quite agree that the discharge has increased by 2,000 cusecs. But that discharge has not increased on account of improvements carried out by the Department. Why has the discharge increased ? Because the zamindars have improved their karias in such a way that they draw from the main canal increased supply with the result that with the same level of water you find that the discharge of Begari has increased, because the decrease or increase in the discharge of the main canal depends on the drawing off the karias. Now, the department is going to put a check over the draw off which has increased the velosity of the main canal and thus caused the increase in the discharge.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Sir, am I to understand that the honourable member intends to say that the discharge in the

Begari has been increased due to any action of the zamindars or to the action of nature ?

Mr. ALLAHBAKSH walad Khan Saheb HAJI MAHOMED UMAR: Due to the action of the zamindars. Because they have improved their Karias and they have made a greater draw off and therefore the velocity in the main canal has increased. Not that the department has widened the canal or raised the banks. Now, Sir, the discharge has increased, and now they want to put a check over that. The increased supply of water will not go to the tail; it will go back to the river. The proposal of gates could be agreed to, on one condition. The present discharge of the Begari is about 8,500 cusecs. Let them put the gates and see if it is going to give 8,500. Let them put the gates. We do allow; but as soon as they put them, I assure the honourable House that the discharge will reach 7,000 cusecs and not 8,500 cusecs.

If the Public Works Department experts do not agree with me on this point, then the Honourable the General Member should give us a promise that after carrying out an experiment of using gates for two days if the discharge is actually reduced by 1,500 cusecs then the gates should be used no more.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Where ?

Mr. ALLABAKSH walad Khan Saheb HAJI MAHOMED UMAR: At the mouth.

Now, one cusec of water will cultivate about 30 acres of rice land and calculating the assessment at Rs. 6 per acre you will find that Government will be loosing about two lacs of rupees as assessment. It is not that we do not want to supply water to the tail. We are quite willing to help the people at the tail, but at the same time the house must know that the assessment on the Begari would be reduced and reduced enormously.

The second point is that the gates will be introduced from mile 31 to mile 76. Formerly, as the honourable member Mr. Harrison told the house, the Chabbs Bandobast was in operation between miles 47 to 76 but now it has been extended further on from mile 31 to mile 76. The reason assigned for proposing Chabbs Bandobast from mile 31, as pointed out by the Executive Engineer and the Superintending Engineer in Sind, is that the zamindars from mile 31 to mile 40 are wasting now 1,500 cusecs of water and they will give the water which those zamindars at present are wasting to the zamindars of Sirwah and Edenwah by controlling the supply by means of these gates. I may point out to the Honourable the General Member that if that is so, then according to the theory advanced by the Superintending Engineer or the Chief Engineer, the discharge at mile 40 should be equal to the discharge at mile 31 minus the discharge taken by the Karias between mile 31 to 40. I would point out to the Honourable the General Member that practically we have found out that the discharge at mile 31, and at mile 40 including Nurwah is the same. If, as pointed out by the local officers, there is a wastage of about 1,500 cusecs there, then I think that the discharge at mile 31, should not be equal to the discharge at mile 40, including that of Nurwah. The Officers should have been more careful in making their calculations. It turns out that practically these people are taking no water from the Begari, and although it is a wonder to the Public Works Department experts as to how it is so, I would point out that the discharge at mile 31, is equal to the discharge at mile 40, including Nurwah. That means that it has been proved that there is no wastage of water. If there had been a wastage of water, then the discharge at mile 40, including the Nurwah would not have been the same as at mile 31. It has been said that the Kariyas between 31 and 40 are drawing excess and therefore there is wastage of about 1,500 cusecs. I may tell this Honourable House that it looks alright on paper to say that these Karias are taking excess discharge. Why? Because, when we look to the discharge book we find that a Karia which is designed to take 1 cusec is taking 10 cusecs and a Karia which is designed to take two cusecs is taking 25 cusecs. That is alright, I do admit, but I must point out that these Karias are giving water back to Begari and thus you find that the discharge at mile 31, is merely equal to the discharge at mile 40 including Nurwah. Therefore I point out to the House that there is absolutely no wastage of water in these 9 miles where the Executive Engineer says there is a wastage of about 500 cusecs.

Another point I wish to refer to is that the zamindars between miles 31 and 40 will suffer heavily by the introduction of the check that may be put on these Karias in the shape of these regulating gates, because their lands are situated just on the border of the Canal where the the water level in the Begari is about three feet higher than their lands, with the result that the sub-soil water is found only at a depth of 10 feet from the ground. This water gradually comes up. If they are not allowed to take this excess discharge and finish the transplantation before the Sub-soil water reaches the ground, then you will find that all these lands will be impregnated with "Kalar" and consequently will be uncultivable. These lands will become mere waste lands, and the zamindars will in effect be losing a property worth about a crore of rupees. I therefore request the House to be careful in voting on this motion and not to be carried away by any spacious arguments which may have been put forward by the other side.

Mr. B. T. DESAI (Bombay City, South): Sir, the way in which this debate is being carried on and the way—the precious way—in which the Honourable the General Member says he will accept a cut or not and the very grave warning which he gave to honourable members and the way he reminded honourable members of their great responsibility to their constituencies, all this gives this debate the appearance of a sham fight. Last year when the question of modules on the Fuleli Canal came up for discussion there was the same kind of show as was enacted here to-day.....

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED: On a point of order, Sir. The honourable member says that this debate is a sham fight. That throws a reflection on all the honourable members who took part in the debate and therefore I request your ruling as to whether those words are parliamentary.

The CHAIRMAN: (Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM): I rule that the honourable member Mr. B. T. Desai is quite in order in the remarks that he made. There is really no point of order involved at all.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO: My point of order is that the honourable member is making remarks about modules on the Fuleli canal which is not now under discussion. That was under discussion and has already been diposed of. At present we are discussing gates, which is quite a separate matter, and therefore any remarks about the Fuleli canal are not relevant in this case.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM): The honourable member Mr. B. T. Desai is merely referring to a previous debate to illustrate his own remarks and he is perfectly in order.

Mr. B. T. DESAI: I assure my honourable friends and the Government that I do not mean any offence to anybody but I am giving my own impressions as an impartial on-looker on this debate. I do not think any of my honourable friends would be justified in taking any offence at what I say.

After this explanation, I say, Sir, that I was just referring to the last year's incident. I was trying to understand the remarks of the Honourable the General Member and I thought that he was attempting to make out a very very good case, a case which was not answerable, but at the end of his speech he said " Yes, I am willing to accept the cut." If the object of a speech is to drive conviction home to the honourable members who are watching and listening to the speech, certainly such things do not carry any conviction except the one that I stated in the beginning, namely, the appearance of a sham fight.

So far as this matter is concerned, what I say is this. A note in very clear terms which one can understand has been put in by the Government, and the case for the Government appears to be that there is injustice to certain persons being done for many years; Government are anxious to remove the injustice, and therefore they propose this measure. Therefore, either of the two things may be found out. Either the note is a correct one, or is not a correct one. If the note is a correct one, and if we take it so, then I think the case is unanswerable. The case made out is that an injustice is done to the zamindars at the tail, from mile 31 to 76, and in order to remove that deficiency of water and in order that they may improve their crops, a certain system of gates has been devised by Government. To that my honourable friends from Sind take objection. What is the objection? So far as I understand, my honourable friend Mr. Pahalajani says " Why do you try to have gates from mile 31 to mile 76, and why not from miles zero to 31 ? " But if we take that argument to be the right one, that gates are required from the miles zero to 31, and Government are not prepared to put them up, that is no reason why the injustice which is done to several other zamindars from mile 31 to mile 76 should not in any way dealt with or tried to be removed. Of course a certain amount of injustice may exist in the upper part of the canal, but to say that therefore the injustice existing in the lower part of the canal should not be removed is an argument which is not worth considering.

Then, Sir, what is the other objection that has been taken by my honourable friends the stalwart members who represent their constituents from Sind ? They say " Look here, you may try to remove the injustice, but in whose hands does the distribution of water lie ? It would lye in the hands of the lower officials." They say that the subordinates will be corrupt, there would be opportunities for them to be corrupt, and they will practise zoolum on the zamindars, and it is for that reason that Government should not try to remove this injustice. This argument sounds like the one which can be applied to the police force. In the police force officials high and low are engaged, and even constables on a pay of Rs. 30 a month, for the protection of the people. If the people come and tell Government " What are you doing ? You are delivering us into the hands of your subordinate officials ; they will practise zoolum on us, and there will be a number of them who will take bribes. We are frightened by the mere spectable of a yellow turban and black coat, or a police constable." Supposing, Sir, on that ground the people ask Government to do away with the entire police force, what weight can be given to an argument of that kind ? Government could also say that they would try to employ the proper staff, but the inadequacy of staff is no argument whatsoever for not making these gates there.

Then, Sir, the previous speaker, who is considered to be an expert on canal affairs, karias, modules, gates and what not, has assured Government that they would be starving by putting in these gates the people who are at the 45th mile, and Government would be losing its own revenue by doing so. The honourable member said something about cusecs, or something, and not being one who is connected with karias, I cannot recall the exact word. He said, take a unit of 30 acres, and supposing each acre gives an assessment of Rs. 6, that one unit would give an assessment of Rs. 180, and if Government go on putting up grain like this, they will be reducing revenue, because they will not be able-to-realise the same assessment per acre for the rice fields. I do not understand that. There has been sufficient water so far from miles zero to 31, and from miles 31 to 76 the zamindars are being starved, and for removing that starvation this remedy is suggested. In what way that is going to decrease the revenue, one cannot understand, unless the argument is that Government are taking away the proper supply of water from those who have been getting it and giving it to others. I do not think that is the argument. But even if that be the argument, is there any right for the people who are a little removed from those on the canal head to claim more water and starve the others ? But when the purpose for the removal of this injustice comes, all my honourble friends from

[Mr. B. T. Desai]

Sind who have always been sweet on Government so far as voting with Government is concerned. .....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: I do not always vote for Government.

Mr. B. T. DESAI: When they vote with Government, they are sweet. My honourable friend Mr. Pahalajani is rather amused at my using the word "sweet," but he understands in his heart what I mean. Of course it is not necessary to go any more into the matter. But the point that I had first made is, when a question of removing injustice comes up, how is it that these stalwarts come in the way of removing that injustice? Do they want that this injustice should be perpetuated to the advantage of their constituents? Is it fairness? Everybody, I know, has a right to do what he can for his constituency, but he should not object to the removal of injustice suffered by others. When I rose to speak, most of my honourable friends from Sind rose to points of order, but they have not been successful. But to come to the subject under discussion. Sir, to one who is not concerned with this subject and who wants to bring an impartial judgment to bear on this matter, it strikes that the stalwart defenders of their constituencies by their own arguments have given away their case. They have not shown anything by which it can be proved that this injustice should be retained, but their strength is so formidable that Government may not be able to resist it. Perhaps, the Honourable the General Member, as he did in the case of the last item, will come down and say "If you, gentlemen, who are concerned with your constituencies, if you take the responsibility on your head, I warn you, you take this responsibility on your head in all seriousness, and if you say so, I accept your cut." I hope the Honourable the General Member will not take up that kind of attitude at the dictation of anybody. He has really to remove an injustice which is being done, and he should not listen to the combined voice of these honourable members. It may be very flattering to him, or it may be very pleasing to him. Whatever it may be, I would ask him to stick to his guns, to do the justice that is required, and not to give way as he did in the previous item.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE (Bombay City): Sir, I rise to support the cut that has been moved by my honourable friend Mr. Khuhro. It was not my desire to take part in this discussion, but since my honourable friend on my left (Mr. B. T. Desai) has spoken I do not think it would be fair on my part to remain silent, as I do not agree with him. Sir, we all know that the state of affairs that is existing at present has been existing for several years together, and if this great injustice has been going on, I ask the Government benches in all earnestness, why have they not done anything to remove this injustice before now?

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: They are not sure of their position.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE: I am very glad to hear that they are not sure of their position. I ask Government, if they have gone on for so many years and if they have now found out that there is great injustice done to the zamindars at the tail, why have they not been able to place before this House a representation from the genetlemen at the tail ? Why have they not been able to convince my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Bhutto, who has got some land at the tail, and why did they not take any steps last year, when this very question was brought before this House ?

Further, Sir, there is one point which I would like to bring to the notice of honourable members, on this side. On many matters which this House has often discussed, what is the reason that some of the honourable members from Sind have been keeping away from voting on the popular side ? And is it not a fact that one and all have been telling me for the last four years that I have been in this House that it is due to the great trouble that they experience at the hands of the subordinate officers and other officers about karia heads and gates for the supply of water. We know that the condition in the districts is not the same as in the city. I have not had occasion to go to that part of the district. But I assure you that the voice of the Collector or the Superintendent of Police is much more than even that of all the members opposite. We can imagine the force and influence of subordinates referred to in a far away district of Balchuistan where I presume there is no newspaper and from where it is difficult to send immediately any information to the principal cities. We cannot accuse the honourable members like Khan Bahadur Bhutto when they seriously tell us that the introduction of these gates will give an additional handle in the hands of the subordinates to give more trouble to the zamindars. As men in public life we cannot deny the fact that in district parts these officials are a great force. Further I would like to point out that my honourable friend Mr. Pahalajani who will not yield unless he is convinced of a fact also agrees that these gates are not necessary. Above all some important facts have been placed before us by an honourable member who is conversant with the facts. Though I am not an expert I have had some experience of draw of water. If at the head the draw is smaller it is impossible to draw a great deal of water to supply to the tail. This is an ordinary thing which we have found out in many schemes. (Interruption). The honourable member Mr. Balubhai may say anything he likes ; but we ought not to be carried away by sentiment or by the fact that certain members have not voted on certain questions with the popular side although they were in the right. The whole tone of the argument shows that there was going to be trouble and because those gentlemen who have come forward to speak and happen to be interested the honourable member Mr. Balubhai does not want Government to do them justice. Then, Sir I wish to ask the Honourable the General Member why this question was not brought up at the last conference that was held ? Is he able to assure the House that the officials never thought about it then ? If it is an old question and if it was not brought before the conference, there is no necessity of this question being brought up now. If it is true that this is an important question and a great injustice is being done to people why was it kept back so long ?

[Mr. Hooseinbhoy Abdullabhoy Lalljee]

I see no justification for bringing this question now. With these words I support the cut.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District): Sir, those who live in glass houses should not attempt to throw stones at others. I am sorry to say that honourable members who have not got the least idea as to what a sluice is or have an impression that a canal is a municipal hose pipe which can be shifted from place to place at one's own pleasure and at any moment, when they speak on a question like this they exhibit great ignorance of real facts in Sind. I wish the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla to allow me the opportunity to proceed with what I have to say and not to interrupt while I speak. Then the honourable member, Mr. Balubhai Desai, plainly said he did not know what a cusec was....

Mr. B. T. DESAI: I said that I did not know the word, but I was told that cusec means thirty acres.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED: Cusec means thirty acres! Ignorance cannot go any further. I think this extent of knowledge creates a bewildering position for us and I would seriously request the Honourable the General Member to depute one of the executive engineers to deliver some lectures to honourable members like Mr. Balubhai Desai on the irrigation matters of Sind.....

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA: I rise to a point of order. The honourable member stated that a cusec means thirty acres.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: There is no point of order in it. The Honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed is suggesting to the Honourable the General Member to hold a lecture on the subject and to teach what a cusec means.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED: Then only, Sir, will we be able to have a more satisfactory assistance from such honourable members as do not come from Sind.

The honourable member Mr. B. T. Desai said that we had failed to make out a case. He does not know anything of the subject; he does not know the law. Yet, he says that we have failed to prove our case! We say it is no use pleading before a judge or a jury who do not understand the language or the law. Another grievance of the same honourable member was that we have had a sham debate on the previous motion. I seriously thought over the use of that word by him, and I honestly think by saying what he did, he made a groundless and baseless attack on his colleagues. If I may return the compliment to him in the same word, I would say that nobody was more surprised than myself to see the shamness of the debate yesterday, the sham nature of the fight which ended yesterday, after a debate lasting for a day and a half, in the absolute and complete withdrawal of the motion of censure on the Government for the Back Bay Muddle, a motion which was brought forward in apparent seriousness and with all trumpeting. I think that honourable members who were keen about it are feeling a little irritated over it.

[Mr. Noor Mahomed]

Therefore, they are using explosive language which perhaps they would not use in ordinary times.

Sir, the position is this. The honourable members, Mr. Ginwalla and Mr. Balubhai Desai have always made it a point of not trusting Government in what they say. That is the attitude consistently taken up by them in this House. Whenever the Honourable the General Member or the Government said anything in regard to the Barrage or in regard to the Back Bay or anything else, they have refused to believe him and the spokesmen of Government. But I find both these honourable members Mr. Ginwalla and Mr. Balubhai Desai referring to-day to the pages of the Blue Book with piety and stating that Government have said this and that; and taking it all as the gospel truth, merely to oppose this motion.

(At this stage Mr. B. T. Desai made an interruption which was inaudible at the reporter's table).

Then, Sir, the honourable members Messrs. Ginwalla and Desai said they were representing the cause of the tail zamindars of Sind, as their voice was unrepresented in this House. That is not a fact. So far as I am concerned, I am interested in the cause of all the sections of zamindars, whether they be at the head or the tail. (Interruption). Certainly they cannot be better pleaders of the cause of the people of Sind (Interruption). Certainly they have no right to speak on their behalf or in their name. At any rate I refuse to believe that the honourable members Mr. Ginwalla and Mr. Desai have better right to speak on behalf of the people of Sind than myself. (Interruption). I cannot be silenced in this manner. I have the experience of vaster and more angry meetings and audiences than my honourable friends near me. So I request that I may be forgiven if I do not yield to interruptions.

Now, the position is this. The object of Government in bringing forward this proposal for constructing gates is to make a saving of water, for the benefit of lands at the tail. But that it is not to be. The gates will merely serve to decrease the water supply in the canal, they will only serve to make the water flow back to the river. The zamindars being hereditary cultivators sometimes know much more than our engineers: and many a time when engineers have not listened to the advice of zamindars and have pushed forward their projects, their efforts have ended in complete failure. This is one such instance of the blunders of the engineers.

The other point which I would like to urge before this honourable House and the Honourable the General Member is that this sum of Rs. 60,000 which is going to be spent from the capital account will be wasted, because Sirwah and Edenwah, the distributaries which this scheme is intended to benefit, will be transferred to the Barrage canals within three years; and thus there will be no return from the sum of Rs. 60,000. Therefore, my submission is that this expenditure is not justified. The Honourable the General Member may pursue his policy and have his way, but I assure him that it is not going to do any good to the people ; only the money will be wasted. If in spite of our protests, the Honourable the General Member proceeds with the construction of gates, Government will be doing so entirely on their own responsibility.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division) : Sir, I congratulate the Honourable the General Member on the additional support which he has to-day received from benches which are usually opposed to his policy. However, I may add that the honourable members who have supported Government and opposed this motion have broken every principle and every canon of democratic Government.

Mr. B. T. DESAI : Sir, I have not supported the main scheme.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : I do not think the cap fits you.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think most of this is a digression from the subject before the House. I know references have been made, attacks here and there have been made, and therefore they are being met. At the same time all that may be said hereafter may be said briefly and decorously.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Sir, I wanted to say that the first canon is this : that popular representatives ought to support popular demands. The second is that if all the representatives of a particular province or district put forward a claim, it ought to be taken as the demand of the province and it ought not to be disputed. I think it should here be noted down that the honourable members that have in season and out of season cried for popular rights are now going entirely against the wishes of popular representatives. The cat was taken out of the bag by the honourable member Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee. I should like to know what principle is followed by the honourable member.

Coming to the speech of my honourable friend the Chief Engineer, he says either the engineers are fools or they are knaves. I do not think they are either. There is even a thing as self-delusion ; they may be mistaken. In Sind, the engineers and the zamindars are like the muleteers and the mules. I think the mules, in this instance are more reasonable than the muleteer. Is it not right for the engineers at times to consider that the people after all may be right and they may be wrong. Here, almost every member from Sind, not only big zamindars like my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Bhutto, but persons who are opposed to them like my honourable friend the member for Sukkur (that is to say, Hindu and Mahomedan members of Sind), are agreed about this. It is not for any member from Gujarat or from Bombay to say that these people do not understand their own interests and we understand their interests better. These honourable members are trying to create bitterness between Government and the Sind members. So that Government should be deprived of their support in future.

[Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad]

In conclusion, I would request the Honourable the General Member to accept this cut.

Khan Bahadur JAN MOHOMED KHAN (Sukkur. District): Sir, I support the motion and take this opportunity to state that every zamindar holding land on the Begari Canal is opposed to the introduction of gates on the Begari, for the simple reason that they will do no good at all either to the zamindars of either the upper or the lower reaches. In fact they will do more harm than good. This is not the first time that an experiment has been made to spare some water from the upper reaches for the tail lands. As long back as 1907, one such experiment was made; and it ended in complete disaster both for the Zamindars of the upper reaches as well as of lower reaches. Mr. Robertson the then Executive Engineer called a conference of the zamindars and put forward the proposal of reducing Karia heads from mile 38 to mile 70; and the "Karia" heads were actually reduced. But the result of this reduction was that the surplus water, instead of flowing into the tail of the canal, flowed back into the river and was lost even to the zamindars of the head. All this because Government does not spend money on silt clearance. If silt clearance were regularly and thoroughly done, if the canal, towards its tail, were to be widened, I am confident there would be no necessity whatsoever of either "chabs" or the gates that are intended now to be introduced; and the water would flow to the tail. I repeat that "gates" are going to do no good to any one; and all this expenditure will be wasted away. The nett result of their introduction will be greater harassment of the zamindars than ever before, at the hands of the Public Works Department subordinates. The circumstance of Begari are peculiar. Its flow from the river is so sensitive that even a slight obstruction in its way will send back the water to the river, as has always happened in the past. Moreover, wherever gates have been tried, they have always resulted in the frivilous prosecutions of the zamindars by the Public Works Department subordinates; and such prosecutions have created great discontent, mainly owing to the fact that they were launched without any sufficient cause. Leaving aside all considerations of zamindars, Government will only be saving its money if it gives up the idea of gates, which are not going to improve matters. So far as I am concerned, I wish to be very clear that I am against the gates in any shape or form; and I wish to be also clear that no assurances from Government will lessen the injury that these gates will do both to the zamindars and the Government. I therefore support the motion that the money asked by Government for putting gates on the Begari be not given.

Khan Bahadur SHER MUHAMMAD KHAN BIJARANI (Upper Sind Frontier District) (Addressed the House in Sindhi): Sir, I belong to the Baloch zamindars of the Upper Sind Frontier District whence the Begari in the main flows. This lock and key arrangement that is proposed will be highly detrimental to the interests of all the Zamindars whose lands lie on the Begari Canal. The honourable member, Sir Cowasji

[Khan Bahadur Sher Muhammad Khan Bijarani]

Sahib has to take into consideration the inconvenience that this locking of the gates will entail. We have remained faithful with the Department and if gates are put, the difficulties it will lead to, will be a source of oppression to the Khatedars (occupants), the Daroghas and overseers will oppress us, on the Begari; the lowest officials connected with the supply of water will open and close at their pleasure. I, as a zamindar of that District and possessing lands there, assure Sir Cowasji Sahib that these gates will make no improvement whatever but introduce discontent. He should be therefore kind to the Zamindars and have more excavation and not resort to gates.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City): Sir, it was not my desire to take part in the discussion on this subject at all and my intention could be proved from the fact that I did not take part in the discussion on the last more or less similar item, because I know there are persons, not outside but in the very precinct of this building, who have sharp differences on the subject and as one coming from Sind, a province, I could not suppress my feelings which were roused by the hectoring, bullying, and scoffing manner in which my honourable friend, Mr. Noor Mahomed, told this House that the people who do not come from Sind and do not understand technical terms are not entitled to vote. ....

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED: On a point of explanation, Sir. I did not say that the honourable members have no right.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The whole thing is clear before the House.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: The vote can be given only on the intelligent understanding. On these premises, my honourable friend must know that it is impossible for anyone to vote on either side without an intelligent understanding of the question. In view of this fact it is very offensive for my honourable friend to say that some honourable members are in favour of the Government proposal without trying to understand the subject.

Sir, it was in order seriously to avoid that feeling of suspicion that I particularly made it a point not to speak on this subject. But our friend the leader of the opposition gave us a very big description or rather dissertation upon the functions and the principles of a democratic government.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: I never gave, Sir, a description of the democratic government.....

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: The honourable Moulvi Saheb said that the friends who seem to have supported Government were going against the very principles and canons of democratic government.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: All this is foreign to the subject under discussion.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: I do submit, Sir, that I am replying to the Moulvi Saheb's remarks.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Let the honourable member's remarks be brief.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : If you will analyse the speech of my honourable friend the Moulvi Saheb, you will find, Sir, that he did not speak one point on the merits of the motion and he continued for ten minutes, Sir, without any interruption, and I may crave same indulgence (Laughter).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : There are only ten minutes to time, and there is the mover's reply and the Government Member's reply still to come. I do not know what the honourable members wish to do.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : All right, Sir. In deference to your wishes, I resume my seat.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Does the honourable member think he can finish his reply within a few minutes ? Otherwise, if he is agreeable and if he would take long, I would adjourn the debate till to-morrow, as the House must adjourn at 4 strictly ?

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO : I will finish, Sir, in about 15 minutes. Sir, the honourable member the Chief Engineer said that this matter of gates was discussed at the time of the conference and that the zamindars were informed by the Chief Engineer for irrigation. But, Sir, to our knowledge, nobody can say that this particular question was discussed. I for one am very much against these gates and do not agree with this viewpoint that any statement will satisfy us. This is a very important matter and should be discussed with the people there and they must have a fair chance of stating their objections and the Honourable the General Member should know what the objections are. Therefore, it is very necessary to examine the case before coming to a conclusion. I would request that the Honourable the General Member should go through the whole thing very carefully before coming to a final decision, and it will be better if he defers this matter to some future time and in the meantime people's opinion should be ascertained. I would have replied to so many other honourable members' arguments. But, on account of shortness of time now, I will conclude at present.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Before adjourning the House, there is just one little matter which I have been asked to announce to the House, for the benefit of such honourable members as would like to study the question, that there is a barrage map in the committee room outside, kept there for inspection and study for such honourable members as may like to see it, and it would be there till 6 o'clock to-morrow. So, such honourable membrs as may wish to take advantage of it may do so.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : What will happen to this debate now ? The only thing left now is for me to reply, I presume ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Yes ; there is the reply of the Honourable the General Member to be made, and that we take up to-morrow. The House is now adjourned till 1 o'clock to-morrow, Friday, the 2nd March 1928.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. Before we proceed to the regular business of the House, I have to read a letter in reply to the letter of condolence which was sent on behalf of the House to the family of the late lamented Mr. Harchandrai Vishindas. This is the reply I have received from his brother Mr. Shrichand Vishindas :—

"I beg to offer thanks on behalf of self and the family of my brother, the late Mr. Harchandrai Vishindas, for the kind sympathy of the Bombay Legislative Council and the references made by the Honourable the President and other members of the Council, a copy of which was enclosed in the above letter."

The honourable member Mr. Khuhro yesterday, immediately after the House was adjourned, came up to me and said that he had misunderstood the whole situation and that he thought that the debate was going to be completed yesterday, and that he, therefore, gave up a few points he had to make. He asked me whether I would give him an opportunity to state those points. Under the circumstances, I give him that opportunity now and I trust that he will refer only to points connected with the debate and not to any other foreign matters outside the subject.

Question again proposed.

"Omit item 70—Providing regulating gates to Karias Ex-Begari Canal Rs. 60,000."

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District) : Sir, I thank you for giving me this further opportunity and assure you that I will not detain the House a moment longer than what I think to be absolutely necessary. I do not propose to indulge in any personal attacks as unfortunately was the case yesterday. I only wish to refute the arguments advanced against my motion.

The honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan said that there was a great cry of deficiency of water on Edenwah and Sirwah at the tail of the Begari canal and that Government were right in trying to remove that injustice by taking suitable measures to distribute the water on an equitable basis, but that we are the obstructionists. I am sorry to say that though the honourable member was sitting so near me, he, it appears, has not been able to follow me at all. It is evidently due to his ignorance of the knowledge of the state of things there. Every one of us admits that the zamindars at the tail are suffering acutely from shortage of water and all of us wish that their grievances should be removed. But what we object to is that the introduction of gates will place in the hands of low-paid servants of the department considerable power for evil, because the opening and closing of the gates will necessarily have to be done by persons drawing Rs. 25 to Rs. 300 or so, such as beldars, Daroghas and S. D. Os. and so on and they will seize every opportunity to extort money from the zamindars concerned.

The honourable member Mr. Ginwalla's remarks were quite beside the point. He does not seem to have known that the question of modules is quite foreign to the question of the proposed gates and therefore the two different factors of irrigation have perhaps confused him. So, I need not trouble the House by taking any further notice of his remarks.

[Mr. M. S. Khuhro]

My honourable friend Mr. Balubhai Desai also made remarks which were contrary to facts. He stated that the honourable member Mr. Pahalajani's suggestion was, why the gates should not be provided between mile zero and mile 31 instead of between mile 31 and mile 76, thereby suggesting this good to be done to the head zamindars and not the tail people, who are suffering, i.e., between mile 31 and 76. He evidently considers gates to be a great boon to the zamindars in whose karias they will be provided. My honourable friend does not appear to realise that the gates are intended not to give any extra water to the zamindars between miles 31 and 76 but to cut off a certain proportion of the water that they are, it is believed, drawing in excess at present to the detriment of other zamindars at the tail, that is, in the area covered by Sirwah and Edenwah. So much for the remarks of my honourable friend Mr. Balubhai Desai, in so far as they related to these gates.

The second argument which Mr. Balubhai Desai made was that he thought that the Sind members were opposing the construction of gates because they could not get as much water as they desired, regardless of the wants of other zamindars. I say he is wrong there. What we fear is the likelihood—certainty I should say—of rank corruption which is bound to prevail among the lower subordinates such as the daroghas, sub-overseers and S. D. Os. and so on, who may be counted upon to make the life of the zamindars miserable. I may inform the honourable member that the lock and key system is an entirely unheard of thing in the history of Sind irrigation and naturally there are grave suspicions against the lock and key system in the minds of the people directly affected that it will operate very harshly upon them.

None of these honourable members is acquainted with methods of irrigation and the wants of people in Sind and I am surprised that they venture to offer remarks which are not only not relevant but are very misleading in their character. The third point mentioned by the same honourable member was that the mover of the motion (namely myself) is against the gates because of the apprehension of corruption to rise because of low-paid officers being tempted. Then he referred to a funny simile that because a police constable who gets Rs. 30 or Rs. 40 as pay, all the low-paid police staff should be done away with and high paid officers be substituted. This was indeed very queer on the part of the honourable member to have mentioned. I have very explicitly mentioned that these honourable members can't possibly imagine what an enormous power is going to be wielded by low-paid officers of the Public Works Department on the Begari Canal, by the introduction of these gates. They will hold the fate of very big zamindars possessing thousands of acres each in their hands, a power which will be beyond any proportion and infinitely greater than could be conceived of by the gentlemen of his mentality.

I would like to say a word about what the honourable member Mr. C. S. C. Harrison, the Chief Engineer for the Sukkur Barrage, said. He told the House that it will be the Executive Engineer for the Begari

[Mr. M. S. Khuhro]

Canals who will be opening and closing the gates after studying the water level and the requirements of each karia.

Mr. C. S. C. HARRISON: I did not say anything of the sort, Sir.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO: That only strengthens my argument that the opening and closing of the gates will be done by low-paid subordinates of the department, and this is just where our objection comes in. I am prepared to accept the honourable member's assurance that he did not say what I attributed to him, but any way that was the impression left on my mind when I heard his speech, namely, that the Executive Engineer will be present on the spot and will regulate this new system. All of us, Mr. Pahalajani included, object to the low-paid subordinates controlling the proposed gates for the reasons I have already enumerated.

The second point that the honourable member the Chief Engineer made was about the remodelling of the Begari. The Chief Engineer is of opinion that remodelling cannot be taken in hand for a long time, and it will be many years before the remodelling is finished, but when we were present in the conference that was held in January last by the Honourable the General Member, the Superintending Engineer, Mr. Satarawalla, announced that the plans and estimates were almost complete, and the remodelling will be taken in hand shortly and probably will be completed in two or three years. It is to my knowledge that it was expressed there that in about two or three years' time the remodelling will be finished.

Mr. C. S. C. HARRISON: Sir, may I correct the honourable member? I did not say so. I said it would take a good many years to complete such a big scheme, as it would probably have to be taken up piecemeal.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO: "A good many years" is an indefinite vague term; it may mean two or three years or even ten years.

Then my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Bhutto said in his speech that the Collectors were being called to attend the conferences, occasionally called by the Commissioner in Sind to decide about irrigational problems, but they had no potential voice in the affairs of the Public Works Department. Whatever the P. W. D. officers suggested was final. I also hold that view, though the Chief Engineer does not agree with us there. My knowledge is—and that is the knowledge of every one of us—that if any Collector happens to oppose the view of the Executive Engineer, the Collector's view is simply thrown to the walls. It is always rejected on the plea that he does not possess sufficient technical knowledge. It is assumed that the Executive Engineers are the right persons who know the technicalities of the problem, and, therefore, the Collector's view is not accepted.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: I regret I was not able to hear exactly what the honourable member said, but I am informed that he stated that in conferences presided over by the Commissioner in Sind, at which Collectors were present, the Collectors were not allowed to express their views. I do not know whether that is what he said.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: He did not say that. He said that the Collectors, although they were called, had no potential voice as Collectors in the matter of bringing things to the notice of the P. W. D. and seeing that their voices prevailed on behalf of the zamindars. That was what he meant.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Will you allow me to deny that statement altogether. I have myself presided at joint conferences of revenue and irrigation officers, and I know that the Collectors on those occasions were given every opportunity of stating their views, and it is not a fact that these views were necessarily overruled in favour of the views of the irrigation officers. They represent their views on the revenue side of questions. The Commissioner in Sind is there to hold the balance between the two departments, as being responsible for the general administration of the province, and he naturally would do so.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO: What I said was probably not properly understood by the Honourable the Revenue Member. I meant that the Collectors did get a chance to express their views, but that their views were not adopted for the simple reason that they were considered to be laymen, and the views of Executive Engineers prevailed because they are supposed to have technical knowledge about irrigation problems. In most of the cases—and there are living examples of it—the officers of the P. W. D. have made mistakes. The public have opposed them, even the Revenue officers have opposed them, but they have been given the upper hand, and ultimately they have failed in the excavation of so many feeders and in the excavation of so many canals. There are instances in which the engineers have not come out successful. But, Sir, we object to the procedure of the conferences from a different point of view. What we say is that the Commissioner in Sind, while holding such conferences, ought to invite the representatives of the people as well to represent popular view on matters directly affecting zamindars. The people should have a voice, and they should be represented in these conferences. Whenever any conference is held to decide the fate of agriculturists of any part of Sind with regard to irrigation, the Commissioner in Sind ought to inform, in all fairness, the people belonging to that part, and know their views and then come to a final decision. Unless the people are properly represented, it literally means holding enquiry in camera and they remain quite unaware of what has been decided about their fate. That is the main ground on which we most seriously object to such conferences.

The other controversial point is this: the Chief Engineer said that the gates were mentioned in the conference at Sukkur; our view is, and we firmly believe, that they were never mentioned in the conference. None of us heard anything about it even in private conversation. We were sitting very near to the Honourable the General Member, the Chief Engineer, and the Secretary to Government for P. W. D. but we heard no mention of the gates at the time, and I make this statement with full sense of responsibility that all the zamindars do say that they never heard of the gates then. It is much afterwards that we heard of the gates. These gates are very much resented by the people there. I say that, in all fairness, those people who were not informed of the conference and of these gates and who did not get a chance to express their views should have been given a fair chance to express their views and to discuss the question with the Honourable the General Member. when the conference was held for discussing the questions of the Begari canal, when this question is undoubtedly one of vital importance.

There is a great apprehension about one point that my honourable friend Mr. Allahbaksh raised that the velocity of the water of Begari will considerably be diminished, say by about 2,000 cusecs. This will entail a loss of approximately 1½ lakhs or two lakhs of rupees to Government every year, besides the great loss to the people. This is a matter which should be seriously considered by Government. The Honourable the Revenue Member is taking a great responsibility if he allows this system to be introduced. I hope that the honourable member will realise it. The zamindars with one voice opposed this system and in spite of that the Honourable the General Member has taken the responsibility upon himself to enunciate this policy.

I have not brought this motion before the Council of my own accord, but I have done so with the unanimous and anxious desire of the zamindars and after having fully discussing it with them. We are of opinion that this amount need not be wasted and can be profitably saved. I hope the Honourable the General Member will re-consider the whole question and will make a statement about it.

The other point is about the chabs. These chabs are only used for short periods as a temporary measure in order to supply water to the tail in bad inundation. If they are permanently and rigorously enforced it will do great harm to the cultivators. If gates are at all used, I want to make it clear, they should be introduced in the place and in the manner these chabs are used. With these remarks I support my motion for omission of this demand for grant.

Mr. J. ADDYMAN : I rise to offer a word of explanation. Yesterday in the course of the debate there was a great deal of confusion about the word "cusecs." The Honourable Member Mr. Noor Mahomed suggested that it might be explained to the House.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : What is the point of explanation? If it is an explanation of the word "cusec" the Honourable the General Member will probably explain it in his reply.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Mr. President, if honourable members desire, I shall ask the Chief Engineer to explain it scientifically. Otherwise I shall explain it to the best of my ability.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : It is enough if the Honourable the General Member does so.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Mr. President, I am sure it will be admitted that quite unexpectedly we have had rather a lively debate on the amendment moved by my honourable friend. Government has received support from quite unexpected quarters but it must be admitted that that support was tainted with a considerable amount of bitterness. It is being stated that Government climb down.

[Sir Cowasji Jehangir]

If accepting the assistance of a small committee of this honourable House to obtain further evidence of corruption and taking their views on one particular issue, viz., as to what steps should be taken in connection with such allegations of corruption, is climbing down, then my honourable friend the Swarajists are welcome to that consolation. I will repeat that if accepting the suggestion of my honourable friend, on one particular issue, namely, to take their assistance to obtain further evidence of corruption and then advise as to what steps Government should take, and that was the only issue accepted by Government—is climbing down—my honourable friends may be consoled by that fact. (An Honourable Member : Is it wise to climb down ?)

. Now, let me come to my honourable friend Mr. B. T. Desai. If Government accept a cut it is showing strength. But if the honourable Swarajist member advices Government not to accept a cut—it is a very rare state of affairs in this honourable House—and if Government still feel inclined to do so, it is climbing down. Now, Sir, I emphatically state that taunts of this character are not going to tempt Government to accept a cut or to oppose it. They will accept or oppose, not because certain members asked them to accept or oppose but on the merits of the case. In this case I regret I have to oppose the cut.

Mr. President, so much time of this honourable House has been taken up with this amendment, that I feel rather guilty in taking up more time. You will excuse me if I attempt to explain and clarify the atmosphere to some extent. I went to Sind last cold weather—I think it was in January.—My honourable friends from Sind met me and urged upon Government the necessity of further clearance in the Begari. The honourable member Mr. Pahalajani has kindly admitted that we gave them a very patient hearing. I could not then commit either myself or Government to the further expenditure but I was prepared to consider the arguments placed before me and if money could possibly be found I myself made up my mind that further clearance should be effected on the Begari. At the same time the engineers told me that if Government was going to incur this extra expenditure it would be advisable to have gates on the Begari. They explained to me very clearly the reasons for their suggestion. I do not know whether all honourable members know what are chabs. Chabbing is a system that prevails in canals in Sind when there is a scarcity of water. Chabbing is closing a karia head with brush wood or earth temporarily in order to prevent that karia from taking as much water as it ordinarily does. On the Begari canal chabbing has been prevailing for the last three or four years. I am informed by the Engineers that it is as unpleasant to P. W. D. officers as it is to zamindars, to go in for this method of regulation of water supply. It is true that it entails a considerable amount of work on the P. W. D. staff and a considerable amount of anxiety to the zamindars. It might also become necessary on occasions to enforce these chabs by a little more than gentle persuation. I was also told that if money on silt clearance was to be spent it would be better to have some other method of regulation than chabbing—a method which could be more easily brought into effect and more easily looked after. If Government were agreeable to incur this expenditure Government would naturally wish that such expenditure was incurred both for the benefit of the zamindars as well as of Government. Therefore I agreed to the extra expenditure on gates.

Now, Sir, I was clearly given to understand then, and I am clearly given to understand now that gates are to take the place of chabbing. If my honourable friends have accepted chabbing as a necessity for the last three or four years, I do not see why they should not accept gates which are a better substitute than any other we can improvise in this case.

Now, Sir, my honourable friends are apprehensive of great powers being handed over to subordinates, powers which these subordinates may use to harass them. But if I can assure my honourable friends that these gates will be used for no other purpose than for the purpose for which chabs were used, I hope I will get the support of all reasonable zamindars. I will repeat that gates are provided merely to serve the purpose of chabs which are used in times of deficiency of water and such supply of water as is secured by the operations of the gates will be utilised for the benefit of the tail, including Edenwah and Sirwah. The Executive Engineer will, as was done in the past, consult the zamindars of all the reaches of the canal as to the periods of rotation. All information about the number of days and the time at which the chabs have been used during the three years preceding the year 1927-28 will be carefully collected and the average of these three abkalani seasons will be taken as a guide to determine the number of days on which the gates should be put into operation. I will assure honourable zamindars that the number of days on which the gates will be used will not, as far as possible, exceed the average number of the days on which the chabs have been used during the three years preceding 1927-28.

Khan Bahadur S. N. BHUTTO: Sir, I would like to know what the honourable member means by "as far as possible."

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I will explain. The gates will be used for the same number of days as chabs, but if there are unforeseen circumstances, if the abkalani happens to be worse than in the last four or five years, it might be found necessary to use the gates oftener than the average of the chabs. "As far as possible" here means "except in exceptional circumstances:" I cannot limit the discretion which is given to all executive engineers in such matters. These will be the instructions given to the Executive Engineer, but if the circumstances of a particular year are different from the circumstances prevalent during the previous two or three years, the Executive Engineer must have discretion to adapt the use of these gates according to circumstances. But I can assure the honourable zamindars that by "as far as possible" I refer only to exceptional circumstances and to the fact that I am reluctant to deprive the Executive Engineer of any discretion that vests in him at present. Take the case of chabs. He consults the zamindars and chabs are put in certain karias, but if the next abkalani happens to be a disastrous one, no zamindar will come forward and contend that chabs should not be used more frequently than in the previous years. That discretion at present is given to the Executive Engineer. If we substitute gates for chabs, I do not see any reason to deprive the Executive Engineer of that discretion. Now, Sir, I trust my honourable friends the zamindars will realise that I am quite sincere when I say that Government have no intention to use these gates more severely than chabs have been used for the last three or four years.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: May I ask for information, Sir? The chabs are removed immediately their work is over; will these gates be removed as soon as their work is over?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: The gates, as my honourable friend ought to know, can be opened and can be closed. They can be left open if they are not required.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: But the key will remain with the subordinates.

The Honourable Sir COWAJI JEHANGIR: The gates can be closed to a certain height. Supposing, for instance, that it is found unnecessary to close the gates, they will be left open. Chabs are put in temporarily for one particular occasion and have to be cleared off again. The gates can be raised. The chabs can be only temporary; you may put in a chab and it may be surreptitiously removed. But the gate can be locked.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: With whom will the key remain?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: The key may remain with the subordinate, but it is the Executive Engineer who will decide as to the height at which the gate should be fixed. In the same manner chabs are being put in by the subordinates. It is the subordinates who have to look after the chabs, and I am informed that there is more scope for corruption and for harassment in chabs than there is in gates.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO: Will these gates be used with the co-operation of the zamindars as in the case of chabs?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I have just now made a statement which I had drawn up for the satisfaction of the honourable members, but I am sorry that my honourable friend did not follow me clearly. I have clearly stated that.

My honourable friend Mr. Allahbaksh, whom I am pleased to regard as one of those zamindars in this honourable House who takes a keen interest in irrigation and who tries to study all questions on irrigation has brought forward an objection. He has stated that by these gates the discharge at the head of the Begari will be considerably reduced. He asked me to give an undertaking that if the operation of gates reduces the discharge from 7,500 to 6,000 cusecs at the head, they will cease to operate. I am prepared to give an undertaking to the effect that if the discharge at the head of the canal is so reduced after the gates operate, they will be removed provided the gauge reading at Bukkur and at the head regulator are the same for purposes of comparison. When my honourable friend made that statement, I naturally turned round to my honourable friend, the Chief Engineer for Lloyd Barrage for confirmation and he very clearly explained to me under what circumstances the discharge at the head might be reduced. As a layman I may try to explain the position to my honourable friends. If the gates at the head are closed, it would mean that less water would pass through the karias at the head and a smaller quantity of water would be admitted through the canal ; if the gates to be closed are in the middle of the canal, the water will pass on from the mouth and there will be little risk of the discharge being decreased. After this assurance that I am prepared to give, I am confident that my honourable friend, Mr. Allahbaksh will accept it.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO : If the discharge of the Begari has been increased by 2,000 cusecs, will it not happen that this discharge will decrease by 500 or 1,000 cusecs ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : If it decreases by about 50 or 60 cusecs, I do not think my honourable friend Mr. Allahbaksh will complain.

Mr. ALLAHBAKSH walad Khan Saheb HAJI MAHOMED UMAR : I do not mind if it decreases by 400 cusecs.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : My honourable friend, Mr. Khuhro, in his reply made a very surprising statement which I feel inclined to contradict. He states that the collectors of districts as laymen had little information about the question of irrigation. I do not pretend to have a great deal of experience of Sind. My connection with Sind only began since I took over charge of the Irrigation Department. I may assure my honourable friends that the Revenue Department is consulted on all vital questions. When I say Revenue Department, I mean the collectors are consulted on all vital questions and they are asked to express their opinion, although they may be laymen. If the opinion of laymen is not to carry weight and if it is alleged that their opinion does not carry weight, I ask my honourable friends how the opinion expressed by them will carry weight. If we contend that the opinion of the collector is the opinion of a layman, I repeat that the same argument could be used against me, it could be used against my honourable friends, Messrs. Pahalajani and Khuhro. But it is not used. I may tell this House that the opinion of the collector and the Commissioner carries the greatest weight with Government. I have very often heard that a Collector of a district has expressed an opinion contrary to the opinion expressed by the engineers. But on making enquiries I have personally found that there was little or no difference of opinion. Therefore, when I hear that a Collector in a certain district is not in agreement with the irrigation policy, I make fullest enquiries in the matter, not verbally but in writing.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : May I know if in this case an enquiry was made ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : In this particular case I am not able to say. But in two cases I can assure my honourable friends that when I have been told that the collector has been in disagreement, I have taken care to see that the collector's opinion has been reduced to writing. Sir, I have given this House two important assurances. I trust that the House will accept these assurances. There is no desire on the part of Government to enforce any measures which would give harassment. It is the desire of Government and the sincere desire of Government that whatever steps they take the zamindars should be as little harassed as possible and these gates are one of those measures. I admit that chabbing does entail harassment both to the zamindars and to the Government officers, but I contend that these gates will be a less source of harassment both to the zamindars and to Government officers. Under the circumstances I would appeal to my honourable friend, after the assurance I have given him, to withdraw his demand for a cut.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO : In view of the assurance given by the Honourable the General Member I withdraw my motion.

Question put and leave granted.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Sir, I beg to move :

" Reduce by Rs. 10,00,000—Total Demand—Rs. 2,61,43,000. "

I wish to take this opportunity, Sir, of discussing the policy that is being carried on. I do not mean the engineering or the technical aspect of the question, which I leave to others, especially to those who have recently visited that province, and who have made an inspection. But I am referring to that matter which has formed the subject of Government Resolution No. 1348 dated the 14th November 1927, which has been placed on the table of the Legislative Council, in regard to the policy to be followed in the matter of the sales of land. A reference to page 121 of the Blue Book will show that it is stated there in the introductory note that " the scheme (Sukkur Barrage Scheme) will also bring under cultivation an additional area of about 33 lakhs of acres." That is a statement intended to show what revenue is going to be derived from making the sales of land. Now, Sir, it has been stated during the course of the enquiry by the revenue officer that the prices realised for the land will be about Rs. 300 an acre. If that is so, Sir, the total approximate value of the sale of these 33 lakhs will be Rs. 9,900 lakhs or nearly Rs. 10 crores. Now, when the original project (Sukkur Barrage) was under discussion in 1923....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : You were in this House then.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Yes, I was in this House ; and the projected estimates that were given were something like Rs. 18 crores, and it was stated that the cost will not exceed those estimates. Of course, these are projected estimates. But, Sir, from a statement made by the Honourable the General Member yesterday, I think, one has reason to fear that these estimates may exceed, and hence it is the duty of this Council to draw the attention of the House to the fact that we should try to see if the sources of income which will be derived owing to this scheme are also not fully utilised. Now, Sir, the anxieties of the members, the zamindars of Sind, is to secure lands at concessional rates, and the resolution which has been placed on the Council table deals with the claims put forward by the zamindars. I only appeal to the honourable members of this House who represent the zamindars not to grudge the payment of the full price in the interests of the general taxpayer by putting forward particular claims on the ground that they have been entitled to such since in the past they enjoyed them. The resolution under consideration, Sir, has very properly held that the two rights, namely, the mohag right, as well as the right to forfeited fallow land, have no legal existence. The mohag right seems to be something analogous to the right which we have in the Deccan when alluvial land is found adjacent to the land of a holder; and the other right is fallow forfeit right. That is to say, when a land is allowed to remain fallow owing to lack of water, then it is liable to be forfeited. But as soon as it is again brought under cultivation, it is given to the former holder although in reality he has no legal right to it. In both these respects, the memorandum of the Commissioner in Sind, which is attached to that resolution, has discussed this question at great length, and they have come to the conclusion, and have rightly come to the conclusion, that there is no legal right in the zamindars on either of these scores. But Government have considered their case from an equitable point of view. I have no objection, Sir, to a man who comes to claim equity being given equity, provided also he does equity. The further part of the resolution, by which 3½ lakhs are promised to be given at concession rates, assumes, I submit, two things which I shall endeavour to show are not correct. The reason given for the assumption is that when this resolution asking for sanction to this Sukkur Barrage Scheme was under discussion in 1923, during the course of the debate, a statement was made by the Honourable Sir Chimanlal Setalvad, who was then the General Member in charge of the department, and it is supposed a sort of right is derived from that statement on the contention that there has been a sort of promise or undertaking on the part of Government to give 3½ lakhs acres at the very concessional rate of Rs. 15 per acre. When the market price is Rs. 300 an acre, the concessional rate is stated to be Rs. 15 an acre. Further, Sir, it is stated in the Government Resolution that to this promise or undertaking, as it is said, the Legislative Council has given its approval. The wording of the resolution is that "this promised grant of 3½ lakhs of acres at the concessionary rate of Rs. 15 per acre was enunciated by the Honourable Sir Chimanlal Setalvad in the Legislative Council and approved by that body." I want to show, Sir, that really speaking, this has not been the case. If we refer to the proceedings of the Legislative Council of that year, it will be seen that the proposition, the actual resolution, that was put before the House was merely in the form of a recommendation to Government—rather a curious resolution, that is to say, a resolution moved by a Member of Government asking this House to recommend to the Governor in Council that the scheme of the Sukkur Barrage is approved. That was the wording of the resolution. Then, in dealing with certain claims or objections the Honourable the General Member made a statement which, as I have said, is the foundation of this claim. In the first instance, Sir, I may state that a statement is not an undertaking or any promise as such. Further, when the debate followed upon the opening speech, several members took part in it and they criticised the scheme and also expressed certain apprehensions.

Then in replying the Honourable the General Member said :—

" I will say at once, Sir, that the honourable member was perfectly right in his statement that because this Council adopts this resolution it is not bound hand and foot for all time to the manner in which the scheme should be carried out. Year after year the Member in charge of the department, who wants to expend the necessary money during that year on this project, will have to come to this Council for its vote and get its approval ..... If this project is sanctioned, whenever any budget provision is presented to the Council in any particular year, the Council will be free to cut it down or to alter it. If the way in which the scheme is being carried out during the previous year justifies them in doing so, this Council has and will have throughout the construction of the scheme complete hold over it. I may assure the Council that if they pass this resolution they will have power from time to time to control the working of the project."

I submit with regard to the sale of land, that it is a part and parcel of this project and hence it is that, when we find that these sales are going to be profitable, we should see if it is not within the competency of this Council to ascertain whether what is proposed to be done is really in the interests of the general taxpayers.

With regard to the value of the land, it was further stated that it had something to do with the Government of this presidency as well as the Secretary of State to whom the scheme was forwarded. The opinion of Sir Chimanlal Setalvad was based upon certain action which the officers of Government had taken in formulating the scheme. We must therefore go to that portion of the statements of facts which were formulated by the revenue and engineering departments.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Does the honourable member disapprove of the scheme ?

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : As I say, I disapprove of the scheme so far as it proceeds upon the assumption that $3\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs of acres have been promised to be given at the very low concessionary rate of Rs. 15 per acre. So far as that part of the resolution is concerned, I do say that I take exception to it. I am endeavouring to show in the first instance that there has been no undertaking of any kind nor has there been any approval of this Council to this kind of a measure which is said to have been given. As I said, it is open to the Legislative Council, when now for instance at this stage a demand is made for a large amount to meet expenses, to ask whether, as was stated during the debate on the first motion, it is possible to realise sale proceeds after two or four or six years or to effect sales in advance. I am now therefore endeavouring to show that when the Honourable the General Member is coming to this Council and asking for an additional grant, that it is open to every member of this House to ask him whether it is not possible for him to raise the money by resorting to the sales of land in a manner which will result in the interests of the general taxpayers and at the same time safeguard the rights of zamindars. I do not for a moment suggest that if there are any rights as such that they should be invaded, but if a simple attempt is made to put forward a claim on the ground of equity, as I said, then certainly it is open for us to meet that claim by asking the zamindars to come to a settlement by which small landholders (by " zamindars " I do understand even small cultivators) can have conceded to them their rights of frontage and the rights of forfeited lands so that there will be no cause for complaint. What I mean to say is, not that the whole of the 3½ lakhs of acres which are said to have been kept apart to meet these equitable claims should be exhausted, but what I suggest is that claims of small holders may be met with, but in the interests of the general taxpayers, if there is no legal right we can justly refuse to comply with the larger claims. That is the submission which I am placing before this House. The memorandum of the Commissioner contains the history of these claims and we have also certain statements which really could have formed the foundation of the statement of Sir Chimanlal Setalvad. If those statements which have been incorporated in the Commissioner's memorandum are examined, we will know how the reservation of 3½ lakhs of acres came to be made. When the general debate was on, a general statement may have been made which does not amount in my humble opinion to any binding contract so to say. The 3½ lakhs matter is stated to have arisen only by way of an estimate. The Government Resolution says in paragraph 16 :—

" It is necessary to examine how the misunderstanding that undoubtedly exists has arisen. In a report dated 5th November 1922 the then Revenue Officer, Mr. Hey, while mentioning the importance attached by zamindars to ' mohag,' stated there was no legal right whatever and that, in order to carry out a programme of sales it was necessary to sweep aside all claims of mohag, ' except in the case of small plots and fragments of land islanded amid existing occupancies or needed to round off holdings or secure direct access to roads, wells, water channels or the like.' Mr. Baker, in a report dated 19th January 1923 suggested Rs. 15 as an average rate for concessionary land. As he has explained in his evidence, the average was to include allowance for land given free. But there was no suggestion that the concessionary land need be ' mohag ' land : the word does not indeed appear in Mr. Baker's report. In Mr. Musto's pamphlet ' The Future of Sind ' published in 1923, pages 47 and 48, the nature of the ' mohag ' claim is explained and it is pointed out that only small areas could properly be given on this ground. Mr. Musto, however, goes on to say that ' to provide for all such claims on a very liberal basis ' an area of 350,000 acres consisting of small blocks had been reserved ; and, for estimating purposes only, it had been assumed hat this area will be granted at an average rate of Rs. 15 per acre."

It will be seen from a perusal of this that the acreage of 3½ lakhs has not been agreed to be given away to whomsoever a claim is made by. So, my submission is that in considering this resolution in so far as it relates to two assumptions made by Government, which as I said, are based (1) on the statement of Sir Chimanlal Setalvad and (2) on carrying of the resolution by this Council, the position must be examined. If, on an examination of the position it is found and I hope and trust that it will be found that really there has been any binding agreement or even any sort of a binding promise on the part of Government, then certainly the Government is bound to give at the concessionary rate of Rs. 15 an acre all this valuable land, namely 3½ lakhs acres. This is a matter which I submit is important for the purpose of deciding once for all this question as it affects this Council because the resolution proceeds on the opinion or rather the approval of the Council as stated in this resolution, and therefore it is high time that the Council must enter its strong protest against their opinion having been quoted in support of the concessionary grant of 3½ lakhs of acres. I have moved this motion for a cut of Rs. 10 lakhs, in order to raise a discussion upon the policy. But this Council can refuse to sanction the moneys that are required for the purpose of carrying on this construction work on the ground that the Government should meet the wishes of the Council on this particular point, namely, that they should decide this question of land sales before they ask the Council to grant the demand. I therefore submit that honourable members of this House would be pleased to see the necessity of considering this question, and I appeal to my honourable friends from Sind to look at this question not from a narrow point of view, but from the point of view of the general taxpayer. If land which was fallow, if land which did not yield anything is now going to yield an income owing to water being available, no doubt the cultivators will be entitled to make use of the land and the water. But certainly, is not a person who wants to buy land adjacent to his land expected to pay something more than the ordinary purchaser in the market, or is he bound to pay less? If land is put up for auction, a person in the market may offer Rs. 200 for it, but an adjacent owner will offer something more, because it is convenient to him to cultivate it by joining it to his original land. Therefore, for these lands, the people who are claiming these rights of mohag really ought to pay more than the ordinary market prices. All that I can submit in their favour is that they may claim a right of preemption. I quite agree that persons who are owners of adjacent lands should be given first preference for buying the land, but beyond such a right of pre-emption, to put them into a better and more advantageous position will be putting a premium on the right of pre-emption, because you offer them pre-emption and you also offer them land at less prices. I submit that the question is really worth being considered, and I hope Honourable Members of Government will also be pleased to consider this question from that point of view. We have not had before us any other correspondence, but judging from the memorandum of the commission, which is a very exhaustive document, I do feel that there is room to consider whether this theory of there being 350,000 acres of land absolutely kept for being given away at this concessionary rate is really correct. Of course, the zamindars want 470,000 acres more. From the memorandum and the resolution I know Government have decided to meet them half way. The zamindars wanted that the mohag and the fallow forfeiture should be mutually exclusive. They said "These mohag rights you have already provided for by keeping 350,000 acres, but we have got a separate fallow forfeiture right to the extent of some 4 lakhs of acres. Therefore, in addition to the 350,000 acres give us 470,000 acres more," as if these are mutually exclusive. As a matter of fact, they are not mutually exclusive rights at all. They may interlap each other, and, really speaking, if there is any equity, it must be in favour of persons who have forfeited their holdings and who claim it back. However, it is a question which really, to my mind, is capable of being further considered, and I do hope that Government will give us, not exactly at this stage, a definite proposal, but if I hear from the Honourable the General Member the desire of Government to reconsider this question.....

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Without moral turpitude ?

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Certainly ; there should not be any moral, or legal turpitude either. However, as I said, if I hear that Government desire to reconsider this question, then we shall be in a position to judge whether this full grant should be given.

Question proposed.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Sir, I must first seek the permission of this House to address it at some length on the important questions which are involved in this demand and the cut moved. I think that the finances not only of the presidency proper but also of the Sind division are involved in the questions which are now before us. When the estimates for the Sukkur Barrage were first framed (as they are given in the report issued by Messrs. Baker and Lane) the expenditure amounted to Rs. 14 crores. Certain changes were later on made in the project, and when the matter was brought up to this Council the estimates had risen to Rs. 18·35 crores. Last year the figure was put up to Rs. 19 crores, and the Honourable the General Member has come out now with an estimate of over Rs. 20 crores. This does not of course include the arrears of interest, which will probably come to something over Rs. 4 crores. The mere interest charges which this House is asked to sanction in this year come to Rs. 46½ lakhs, and it appears to me that, before this House sanctions the extra expenditure now demanded, it ought to go into the receipt side of the question and see whether the estimates which are being prepared as to the revenue to be derived have full justification or not. When Sir Chimanlal Setalvad put his resolution about the Sukkur Barrage before the Council in 1923, he made it clear that Government expected to realise a certain amount from land sales, and that the interest on that amount would be utilised to pay the interest for the Sukkur Barrage expenditure. As honourable members are aware, he said that the interest charges are proposed to be met as follows : firstly, by an assignment of Rs. 10 lakhs out of the famine grant ; secondly, by the sale of land as water is available, or in advance if required ; and thirdly, out of capital, if necessary. In the course of his very able speech, Dewan Bahadur Harilal Desai, in moving his amendment on that resolution, quoted the Secretary of State on this particular question. The Secretary of State, in his telegram to the Government of India, says " I note that Government of Bombay adhere to the view that construction estimates are adequate and that land sales may be confidently expected to yield 12·60 crores spreading over 25 years allowing for certain concessionary grants to local zamindars. I understand that your Government accept Bombay Government's views on these matters." It was on the basis of these estimates that the Secretary of State sanctioned the project. Sir, I wish now to discuss this matter in some detail, and give to the honourable members of this House some idea of the exact type of zamindars who will secure the largest benefit from this project, and as to what should be the best lines to be followed by Government with regard to the sale of land, so as to benefit every class, and, at the same time, yield to the State sufficient revenue. In discussing these matters, I must refer to certain matters of detail, and I would crave the indulgence of this House to bear with me patiently as I deal with those details.

Sir, I am not one of those who think that the honourable members of this House do not or cannot take a sufficiently active, sympathetic and intelligent interest in matters relating to Sind. I do not think we can forget the remarkable debates of 1923 in which I find that members from Bombay had studied the details of Sukkur Barrage probably far better than members from Sind, some of whom may not have even opened the large volumes which Government was good enough to supply them. Further I find that members from Bombay who have taken an interest in Sind, as was witnessed even to-day, deal with the matter from the larger stand point. Sir, it is thought by some as if like the presidency divisions Sind also has got a large number of small holdings. But the opposite is the case. Sind is predominently a land of big holdings. As much as 36 per cent. of the agricultural land in Sind is held by a small group of 2,000 zamindars. Out of the total of 2,00,000 of zamindars—owners or occupiers of land—about 2,000 zamindars hold as much as 36 per cent. of the agricultural land ; and each one of these 2,000 men owns 500 acres and more. If we compare the statistics of Sind and the presidency proper the contrast becomes clear ; and in deciding upon the policy to be followed in regard to the sale of lands Government should see that the small as well large holders—probably small holders more than the large—get the benefit of the crores which the presidency is going to spend on the Sukkur Barrage. As I said, in Sind 36 per cent. of the land is held by land-holders each of whom holds more than 500 acres. If the Honourable Sir Ghulam Hussain's definition that occupiers of more than 100 acres are large holders, then 63 per cent. of the land in Sind is occupied by large holders. In the presidency proper about 17 per cent. of the land is held by such large holders. But if we take 500 acres as the minimum for large holdings then 36 per cent. of land is held by those big holders, while in the presidency proper only 4 per cent. is held by such big holders. If we compare the holdings of Sind with those in an agricultural province like the Punjab we find that the average holding in Sind is five time as large as it is in the Punjab. I give these figures from official publications in order that the House may have a correct idea as to the agricultural holdings in Sind.

Government have decided as a result of certain practices which prevail in Sind that 3½ lakhs of acres should be given on concessionary rates. This action has already been touched upon by the speaker who preceded me and I do not propose to repeat the discussion. But I leave it at this that out of a total of 33 lakhs of acres which, according to the average rate of Rs. 300 per acre given by the revenue officer of the Lloyd Barrage, is valued at Rs. 100 crores.....

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: I think that the honourable member is speaking on the assumption that this figure of 33 lakhs of acres represents the area of unoccupied land available for sale. But the figure is only 15 lakhs. The figure of 33 lakhs represents the additional area of cultivation resulting from the Sukkur Barrage.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: I was coming to that. The new land which is to come under cultivation for the first time whether it belongs to Government or private zamindars is 33 lakhs of acres. Of this only 15 lakhs of acres belong to Government and the balance of 18 lakhs of acres belongs to the existing zamindars. What I wish to bring before the House is this. As a result of the expenditure of over 20 crores of rupees from the public revenues 18 lakhs of acres of land already owned by the existing zamindars are going to rise tremendously in value. The expenditure of 20 crores of rupees by the public taxpayer is giving an advantage to the existing zamindars to the tune of 40 crores of rupees fixing the value of an acre at even Rs. 250. In addition to the automatic advantage thus conferred on the existing zamindars there is a concessionary grant to be allowed. When it is realised that 36 per cent. of land in each district, is normally held by very big zamindars, an idea will probably be formed of the substantial share of extra wealth which is transferred to a small class of people who are not more than about 300 men in each district. About one-third or 36 per cent. of the land in each district is held by big zamindars. One-third of the 18 lakhs of acres already owned by zamindars comes to 6 lakhs of acres. The value of this will be 18 crores of rupees if the rate is Rs. 300 per acre. In addition to the advantage thus given by the taxpayers to these large zamindars a concessionary grant is being allowed to them. It appears to me that far more important than this question of automatic advantage given by the taxpayer to the large holders by increasing the value of their land tremendously and giving them a perennial supply of water and the question of the concessionary grant of 3½ lakhs of acres is the vital question of the disposal of the remaining 11½ lakhs of acres of Government land.

And it is with regard to this matter that I would expect that Government should at as early a stage as possible declare its policy, because it has not only to realise Rs. 12,60,00,000, according to the estimates of 1923, but it has not to lose this wonderful opportunity of removing starvation from the home of the poorest of the poor. It should not happen that the public taxpayer not only to-day but for forty, fifty or sixty years more, should have to make a sacrifice for the sake largely of a few very big zamindars. Perhaps the honourable members of this House will be surprised to know that under the economic bondage of these two thousand big zamindars live five to six lakhs of tenant population, who are tenants in name but who have no economic interest in the land except that of being labourers who can be kicked out to-morrow.

It is a very perverted economic condition, which enables a small group of very big zamindars to hold in perpetual economic bondage lakhs and lakhs of men who can be thrown out any day.

Besides these, there are also in Sind those depressed classes whose problems are being dealt with by every department in the presidency proper. I hold that these seventy-five thousands or one lakh of depressed classes, whose claims I would put first, ought to be transferred from mere landless labourers into peasant proprietors. Government ought to earmark a substantial share to be sold to these people, at full market value if necessary (but I would say at concession rates), to be recovered in convenient instalments so that these landless cultivators might be turned into peasant proprietors. One important method of social uplift of the depressed classes is to give them an economic position in life. And I do contend that so long as the economic condition of the depressed classes remains what it is and so long as they are not given the status and position of peasant proprietors, who have some interest in the land they own, the path of social progress, so far as these classes are concerned, will not be clear of thorns and free from serious difficulties.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Sir, on a point of information, may I enquire of the honourable member what classes he was referring to by the term "depressed classes?"

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: I am referring to the large class of Kolis, Bhils and Meghwars, many of whom are to-day landless farm labourers and sometimes work even under the tenants-at-will in many a field in Sind. They have come from Rajputana, Marwar, Kutch and Gujarat in the course of the last sixty or seventy years and settled down in Sind; they speak the Sindhi language and sometimes adopt the Sindhi dress.

Next to these classes are what in Sind are called peasants, but miscalled peasants, because they are merely farm labourers. It is the average Sindh Mussalman who comes under this category. For years and years this class of people has remained without any interest in land, and whatever my friends may say, I think it is the duty of every Indian irrespective of his religion to support the class of landless labourers. And I would ask this honourable House not to be carried away by the potent or potential voice of any zamindar members of this Council, but put in a strong word of protest against any policy of land sales followed by Government which does not raise the social and economic condition of this vast peasantry, these landless labourers, whose population in Sind is not less than fifteen lakhs.

Next to them, in my opinion, come the middle class agriculturists—not the big land-holders. Among "middle class agriculturists" I include that agriculturist, who is miscalled "non-agriculturist" that agriculturists who for generations has been pursuing the profession of agriculture and who has probably no means of livelihood other than agriculture or whose main means of livelihood is agriculture, that agriculturist who passes the greater portion of his time, probably ten out of the twelve months of the year, on his land superintending and supervising the various processes of agriculture.

And last, not first, will come the large landholder who may get the benefit of these twenty crores of rupees out of the public revenues both of the presidency and Sind. Sir, I will urge Government to see that no one who already has more than a certain maximum of land in the Barrage area gets an inch of ground on the Sukkur Barrage. There are landlords in Sind who own 20,000 acres; there are landlords in Sind whose annual income will probably be two lakhs of rupees, say 50 per cent. more than the salary of the head of this province. I do not think that such landlords have any right to fatten on the public revenues gathered from the general taxpayer. (An honourable member: Question). (An honourable member: How many?) Sir, I am asked how many, and I will say 36 per cent. of the land in Sind is held by them, and if holdings over 100 acres in extent are taken into consideration then 66 per cent. of the land is held by them. Sir, I would further state that those zamindars, or agriculturists,—call them what you like—who have not sufficient capital to invest in the development of the agricultural wealth of Sind, these zamindars who allow a large portion of their land to lie fallow, not only on account of lack of water, but sometimes through lack of capital and sometimes through lack of energy, ought not to be given any more land in the Sukkur Barrage area. I shall quote here the opinion of a revenue officer who has served in Sind for twenty years: He says, in the course of his evidence before the Fallow Rules Committee:

"Sind has several zamindars, who are very large landholders, and these at times have neither the means nor the energy to bring sufficient part of their holdings under cultivation every year, yet for the habit of land grabbing would like to see more and more areas in their hands simply for the purpose of holding it and no better."

(An honourable member: What is the name of the officer?) And Mr. Musto, who was in 1923 a member of this House and who has done a great deal of propaganda for the Barrage Project has said in one of his pamphlets that many large landholders have more land than they can cultivate. I therefore expect that Government will lay down a strict policy and see that only that section of the population which stands in the greatest need of social and economic uplift gets the benefit of the Barrage lands.

At the same time, I expect that if this policy is to be followed then the policy of getting the best price from those who can pay it ought to be followed. And to me it appears that only a system of auction will enable the land to be taken up by the man who can invest more capital—and it is only the man who can invest more capital who can develop the land properly—or to be taken up by the man who can make the most out of a small holding, and cultivate the land most intensively. Only if the land passes to these two classes of people, whose interest it is to see that land is cultivated as intensively as possible, that the Barrage project will be a financial success and Sind will gain adequately from it. If land is given to those who do not cultivate it intensively, then the annual land revenue suffers and the future value of the land sufferers. I think, Sir, that it is to the interest of every part of this presidency that this principle ought to be followed when Government lay down their policy.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Sir, I must make my position very clear. I hold my seat in this Council as the representative of the rural constituency of Hyderabad where I have the honour to represent a large section of the smallest possible zamindars such as those who pay Rs. 36 as assessment. I had the honour of representing big zamindars in the pre-reformed Council.

I quite agree with my honourable friend, the previous speaker, (Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram), that it is the duty of everyone to ameliorate the conditions of the poor zamindars. His solicitude for the depressed classes is not more than mine. I have actually shown that by giving them representation on the local bodies. A few months ago, when I made enquiries about the depressed classes, and asked for their nomination on the local bodies in Sind, my honourable friend from Sukkur, Mr. Pahalajani and others said that there were no depressed classes in Sind. I have received official and non-official reports from Sind stating that there were no depressed classes there. But to-day I am told that there are depressed classes there.

Coming to the argument of my honourable friend, he said so much about the bigger zamindars. He says there are not less than 2,000 of them, and each of them holds not less than 500 acres of land. But the honourable member did not inform this honourable House that in Sind we have an inundation canal. It is not the case that the whole land is cultivated every year, as in the presidency which depends for its water supply on rain. In Sind, they do not cultivate more than one-third of the land. I challenge my honourable friend to dispute that point. There are experts in this House, there are Revenue Officers on this side, and they will tell you the same thing.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Are there no canals in the presidency ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : There are few canals in the presidency, but it has to depend for its water supply on rain. Now, Sir, I may state that the bigger zamindar, who is represented so much here in this House, cultivates not more than 170 or 160 acres out of the said 500 acres and my honourable friend should consider what the income must be on that. According to my honourable friend, there are 2,000 such zamindars, and others own less than 500 acres. So, I ask : " What must be the condition of these people ? " Their condition must be worse than that of the others. My honourable friend thinks that this concession is proposed to be given to those who will hold land on the Sukkur Barrage. But this is not the case. There are other canals in existence where the zamindars have land.

Now, coming to the argument of my honourable friend, Rao Bahadur Kale, what does it amount to ? He says that this concession should not be given effect to. But the predecessor of the Honourable the General Member gave an undertaking in this matter. It was accepted.

by Government and was sanctioned by this honourable House. Is it fair now to go back on that undertaking ?

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (In Urdu) : Sir, may I know if the Honourable Minister is right in traversing the whole ground ? The question of cut is before the House and he is having a general discussion.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I rise to a point of order. My honourable friend is speaking in Urdu. I cannot understand his speech. Yesterday he was speaking in Gujerathi.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. Only one point of order can be raised at a time. The first one has not yet been disposed of. As regards the point of order raised by the honourable member Mr. Baloch, the cut has been moved to raise a general discussion of the Barrage. So, the Honourable Minister is perfectly in order.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Sir, as I have told you, an undertaking was given by the predecessor of the Honourable the General Member. On that undertaking, the scheme was sanctioned. Does my honourable friend now suggest that we should go back on that undertaking ? If we do that, I am afraid nobody will rely on the promises of this Government in future. Further, my honourable friend, Rao Bahadur Kale, made it clear to this House that Government do not admit the legal claim of the zamindars to the mohag and fallow forfeited lands but admit their claim in equity. I do not want to deal with the legal aspect of the question, but I say that Government fully realise their responsibility in this matter and propose to give land on concession. If my honourable friend is so anxious.....

Mr. A. D. SHETH : Let the honourable member in charge say that.....

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : The resolution was read out by the honourable member, Rao Bahadur Kale. Now, my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale and my honourable friend from Sind are very anxious about the taxpayer. But I would remind my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale that we are paying interest to the tune of Rs. 50 lakhs on unproductive works of irrigation in the Deccan. In the first place, he should make them pay, before he comes forward in this House to talk of the zamindars in Sind and of the taxpayers' money.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : That is no answer to my point at all.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District) : Sir, during the course of the debate on the cut proposed by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale on the Sukkur Barrage, the remarks that have been made by the honourable member himself and by the honourable member Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram from Hyderabad have been mostly with regard to the sales of land. Sir, the other day there was some discussion to the same effect in which the honourable member Mr. Lalji Naranji from Bombay indulged, and that was to the same effect. Sir, I find that efforts are being made to mislead the honourable members here and to make statements which are, in fact, not only incorrect, but contrary to the actual facts. Sir, it has been argued out at great length by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale that the zamindars have no lien on the lands that are said to be fallow forfeited, and it is probable he meant that it is a matter of favour or that Government wanted to pocket them; therefore, the Honourable the General Member at that time made that assurance. Sir, that question has been dealt with by the committee appointed by Government on the fallow rules in 1925, on which there were four non-official members and three official members, and I had the honour of being one of the members. We had witnesses both officials and non-officials, and there were elaborate enquiries made and a report submitted, which was unfortunately not unanimous. Sir, there are two issues. One is about the mohag rights of the zamindar, and the other about the fallow forfeited land. Fallow forfeited lands include lands voluntarily relinquished by the zamindars as well. Some lands were relinquished by zamindars on some understandings. The terms of reference to that committee were very clear about the question of restoration of fallow forfeited land, which, any honourable member who may have cared to read the report must have seen. One of the terms of reference is :

"More particularly to consider the question of the restoration to the original holders of land forfeited under the fallow rules, the conditions under which such restoration should be made and to what extent zamindars have a lien on lands so forfeited and what interpretation has been placed upon the rules by successive Commissioners in Sind, and to submit a report to Government."

Sir, honourable members of this House are aware that the Commissioner in Sind exercises the powers of local Government, and the circulars issued by the Commissioner in Sind every time with regard to land and other matters are considered as valid as any Government Resolution. Sir, even in 1887, when for the first time the fallow rules were introduced,—I may be excused if I indulge a little bit in the question of fallow rules as it has arisen during the course of the debate,—in 1887 when for the first time the fallow rules were sanctioned by Government, they were sanctioned because the apprehensions were that the land was not being properly cultivated. Sir, various British officers examined the question and there have been various reports, for instance, of Mr. Erskine and others, who have had very great experience of the settlement and the Sind revenue system, and they have made reports from which it would be clearly understood that the zamindars are not solely responsible for not cultivating land, because there were difficulties which were beyond their power, for instance, the deficiency of water and paucity of manure and absence of such other facilities, and therefore, zamindars are compelled to leave land fallow for two years. Ordinarily, Sir, any person who knows anything of the agriculture of Sind will bear me out that it is not possible to cultivate every land every year with the crop of wheat, cotton or jowari.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : With perennial water ?

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO : With perennial water there are many difficulties which are expected. There will be waterlogging, which is apprehended ; there will be paucity of manure which is still there at present ; there will be drainage and other facilities necessary, and one is not certain whether they will be adequately provided. And even at present there is no perennial supply of water. My honourable friend from Hyderabad knows that the Jamrao canal which was intended at first to be a perennial canal and was designed also in that consideration has not been supplying that water as a perennial canal should, throughout the year. Land on that side can be cultivated hardly once a year and that also few small pieces, it can be cultivated sometimes once in three years and sometimes once in two years. I would like to read a paragraph from the official report about fallow land. Apart from the non-official view, I would like to say something of what the officials have mentioned about it. I am referring to page 21 of the report.

This is what they say :

" On the other hand we readily admit that as a result of these instructions there grew up an almost universal belief that forfeited lands would be restored to the original occupants on payment of fallow assessment, and a general, if not universal, practice of restoration to any former occupant who applied. It was not until after 1915 that district officers began to recognize even 10 years' forfeiture as extinguishing a claim to restoration on payment of fallow assessment. Before that time therefore land was allowed to be forfeited in the belief that it would be restored on application, and there can be no question that general practice justified that belief. And in these circumstances, although we hold that there is lien in the sense of any legal claim, and that not one of the orders of any Commissioner from the very beginning can be regarded as a pledge, yet the practice of restoration was so general for the period of at least 25 years that the zamindars quite naturally came to regard it as a normal part of the system and to arrange their cultivation accordingly. And as Government, and its officers encouraged them to do so it is not possible for Government now to refuse to admit that a lien, in the sense of an equitable claim, does exist."

Now, Sir, from this paragraph also it will be seen that the lien has been admitted, because of the fact that the practice has been there for a long time and zamindars have very clearly understood that the lands that are being fallow forfeited would be restored to them on payment of single assessment. I would, for instance, quote one passage from a circular of the Commissioner in Sind, Sir Evan James, who knew more of Sind, than any Commissioner has ever done—he was an authority on the revenue and agriculture of Sind—and he had very carefully studied Sind conditions. A suggestion was made to him by officials that the period of four years fallow assessment according to Rule 4 of Sind Fallow Rules should be extended from 5 to 10 years and the lien of zamindars should once for all be done away with. While describing the suggestions made by Collectors and officers, he makes this remark in the year 1900 :

" A suggestion has also been made that the fallow period should be extended from five to seven or even ten years with a forfeiture of any lien on the land such as exists at present. But the Commissioner does not consider any change in the period prescribed by the present rules at all advisable and is not prepared to recommend to Government any alteration of the existing system. Although 13 years have passed since fallow rules were made, the people in many places have not yet realized fully their object and force. It would be in the Commissioner's opinion, impolitic in the highest degree to alter what is now one of the most essential incidents of land tenure in Sind, and one of the wisest measures devised by Mr. Erskine (on the advice of a strong committee of Sind officers) to adjust the Bombay system of settlement to this province. Even if changes were supposed to tend to theoretical perfection (and that it would do so the Commissioner does not believe) any change now would perplex and disturb the whole of the land owning classes, who are extending cultivation very satisfactorily. However whatever rules may be made on paper the sense of proprietorships in fallow forfeited lands would still remain, and the ignoring of it would be practically impossible or at least appear an outrage on the cultivators' sense of what is just. The Commissioner will therefore leave it well alone."

When a Commissioner like Sir Evan James expresses in such emphatic terms that there is a strong belief that the zamindars have got a proprietory right in fallow forfeited lands, is not Government bound to-day to recognise all that the Commissioner in Sind said fully realising his responsibility in 1900, and is not Government bound by the conclusions come to by the Fallow Committee (official and non-official members) and by what Government themselves have ultimately acknowledged in the resolution issued in November last ? It is most unfortunate for Sind to have been annexed to the Bombay Presidency. The fact is that Sind agriculture and Sind revenue system is absolutely different from that of the rest of the Presidency and the Deccan. A Deccani agriculturist can never understand the Sind system just as a Sindhi agriculturist can never follow the agriculture system of the Deccan. Sir, it is not only myself that express this opinion but it is the opinion expressed by the whole intelligensia of Sind. One very learned. and experienced witness like Rai Bahadur Hiranand Khemsing while giving evidence before the Fallow Committee said.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Is the honourable member going to read the whole of it ?

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO : I request permission to read a few lines. Sir. I will now refer to page 17 of the Fallow Committee's report. He says :

"Government was not and is not the owner of the soil in Sind. It is the zamindar who is the owner. The Government of Bombay at the time Sind was annexed to Bombay committed an act of spoliation when they constituted themselves as owners and reduced the Sind zamindar to the level of a Deccan Rayat, and styled him in the language of the Bombay Land Revenue Code as "occupant" which is defined as holder in actual possession. The connection of Sind with Bombay has been and will remain an unfortunate one, until this wrong has been righted."

It was not his original opinion but this is the opinion which was even maintained, by very learned, experienced and statesmanlike officers of the British Government who made thorough investigation of the land revenue system in Sind and had studied the conditions there in early days of the British rule in Sind. If honourable members care to read the non-official report of the Fallow Rules Committee, they will come across various quotations drawn from their reports to that effect. There is only one which I want to specially mention and that is the letter from the Government of India to the Government of Bombay, in which they say that "The Governor General is anxious that the tenure of land in Sind should be carefully ascertained and settled on their merit both as regards the conflicting interests of the different parties and their connection with the state. It is also stated therein "that he has little doubt but that proprietory rights in the soil do exist throughout that province

[Mr. M. S. Khuhro]

(i.e., Sind) and that it only requires the application of knowledge and experience of the subject to develop and record them." In view of all this it is most unfair at any time that any land forfeited should not be restored to the owner precisely when the land was taken up on the clear understanding that it would be restored to him any time that he was in a position to cultivate it and pay the fallow assessment due from him which was equal to one single assessment Rs. 3 or 4 per acre.

There is another issue involved in this, namely, the question of Mohag. Mohag, the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale explained, should be recognised when it is a portion of alluvial land which has been annexed to the holding of an owner forming his Mohag, owing to the River's change in course, etc. Mohag is in certain cases very necessary for the purposes of forming economic holdings in order to do profitable cultivation. It is considered a most essential feature of the land revenue system in Sind. It is essential for this reason that in Sind there is no monsoon. Lands are irrigated by the river water which is brought to the land by means of karias and water-courses. If for instance certain zamindars have holdings on a certain karia and if there is a small strip of land lying between them which cannot be given away to a foreigner without seriously affecting the interests of those zamindars and if there is the fear of inflicting an inconvenient neighbour on them, it should be given to the one among those zamindars already settled on that karia, and who has a superior claim to make his holding an economic one. There are very often disputes arising over the distribution of water and over the engagement of labour (which disputes at times lead to bloodshed even). Under such circumstances it is necessary to recognize Mohag rights and to give to the zamindars having adjacent holding to that Government waste land under a concessional rate. This system has been recognised by the officers themselves as conducive to administrative convenience. Mohag in Sind is not to be understood in the sense in which it seems to have been understood by some of the honourable members here, that it consists of vast areas of land. The Government Resolution itself makes this point clear. The conditions laid down are so very strict, that have yet to be authenticated by the Land Revenue Officer, Barrage, that very strong claims will have to be made out by zamindars to stand that taste. Mohags have got to be taken in consideration in order to render peace of mind to zamindars who otherwise stand exposed to the risk of such apprehensions that I have enumerated above.

Sir, the statement made by the Honourable the General Member in 1923 was with reference to the mohags alone because at that time there was a fear in the minds of honourable members from Sind that all the claims and the rights of zamindars which are vested in the lands may be violated and frustrated. In order to give an assurance to them that such will not be the case, the Honourable the General Member has very clearly stated that there is anxiety in certain quarters about what is known as the mohag rights of the Zamindars. It is far from the intention of the Government to ignore these traditional rights in the policy of land sales to finance the project. All genuine cases where inquiry would be done by selling lands adjoining present holdings will be and are being fully considered and Government have set aside no less than 3½ lakhs of acres or 25 per cent. of unoccupied land to be sold at the extremely low figure of Rs. 15 per acre "Halkans." Ever since it has been a very strong belief of the zamindars in Sind that these 3½ lakhs of acres referred to mohag alone having fallow forfeited lands. We got the statistics from Government officers according to whom during the last 20 years about four lakhs acres have been forfeited to Government within the area that will be commanded by the Barrage alone, and as a matter of fact, a total of six lakhs has been forfeited within these twenty years in the whole of Sind. The non-official report puts down 3½ lakhs of acres as mohag plus four lakhs of acres of fallow forfeited land, recommending thus the restoration of 7½ lakhs of acres on a concessional rate to the zamindars.

The honourable member from Hyderabad has tried to show that there are very big zamindars in Sind and that it will be unfair to give more land to them and that this concession is probably going to be made with a view to give more and more land to big zamindars. If we were to go through these figures that were collected with great labour and trouble by Dr. Mann—and they are in the possession of the honourable member Mr. Dow, and I hope he will enlighten the House on that subject—I can safely say that it will be found that about 75 per cent. of the zamindars are holding land less than 100 acres. The honourable member Mr. Otto Rothfeld, the then Registrar of Co-operative Societies while the discussion on the Barrage was going on in 1923, quoted some very interesting figures which I wish to repeat here for the knowledge of the honourable members here. He says about the extent of the holdings of the zamindars as follows:

"There are at the present moment 208,000 cultivators in Sind. Out of these 208,000, 67,000 own holdings under Government of less than five acres, and 64,000 own holdings under Government of between 5 and 15 acres: that is nearly 132,000 are cultivators in Sind—Government occupants of land—own lands under 15 acres, and roughly 90,000 of these may be assumed to own holdings of less than 10 acres each. Sind is not entirely a land of large zamindars. There are in Sind large state owners only 2,251 in number."

But, Sir, within the period of the last five years, that has lapsed since these figures were collected, I can safely say that the number of small holders must have considerably increased. These figures show that the large holders, that is people having more than 500 acres, are mostly in Jacobabad and Upper Sind Frontier District alone. Unfortunately, I do not possess now the figures for other districts, but hey were given to me from the figures worked out by Dr. Mann, and I found that in every district the average is much less than what has been described here to-day by the honourable member Mr. Jairamdas. For him to say straight away that this land will be given away to the big zamindars is unfair and doing a great injustice.

Then, Sir, the point about showing sympathy to the depressed classes and the labouring classes, which was brought up by the honourable member to-day caused me some surprise. He says there are Kolis, Meghwars and Bhils, but I would like to inform him that these castes only exist in Thar Parkar District, where probably the honourable member has remained for the last two or three months in connection with the flood relief work. He has come into touch with all these people there, and he is bringing up their cause. But the main point here is whether we are going to sympathise with the agriculturists, or whether we are here to oust the agriculturists and substitute non-agriculturists to take the place of the agriculturists. The crux of the whole argument of my honourable friend Mr. Jairamdas was that agriculturists should not be encouraged any longer, and non-agriculturists should be substituted in their place, or should at least be transferred into agriculturists.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: Kolis are agriculturists.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO: He said in very clear terms that the depressed classes and those labourers who are doing other labour should be made to do agricultural labour, and should be encouraged to do agricultural labour. Thereby he clearly meant that those who are not agriculturists should be made agriculturists, and agriculturists should cease to be agriculturists.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: On a point of personal explanation Sir, I made it clear that I was speaking of farm labourers belong to the depressed classes, the Kolis.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order order. Two honourable members cannot be on their legs at the same time. The honourable member apparently does not yield.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO: I have got very limited time, and I do not want to be interrupted.

Sir, it creates grave suspicions in the minds of the representatives of agriculturists from Sind that arguments of this kind are brought forward here with some ulterior motives. We do not know what they are, but there is some sort of propaganda being carried on in certain quarters in Sind that there are educated persons who are not employed, and being unemployed they should be encouraged to get lands to maintain themselves. Sir, it is very unfair that, at the cost of agriculturists, non-agriculturists who are educated, who may be graduates, should be benefited. Sir, this is the primary right of the agriculturists. If these educated persons have got scientific knowledge of agriculture why do they not come forward and cultivate with their hands? Why do they consider it below their dignity to go and cultivate themselves. Sir, great, honourable and respectable people in other countries, in England and on the Continent, consider it their pride to plough themselves, but here are our friends who want lands to begin with as landlords which will be by depriving the agriculturists of their legitimate rights but who do not want to cultivate themselves. It is for this object that these arguments are brought forward here, and I for one protest that this kind of argument should be brought forward in this House. These, are, Sir, the reasons why we suspect and feel that Sind is not being properly treated by being a part of the presidency. The problems of irrigation in Sind are not understood here, and when there was a discussion about irrigation in

[Mr. M. S. Khuhro]

Sind there were funny statements made here, and when questions about agriculture of Sind are discussed, funny statements are made here. I know the honourable member from Hyderabad Mr. Jairamdas who spoke on behalf of the agriculturists does not hold any land; he is not an agriculturist. But let him ask his own relations and friends what they say about the vested rights of zamindars in the Government waste land. For all these reasons, I hope that Government will be very fair and just in considering the claims of the zamindars, and not deprive them of their rightful dues. They have got genuine claims, and they should be considered.

One argument was advanced by my honourable friend Mr. Jairamdas that 18 lakhs of acres of lands were given away to the zamindars before the inception of the Barrage, and of this 6 lakhs of acres were possessed by big landholders, i.e., about 36 per cent. and he says that it is worth Rs. 18 crores. (Interruption). He again said that there are 33 lakhs of acres that are coming under the Barrage including the Government waste land 15 lakhs of acres, and all this land will be improved and rise in price, hence it is an unearned increment, for which the zamindars must contribute proportionately. The land that will be actually sold is very clearly given here; it is only 15 lakhs of acres, of which 11½ lakhs of acres will be sold to the highest bidder, as decided by Government. If he accepts the figures that have been worked out by the revenue officer of the Barrage, Mr. Baker, and by the present revenue officer, they say that the average price will be from Rs. 50 to Rs. 100, Rs. 150 to Rs. 250 an acre, and even if we take the normal price at Rs. 100 an acre, about Rs. 11 crores, to Rs. 12 crores will be realised by that calculation. Therefore, there need be no apprehension on that point; and even supposing that the prices estimated will not be realised, it does not mean that the zamindars' claims should be thrown away without being considered, and I submit, Sir, that there is absolutely no case made out for that. With these remarks I resume my seat.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Sir, I support the reduction. Before taking up the Sukkur Barrage I would like to take up the land question as my honourable friend had referred to it at length. The discussion that followed gives me a little bit of surprise. Honourable members from Sind including my honourable friend Mr. Jairamdas are inclined to have these lands for their own benefit, whether they be big or small zamindars matters little provided they are Sindhis; and that the presidency should pay for it. I have already pressed the point that in order to make the area commanded by the Sukkur Barrage agriculturally successful you must make ample provision of money for colonisation from the Government Funds. I say this from experience extending over years. The colonisation of such a big area is not an easy thing. The capital that would be required by the agriculturists will be enormous. It is a small thing for this Government to spend 18 crores of rupees, borrow it from the Government of India and spend it. But it must be very difficult for an agriculturist whether big or small to bring under plough a new land. At the initial stage at least it would cost Rs. 30 per acre ; so Government should in the first place provide 30 or 40 crores of rupees to be given to the agriculturists through banks or some other agency ; otherwise the Sukkur Barrage scheme will never prove a success for years to come. The agriculturists may in the initial stage commit blunders, the lands may change hands and others may find success later on after 20 or 30 years. Colonisation must be helped by funds. With that in view I had tabled certain questions. Again the lands commanded by the Sukkur Barrage should not be given to the Sind zamindars whose hands are full with too much land. As has been pointed out by my honourable friend Mr. Jairamdas, there are 18 lakhs of acres of fallow land in the occupation of the zamindars and when the barrage is completed they will have to bring these 18 lakhs of acres under cultivation. I do not think that the zamindars will have as much financial facility to bring these vast lands into cultivation. In bringing under plough a new land the cost that will be necessary ought to be taken into consideration, for if a land remains on hand fallow for two or three years it makes a lot of difference in the business of cultivation. Suppose a man takes up 200 acres of this land. He can at the most put under plough 30 acres in the first year, because there will be the difficulty of labour, of money, implements and so on. For the remaining 170 acres he will have to pay assessment from his pocket, which is now fixed at the rate of Rs. 5 and more per acre and this adds to the capital cost. There is also the risk to crops on account of locusts in Sind. If there is damage by locusts then he will have to pay the whole assessment from his pocket. So for an ordinary agriculturist it is very difficult to get success out of new lands for years to come. Again, as to their occupancy price I may state in the presidency lands on canals fit for sugarcane cultivation are available at Rs. 121 or Rs. 200 per acre. If that is so, nobody would like to purchase lands at a heavy price and go to Sind for cultivation and work in a very uncongenial climate of a desert in strange surroundings. My view, therefore, is that the true value of the land should be assessed. Government might have put Rs. 200 and Rs. 300 per acre to please the Secretary of State in order to get his sanction or to please this House for the same purpose. In my own district lands are being sold at Rs. 30 to Rs. 40 paying an assessment of Rs. 4 an acre. When such lands are available quite in the neighbourhood, nobody having capital would like to remain for years and work under 130° of heat under going all the difficulties of finding money to build a house, get labour, cattle and so on. I think that the value should again be revised, and the whole unoccupied area that will be commanded by the barrage should not be given away to the zamindars but to the best of the agriculturists in the presidency. In the first place if some provision is made by this Government to start co-operative societies or other organizations, they can take away the agriculturists from the Ratnagiri and Kolaba Districts which are very heavily assessed and very thickly populated at the rate of over 400 per square mile. Now, in Sind the population is only 75 per square mile. If you want to bring under cultivation the lands having a perennial supply of water, it requires more men and more labour.

[Rao Saheb D. P. Desai]

Whether you raise rice or other crops, intensive cultivation requires a population of at least 250 per square mile as in the Punjab. With a population of 75 per square mile no big zamindar will be able to bring under cultivation these new lands especially as he has got to cultivate the waste lands already in his possession. So, they will not be able to cultivate the new lands successfully, and when such irrigated land is not handled carefully, the inevitable result is deterioration of the soil. If that land is mishandled, the alkali comes to the surface. For the safety of the Barrage itself, it is better, therefore, to leave the Sind zamindar to himself, and import people who know intensive farming from the rest of the presidency, from areas where the population is above 300 per square mile, and settle them in Sind. They can be induced to go and settle in Sind by the advance of a sufficient amount of cheap loan. Again the fact is that the people of Ratnagiri and other Deccan districts as also the cultivators of Sind are very poor. So if Government advance them money and, as the honourable member Mr. Jairamdas suggested, recover it by easy instalments, and at the same time reduce the present value of the land (Rs. 75 to 250), which was placed before the House only to induce it to sanction the project, then they will go and settle in Sind. (Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad: Not from Kaira?) I do not think Kaira men will go; otherwise, I would have brought in the name of Kaira also. The Kaira man will try to get land round about his own district. Instead of going to Sind and carrying on an unbusiness-like farming, he will go to a neighbouring district or Indian State and get land there. He knows his business; he is all right where he is. The names of Ratnagiri and other Deccan districts were suggested to me by the fact that a large number of them come to Bombay and work as labourers here in the railways, in the Port Trust, in the building trade and in the mills. I say that there are two lakhs of people with their families doing labour work in Bombay, who will thank Government if they take them to Sind and give them their legitimate business.

Now, I come to the Barrage itself. By the end of 1928-29, we shall have spent more than half the estimated expenditure on the Barrage and the canal system—about nine crores—but I do not know whether we shall have done half the work. We have been supplied with the Blue Book and the White Book and other papers, but it is not quite clear to me that we shall have done more than half the work. So far as I can see we shall not have gone half way and we have a long way to go. The Honourable the General Member stated yesterday that the estimates might be exceeded to some extent. May I know whether this excess in estimates of expenditure will bring in an increase in revenue and whether the saving in reduced prices of materials, etc., will counterbalance the excess? Or will the Barrage be a huge blunder like the Development Department? That is the great question that has occurred to me in the past and occurs to me now. As a matter of fact when this very Barrage project was brought before the House I had grave doubts about its success. In my private conversation with Members of Government and others I was told that it was going to be a huge success. Yet, I failed to understand how it was going to be a success. I find that the whole success depends on one factor, namely the sale of land. The sale of these lands, according to my calculation can never realise 12 crores. If Government cannot realise 12½ crores from the sale of land, what will be the fate of the Sukkur Barrage ? Twelve and a half crores gone ! Then I do not know if the whole thing will not be a Development affair or something bigger than the Development affair. The whole of this Barrage is based on that one speculation. I do agree that the Barrage proposal has raised the value of land in Sind. Yet, I do not believe that you can get Rs. 250 an acre. It must be borne in mind that all the best lands in that area have already been taken up by the existing Sind zamindars. The Sind zamindars knew that the Barrage was coming, and from 1910 to 1920, they must have taken up all the best lands leaving inferior ones. May I enquire since when Government stopped giving lands in the Central Sind ? So far as I can see, from 1909 to 1920 the whole area was open for anybody in Sind to purchase. There are 1½ million acres, including the malkana land to be given to zamindars; nobody will give money for some of these lands which are already impregnated with alkali. The honourable member the Chief Engineer says that it is not a fact. I may say that out of this 1½ million acres, there is a large portion which is already impregnated with alkaline matter. Is that not a fact ? How can these lands find purchasers ? Then there are lands which are situated far away without communications. I do not think you can find a purchaser at such prices for those lands.

In any case, the policy as regards the giving of land should be made clear by Government. I have been putting questions as regards this matter for some time now, but no definite reply has been received. I also put questions regarding fallow rules, as applicable to the Barrage zone, as to whether they will be observed and given effect to, but no clear reply has been received. This Council has a right to know what Government are going to do. The Secretary of State gave sanction to this Barrage on condition that Government would get the sanction of the House : he assumed no responsibility for it himself. In his telegram sanctioning the Barrage project he clearly asked Government to get the sanction of the House before launching the scheme. He gave sanction also on the clear understanding that 12½ crores would be realised from land sales. This Council as the sanctioning authority has every right to influence its policy. As regards the retrenchment to be effected in the Barrage Department, I may state that a cut of Rs. 16 lakhs is not much. And I request the honourable member the Chief Engineer to accept this cut. It is not much and he can reduce some expenses in establishment and other charges. I trust he will accept this small cut of 5 per cent. or so.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI (Indian Merchants' Chamber) : Sir, during the discussion on the budget I mentioned to this House about the disposal of valuable assets, in the form of land which will be supplied with perennial water supply that this presidency holds, and I am glad to find that some interesting debate on this question has arisen to-day. At the outset, I should say that some of the Sind members have expressed their views that the Bombay people are not competent to speak on the Sind questions, because they do not possess the same knowledge that the Sind members possess. It was shown to this House yesterday on one or two small points. It was said that because Bombay members do not study the questions connected with Sind, it was not worth while for Sind to remain with the Bombay presidency. But I should say, Sir, that a Sind member is administering the whole of this presidency and that is with great success; it is most surprising that such a remark should be made by Sind members, and I say that if the rule is applied, and if Bombay people are not competent to deal with the problems of Sind and Sind people are not competent to deal with Bombay problems does he mean also that there should be no member of Sind on the cabinet of this presidency. It is a false analogy. Therefore, most of the Sind questions are submitted to criticism by the Bombay presidency members after close study and about which there is nothing particular that cannot be considered by both.

Sir, I raise a very broad question and that broad question is this, I want to know whether Government have any right to dispose of their very valuable assets of land at concessionary rates of Rs. 15 or practically at no rates—when you consider the present value to be Rs. 150 minimum —not owing to any efforts of the Sind zamindars, but owing to serious risks of investing 20 crores from borrowed capital on the credit of this Presidency for improving the estate, viz., all lands commanded by the Sukkur Barrage, the land no one would lay claim to but for assured perennial water supply.

I was very anxious to hear the Honourable Minister who represented Sind give some important solid information, but he has failed to enlighten us on this question by his to-day's remarks. What arguments does he bring ? He says that he is representing the small zamindars, but he should not forget that he is keeping his seat warm on the open benches as Minister in the Council, by the help of the big zamindars.

Another point he made was that he has been very concessionary to the depressed classes. I think even there he will see that giving of voting power for local bodies does not give everything to them, but to maintain themselves, I am sure those who represent depressed classes will always like land for cultivation as a means of livelihood to enable them to use the right of giving votes with some good practical results.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: They have been greedy for land now.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: I may submit, Sir, that the honourable member Mr. Jairamdas from Hyderabad has placed before this House the facts which are very instructive. I say his figures are nearly correct, after hearing another Sind member, who differs widely from him. There is nothing to dispute about those figures. So far as I understand, the honourable member, Mr. Khuhro, has not followed the facts. What he stated was that out of 31 lakhs of acres 18 lakhs are already owned by the Sind zamindars and the remaining 13 lakhs will have to be disposed of by Government. I expected him to reply if it was correct, but he has not replied. I also expected some remarks from the honourable member who represents zamindars, but nothing was done. From the figures that are placed before this House we find that 18 lakhs of acres are already going to be benefitted by the Sukkur project for no price and we should not grudge that. We have not undertaken the scheme for a few zamindars, but by that scheme the whole presidency expects to be benefitted to a certain extent, firstly by improving the lot of the holders of 18 lakhs of acres and secondly by recouping the cost of Sukkur Barrage from the sale of 13 lakhs of acres at good price.

There is another point raised by the Honourable Minister. He says that out of 500 acres that each zamindar possesses, he is only able to cultivate 150 acres. That is his argument and I think it is sufficient to convince the Government benches that if those zamindars are not competent enough to cultivate 500 acres of land, already owned by them, why should they ask for more land and why should Government entertain their claim at the concessionary rate of Rs. 15 by doing which Government will deteriorate and lower the prices of land which must be sold at the highest price.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: They cannot cultivate more on account of lack of water.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: I was saying that when the zamindars cannot cultivate whatever land they at present possess, why should they ask for more land? Government's object is that they should see more land cultivated by giving more land to them and their object will be frustrated. Now, what are the reasons advanced in connection with the land which remains uncultivated? The reasons are given in the Resolution of 14th November 1927 to which the note of the Commissioner is appended. They are:

(1) holding by zamindars of land beyond their capacity,
(2) lack of labour.
(3) uncertainty of water.
(4) lack of water.
(5) need of soil for fallows.

These are the five reasons why the cultivators or zamindars cannot bring the land to cultivation. The Honourable Minister admits that the difficulty of getting sufficient water will be removed by the Sukkur project. But I do not understand how they will cultivate land if other causes are not removed by them. What about other difficulties? If they have neither more spare capital nor more labour, why do they not give up land grabbing.

Further the Honourable Minister said that there is a loss of Rs. 55 crores on the Deccan agricultural scheme. I say if that is so, why should we try the same thing elsewhere. I trust he accepts the principle "that two wrongs never make one right." Therefore, it is not proper that if there is a loss of Rs. 55 crores, no further steps should be taken.....

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I did not say Rs. 55 crores. I said "50 lakhs recurring."

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: I thank the Honourable Minister for the correction. If there is a loss of Rs. 50 lakhs recurring on that account in one part of the Presidency, viz., Deccan, why this Barrage scheme should be undertaken in a way which will also make it a source of loss by wasting away its assets at cheap prices?

He says that because the schemes in the Deccan are not productive in this presidency, we should undertake a scheme in Sind which must also be unproductive, and for that reason, to make it unproductive, the land must be given as a present. It is not a question of a few thousand rupees or a few hundred thousand rupees, but it is a question of—at least the minimum sum is—5 crores. And are Government entitled to waste away their resources from this source in the fashion they have been doing? I would refer to one point as a layman. I should refer to the Government of India Act, page 20 of the Council Manual, where you find under the heading "Property, Contracts and Liabilities" it is said:

"The Secretary of State in Council may, with the concurrence of a majority of votes at a meeting of the Council of India, sell and dispose of any real or personal estate for the time being vested in His Majesty for the purposes of the Government of India."

Then, in the same clause, clause 28, it is stated:

"Any assurance relating to real estate, made by the authority of the Secretary of State in Council, may be made under the hands and seals of two members of the Council of India."

Now, if the Secretary of State cannot give an assurance without the assurance being signed by the two members of the Council of India, I want to know whether any such assurance, about which much is made and on which the claim is made, without going into the merits of the words used by the Honourable Sir Chimanlal Setalvad on that occasion, without the seal of the two members, can ever be given and whether it can be binding. Even assuming that such undertaking is binding, I will now ask whether the words that are referred to in that resolution are in any way binding. The words are very clear. They are:

"There is anxiety in certain quarters about what is known as the mohag rights of zamindars. It is far from the intention of Government to ignore these traditional rights in the policy of land sales to finance the project. All genuine cases where injury would be done by selling lands adjoining present holdings will be and are fully considered, and Government have set aside no less than 350,000 acres or 25 per cent. of the unoccupied land to be sold at the extremely low figure of Rs. 15 per acre."

The only assurance that is given is that if there are any rights of other zamindars, they will be considered and land will be reserved. But nothing is said that the land will be given away to them. And I am sure Government Members will throw more light on this question, whether it is a sort of binding without going into the question whether there are any genuine cases and whether injury would be done by selling land adjacent to their land. I should also like to know from the Government Members what sort of enquiry Government are going to make to ascertain genuine cases and as to whether any injury is done by selling land to any zamindar. It is very important for this House to know what will be the Government machinery on this point, because it is a matter which is not so small, but it is very vital to the further economic interests of this presidency already heavily loaded with debt. The honourable member Mr. Khuhro referred to the opinion of one of the members of the Fallow Committee, I believe on page 17 of the report, and he quoted one Rao Bahadur Hiranand. I will refer him to the reply given by the Commissioner in his note in which he has discussed this whole question about the proprietary rights of land and land tenure, which is given on page 9 of the resolution, in which he has referred only to the customary rights. He has referred to the rights of the Talpurs, which were the original rights then the rights that exist to-day in Khairpur, and has also referred to the Mahommedan law, in which he makes it quite clear that they have no right on this land which they are claiming. I do not wish to quote all these long paragraphs, but certainly I would commend to the members of this House to study this resolution, and if they think fit, they must express their opinion on this question, because it is not a question, as I said, so small as to be ignored. It is not a question that concerns only the members of Sind. It is a question that concerns the betterment of the economic prospects of the whole of the presidency. Then, he also referred to the traditional rights. To that question also, a full reply has been given in that portion of the resolution. Nobody denies the traditional rights of a zamindar as well as of a man who occupies land or who is a landholder in cities. He stated that the suggestion of the honourable member from Hyderabad was to deprive agriculturists of land and to give it to non-agriculturists. May I know from him or those who represent Sind, how do they mark a line between an agriculturist and a non-agriculturist? Agriculturist people, I think, are those who are cultivating land, and those who also own the land. Zamindars themselves do not cultivate, but they always employ labourers. And that is a very big question to me and I should want more information on that point, how the Sind landlords make their case different from the presidency when it is clearly stated that the revenue code of the Government is the same for the whole of the presidency including Sind. Here, every time I see the discussion, the argument is brought that those who cultivate the land are the real proprietors of the land and Government have always to look to them, because it is no use getting satisfaction that the land is sold, but it must be the very keen desire of Government to see that every land that they give, if they can supply water, if they can remove all those five disabilities which are referred to in the Commissioner's letter, then they should certainly see that every acre which is given is cultivated by one who gets possession of such land, and not profiteered. For that, I will refer to the second page of the resolution, in which Government have recognised that the province is on the eve of momentous development. They have also said that the financing of perennial irrigation will raise a large number of problems which would have to be decided, and one of them will be the necessity or otherwise of fallows in perennial irrigated land. Now, this is a question, Sir, which shows that after the inception of the Sukkur Barrage scheme the question takes an absolutely different turn because of the perennial supply of water that was guaranteed to these portions of lands which were still unable to get water, and on that I believe the whole argument of the Government Members lies, and the argument that is brought on the other hand, by the zamindars is only under the universal belief that fallow forfeited land would be restored on payment of fallow assessment irrespective of the period for which assessment is not made.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Is the honourable member likely to take much longer ?

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : I will require a few minutes more, Sir.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : Sir, this whole difference of opinion has arisen only on one point and that point is clearly stated in the official members' report on page 22 in which it is said that the enhancement of value will be due almost entirely to the construction of the barrage and the introduction of an assured and, in most cases, a perennial supply. The question that has arisen is about the restoration and lien. About this, the resolution says " Upon this both the officials and non-officials are agreed ," vide paragraph 4 of the resolution. If they are agreed on the point. the real difference is as regards how the claim of restoration or lien should be put into force. Here I refer to page 7 of the Government Resolution, paragraph 9. Government come to one conclusion but act in quite a different way without giving any explanation. In paragraph 9 Government say :—

"Government are in entire accord with the view of the official members that a zamindar's claim in respect to the recently fallow-forfeited numbers is much stronger than his claim to numbers which were forfeited many years ago and that although the non-official members seek to dispute this view, there is no doubt that it is the generally accepted one and is recognised by current administrative practice. Among other considerations, it derives justification from the fact that a survey number which has remained fallow-forfeited over a long period of years owing to the omission of its former occupant to cultivate it or to pay the fallow assessment has involved Government in a proportionately larger loss of revenue. The line of distinction has usually been drawn at ten years. The official members would maintain this line ; the non-official members on the other hand would fix a flat rate for restoration irrespective of the age of the forfeiture."

The conclusion that Government come to is :—

" The Governor in Council while accepting the official view as correct, is prepared to go as far in the direction of meeting the non-official view as is compatible with the financial stability of the barrage scheme and the necessity of meeting other claims to concessionary grants."

I wish to know from Government, when they come to the conclusion that they are in entire accord with the official view, what leads them to go, in the financial interests of the barrage scheme, to meet the non-official view. I cannot for the life of me understand that. What is the non-official view and how it is compatible with the financial stability of the barrage scheme ? It will be found on page 53 of the report of the Fallow Rules Committee in paragraph 3 as under :—

" The benefit proposed to be given by the Government in meeting the non-official view is to all the classes of zamindars, zamindars who themselves believe that they are the proprietors of the land and the cultivators, the labourers who were brought to work on the land by the zamindars. "

Their theory is to keep these labourers who cultivate the land always as perpetual labourers and not as people who will acquire a permanent interest in the land when they themselves do nothing to make the land productive to them either by paying good market price to Government or working and cultivating the said land by themselves. They say in that report that the cultivators are mostly tenants at will and receive as their wages a share of the produce from the zamindar and owe nothing directly or indirectly to the State. By giving the concession. Government agree to the theory and Government want to make these people permanently "Haris" as they are called, vide paragraph 5, page 54. I cannot understand why they maintain one theory and practise another.

Then again, though Government have come to one conclusion ; they are making such terms to the zamindars as to water away the resources of this presidency.

In conclusion, what I wish to say is that, as this asset has become valuable on the credit of this presidency, Government should satisfy themselves and this House in future from time to time or that they must create the machinery which will give to this House all the information for every acre of land that is given as a matter of concession, both as to whom and why and after what enquiry the land is given or whether it is given under the assurance given by the Honourable the General Member in 1923. If that is done, and if they satisfy the House that there were good reasons for making the concessions, or that the considerations that led the Honourable the General Member to make this assurance have been fulfilled, then I think Government will be justified in giving these concessions. I would also like to know from Government what will be the maximum period which will be required to give away these $3\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs of acres under this resolution, and what will be the number of people who will be entitled to it, whether big landholders or small holders or only cultivators. My honourable friend Mr. Jairamdas has stated that there are only 2,000 zamindars who will be benefited ; I should like to know from Government how many persons will be benefited by the distribution of these $3\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs of acres at concession rates, which is, I believe, a gift to them. With these words I support the motion.

Khan Bahadur S. N. BHUTTO (Larkana District) : Sir, the case on behalf of the zamindars has been put before the Council very ably and fully by my honourable friend from Larkana (Mr. Khuhro). It is therefore that I do not desire to go into details regarding the merits or demerits of this question except this that I am forced by circumstances to put bluntly before the House, the interior object with which the present motion has been moved and the atmosphere that has been created in the House to-day as a result of it.

Sir, my surprise has no limit when I find that this motion which ought to have been moved by my honourable friend from Hyderabad (Mr. Jairamdas) has fallen to the lot of my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale. As it can apparently be seen from the eloquent speech which my honourable friend from Hyderabad made, he is really more anxious than any member of this Council to see that this motion is passed.

[Khan Bahadur S. N. Bhutto]

Sir, the fact really is that their anxiety is simply to keep the Mussalman agriculturists out from acquiring any land in the Barrage area at all. I will just explain to my honourable friends the facts. I do not blame them ; I see some of them, not knowing the circumstances, are shaking their heads but they will soon see through it. Sir, these 3½ lakhs of acres out of about 7 to 8 lakhs of acres which have been forfeited to Government by the Sind zamindars have been forfeited mostly by the Mussalman agriculturists, being hard up for funds they could not conveniently spare large sums of money to continuously pay fallan assessment for the land for which no water was available, and they allowed it to be forfeited to Government on the clear understanding given by the Government that when circumstances proved more favourable and water was available the zamindars had to pay only a single assessment, and the fallow lands would be restored back to them. Under these circumstances, the class of people to which my honourable friend from Hyderabad belongs, cannot expect to get much of the land out of these 3½ lakhs of acres, under the heading of fallow-forfeited land. Most of this land has been forfeited by the Mussalman agriculturists and must go back to them.

Now, Sir, we come to mohag, that is the frontage right, which Government have been pleased to recognise. Most of my friends, particularly Amil class in Sind, have acquired agricultural lands only recently. They now possess about 40 per cent. of the land in Sind, and a further more about 15 per cent. is mortgaged to them, but as it did not originally belong to them, and they have not acquired by fair means Government have decided to show this concession only to those agriculturists to whom these mohags originally belonged, if they are left with some of their holdings not otherwise. Now, I can give living instances in which, for instance, some of the Hindu zamindars in Jacobabad and Shahdadkot who 10 years back were not worth Rs. 10 a month now have lands worth a crore of rupees. All this land they have not acquired by open competition or by a market value but, by unfair and foul methods ; I need not go into these foul methods in details here as I have got no enough time at my disposal. The area, they possess now is about 40 per cent. but they are not the original owners of this land, and therefore Government perhaps will not recognise their right to mohag. Therefore, my honourable friends see it clearly that if this land is distributed, it will be distributed mostly among those people whose lands have been forfeited to Government and also mohag to those zamindars who have got some of the original Kabuli land left with them with frontage. Those zamindars who have sold away all their original land are not entitled to claim any mohag and therefore such mohag lands will be sold by the revenue officer of Lloyd Barrage by auction. Therefore, the attempt is made simply with a definite object that those people who can claim this privilege, by legitimate right, or whatever you may call it, should be deprived of it. If such an attempt were to be made in a place like Bombay, I think there would be a hundred and one threats to Government, of filing civil suits and all kinds of different threats. This explains so far these 3½ lakhs of acres are concerned.

[Khan Bahadur S. N. Bhutto]

Now, with regard to the remaining 11½ lakhs of acres which are to be sold by open auction or otherwise let us consider for a moment whether the Mussalman agriculturists stand any chance at all to acquire land in open auction or otherwise. Now, some of these so-called big zamindars who had got large holdings of land have been hard hit by the Mahomedan law of inheritance, and I hope before long Mussalmans will realise that they ought to have this law amended to some extent to at least guarantee their existence, otherwise, in a very short time most of these ancient families are sure to disappear. The distribution of land according to the Mahomedan law of inheritance has reduced a large number of zamindars to poverty, and from day to day, in the course of a few more years, I am afraid we shall see none of them existing.

Even those few that are at present existing we fully know have not got ready money at all. They will not be able to acquire the land in open auction unless they sell all their existing holdings. Let us consider the case of small khatedars and agriculturists for whom my honourable friend Mr. Jairamdas pretends to plead. Are they not in hopeless state ? Who is responsible for reducing these agriculturists and zamindars to this plight ? They are people belonging to the community of my honourable friend from Hyderabad, being capitalists they charge 36 per cent. interest on the advances they make and Muslim zamindars and khatedars, who are further forced to execute in writing cent per cent. more than what they actually received and thus are reduced to nothing in a short time of two or three years, when they cannot claim even their soul as their own. How is this class going to acquire land by open auction or even by easy instalments if they are expected to give securities or earnest money in advance, unless some special facilities are offered. So as the circumstances are they have very little chance to go in far Barrage lands.

The other point that was raised by my honourable friend is that 18 lakhs of acres of Kabuli land belonging to agriculturists in Sind is going to be benefited by this scheme. Quite so. It will be benefited but I would like to know whether the Government has introduced this Barrage scheme in the interest of these people ? Government is introducing these improvements in the interest of the state and the people of the province as a whole, even lands in Baluchistan are to receive the water—the province outside this presidency. Our Government is a very liberal and hospitable Government. (An Honourable Member : No.) Last year I made just the same remarks. I do not know what they have done. Originally they had provided schemes for irrigating lands in Baluchistan.....

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The Government of India as representing the Baluchistan administration they will pay the proportionate share of the cost of the project.

Khan Bahadur S. N. BHUTTO : I am glad that the Government of India has after all consented to it.

In the Deccan, Government have spent from 10 to 12 crores of rupees on irrigation. They expect no return from it. But they have incurred the expenditure in the interests of the people of Deccan from whom not even

[Khan Bahadur S. N. Bhutto]

2 per cent. they are getting as a return. In Sind they can at least expect to have a decent return on their investment. I think the same argument can be used that the landlords of Bombay who acquired property cheap and for nothing in begging when British Government came into India, ought to be deprived of their lands, because Bombay city has developed and the prices of land have gone up very much due to the blessings that British rule had bestowed on the people of Bombay city. How Bombay people will take it I would like to know ?

Now, I may say a word about the barrage and its work to progress. Before I submit my views a word of explanation is necessary to this honourable House from me. I understood from the discussion that we had the other day in this honourable House that the committee that was asked to go and inspect the working of the barrage was expected to submit its report. Unfortunately we members who were appointed were under the impression that no regular report was expected of us. Since the discussion we have prepared the report and I shall be able to hand over the report to the Honourable the General Member shortly. I consider that the value of Rs. 300 per acre is rather too much. I am afraid the dreams of the Honourable the revenue officer in charge of the Lloyd Barrage will not be realised. If a zamindar had to develop new lands of this nature and bring them into cultivation, dig wells, build villages, it will cost him Rs. 200 per acre at least in addition to what he has to pay for it to Government ; so to realize Rs. 300 for an acre is only a hope, though I believe, Government may realize Rs. 11 crores as shown in the original scheme if all things go right. The best rice lands are available at Rs. 300 per acre in Sind producing two crops annually. A month ago I purchased lands worth Rs. 60,000 and my cousin purchased lands worth Rs. 1,60,000 at Rs. 300 an acre. For these lands there is abundant water supply and there are all the other facilities available. I fail to understand how Rs. 300 per acre can be realised for undeveloped lands that are now lying fallow and will be commanded by the barrage water after its completion. As for the barrage works we will submit our report as stated above. For the present it is enough to say that we are quite satisfied with the work which is now in full progress. We have made certain suggestions for the consideration of the Chief Engineer and the Government. As far the excavation work is concerned, it is most satisfactory on right bank. But the work on the left bank is not equally satisfactory, although the cost on left bank is said to have gone comparatively very high in access. On the whole we are fully satisfied and the Government is very fortunate in having the honourable member Mr. Harrison as our Chief Engineer, who is doing his only best to save every pie he can safely do and is a most competent administrative Engineer ; We are equally fortunate to have most energetic, hardworking and competent Superintending Engineer in Mr. Musto, who is in charge of the Barrage itself, lent to be on the safe side and avoid all apprehensions, I think Government ought to secure the services of an expert, having previous practical knowledge of a gigantic scheme of the nature to advise the Barrage officers occasionally.

Mr. H. DOW : Sir, I should like to suggest in the very beginning that I think this interest in Sind on the part of non-Sindhi members is not a thing to which objection ought to be taken. Indeed, I myself think that it is a gratifying feature of this debate ; and I am sorry that any member should have in any way resented it. This problem of the Sukkur Barrage is a very difficult one ; and I think I can say not only on behalf of myself, but on behalf of every officer of Government who is connected with it in any way, that we are only too grateful for any help we can get in the solution of this problem from any quarter of the House and if any suggestions are made we are willing and anxious to consider them, in whatever spirit they are made. We are willing to get all the help we can, even from people who have no desire to help us : and I believe that in this matter there is no one in this House of whom that can be said. To a very large extent the interest which is taken by the Presidency members is, I think, a repercussion from the affairs of the Development Department. We have all learned that it is impossible for these big schemes to be undertaken in one part of the presidency and for the rest of the presidency to take no interest in them. The fact that we have now to pay year by year a large subvention from general revenues to meet losses on the Development Department sufficiently indicates that such schemes are the business not only of the local area concerned but of every member in this House. And I think the Sindhi members particularly should show their gratitude in kind for this interest in Sind. In a very few years we shall be seriously considering the question of making Deccan irrigation pay, and I have no doubt that when my honourable friend from Satara realises the necessity of spending more money both in maintenance and in development of the Deccan canal area, he will welcome the co-operation of the Sindhi members in helping him to make Deccan irrigation pay and to see that the landlords who are at present getting away with the unearned increment shall be made to pay their due share, so that Deccan irrigation will cease to be maintained for the benefit of a few landlords at the expense of the rest of the presidency.

Now, to take first of all the points which have been made by some of the previous speakers. There were two principal points made by the honourable member from Satara. The first was to the effect that this so-called promise of 3½ lakhs of acres to local zamindars was not really a promise to which Government stood committed, but that it was in fact only a suggestion for future consideration. Well, Sir, the actual words of the Honourable Sir Chimanlal Setalvad have been read out by more than one speaker, and it seems to me that they were sufficiently clear. It is not an uncommon thing in this House for a motion to be withdrawn on an assurance given by an Honourable Member of Government ; it is not at all an uncommon thing for an Honourable Member of Government in the course of his speech to make a promise which certainly has a great effect on the way in which members on the other side of the House vote. And it seems to me to be a dangerous principle for the honourable member from Satara to inculcate that promises of this kind can be lightly broken. Now, in this case, the matter stands on an even firmer footing. It is now nearly five years since this undertaking was given. From that time down to to-day I have never heard any member of this House, or any member in Sind or out of Sind at any public meeting, say that this promise ought not to be kept; and in fact the statement has been repeated with authority on more than one occasion. I have not looked up any of these references, but I do happen to have with me a speech which was made by His Excellency the Governor to the Sind Muhammadan Association two years after the promise was given by Sir Chimanlal Setalvad in this House. This is a speech which was made to a responsible public body and was printed in extenso in all the leading newspapers of the province. His Excellency stated then quite categorically:

"In our proposals for the disposal of land in the Barrage area, we have already made provision, which I think may be regarded as generous, for the existing zamindars within the area. Three and a half lakhs of acres are to be reserved for them at a concession rate."

So the statement made in the Legislative Council does not stand alone. It has been before the public for at least four years and it has never received any serious hostile criticism before to-day, and I think that Government stand definitely committed in this matter.

The other point made by the honourable member from Satara was with reference to immediate sales. His point was, I think, that we are at present undertaking this expenditure and we are paying interest on it; and that, as far as possible, we ought to meet the annual expenditure on the actual execution of the project by the receipts from the sale of land. Well, Sir, I think that is a very sensible suggestion if it can be carried out. I have given a great deal of thought to this matter and I have come to this conclusion: that, if you sell land to-day, so many years before water is ready on the Barrage, there is not the slightest doubt that the prices obtained will be very much lower than they would be if you waited a few years until water is ready. Honourable members from the Presidency must remember that irrigation in Sind is a very different thing from irrigation in the rest of the presidency. In Sind without irrigation you can expect no crop at all. And people who have not seen a good canal in operation cannot understand the difference it is going to make. By waiting for two or three years you will get far better prices for land. I am quite confident that when water is flowing it will be possible to get much more than the price which could be hoped for to-day with interest to date on that price. Therefore, it would be thoroughly bad business to sell these lands so long in advance, before the people can have any true idea of the profits which successful agriculture under the Barrage will make possible.

I come now to one or two points made by the honourable member for Hyderabad. He gave us some figures which showed that large zamindars held a great part of the land in Sind. That is perfectly true, and I believe those figures are roughly correct. But statistics can be arranged in various ways, and that he told the House was only a part of the truth. It is also true that Sind is very largely a country of small zamindars. There are very large numbers of zamindars in Sind whose holdings are less than five acres; something like 32 per cent. is the figure under 5 acres. The number of zamindars having holdings under 25 acres is about 75 per cent. of the whole number of zamindars in Sind. Now, I admit that the question of the actual size of the holdings of the few zamindars who have more than 500 acres is a very important one. But what was the honourable member's practical suggestion? Was it that we should expropriate these large zamindars? (An honourable member: No.) I do not think that was what he meant, but he created an impression—it may have been unintentional—that the whole of the benefit, or the greater part of the benefit, of this scheme was deliberately designed to increase further the prosperity of the bigger zamindar, and that nothing was proposed to be done for the small man.

I can assure honourable members that it is not so. The presence of big zamindars in Sind is very largely due to historical causes, and it is no use talking about this scheme, as if we were starting with an absolutely a clean slate. The Punjab irrigation schemes have usually been mainly concerned with the development of large areas of waste land: the object has been to develop that waste land as profitably as possible for the benefits of the people of the Punjab as a whole. In Sind it is quite a different problem. No where else in India has there ever been devised a scheme of this magnitude, which has been undertaken primarily for the benefit of the people already holding land inside in that area, both small and big zamindars.

My honourable friend from Hyderabad said that in the first instance the land in the Barrage should be given to the depressed classes. He has used that word "depressed classes" somewhat loosely and I think it is a pity that in doing so, he gave rise to apprehensions on the part of the Mussalman members of this House, which I do not think he intended to arouse. These so called depressed classes—Kolis, Bhils, and Munghwars—come from Cutch and Rajputana. These people are all Hindus and come from parts of the country which are poorer still than Sind. They form an important part of the immigrant population by which Sind is recruited year by year. It is rather unfortunate that my honourable friend forgot to mention the largest class of people from outside who come to reinforce the population of Sind, a class equally poor and deserving who come down from the hills of Baluchistan. The largest section of people by which the population of Sind is recruited from outside is the Mussalman Baluchis, who come down from Baluchistan. It was therefore, perhaps, natural that some honourable members thought that by his omission the honourable member from Hyderabad intended to convey that he wanted to give the land only to Hindus....

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DAULATRAM: What I said was that those Mussalmans, who are merely agriculturist labourers—and Mussalmans from Baluchistan are included in this—should be given preference to those who are already landholders.

Mr. H. DOW: The honourable member mentioned two distinct classes. The agriculturist labourers were his second class. I am now discussin his first class, which was that of immigrants. In this class he included only the Kolis, Bhils and Menghwars, who are not Mussalmans but are Hindus. Now I submit, Sir, that this question cannot be a Hindu-Moslem question. I would, therefore, draw the attention of this House to the fact that this Government has no intention at all to import such considerations into this matter.

With regard to making these people into colonists we have to remember that this scheme has to be financed and a certain amount of money must be raised from colonisation operations. I think the honourable members will realise that these so-called depressed classes, which are largely men from the cities, are not the best material for starting colonies. I have got some little experience in this matter, when I was working on the Jamrao Canal in the earlier years of my service. When the Jamrao was colonised, a certain number of these depressed classes were settled there. These colonists had nothing to pay for their land on the Jamrao. The land was given to them absolutely free of charge. In spite of this fact, most of the people were perpetually in debt and eventually the greater part of their holdings had to be cancelled. Even after many years' experience they were unable to maintain themselves as cultivators, simply because they were not used to that kind of work. Now to ask Government to finance the Sukkur Barrage mainly by grants to this class is clearly asking for something which is quite impossible. I do not say it is impossible that these people can be made good cultivators. That may be an ideal to which we may aim, but we cannot start on a large scale with anything of the kind.

I would now like to refer to one or two points raised by the honourable member from Kaira. I always listen with great attention to speeches from him. If you want to know the worst about anything, you can always rely on getting it from the honourable member from Kaira. I have heard him make speeches for the last eight years, and I have never heard him do anything but draw the gloomiest pictures of the failures of the past, and make the saddest prognosis of everything that is to happen in the future. He has told us he has no faith in the scheme; he has also no hope; but perhaps he will have a little charity. It does not surprise me that he suspects the scheme may not be successful, because he knows nothing about it. He had never been to Sind. I think Bacon says somewhere: "Nothing makes a man suspect much more than to know little." At the same time I should like to say much of his criticisms as were based on his own experience elsewhere were valuable, and in pointing out the fact that my honourable friend has no personal acquaintance with Sind, I hope he will not think that I am making a remark derogatory to him in any way.

He spoke of the necessity of a detailed classification of the quality of the land. Government has considered time and again this very question. It is not possible to make a detailed soil survey except at a very great cost, because the kind and quality of land in Sind vary so much within a small area, and it is very difficult to assess the quality of the land merely from looking at it. Although he has much inherited experience in regard to estimating the quality of land, a Sind zamindar will seldom give his considered opinion about the quality of land unless he is allowed to dig pits in this land and see the quality of the various layers of the soil which compose it. In Sind the soil is alluvial and has been deposited by the river in successive layers over a long period of years and these successive deposits vary much in character and composition. It is very difficult, indeed, impossible, to make an absolutely correct valuation of this land. But I may say,—and I think the honourable member does not know this,—that such soil survey as was possible has been made, and it was carried out from about 1917 to 1918 with a view to ascertain the approximate quality of the land and the amount of Government land that was available. So that we have this rough classification of land. We know that it is not a very accurate classification and I should not be at all perturbed by having it pointed out to me that some of the land which is classified as being very good is really not good or is only moderately good, or that some of the land which is classified as not good or moderately good is really very good. But what we could do with the staff and the skill that we have available in this matter has been done.

The honourable member has also pointed out that we should want very much more labour and very many more men on the land when the scheme comes into operation. Well, we count on a considerable increase of population no doubt. But I think the honourable member perhaps exaggerated that. Much of the land at present is lift land, which requires a great deal of labour, both of men and for bullocks, to cultivate a very small area. Now, this land is being turned into flow land, and every zamindar here knows perfectly well that with the same amount of labour and bullocks he can cultivate a very much larger of flow area than he can cultivate of lift. Also, we do not expect that immediately the water begins to flow in the barrage canals, the whole of Sind is going to blossom as the rose. The highest intensity of cultivation is a thing which will be worked up to over twenty or thirty years, and the estimates that have been made take that into consideration. There is, even now under present conditions in Sind, a very large possibility of extension of cultivation with the existing material in men and bullocks if only there is a good inundation. You will find cultivation in the same talukas varying tremendously from year to year without any great immigration into the taluka. Simply let there be a difference in the set of the river, increasing the flow of a canal, and you will easily double the cultivation in a taluka by merely getting a good inundation instead of a bad. Under the Barrage you are going to have these conditions of a good inundation perpetuated all over the area. So that, quite apart from any increase of population, a very large increase in cultivation can immediately and very reasonably be looked for.

The honourable member from Bombay asked me to give an answer just on one point. I think he wanted to know the period which would be occupied in giving out these 3½ lakhs of acres. Well, that is very largely a financial question ; but it is partly a question of administration. From the financial point of view, since Government have not definitely stated that they would give these 3½ lakhs of acres at a definite price of Rs. 15 an acre, it is quite obvious that the sooner the Government sells this land and gets the money, the larger the return that Government will receive, because it is much better that Government should have Rs. 15 in its pocket to-day than it should have Rs. 15 in its pockets in five years' time. So that, as far as possible, I shall try to get that money in as quickly as possible. But there are various difficulties in the way. In the first instance, it will be some years before water is available, and it is not much use a zamindar taking up additional land,—fallow forfeited land,—by paying Rs. 15 an acre for it two or three years before he has any hope of cultivating it. I am already in correspondence with the Chief Engineer,—not the Chief Engineer, Barrage, but the Chief Engineer in Sind,—on this matter, and with regard to lift land, I am pleased to say the Chief Enginner has already agreed to my giving out this land at once. With regard to flow land, various difficulties arise with other zamindars, who fear that by giving out this land the supply of water for their land will be curtailed. But these questions are being gone into now with the Irrigation Department, and the general principle will be to give out that land as quickly as possible, if zamindars are willing to take it up.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : On a point of information. Is the Rs. 15 the average price or the fixed price for every acre sold ?

Mr. H. DOW : Rs. 15 is not an average price ; it is the actual price per acre at which these fallow lands are to be restored or these mohag lands are to be given.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Irrespective of quality ?

Mr. H. DOW : Irrespective of quality.

Then, the honourable member Khan Bahadur Bhutto said that all the rest of the land would be sold by public auction to the highest bidder. There is no authority for making that statement. It is quite premature. Government, as the honourable House is aware, have not yet formulated their definite policy for disposing of the rest of the land. Probably a good deal of land will be sold by public auction, but that does not by any means dispose of the whole of the rest of the 15 lakhs of acres. He also seemed apprehensive that, even though liberal instalments were allowed, it would still be quite impossible for any of the Mussalman zamindars in Sind to take up land. I think I can reassure him on that point. He said they could have no security to give, and therefore they could not take up the land. It must be quite clear, I think, to honourable members that the land itself is a valuable security and, if a system of instalments is sanctioned, the zamindar would certainly have to pay an initial instalment, and if he did not pay up further instalments, then the land would be forfeited. So, there is really no question of his not being able to produce sufficient security. This is a system with which all Revenue officials in Sind are already familiar.

[Mr. H. Dow]

As regards the rates paid in compensation for land acquired, I was rather pleased to hear reference made to this because it is a point on which otherwise I should have forgotten to touch at all. I am at present responsible for acquiring the land in which the canals are dug, and that, in a scheme of this size, comes to a very large area. For some three or four years the Revenue Officer has had a large staff working under his control and his acquisition officers have been acquiring this land. There has been a certain amount of public criticism of his activities and there has been in the past some little criticism in this House. All this criticism has been devoted to showing that the Revenue Officer is "snatching away" the lands of these poor agriculturists and giving them practically nothing in return. Well, Sir, there have been many thousands of these cases, but in the very few references that have been made to courts, generally the awards have been upheld; but the point I wish to invite attention to is that the average price being paid by the Revenue Officer for lands which at present have the admittedly unsatisfactory system of irrigation which the Barrage scheme is to improve, is about Rs. 120 an acre. Now, that in itself is some indication to the honourable members opposite, I hope, of the value that we may expect these lands to acquire when, instead of being able to be cultivated once every three years, they will be able to be cultivated in every one of those three years; when, instead of not knowing when he is going to get water or whether he is going to get it at all, the zamindar is going to know from year to year that water is available all the year round; and when he can make up his mind a long time ahead whether he will cultivate a particular field, the very date he will begin to sow, and what he will sow. It seems to me that this fact disposes at any rate of the contention that we are over-valuing our lands for the purpose of estimating.

As for the cases of five rupees and ten rupees to which the honourable member referred, the honourable member is well aware that those lands to which he refers are lands which have never been cultivated or at any rate have not been cultivated for at least ten years and have at present, apart from the barrage, no value at all because they can produce nothing: and purely agricultural land, in Sind as elsewhere, as honourable members are aware, is worth nothing if it produces nothing. This land, it is perfectly true, is sometimes quite good land and in future it will fetch large prices. Now, when we remember that only a few gunthas are usually acquired from an individual zamindar, it seems to me that he has not much of a grievance when he says "you are not giving the full price for this land." Even if it were true, I should think it is not much of a grievance because all the rest of his land—may be 500 acres—will increase enormously in value as the result of this canal going along his land. He has 500 acres of land now worth ten rupees an acre and it is going to be worth perhaps two hundred rupees an acre, and, therefore, it seems to me no great hardship that he should be asked to give up one acre merely for the purpose of bringing the life-giving water to the rest of his land which at present is giving him no return at all.

[Mr. H. Dow]

Now, I come to a few general remarks on the subject of the revenue position with regard to this barrage. There are two very distinct schools of thought, and I do not suppose that there is in this House any member who belongs to either school in its extreme form. There is a certain school that says "Here is a very valuable property in Sind; let us get the uttermost farthing out of these lands; let us bring in all the revenue we can and if we find that we make a handsome profit, it will go to relieve taxation in the Presidency and Sind as a whole." There is a certain school—there is much to be said for it—which acts on the principle that Government has this valuable property and they should make everything they can out of it. That seems to me to leave out of consideration the fact that we are not, as I said before, starting with an absolutely clean slate. We must take account of the history of Sind and its people. There are claims of local landholders—whether legal or equitable—over large areas of this land; and I think that the fact that these people have been always generously treated in the past does raise a certain legitimate expectation that they will be also generously treated in the future. Government has already agreed to give 3½ lakhs of acres to people who have had land which has been fallow-forfeited and to people who have well-defined equitable claims to get land in their frontage, and I do not think it is possible, having regard to the history of Sind and the system of irrigation which we have at present, to get away from the fact that it is necessary, from every point of view, to show a good deal of consideration to people who are already settled in the province. Government cannot regard its business as a mere business of buying and selling to the highest bidder. The business of a shepherd is not merely to shear his sheep but to feed them, to look after them; and the Sindhi has, I think, a very legitimate expectation that this great scheme, which is being undertaken in his province will be undertaken largely for his benefit, not for the benefit of any particular community in Sind but to advance the general prosperity of Sind as a whole.

Then, we have the other extreme school, which again I do not think is represented by any one even in Sind, which will say "Let us throw away all this land for nothing; let us give it to local zamindars, or give it to anybody for next to nothing; let the whole thing be a loss and let the loss fall on the general revenues of the Presidency as a whole." These are two extreme cases and you will see at once that between those two extremes, there is room for an infinity of schemes, and the examination of these is a task which will take a long time. But it is perhaps desirable that I should say a little, in general terms, of the way in which lands will be disposed of. The matter of concessionary grants has already been referred to at considerable length.

As regards peasant grants, there is no doubt that the peasant who not only owns his own land but who is a good cultivator is a source of strength both to the community and the State, and Government have everything to gain from encouraging peasant cultivation in Sind on the right lines, but there is no point in encouraging anybody but the right cultivators. I am afraid that some people think that the quality of cultivation in Sind is very bad and that the only way to improve cultivation in Sind is to get people from outside to show the Sindhi how to cultivate, and, in fact, to colonise the land wholly from people outside the province. I do not think that is true. If you go to Jacobabad district, you will find people growing wheat as skilfully as it is grown in any part of the world. You may go to Hala and you will find people who have very little to learn from people in any part of the world as regards cotton cultivation. You may go to Larkana and you will find rice-growers who can give points to other rice-growers in India or outside Yet, it does remain true that the general level of cultivation in Sind is not very high, and I think the explanation is this, that the river Indus dominates the whole situation ; the river is very wayward and capricious, and nobody knows from year to year what it is going to do. Wherever you get more or less stable conditions, you will find that the cultivation is better than elsewhere in Sind. It is very little use, under present conditions in Sind, when the zamindar does not know at the beginning of the season when he is going to get the water or whether he is going to get the water at all, to go to him and tell him that he should prepare his seed properly, or that he should spend a long time getting his soil properly tilled. It is giving him advice which he is very often not in a position to take. For when the water comes, whether his land is as ready as he would like is to be or not, he knows he must put in his seed at once or run the risk of the water going down and not being able to cultivate at all. It is very natural, under these conditions, that land should not be properly prepared for cultivation and that the cultivation should in consequence be bad. But cultivation where these conditions do not apply is very much better, and I do not think that it is an unreasonable hope that the Sind zamindar, when he finds, under the Barrage, that he has a stable water supply, will rise to the opportunities which he has never had before, and that he will improve his cultivation. And I think in planting peasant colonists in Sind that we must first of all see that we get a nucleus of people from Sind who are good cultivators, people who have cultivated well, perhaps as haris for zamindars, or as small peasant colonists elsewhere, and we must get these people settled on the land. It is no use simply choosing people who have no knowledge of cultivation, simply because they are poor people and we want to make them rich. We should not make them rich, we should simply reduce them to misery if we tried to start peasant colonies with such people.

In connection with this, I might perhaps touch on a matter which is a little controversial. There has been a good deal of newspaper criticism about the necessity of giving land to educated men and setting them up as peasant colonists. I spoke at some length on this question before the Royal Commission on Agriculture, and I should like to say a word on it. This is an ideal with which I am in sympathy. During the time that I have been in Sind, I have seen considerable alteration in the attitude of the educated young men with regard to avocations which are not purely clerical. Seventeen years ago, when I went to Sind, these people would not take up trade. Now you will find these educated young men who could not find opportunities in the services have taken to trade, and I do not think it is impossible to hope that they will take to agriculture in the same way ; but I do want to add that the latch is on their side of the door. There are three years before land will be ready for cultivation, and it is for them to qualify themselves in the meantime by learning something about agriculture. There is plenty of opportunity for them to work as haris to zamindars. The zamindars are only too anxious to get haris who will work for them. There is great scarcity of haris in some parts, and I think these " educated young men " have now the opportunity of really getting some practical knowledge of agriculture. It is no use settling them on the land, unless they do first get practical knowledge of agriculture and do give an earnest of their sincerity and willingness to work. I do not think there is any place in this scheme for setting up a new class of people, who are going to be merely landlords living on the rent of the land, but for people who are willing to work with their hands, I think there is room on the Barrage.

Then, as regards the policy of auctions, I hope honourable members will see that it is impossible, at this stage, to give a detailed plan of sales. If we are going to take the view of what I have called " the uttermost farthing school," and intend merely to make as much profit out of the Barrage as we can, then there is not the slightest doubt in my mind that it is perfectly easy to make a return of 20 per cent. or more than 20 per cent. on our capital, even though my honourable friend the Chief Engineer's estimates go up by 20 per cent. That is, as I say, if I am given a free hand, and can dispose of this land without consideration of the effect on the people of Sind. Now, I shall not be given a free hand ; I do not expect to be given a free hand, and I think it is quite wrong of the House to take the view that a free hand should be given. There is no doubt that if you take the extreme view, that all you have to do is to make as much money out of the scheme as you can, the scheme can be made to pay very handsomely indeed. There is equally no doubt that, if you take the other view, that you should give away land for nothing, that you should give everything for nothing, you can make a dead loss on it; you can make a very great loss. And so, I think honourable members on the other side will see that any detailed plan of sales must take account of the expenditure which we are going to incur, and that this policy of Government must, to a very large extent, be moulded by the necessities of the financial situation. Government must see that this scheme pays for itself, and I think that that can be done very easily, and yet entail no hardship on the people of Sind, but instead of entailing hardship on them confer a great deal of benefit on all classes in the province. I do not think that it will be necessary to sell, as my honourable friend from Larkana said, the whole of the land by open auction. There will be certainly a great deal of land in Sind which, while it is not in large enough blocks to sell to outsiders, will be in very great demand by the people in the locality, and that, I think, gives scope for limited auctions amongst people in places where it might be impolitic to introduce strangers. A good deal of the land, I think, in the early stages may more profitably be leased. After all, these sales must even from the administrative point of view, be spread over a great many years. It is not a practical proposition to expect one or two Government officers to sell anything like a million and a half of acres of land in a few years; it must be spread over a great many years. I would like to draw the attention of the House to the fact that this in itself is a great margin of safety—the fact that you will for 20 or 30 years still have large areas of land in hand which can, if necessary, by a change in the policy of Government, be made to produce a larger sum than at present it seems necessary to produce.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Sir, the honourable mover has brought in this cut to invite general discussion on the policy of Government with regard to the Sukkur Barrage. As regards this both sides of the House have put in their views and it is now for Government to come to a decision. Under head 55 it is not only that there is the barrage but there are other irrigation works which are charged to capital. Out of the total cost of Rs. 2,75,00,000 nearly 20 lakhs of rupees are spent on irrigation works in the Deccan and Gujarat. Though only 20 lakhs of rupees are to be spent still these works are brought under the major head 55. The sum to be spent towards this from the ordinary revenue amounts nearly to Rs. 20,00,000. We have to pay Rs. 10,00,000 from the ordinary revenue and Rs. 6,85,000 from the general balances. To this is to be added Rs. 1,25,000 which is kept apart in 34, Agriculture and which is for the development of Barrage agriculture. So nearly the whole sum that is spent on the Deccan and Gujarat irrigation works is the sum we are spending from the ordinary revenue and general balances. The Deccan and Gujarat are to be charged with the interest on their works which they can easily have done from their ordinary revenue. Besides this year there is an additional cost on their works and that is the pension charge. I may point out that this year only the expenditure on pension charges is increased from 9 per cent. to 14 per cent. It is not known why this increase is made. Besides these figures of pension charges is not so small as it may appear. Last year Rs. 4,00,000 were spent on this head and this year we find that Rs. 8,00,000 is provided. But we are not even given to understand under what orders this increase has been made, who made it and what led to this increase. The other departments of the Public Works Department are not charged so much pension charges. Why this irrigation department is made to pay this increased rate of pension? I do not know why this should have been made. But it has always been contended that the Public Works Department has not been divided so exactly that a particular portion can be put down to a particular department. It is not known why the pension charges has been increased; but there is this circumstance that a large sum is spent on the Sukkur Barrage and it is because of that that the pension scale has been increased. I hope the Honourable the General Member will enlighten the House on this point. These pension charges have made the budget figures alter so largely that in the budget estimate for 1927-28 a provision of Rs. 6 lakhs nearly was made for tools and plants and in the Revised budget we find that a provision of Rs. 1,87,000 is made. When there is an excess in works why the provision under tools and plants should have been decreased ? For the payment of the pension charges this sum has been decreased. From the year 1926-27 to 1928-29 there is increase of work but still there is a decrease in plants and tools. All this is to meet the charges on pension.

I wish to point out one thing more. The Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government referred to unproductive irrigation works in the Deccan. I will show what productive and unproductive irrigation work means. The Sukkur Barrage is taken as a productive work, because it is stated that it will yield sufficient income within ten years after its completion. I will quote the instance of the Krishna Canal in the Deccan and Gujarat circle which is called unproductive. Uptill now the total interest paid on the Krishna Canal project is Rs. 12,74,000 and I may tell you, Sir, that the total charges on the project up to the end of 1925-26 are Rs. 9,44,789. The original cost is Rs. 9,44,000 while the interest that has been actually paid after deducting the ordinary expenses is Rs. 12,74,000. This is what is called unproductive while works that are before us are called productive because we have to spend crores of rupees over them.

There is other thing. Out of the money so spent under different heads there is something more spent under 41, Civil, under High Commissioner in England chargeable to this head. Had it been charged the total amount that has been spent on this particular work would have been clear. Now, I understand what the previous speaker said that the Deccan and Gujarat will get their fair share when the time comes. I hope the precarious rainfall and scarcity that visits these districts will draw the attention of Government to this at an early date.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order.

Question again proposed:

"Reduce by Rs. 10,000,000,—Total Demand—Rs. 2,61,43,000."

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI: Sir, there is no quorum.

(The bell was rung.) (After a recount the House had full quorum.)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: There is a quorum. There is one important matter which I have to bring to the notice of the honourable members before they go on with the debate. I suppose the House is aware that discussion under this head began day before yesterday, a few minutes after one. According to Rules, as every honourable member knows, the debate under a head has to stop after two days. A day is a working day, which means 4½ hours, so that nine hours are to be taken for the debate. Therefore, the discussion over this demand can go on up to quarter past twelve. I see several honourable members wishing to speak. They must, in consideration of the number of speakers, limit their remarks to a very few minutes, hardly more than ten minutes.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, I had no mind to take part in this discussion, as I am one of those in this honourable House who does not know much about the agricultural conditions in Sind. But after listening to the able and instructive speech of the honourable member Mr. Dow for which he deserves congratulations of the House, I wish to say a few words. The honourable member Mr. Dow has advocated the cause of the Sukkur Barrage with admirable ability. Throughout his speech he showed optimism, and he even went to the length of saying that if the disposal of the whole area of land which is to be brought under the Sukkur Barrage were to be left to his discretion he would be able to realise 20 per cent. on the capital outlay. I hope, Sir, that this is not a prospectus issued by a joint stock company promoter. Sir, in taking into consideration the value of the land several other factors have to be taken into consideration. As one connected with agriculture, though not in Sind, yet in another part of the presidency, I know something about this. An agriculturist, before he takes up a piece of land, has not only to take into consideration the purchase value of the land but also other capital outlay which he will have to incur for preparing that land for cultivation. Besides the purchase value of the land, he will have to take into consideration several other things, such as manure, labour, preparing the waste land fit for cultivation, assessment, etc., etc. That will come to about Rs. 40 per acre. Now, the honourable member Mr. Dow says that the average value of land in Sind is about Rs. 120 per acre at present, but that it will be increased tremendously after the construction of the Sukkur Barrage is completed. The honourable member Khan Bahadur Bhutto, who is a big zamindar in Sind and is therefore supposed to know the value of land in that part of the country, says that the value of most of the land is Rs. 10 or Rs. 15 per acre. It is difficult to know which is the truth. Well, apart from that, my point is this: that all these 15 lakhs of acres will not be put into cultivation so easily as has been anticipated. Much depends on the supply of labour and capital. Every honourable member knows that there are hundreds and thousands of acres in other parts of the country lying idle, although they are as fertile as Sind land, and they are not cultivated on account of want of labour and capital. My honourable friend Rao Saheb Desai was I think right in a sense when he said that it would not be possible to realise as much as is anticipated from sales of land. All this agricultural land cannot be auctioned and sold at once. The price of agricultural land, as that of anything else, depends on supply and demand. Land is not like gold or diamond, which is easily marketable and yet its value also depends on demand and supply. The Union of South Africa had to impose restrictions on the output of diamonds by keeping the diggings of diamonds into their own hands, because even diamonds are governed in their value by supply and demand. Therefore, the land cannot be sold as we anticipate. These Government officers take the average of the value of five or ten acres sold in the locality and if they find that the value, say, is Rs. 200 per acre they apply the average of Rs. 200 so found, to the whole lot of 15 lakhs of acres and expect to dispose of the whole lot at this price. But when you have to sell 15 lakhs of acres, it will be very difficult to realise the average price based on the sale of a few acres of land. We have been told that already 14 crores of rupees have been spent on irrigation works in Sind, in addition to the amount spent on the Sukkur Barrage project. I do not know what return Government get for the former outlay. It was stated here by one honourable member yesterday that the population in Sind is 75 per square mile whereas that of Punjab is 245 per square mile. It is therefore obvious that the population in Sind is very thin and under these circumstances it will not be possible to get labour sufficient to have the land cultivated. You know, Sir, that the cultivation of land largely depends on labour not only in India, but in any part of the world. If you just look at South Africa or Australia, what do we find? We find that although there are people richer than in Sind, a large number of acres of land there better in fertility than that of Sind have been lying idle. And what is the reason for that? The reason is that they cannot develop the land on account of want of labour. I personally do not know the situation in Sind, but I have heard one remark made yesterday in this House by one of my honourable friends that the agriculturists in some cases have to pay 36 per cent. interest to a savakar. If that is the case, I think the agriculturists in Sind must be very poor, and it will be difficult for them to raise money to take up this land. If, on the other hand, the capitalists come forward for the purchase of land it is possible. But I think that they are not fools to invest their capital in a land without any sufficient return. So, I submit, Sir, that I am not so optimistic as my honourable friend, Mr. Dow, is about the realization of the value of land. It has also been stated by him that "we shall have to spread over the disposal of the land for 30 years." I do not understand that argument. The capital outlay will be about 20 crores on this project, the interest charges will, no doubt, come to about 12 to 15 crores. So by the completion of this project the total outlay on it will be about 32 to 35 crores and the return that has to be realised will have to be for this amount.

[Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik]

We are told, Sir, that the then Honourable the General Member and the head of the presidency had made a solemn declaration about granting 3½ lakhs of fallow-foreited land at concessionary rates and they cannot go back on that declaration. I submit, Sir, that we know how these declarations are made by Government. I doubt whether these are always made for observance. Government make declarations which are observed by them when they suit their purpose, otherwise instances are found when these are not observed. Anyhow, supposing this declaration was made by Government, we do not find anything stated in it about the value of land to be given away. Nothing has been stated whether the value of land will be charged at Rs. 15 per acre or Rs. 20 per acre. No definite figure has been stated there. The honourable member Mr. Dow told us that the average value of the land is Rs. 120 per acre. So, if Government want to give them at a concession rate, they may give them the concession of, say, 50 per cent., that is to say, Government should charge them Rs. 60 per acre of land. But, on no account, the land should be given away at the rate of 12½ per cent. of the real value of the land.

Now, Sir, we also find stated in this House that on the Deccan Irrigation schemes an unproductive expenditure of Rs. 50 lakhs has to be incurred every year. My honourable friend Mr. Dow referred to an unearned increment on this item. But I find that the sugarcane area in Deccan is charged at the rate of 40 to 45 rupees per acre for irrigation purposes. Moreover, the agriculture of sugarcane is not an unearned increment as it requires great deal of labour and capital with little or no return. Hundreds of acres, which were formerly under sugarcane cultivation, have now turned into dry crop cultivation in Gujarat.

When on this subject, I would remind this House that a large expenditure has been incurred for the purpose of irrigation in Sind and the Deccan, but nothing has been done in this respect for Gujarat. The population in Gujarat is very thick. In Gujarat we find that the average holding per head is 1·4, in Deccan it is 2·4 and in Sind 2·5. So, it can be easily seen that if anybody is in need of irrigation, it is the agriculturists of Gujarat, who stand in the greatest need of intensive farming and greater yield. Although I brought this fact to the notice of Government last year, I find that nothing has been done so far. I was then assured that Government has under consideration a scheme for Gujarat and it will be taken up and surveyed as soon as possible. But when I turned the pages of the budget, I find that nothing has been provided for in connection with the irrigation work in Gujarat. What we find is that there is a small item for irrigation in Ahmedabad only. I think that if there is any field for greater activities now in this connection, it is the Gujarat. But it is most surprising that the Gujarat has been neglected so far.

I am sorry that the Honourable the General Member is not present here. Otherwise I would have liked to bring to his notice some facts. In the Olpad taluka in the Surat District, a great necessity for water-courses (kahdas), not canals, is felt. Hundreds of acres of land have been neglected on account of this necessity, as water-logged area An application has been sent to the Honourable the General Member in this matter from the people of Anbheta and others but to no result as far as I know. There are water-courses in the Olpad taluka which require great repairs, and in order to carry out these proposals Government should allot funds and carry out the works without losing time.

Coming to the main subject, Sir, I say that Government will reconsider their decision about granting this 350 thousand of acres of land at concession rates. If they say that a solemn declaration has been made, there is no difficulty in observing that. We have no objection for that. But what we want is that Government should not fix the concession rates so low as 12½ per cent. of the total value, but they should at least fix them at 50 per cent. or thereabout.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, one important factor that has to be borne in mind is that the unearned increment is not allowed by the State to be wholly appropriated by the people. When the value of land or some property rises by no effort on the part of the persons occupying it but increases on account of the action taken by the State, then the State has a right to a portion of the unearned increment. This principle is incorporated in the town planning schemes. There also, if by having roads and having other facilities the value of land increases in value, then 50 per cent. of the unearned increment is taken from the owners of the land or property which has appreciated in value on account of that particular scheme. Here, we have been told that about 18 lakhs of acres of land which are already in the possession of zamindars will appreciate in value on account of the Sukkur Barrage. The general taxpayer is financing the scheme of the Sukkur Barrage by sinking crores and crores of rupees, and on account of this work undertaken by Government the value of these 18 lakhs of acres will appreciate by the action taken by Government. And, therefore, just as in the other schemes it is right for Government to take a portion of this unearned increment brought into being by this scheme. If they do not take this unearned increment, then they will be bringing the general taxpayer to grief, because ultimately the scheme will be unproductive. Therefore when these 18 lakhs of acres of land will appreciate in value by the Sukkur Barrage, which has been financed by the general taxpayer, when the interest on that is paid by the general taxpayer and when towards the financing of that scheme the general taxpayer is made to pay Rs. 10 lakhs from the very inception of the scheme to make the scheme productive, under these circumstances, it is necessary that this unearned increment should not be wholly given away to the zamindars of Sind without the State taking a portion of the unearned increment for themselves.

There is also another thing that is to be borne in mind. There was a question about the mohag rights. The honourable member Mr. Khuhro said that if these mohag rights are not recognised there will be quarrels and bloodshed. This is nothing but intimidation of Government.

[Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan]

Because of this intimidation Government should give these mohag rights because they are threatened with quarrels and bloodshed! I think if Government yield to such pressure, then certainly Government ought to abdicate. They have to take into consideration the important fact that the general taxpayer of the whole presidency is being made to bear the burden of this scheme which is to benefit only a portion of the presidency. And, therefore, if such rights are recognised and if such consideration is taken into account about proprietary rights extending over lands which do not belong to them because they have forfeited them on account of not paying their assessment and keeping them fallow, then certainly Government are not bound to recognise such rights. If they recognise such rights and give away these 3½ lakhs of acres of land, then certainly they would be doing a great injustice to the general taxpayer whom they are asking to finance this scheme. Sir, it is, therefore, necessary that Government should take into account all these factors and they have to try their best to make this scheme productive. Five or six years hence or ten years hence, this House should not be placed in a difficulty like the one in which they have been placed by many failures on the part of Government and the general taxpayer is being made to pay Rs. 32 lakhs every year as a subsidy owing to the failure of Development Department, and I do not know, perhaps that may be still further increased. The honourable member Mr. Dow said that if a free hand is given to them, they would make the scheme very productive and make it yield a 20 per cent. return. Certainly we should not mind giving power if the honourable member Mr. Dow is capable of relieving the general taxpayer of this presidency by getting the maximum income that can be derived from the Sukkur Barrage. But when the whole scheme is brought into being at the expense of the general taxpayer of the presidency, it is necessary to see that the scheme is made to pay its way. We should not have other failures like the Bombay Development, and if there is a failure in this matter, and if the general taxpayer is made to lose crores and crores, I predict that another failure like the Sukkur Barrage will bring this presidency into a state of bankruptcy from which it will not be able to emerage unless it has got the capacity of refusing to pay the debts the liability of which it has incurred by borrowing from the Government of India. Sir, these are important factors which have to be borne in mind and I hope Government will pay serious consideration to these factors. Government are very careful about the value of land when making revision settlements, and here also, zamindars admit that the value of lands which they possess will appreciate because of the barrage conditions, and this is a matter which should be thoroughly taken into consideration by Government while taking their decision in this important matter about the disposal of land. Sir, unless such considerations are properly attended to, there is a grave doubt whether the scheme would be successful. Therefore, Government should be very serious in taking all such considerations in their mind when they arrive at decisions in the matter of disposing of lands in this scheme.

Mr. ALLAHBAKSH walad Khan Saheb HAJI MAHOMED UMAR (Sukkur District): Sir, I must express my gratitude to the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale for bringing this motion for cut. What I find during the lengthy discussion that has taken place is that there are two important points: (1) regarding the land given to zamindars as mohag, (2) that the scheme will bring an automatic rise in the value of the zamindars' lands which are uncultivated at present. Of course, I admit what the honourable member Mr. Lalji Naranji said yesterday, that since there is going to be so much rise in the value of land, they should share something towards the cost of the Barrage construction and I think there is force in that. If the price of the land which is at present Rs. 15 or Rs. 20 an acre is going to rise up after the completion of the barrage to Rs. 200 or Rs. 300, I see no reason why these people should not pay for it, and I think they are actually going to pay. They have lost sight of the real issue. As a matter of fact, the assessment which they now pay is at the most about Rs. 5 per acre. In order to make the scheme productive they will have to pay a very high assessment which will be about double of what they are paying now. That means Government have asked them to pay by way of assessment for the rise in the value of their land. Government have said to them that after four or five years the value of their land would rise to Rs. 300 per acre and therefore it is necessary that they should pay towards the cost of the scheme something out of profit, as the whole scheme has been undertaken to make the land more productive and valuable. I quite agree to that, but Government cannot have it both ways. They should either take in a lump sum or recover by increased assessment. What I contend is that actually the zamindars of Sind have to give a substantial amount by way of enhanced assessment on the barrage area and this enhanced assessment they will pay for ever. I think that is not right. The enhanced assessment should be charged only up to the time the initial cost of the construction is recovered and thereafter the present ordinary assessment should be charged. All over the province, in the Deccan and other divisions of the presidency, where such irrigation works are being constructed or have been constructed, no extra assessment towards the cost of the construction is charged. I do not think these irrigation works yield more than six per cent. in the beginning and fourteen per cent. after completion of the project as Sukkur Barrage. I think it is unfair to Sind that they should pay enhanced assessment and not the other parts of the presidency. If the standard of assessment is proposed to be increased, then it should be increased throughout the presidency and not in the case of the Barrage area only. I claim that in order that the general taxpayers do not have to suffer, the enhancement should be made applicable to the whole of the presidency.

Another point which the honourable members have tried to lay stress on is that the zamindars are benefited by this project.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member is not audible on this side of the House.

Mr. ALLAHBAKSH walad Khan Saheb HAJI MAHOMED UMAR: Sir, I say that the zamindars of Sind have been giving sufficient towards the construction of the project in the shape of enhanced assessment.

Another question is about the sale of land. On the contrary, I think some of the honourable members have expressed that it is not fair that since the barrage is constructed out of the revenues of the whole presidency, only a certain class of zamindars should be benefited thereby. That is perfectly true. I agree that it should not be like that, but I think the facts are to the contrary. The area which is at present cultivated under the barrage zone, instead of getting any benefit out of the barrage, is actually losing, because the Government wish to develop twelve lakhs of acres of waste land. Here I would like to refer the honourable members to what my honourable friend Rao Saheb Dadubhai Desai said in this House in 1923, page 122 of Council debates, Volume IX. The honourable member Rao Saheb Dadubhai Desai says:

"Now, another thing that has struck me is paragraph 7, page 37, of Volume II, that is supplied to us. It appears from what is stated therein that since the opening of the Punjab Canals, the water level at Sukkur has actually increased by over a foot, and that for the season from June to September in spite of the Punjab withdrawals to a large extent, and if this were a fact, then it is for the technical advisers of Government to consider the point again whether any future withdrawals by the Punjab will affect the levels at Bukkar.

So, it has been found that during the inundation season the perennial canals of Sind are not going to be affected by the Punjab withdrawals, and the honourable member further says:

"From that I find that while the assessments in the seventh year have increased by fifty per cent. the increase in cultivation is only about five per cent. Again, the gross present revenue of the barrage zone is Rs. 61 lakhs and the cultivated area is 20 lakhs and in the seventh year there will be 22 lakhs of acres under cultivation and about Rs. 79,90,000 will be the assessment. Now, it will appear that the assessments have increased by 62 per cent. and the area of cultivation has increased by ten per cent. from about twenty lakhs now, in the seventh year it is 22 lakhs of acres in the whole barrage zone, and so the actual area will be increased by about 2,00,000 acres, that is, a ten per cent. increase. It is doubtful whether a man who has to pay a certain amount of assessment during the sixth year will pay without grumbling about 60 per cent. more in the seventh year simply for an assured supply of water. I have found that in Larkana District there is an assured supply even at present. Of course there may be hard times"..

The area which is going to be increased on account of the barrage is only about 10 per cent. while the assessment which the zamindars have got to pay will rise by sixty per cent. I do not think that is fair to the zamindars of Sind. It makes no difference to us. We are getting at present as good a supply of water as we want and only that much we will get after the completion of the barrage. There are certain zamindars in Sind who have not seen even one bad year during the past twenty years. If that is so, I ask this honourable House, is it fair that these zamindars, should, after the barrage, pay enhanced assessment ?. I think that is most unfair to them. The reason why Government did so is that in the original project it was provided that twelve lakhs acres of land would be sold. If they were to charge the zamindars the present rate of assessment for land already owned by them in the barrage zone, then the price of the land which was to be sold in the barrage area had to be increased considerably to realise the cost of the construction and if it would have been increased, then the purchaser would necessarily have been compelled to think twice before the purchase as to whether or not the investment that he was going to make would prove profitable and would yield a reasonable rate of interest. The other alternative in that case was that in order to realise from the sales and assessment on them the amount provided in the project from the sale of land, i.e., 11 crores of rupees out of 12 lakhs of acres plus the amount proposed to be recovered by enhanced assessment on the lands already owned by the zamindars, it would be necessary for Government to have the assessment increased only on the lands to be sold, but if Government were going to increase the assessment only in that area, it would find that nobody would care to purchase it because it would not be likely to yield anything to him on account of heavy price and high assessment. Now in order to level up the whole thing, Government have levied enhanced assessment over zamindars who were not bound to pay a pie more because they gain nothing by the project. I think when the project will be productive because of enhanced assessment on the zamindars—big or small—who are now there in the barrage zone as shown above, it is not right to say that the rise in the price of the zamindars' lands in the barrage is due to the money coming from the general taxpayers of the presidency. The money is coming from the existing zamindars themselves by way of enhanced assessment and therefore the land for sale should be sold to those zamindars who should have the first claim on these lands because where they were paying four or five rupees assessment, they are now going to be made to pay ten or twelve rupees without any consequent advantage. Let the land, etc., be sold or be assessed at Rs. 20 an acre without enhancing the assessment on the cultivated lands of the present zamindars. We do not mind, but since we are taxed extra I think we have got a preferential right on this land. I say emphatically, that the barrage will be productive on account of the existing zamindars. My honourable friends Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram and Mr. Swaminarayan said that the zamindars should be deprived of their right of purchases in the barrage zone. I welcome that. Let anybody with sufficinet money buy those lands, but my complaint is that we should not be made to pay enhanced assessment when we are not going to get any benefit of the barrage.

The enhanced assessment should fall on the lands which Government is going to sell. Therefore I would request the House to consider this question before arriving at any policy regarding the sales of land.

Another point is...

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order order. I should like to bring it once again to the notice of the honourable member, I think he was not present here when I referred to the matter when the House commenced its sitting to-day, that I must stop the discussion in time to give an opportunity to the honourable mover to reply, and the Honourable the Revenue Members for his speech. Therefore, I must stop the discussion at 20 minutes to twelve, in order to finish and put the motion to the House at about 12-15. I have requested honourable members to limit their remarks at the most to ten minutes or a little more. I hope the honourable member will bear that in mind; I am afraid he cannot be given much more time.

Mr. ALLAHBAKSH walad Khan Saheb HAJI MAHOMED UMAR: Another point which the Revenue Officer for the barrage, Mr. Dow, made yesterday was that the uncultivable land is now being acquired at Rs. 20 an acre. Let the present value of the land be Rs. 5 or Rs. 10 per acre. Everybody knows now that the barrage is coming, and so I think it is not fair that those zamindars should be deprived of their lands by paying them only Rs. 20 an acre. They should be given either land in exchange or compensation in cash afterwards accordingly when it has been found what the price of the barrage land will be. I think it is most unfair to the zamindars to pay them in cash now. It will still be better for the Government to acquire all the land at a low price, and to sell it at a higher price after the barrage is completed. With these remarks I resume my seat.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District): Sir, I sincerely welcome the debate that has taken place on this subject. Yesterday afternoon word went round non-official benches here that Government wanted to hear every section of the House on this important subject. If that be true, this debate is by order. I welcome this debate because it has a political importance of its own. Twenty years ago, a very farsighted statesman of this Presidency, Sir John Muir-Mackenzie, who also officiated as the Governor of the presidency, wrote, while he was here as an Executive Councillor to a friend of his in Sind with whom he was in correspondence that the day on which Sind affairs come to be guided from Bombay instead of from Karachi, will be a sad day for Sind. Much of the misunderstanding in this honourable House exists about Sind, for the reason that honourable members from other parts of the presidency are unfamiliar with Sind conditions. They misunderstand the word "zamindar," and therefore misunderstand the agricultural conditions of Sind. They think that a zamindar of Sind means a Mussalman; they think that a "hari," the cultivator, means a Mussalman; and they think that "depressed classes" mean Hindu. No, Sir; all these interpretations on these words are wrong. Zamindars are Hindus as well as Mussalmans. A zamindar may have 500 acres of land, or more than 500 acres or, even less than even five acres; and in fact more than 70 per cent. of landholders have very small holdings of less than 15 acres, majority of them again owning less than 5 acres of land. It does not mean that every zamindar has thousands of acres of land. I think the presence of my honourable friend Sirdar Sher Mahomed Khan Bijarani creates a certain amount of misunderstanding in this House regarding the conditions prevailing in Sind. Most of the honourable members think him to be the representative sample of Sind zamindars, and with his flowing robes and Baluchi habits, it is perhaps thought that every one in Sind, like the honourable member for Jacobabad, is the Sirdar, the chief of forty thousands of tribesmen. But that is not so. The fact is that any person who has land in Sind considers himself a zamindar and styles himself as a zamindar. It is not the case that every zamindar is a rich man.

[Mr. Noor Mahomed]

There are small men and big men. There are poor men in Sind, there are beggars in Sind, and also rich men, as in every other part of the world.

Now a word with regard to the depressed classes in Sind. There is no such thing as depressed classes in Sind, and anybody who invents in this House the phrase "depressed classes" so far as Sind is concerned does so from motives that I cannot certainly respect. It is invented to win the sympathy of very obliging and generous friends like Dr. Ambedkar, Dr. Solanki, Mr. Joshi and other generous friends like them.

An Honourable MEMBER: Mr. Joshi?

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED: Yes, Mr. Joshi. He does take a deep interest in all the backward and depressed classes. Therefore, when honourable members hear the expression "depressed classes" used in connection with any community in Sind, they would believe me and they must give me credit for speaking the truth, that it is used politically, and not in the real sense of the term in which it is understood in the rest of the presidency. There are Bhil, there are Kolis, and there are Meghwars in Sind, but we do not treat them as depressed classes in the manner they are treated in other parts of India. They are as much depressed as the Mussalman cultivators are depressed. They are as good and as noble as Mussalman cultivators are. Both do the same work, but there is one difference, that many of them in Sind are not cultivators, for instance the Meghwar is generally a shoemaker. Therefore, to come to this honourable House and take advantage of the absence of knowledge regarding affairs in Sind is not right.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: What about the Kolis and Bhils?

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED: The Kolis and Bhils are famine-stricken people, and I do sympathise with them. As the honourable member Mr. Dow said, they are no doubt immigrants, but they are also migratory. They come and go; they are not permanent settlers in Sind. They are not Sindhis but mostly come from the neighbouring Indian States. Not being the permanent settlers of the country, it is generally very difficult to deal with them. They have nothing in Sind to keep them attached to our province. They remain as long as they have nothing to fall back upon in their own homes. Once their own homelands get better rain, they run away; and that without any notice. Only a few days before I started from Hyderabad for Bombay, I passed a village on my way to Mashaikh Hoothi, in Tando Allayar taluka. There were about 20 families of Kolis in that village, and I was told that the Hindu zamindar of the locality had given them taccavi to the extent of Rs. 4,000 or so during the last year. But what happened? In one night all of them had bolted away. This was and is possible because these people have no permanent habitation. Once they run away, no one can ever find them. That is the greatest difficulty zamindars have with these people in Sind. This information can be verified at any moment. Sir, in this village in the Tando Allahyar taluka, the whole of the population which consisted of Kolis only had run away, and the Baniya zamindar had to keep a chowkidar to watch over the maund or so of the paddy grain that they had left behind. Sir, these Kolis are migratory people who are never permanent settlers, and to come and win the sympathy of generous members of this House on the plea that we have got a huge number of people in Sind who are depressed classes is not very praiseworthy, and such statements are far from the truth.

But, Sir, these things are done politically. Let me be very candid, and I trust honourable members of this House will give me the credit of possessing honesty of purpose in some degree. I am glad that my honourable friend Mr. Balubhai Desai welcomes that statement. (Interruption.)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. There is little time left for such remarks.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED: There is in this debate much beneath the surface. In Sind a great agitation has been carried on during the last few years by the intelligentsia for acquiring land for what are called the educated unemployed classes. I have got every sympathy for these classes. I certainly want this class to be on the land, and to take a real interest in the agriculture of Sind, and not to consider themselves always to be the ruling class in Sind. I want them to consider themselves and permit themselves to be treated as the tillers of the soil. I do not certainly want them to go about overloading everybody; I do not want them to be merely the rulers of Sind. I have every objection to their remaining for ever rulers of Sind. I want them to act and behave as the sons of the soil and not to consider themselves as the hereditary rulers of Sind after 1843. What does this class want? They want that the land should go to these educated unemployed. And on what plea? The plea is that if you do not give them some occupation, if you do not give them land for their maintenance, they will become political agitators! This ground was seriously put forward in the meeting of the Central Co-operative Institute of Sind, and the Director of Agriculture was seriously invited to consider this side of the question regarding the distribution of Barrage lands in Sind. Sir, if Government are going to be intimidated by the agitation of the educated unemployed, then I say.....

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: On a point of order, Sir, I referred to the poor classes, not to the educated classes. I do not think any honourable member on this side wanted any land to be earmarked for the educated classes. If the honourable member is replying to discussions outside this Hall, of which nothing is known here, and of which there may be two versions, is it at all relevant?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I think reference which may logically arise in the course of discussion may be in order but honourable members should not import entirely foreign matters.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED: The honourable member scents something everywhere. What I was stating was not foreign to the discussion on the Sukkur Barrage. When the Sukkur Barrage is completed if the

[Mr. Noor Mahomed]

British Government commit any grave mistake in depriving agricultural classes of land the economic discontent which will arise will decend down to the masses. Many greater kingdoms than that of the British Government have in our life time disappeared only on account of the discontent among the masses; and I do not want Government to do anything that would deprive the masses of the means of living on land. I want the Government really to consider the question of the distribution of Barrage lands on its merits and not to be led away by political agitation that can be created on any pretext. The honourable member for Kaira said that the agriculturists of Ratnagiri should be transported to Sind—it is really a transportation; it will be nothing less than that. The honourable member for Kaira wants that the Ratnagiri people should deprive the Sind zamindars of their lands, as the Dharalas of Kaira district have been deprived of their lands by a few capitalists. Dharalas are a poor people and they have been driven into the corner; and we are in the same position in Sind as the Dharalas are in Kaira. (An Honourable Member: Oh, oh! Yes!) The Dharalas were given a bad name with a view to deprive them of their lands. They were given a bad name and then hanged. The same is sought to be done to us. Then the honourable member for Hyderabad said that we are an indolent people, we cannot work on our fields, and we have no money to improve our land. In making those remarks, to say the least, he acted as un-Sindhi! His own people in Sind will not support him in the allegations he has made against his own countrymen of Sind. Whatever he may say, I do not want any outsider to come to Sind. I do want the Hindus, the Mussalmans, should have Barrage lands. But I do not want the aspect of Sind to be changed. I do not want the Punjabis to come to Sind which will have the effect of changing the whole aspect of the people. We have our own traditions and a history. We have got every objection to allowing any Punjabis and other outsiders coming to Sind and changing the entire appearance of Sind. Before this, some short-sighted officers of the Government committed a great mistake in bringing the Punjabis on the Jamrao Canal area; and that area has become a Punjab in Sind. We do not want Punjabs, Marwars or Kutchis in Sind. Our demand is that Sind should remain for Sindhis. That should be the guiding principle in the distribution of Barrage lands. If Government climb down on account of any agitation and deprive Sindhis of their claims to land, others too can create agitation which will be real, more lasting and also more honest.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Will the honourable member Mr. Baloch be able to finish his speech in 10 minutes.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: Even last evening I represented to you, Sir, that I would not be able to finish my speech within 10 minutes.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University): I am much obliged to you, Sir, for giving me this opportunity to speak for 10 minutes. I would put a few points before the House which I know is already tired of the different points of view placed before it. If I trespass by a couple of minutes....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I will give only 10 minutes.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI : Don't worry, Sir, I won't abuse your indulgence. One word with regard to the honourable member the apostle of politics in Sind, who thundered so violently and in such a melodramatic way. He told us that the honourable members from the presidency should not interfere in matters relating to Sind. I have seen during the last two or three sessions that Sind members interfere in every conceivable matter relating to this presidency. They have no right to make a grievance, when the presidency members return that compliment. Sir, I am not concerned with the political aspect of the question, which he puts before the House. He and my honourable friend Mr. Jairamdas and the other honourable members from Sind must square up their differences as best as they can. With regard to the threats he held out to the British Government, the British Government are well able to take care of themselves. This House, Sir, is only concerned with the economic aspect of this question and no other.

One thing, Sir, ought to engage the attention of this House. The whole presidency has been made to invest an immense sum in the Sukkur Barrage, and the land commanded by it according to the estimate of the Commissioner, which accompanies the Government Resolution, is valued at Rs. 45 crores. Out of this Rs. 9,97,00,000—roughly Rs. 10 crores—worth of land is going to be presented to a few zamindars in Sind. That is the true state of affairs : and no eloquence vehement or otherwise can disprove this fact. If this had been recorded in the history of the times of Mahomed Bin Taglak, every school boy would have been taught to call it the most devastating feature of his rule. But, Sir, we are now in 1928 and we have to discuss it on its merits.

Considerable confusion is sought to be created as to the nature of what are called 'rights' by investing certain acts of Government with the dignity they do not possess. Since 1875, the minutes of Government officials and Government Resolutions all of which are given in the report of the Fallow Rules Committee right up to the Government Resolution of the 14th November 1927, have insisted that what the Sind members call 'rights' are merely matters of grace on the part of the Government. Those rights have never been enforced in a court of law. The Collector or the Commissioner as the case may be has in his discretion, curtailed, modified or rescinded such alleged 'rights'. On page 5 of the report Government say :

"It should be distinctly understood that such restoration is merely an act of grace. This being so they are able to agree with the conclusion of the official members in paragraph 21 of their report that, while no legal claim to the restoration of fallow-forfeited number exists, a lien in the sense of a prescriptive and equitable claim does not exist."

Therefore the result is, Sir, that there is no legal right in the matter. Take again the absurd claim made in connection with what are called the Mohag rights. At the most it can only be a species of the right of pre-emption. But whoever heard that there can be a right of pre-emption under which property could be bought at a ridiculously low rate of Rs. 15 per acre when the market value is Rs. 300 per acre ? Is there any decision or any authority to justify the position that has been taken up, that when the mohag right is exercised it should be exercised at one-twentieth of the market price ? Sir, if there was such a right it would distinctly contravene public policy, and I am sure no Government, no judicial tribunal would be prepared to accept the recognition of such an extravagant right. The reason for Government's conduct in the past is stated in one sentence in the historical note appended to the Report. In the past, in view of the miserable agricultural condition of Sind, Government considered it politic to go on giving lands to the Sindhi zamindars in a certain manner, but there was no legal right to claim them. And, now, the origin of the right is nothing but the declaration made by the then General Member, Sir Chimanlal Setalvad, on the 8th June 1923. Sir, it would have been much better if the discussion had been restricted to the much narrower issue encompassed by the words used by him. The words which he used. I will requote with your permission :

"There is anxiety in certain quarters about what is known as the mohag rights of zamindars. It is far from the intention of Government to ignore these traditional rights in the policy of land sales to finance the project. All genuine cases where injury would be done by selling lands adjoining present holdings will be and are fully considered, and Government have set aside no less than 350,000 acres or 25 per cent of the unoccupied land to be sold at the extremely low figure of Rs. 15 per acre malkhano."

Now, Sir, certain honourable members have said that the Government's words should have no value. But, Sir, I do maintain that Government should always consider their words bonds and their oaths oracles. They ought not to tamper with their own declarations. And I am prepared to take the words used by the then General Member himself in his speech ; and to satisfy the House that the General Member did not say that 350,000 acres will be given. He said that they would be set apart for such cases as those mentioned by him, viz.:

"All genuine cases where injury would be done by selling lands adjoining present holdings....."

Those are the only cases where a zamindar will be entitled to say : "Give me land at Rs. 15 in order to compensate me for the losses which I have suffered." Now, what is that injury ? That injury also—I do not want to draw upon my imagination—that injury also is defined in the Government Resolution at page 8 in apt terms :

"It is, however, obvious that any such claim must grow weaker with the introduction as part of the Barrage product of a complete and scientific system of water-distribution, since the grant of vacant land to an outsider will no longer adversely affect the water-supply to existing holdings, which is the principal, and indeed the only real justification for the recognition of mohag claims in the existing land-grant system of the province."

Therefore, in each case where this land is to be given at this low figure of Rs. 15 an acre, a case has to be made out by the zamindar that his land has been injured, that it is being adversely affected in respect of water-supply by the sale of the adjoining land to an outsider. If he does not prove to the satisfaction of such tribunal that Government may institute that he has been so injured, then he is not entitled to this grant which Government has adopted.

Now, Sir, in this connection I was really surprised to read the other parts of the Government Resolution. Even this extraordinary promise on the part of Government has been treated with leniency. We do not hear one word in the conditions which are laid down on pages 7 and 8 of the Resolution that the zamindars will have to prove that any injury in the sense as defined has been done to their property; all that is stated there is that in certain exceptional cases Government will not grant this concession to them. No burden has been placed on the zamindars to prove that they deserve this act of grace. Now, Sir, the first condition which ought to be imposed is that this burden of proof should be discharged by the man who wants Rs. 300 worth of land for Rs. 15, and a case made out that he comes within the terms of Sir Chimanlal's declaration. I think, Sir, that Government have acted in a manner which is inconsonant with the trust reposed in them by leaving out of the Resolution such an important clause. What do we find ? The important conditions actually laid down for fallow-forfeited lands are :

"(1) Land shall not be restored if there is any special reason to the contrary, e.g., if it is required for the extension of a village and for some other Government purpose.

(3) The land shall not be restored in cases where a zamindar has disposed of his whole holding in the deh ; nor shall it be granted to mere assignees or to heirs other than direct heirs by ordinary family inheritance.

(4) Fallow-forfeited land shall not be granted in cases where a zamindar's resources are clearly unequal to the cultivation of his existing holding."

On page 8 there are conditions for mohag claims :

"(1) Mohag land at a concession rate shall not ordinarily be given to a zamindar who has recently sold a considerable portion of his holding.

(3) No Mohag rights will be recognised in respect of lands obtained by recent purchase.

(5) Mohag land shall not be granted to a zamindar who has failed to bring a reasonable proportion of his existing holding under cultivation, due regard being had to the condition of the water-supply, etc.

(6) No land at concession rates shall be given to a zamindar whose existing holding is more than a certain maximum limit."

All this is delightfully vague ; and the real crux of the matter has been lost sight of. Government, Sir, have no right to fritter away the resources of the presidency. This is an estate which belongs to the whole of the Bombay Presidency whose moneys have been sunk in the Barrage in order that the presidency may flourish. Therefore we have a right to say that unless a clear case, a judicial case, the strictest case possible is made out within the terms of the declaration of Government, no zamindar shall be given any part of this land.

Sir, one thing more and I have done. My honourable friend Khan Bahadur Bhutto made some interesting remarks. Sir, he said—and I was really surprised when he said it—that the Sind zamindars had been originally the owners of all this land and therefore it must be given to them, and that it should not be given to those who have purchased recently. Now, my honourable friend is illogical. Either he believes in the rights of individual property or he does not. If he believes in them, then he must also believe in the right of transfer and acquisition. If he does not, then surely the land must be left to the whole presidency to benefit by. Let Government then get the income which will enure to the benefit of every man in the presidency. Sir, these zamindars are afflicted with the same calamity as the Princes of the House of the Bourbon. They have neither learnt anything nor forgotten anything. They have not forgotten that the land which is no longer theirs was theirs twenty years ago; and they have not learnt that the presidency taxpayer has invested in this scheme not to provide for a few zamindars of Sind but to benefit the whole of the presidency, that it belongs to every one in the presidency and not to them alone. There was another equally interesting reason which he put forward. He said—that if you leave this land to be sold by public auction, the poor zamindars of Sind, most of whom he said were Mahomedans, would not be able to bid; that they would have to go to the money-lenders, who would be Hindus; and that therefore this concession should be given to the former. I am really surprised at this argument being trotted out here. Why does not my honourable friend ask Government to give ten crores of grant straight-away to the Mahomedans of Sind? Is the Honourable the General Member going to endorse the reasons which are given by the Honourable Member Khan Bahadur Bhutto? Out of the twenty crores to be invested is a present of ten crores to be made to the Mahomedan zamindars in Sind for the reasons he has given? The Government in the Presidency is the ferocious champion of the powers of forfeiture on non-payment of taxes; in Sind it is turning into a knight-errant restoring to wealthy zamindars vast lands duly forfeited; is it to oblige the zamindars of Sind? If so, let us know it and—

Khan Bahadur S. N. BHUTTO: Sir, I did not say anything of the kind which the honourable member attributes to me.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI: Sir, if the honourable member gives me the transcript of his speech I will show it.

All I say is this, Sir: here is a concession clause which has to be read in the strictest possible form, as it is against the interests of the whole of the presidency; and yet the Government resolution which is based on it has not carried out the intentions of the declaration of Government. Therefore, Sir, I urge that when Government take measures to carry out this policy, these words of Sir Chimanlal Setalvad should be construed in the strictest sense, and when any zamindar puts forward a claim unless his claim falls within the terms of Sir Chiminlal's declaration no concession should be given to him. That is all that I beg to submit.

Moulvi RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Sir, I am very grateful to you for giving me a little opportunity of addressing this House. I have noticed during the last four years at budget time those honourable members belonging to the party to which my honourable friend, Mr. Munshi, belongs have always opposed grants brought before this House in connection with the canal. Their contention was that the canal was not going to be a success, it would be a failure, and a white elephant. But what has now happened? They are now convinced that the canal would be a great success. Therefore they have thrown overboard, that policy as cargo for which there is no longer any demand in the market. They have now adopted quite a different policy. They now see that a certain class of their countrymen are going to be largely benefited by the canal. They want in the first place some share in the benefit. But they go further and ask Government not to keep their word pledged to that class. They say: "the zamindars of Sind will get money—they are Moslems in general. Hindus must be benefited somehow, whether they possess lands or not. They therefore demand that land should be given away to the labourers and other poor people that go to Sind from Cutch and Kathiawar. They ask Government to set aside the solemn pledges that were given by Government to the zamindars. All this time we have been hearing from those members that the British Government is notorious for breaking their promises. But to-day we find that the burden of their song is "Why should Government carry out their promise?" I was rather glad to hear from my honourable friend, Mr. Munshi, that if the British Government has given them promises, let them observe them. But he contended that Sir Chimanlal's statement was only a conditional promise. My honourable friend, Mr. Dow, told this House that the promise given by Sir Chimanlal Setalvad was further confirmed unconditionally by the Governor himself. And therefore the honourable member Mr. Munshi, must now maintain "If the Governor has given the zamindars a promise, it should not be broken."

I will now turn my remarks to the speech made by my honourable friend from Hyderabad (Mr. Jairamdas). He asked us to accept some socialistic principles in regard to land. The honourable member possesses certain sincere but inexorable prejudices regarding Hindu-Muslim question. What does he say? He says: "No, this land should not be given to the zamindars. Let all other people come from all the parts of the country and get this land; but these zamindars should not get the benefit promised." That is the burden of his song. It is a very curious burden. If socialistic principles are to be introduced, they should not be applied only in the case of land. They should be applied in other cases, for instance with regard to the services. Sir, I may inform this House that his party persisted in a different course. When Sir George Clarke visited Sind they gave him an address in which they said "Do not bring Muslims in government service here from the presidency; the posts are reserved for the Sindhis, that is the Amils of Sind." But now for the land they say: "Bring all the people, Hindus from Rajputana and everywhere." And why? For two reasons, namely, (1) to deprive the Moslem zamindars of this benefit of getting land, and (2) to increase the population of Hindus in Sind. My honourable friend, Mr. Dow, has told us that there are Mahomedans from Baluchistan also to whom some consideration be shown. On the whole, I submit, Sir, that this is a disastrous policy to ask Government to break their word. With these words, I oppose the cut.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Sir, my honourable friend, the Revenue Officer, has in his able speech dealt in full detail with most of the points raised in the course of the debate. I will, therefore, confine myself to making certain general observations and also dealing with a few points which have been omitted.

The most important subject of the speeches of honourable members on the opposite side of the House has been the decision of Government announced in their resolution of November last to grant 3,50,000 acres of land under the Barrage either to the original owners or to persons claiming mohag rights. This decision was arrived at by Government after the most careful and anxious deliberation. It does represent, I can assure the honourable members of this House, an honest attempt on the part of Government to recognize what Government consider to be the just claims of the people of Sind in regard to the restoration of land in the Barrage area while at the same time guarding against any undue prejudice to the general interests of the taxpayers of the presidency. It is only after long and earnest consideration and after a full enquiry by a committee of both officials and non-officials and also on consideration of the careful report of the Commissioner of Sind that Government have arrived at this decision. I wish here to indicate what I consider to have been the conditions and circumstances which justified the undertaking originally given in 1923 by the then General Member, Sir Chimanlal Setalvad. It has to be remembered that ever since the commencement of the present system of revenue administration in Sind, the re-grant of fallow land has been an essential feature of that system. The people have looked upon such land as their own for generations past, and it has been a common practice to buy and sell such land in the full expectation that it could at any time be restored to its original owners or their representatives on payment of the fallow assessment. I must ask this House to realise this fact when they approach the consideration of this question, because it has a very important bearing on it.

Now, of late years, it has unfortunately been the case that our inundation canals in Sind have been giving a less and less adequate supply of water and this for various reasons. I need not go into them all, but one important reason, no doubt, is the withdrawals of water by the important Punjab irrigation schemes. The fact remains that these canals have given a supply insufficient to meet the demands of the lands commanded by them. The result has been that one canal after another has been placed under bundish. By bundish I mean that no further grants of lands are allowed on these canals. At the same time, it has been necessary to restrict very much, on account of this bundish regrants of fallow-forfeited lands. It is true that the actual orders which placed an embargo on the regrant of these lands issued only in 1924. But even before that, the regrant of fallow-forfeited land was very much restricted. And at the same time although the orders putting an absolute embargo on the grant of any new lands within the Barrage area issued only in 1920-21, there again also, for several years before, on account of the difficulties caused by the shortage of the water supply, the grant of fresh land on any large scale had been practically stopped. Only small parcels of land here and there were being given out. I must explain also that at the same time the tendency towards the forfeiture of fallow lands had increased; on account of the shortage of supply of water, more lands were being fallow-forfeited and there was less and less ability on the part of the former owners of these lands to obtain their regrant on account of the shortage of water. The inevitable result of these several tendencies was to reduce the occupied area, and this state of affairs continuing over several years has certainly had a prejudicial effect on the interests of the zamindars. Supposing that things had been entirely normal and the supply of water had continued as before, and also supposing there had been no Barrage project under consideration, which resulted in these embargoes being placed on the regrant of fallow-forfeited land and the grant of fresh land, there is no doubt that the Sind zamindars—and by that term I do not mean merely the big zamindars, I mean all zamindars—would have gone on increasing their holdings or at any rate maintaining them at their existing level. Therefore, when it was decided to carry through this project of the Sukkur Barrage Government had to consider what the effect in the past had been with regard to the holdings of the zamindars of Sind, and I submit, Sir, that this grant of 3½ lakhs of acres really represents only a restitution of what the zamindars have been deprived of, owing to the reasons which I have explained.....

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: That is fallow-forfeited?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Fallow-forfeited, and new grants. Formerly zamindars of Sind were able to obtain fresh grants of land and the restoration of fallow-forfeited land without question. In the former case such grants used to be made on payment of a rate of malkano, that is to say, occupancy price equal to our assessment, say Rs. 2 or Rs. 3 per acre, that is to say a rate far lower than this so-called concession rate which Government are going to charge and which is now under discussion. I think it is very important that the members of the House should realise the position. The decision of Government does not represent a gift to the zamindars or anything in the nature of a present to them. Government are actually putting them in the position in which they would have been had the normal course of events ensued.

Then, as regards this rate, I have already indicated that in past times it has always been the practice,—and I am well conversant with it having served many years in Sind myself,—to grant lands at the rate of a single assessment and to regrant them in the case of fallow-forfeited land at the same rate. Therefore, the Rs. 15 an acre, although it may appear low in comparison with rates which we now hope to obtain by open auction sales of land, is considerably higher than the concessionary rates which have been in force in Sind until comparatively recent times.

Another point which I want to impress upon the honourable members of this House is that you cannot suddenly break away from the whole tradition and established practice of revenue administration. That is a very important consideration. Then, it has also to be remembered that these lands are being granted on the restricted tenure, which is very different from the tenure of land sold in open auction and which, of course, will be a marketable asset. These lands are subject to the restriction against alienation, and that very largely depreciates the market value. In fact, their market value to the grants will for all practical purposes be nil. Another point is that, as has been stated by several speakers, land without irrigational facilities in Sind is of no value;—not only of no marketable value, but of no value as giving a return to its owner,—and the occupancy price which is charged in Sind does not therefore profess to approximate in any way to the ultimate market value of land when fully developed and provided with irrigational facilities. When I first came to Sind, and long after that, I think, it was commonly instilled on young officers that the tendency on the part of an Assistant Collector to charge a high rate of malkano, in making grants of land, was in inverse proportion to his experience of conditions in Sind. That inculcated a principle which was generally acted upon and was a very sound one.

And now to proceed with the present reaffirmation of the undertaking originally given by the late General Member. Two speakers, the honourable member for Bombay University and the honourable member representing Bombay, Mr. Lalji Naranji, have insisted very strongly on the necessity of Government strictly observing the conditions which were laid down at the time by the Honourable the General Member. They contend that there is no absolute promise that these 3½ lakhs of acres which have been reserved shall all be given and that land should only be given subject to the important condition that its refusal would cause injury to any zamindar. Government intend fully to comply with that condition. But what I must explain in regard to this is that when the Honourable the General Member made this declaration in 1923, he was perhaps not so fully acquainted with Sind conditions as I am and that consequently he happened to mention only the mohag rights of the zamindars. But mohag and fallow-forfeiture claims are inextricably intermixed; in fact most of the mohag land will be found to have been fallow-forfeited at one time or other, while most of the fallow-forfeited land will be found to be within the mohag limits of the zamindar. It is impossible to separate the two claims. If honourable members will read paragraph 8 of the resolution, they will see that although the Honourable the General Member specifically referred only to mohag rights, it is certain that the fallow-forfeiture rights, which are far stronger than mohag rights, must have been contemplated by Government at the time. I think, therefore, that we must consider ourselves fully bound to take into consideration fallow-forfeiture rights as well. In fact we give them a strong preference over those of mere mohag. I submit that it is a distinct injury to a man who has allowed his land to become fallow-forfeited in the belief (a belief which is based on generations of practice and tradition) that he would obtain the restoration of those lands, if he is not given those lands when he applies for them and is willing to pay the stipulated rate, and therefore I contend that Government will be fully adhering to the terms of the original undertaking when making regrants of fallow-forfeited lands, especially as Government have laid down a further condition, which was not then referred to by the Honourable the General Member, namely, the condition that the fallow-forfeiture must have been of recent date.

In referring to paragraph 9 of the resolution, the honourable member for Bombay, Mr. Lalji Naranji, contended that Government were going further than the local officials recommended Government should go. I think he is there under a misapprehension. He was evidently referring to the passage where it is said that "the line of distinction has usually been drawn at ten years." I think he was not aware of the fact that this statement is qualified in that it refers only to the rate which should be demanded by Government for the restoration of these lands. The fact is that the official members had proposed that in the case of recently fallow-forfeited lands, viz., lands fallow-forfeited within ten years, only three-fourths of the concessionary price, whatever it might be fixed at, should be demanded, that is to say, a lower rate than the concessionary rate for mohag lands, whereas in the case of lands whose fallow-forfeiture dated further back than that, they proposed to increase it, namely, to $1\frac{1}{2}$ times the general concessionary rate. Government have been able to go somewhat further than this in the direction favourable to the zamindars, so far as the rate is concerned; that is to say they propose not to buy more than the fixed general rate in any case. But, whereas the local officers had recommended no restriction on the regrant of land in point of time, Government are restricting such regrants to land fallow-forfeited not more than 15 years back.

I would now refer to certain criticisms on points of detail. The honourable member from Hyderabad, Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram, is evidently under the apprehension that only the large zamindars will be benefited by these so-called concessionary grants. I dispute this....

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: I did not say "only big zamindars."

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: The honourable member said "mostly."

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: I said "36 per cent."

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: That is not a very large proportion and even that I will not admit. It is unfortunate, and the honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed had drawn attention to the fact, that the use of the word "zamindar" seems to have imported a lot of prejudice into the consideration of this question. In Sind the word "zamindar" means simply the holder of the land, that is to say the man who holds it under Government, as contrasted with the "hari", who is the man who actually cultivates it. I was surprised by Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram's statement that 36 per cent. of the land in Sind is held by zamindars owning 500 acres or more. I shall therefore go through the statistics which I have, showing distribution by holdings. This is as follows :—

People holding	less than 5 acres	.. 67,000
,, ,,	between 5 and 25 acres	.. 91,000
,, ,,	,, 25 and 100 acres	.. 34,000
,, ,,	over 100 up to 500 acres	.. 11,000
	Total	.. 2,03,000

Against that, you have only 2,351 persons holding more than 500 acres. I find it very difficult to believe that this infinitesimally small proportion of men holding more than 500 acres can aggregate as regards area to 86 per cent.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : What is the average of men holding more than 500 acres ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am sorry I have not got those figures here. But even assuming that this proportion is correct for the whole of Sind, I say that it does not apply to the barrage area and more particularly to the barrage area where lands will be coming under sale, where there are large areas of unoccupied land. I know this part of the barrage area very well having been in charge of a part of it, the Nausharro Division, for several years while I have travelled practically all over the rest of it. It is well known that throughout this portion of the barrage area the peasant proprietor predominates very largely, there are a few large zamindars in it—in fact I could count the really big zamindars on my fingers. In this area the largest proportion of the land is held by small proprietors, and it is they who have sufferred most by these fallow-forfeitures, because their resources are small, their credit is restricted, and they have been unable to continue to pay the current fallow assessment of land which they have been unable to cultivate owing to lack of water. Therefore, it is to them that this so-called concession, which I say is simply a restitution of rights, will principally be given, and it is they who will benefit predominantly by the decision of Government.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : May I enquire if this fallow-forfeited land that is going to be restored is going to be restored to both Hindus and Mussalmans or to Mussalmans alone ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The Government Resolution makes no distinction whatever between the different communities.

And now I would refer to the fact that condition 6 for the grant of mohag land gives Government the power to impose a maximum holding, and no person holding that maximum or above will be entitled to any mohag grant. That entirely disposes of, I think, the apprehension on the part of honourable members that large zamindars will be benefited by these grants. Government have not yet fixed a maximum. That is a matter still under consideration, but the maximum will certainly be a low one.

[Mr. J. L. Rieu]

Then the honourable member from Hyderabad (Mr. Jairamdas) seemed to suggest that it would be better, instead of giving these 3½ lakhs of acres to former owners or to the adjacent holders, that it should be distributed among various classes.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: I referred to the sale of the remaining 11½ lakhs of acres. I did not discuss the question of the 3½ lakhs of acres. I discussed the policy of Government with regard to the sale of the remaining 11½ lakhs of acres.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: I am glad to hear that, but it only makes the point which I wish to make stronger. Obviously, as honourable members have emphasised, these concessions do imply a certain sacrifice of revenue on the part of Government, and if, in dealing with these 11½ lakhs of acres, we give out the lands to landless people free or, at any rate, at concession rates, that sacrifice will be only intensified, and I do not think that Government would be justified in making such a sacrifice. We shall certainly provide for the grant of land to peasant proprietors. We recognise fully the desirability of having a large body of peasant proprietors. They are an invaluable asset in the administration of a province like Sind, and we are not going to overlook them. We have no intention of disposing of all the land in large blocks to big capitalists. We reserve to ourselves fully the right to give, and we shall very carefully consider any proposals for giving, land to peasant proprietors, but they cannot be of the class which the honourable member Mr. Jairamdas has indicated, that is to say, the so-called depressed classes. The honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed was perfectly correct in what he said about the non-existence of the depressed classes in Sind. The classes which the honourable member Mr. Jairamdas referred to are mere temporary immigrants, who come over from the Thar and from Cutch yearly to assist in the harvesting and cotton picking operations. They are not cultivators by heredity, and they possess no capital whatever. It would be simply disastrous to give lands to such people on a large scale.

I do not wish to deal with the other points of detail, but I must emphasise this that, in arriving at the decisions which are embodied in this Resolution, Government feel that they are only doing the very least justice possible to the claims of Sind. They could not depart from their previous declaration without doing a grave injustice to Sind, and they feel themselves absolutely bound by that declaration, which was made with the full concurrence of all the Members of Government. Moreover, I would point out that, although the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale has argued that there was no specific resolution on the part of this House supporting this promise, the latter was definitely before the House at the time the House adopted the whole project. And although it is true that at the time of laying the project before the House the Honourable the General Member said that he could not regard Government as bound by all its details, I submit that he was then merely referring to the manner of execution and the programme of land sales, that is to say, the years in which the land would be disposed of, and he certainly could not in making that statement have contemplated any going back upon the clear promise which he had given, and I must therefore beg this House to put Government in a position to carry out what they look upon as their very definite obligation.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, I must say in reply that I entirely agree with the honourable member the Revenue Officer for the Sukkur Barrage that it is unfortunate that the communal question has been introduced into this controversy. Really, that was very far from my object, and my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Bhutto entirely misunderstood the object of this motion. It pained me to hear suggestions of the kind which fell from him and some other honourable members. So far as this question is concerned, it is purely a question of the people's rights, and it was for the first time that I came to learn from the honourable member Khan Bahadur Bhuto that this question affected adversely the Mussalmans and not the Hindus, and all that kind of thing. The Honourable the Revenue Member's statement shows that in this matter no communal considerations will enter. Apparently, from the arguments of some honourable members, it may appear that such a question may come in, but still I do hope that the question will be settled on its own merits both by the official and the non-official members of this House. Then, Sir, with regard to the merits, it was stated by the honourable member the Revenue Officer for the Sukkur Barrage that though five years had passed, not a word was uttered about this matter in the House. But, Sir, the policy of Government with regard to the sales of land was only adumbrated in November last, and this is the first session of the Council after that, where we have an opportunity to have our say. There was no occasion to do so before that. The whole question rested on the general declaration, or promise, or statement, or whatever you may call it, of the Honourable the General Member and that statement as interpreted. The interpretation of that statement, really speaking, is the crux of the whole case, as I understand from the speeches of the official as well as the non-official members. Now, Sir, it is clear from the statement of the Honourable the Revenue Member that even Sir Chimanlal's statement, according to him, was based upon some misunderstanding. That is in fact what the Honourable the Revenue Member has said. We have the statement of Sir Chimanlal Setalvad before us, and really it is very necessary to abide by that statement. I agree so far.

We ought to interpret that statement strictly even with regard to fallow-forfeited rights. With due deference to the framers of the resolution I must say that it is illogical. The illogical nature may be due to the anxiety on the part of Government to be fair to all parties. In a matter of this kind it seems to me that we must take a complete stand once for all and make an instrument or document in such a way as to clearly define the rights of holders as well as taxpayers. It was stated that there was a historical background for this question; and there has been the practice of restoring these fallow-forfeited lands. The whole question has been discussed in the accompaniments to the resolution. It is stated that in the Khairpur State where similar practice has been in existence when once the land is forfeited it never regrants the land to the former owner. The origin of the practice is also given. We ought to take into consideration the laws relating to it both in Sind and the Presidency before coming to a conclusion. In the past it might have been that the lands that were allowed to lie fallow were restored after two or three years after payment of one year's assessment. But now new conditions are coming into existence and it seems to me necessary that we should take into account the legal position and that we should not be led by the past practice. The Revenue Officer of the Sukkur Barrage stated that they had been generous to the zamindars. Does he mean that because they had been generous in the past they should be generous in future also ? If Government wish to be generous in future they should do so consistently with the rights of the taxpayers. The presidency is now called upon to make up the excess of some crores. In 1923 when the resolution regarding the Sukkur Barrage was discussed I insisted that the amount of 18 crores should be put down in the resolution. It was then pointed out that it was only a rough scheme and all details would be placed before the Council year after year when honourable members would have occasion to put forward their own views and that the scheme would be moulded accordingly. If now the estimates are going to be exceeded, does it not stand to reason that we should be in a position to find out new sources to meet this excess ? I am not in possession of all the materials, but it is stated in the resolution that the sanction of the Secretary of State has been given to this declaration, whatever you may call it. I do not know whether it relates to sales. It cannot be so, because I find in a reply given by the Honourable the General Member that the sanction related to the construction of the barrage. The Secretary of State wanted to give it on a contract to a private concern, whereas the Bombay Government would have it done departmentally. But with regard to the disposal of the land I find in the reply : " Not with regard to the disposal of the land. " Though I am not in possession of all the correspondence between the Secretary of State and the Bombay Government, I submit that the disposal of land is not allowed by the sanction of the Secretary of State. In this connection a point was raised by the honourable member Mr. Lalji that under section 27 or 28 of the Government of India Act sanction of two members of the India Council is necessary with regard to the transfer of property. That is a separate question. My submission is that if the case for the Bombay Government is investigated in the light of strict interpretation of the statement of Sir Chimanlal Setalvad and the observations of experienced officers with regard to this practice, we can really go further than Bombay Government. But we are now told that in returning fallow-forfeited land it is given under restricted tenure. If it is restored, it is illogical to say : " We are going to restore the land to you restricting the period to 10 years. " It is illogical and inconsistent. It is not restoration. If it is permanent occupancy, unrestricted right of occupancy must be restored to him. Therefore it appears to me that there is a certain inconsistency prevailing throughout this long report.

But I do submit that as the matter is one of financial importance, the Council ought to have been taken into confidence before the issue of the final resolution, and given an opportunity of considering the question. After all, the issue of a Government Resolution does not mean the last word on the subject, and even now it may be really wise on the part of Government to consider this question further as it is of great importance to the whole of the presidency.

Will you give me five minutes more, Sir ? I will not refer to extraneous matters like the Deccan irrigation. I do not know, however, if Deccan irrigation was intended to be productive, and I do not know besides if in Deccan concessionary grants are given to zamindars who benefit by the irrigation. At least I am not aware of that. But that is quite irrelevant. We are now constituted in a different manner and members of this Council must judge every case on its merits. We must take a dispassionate view of matters and not be led away by provincial considerations. I do hope that the Honourable the General Member in his final reply will give a clue as to whether he still leaves some room for re-opening this question in the light of the discussion that has taken place to-day. In a debate of this kind it is not really possible to go into this matter. My last request to him is that he would place on the Council table all the correspondence in regard to this matter, from the beginning up to now—in fact all literature connected with it—so that although we are not members from Sind yet we may know all about it. Although we do not belong to Sind, there is no disability attached to us in understanding its problems by reading the literature relating to it. Therefore, I hope that the Honourable the General Member will accede to this request. If he does that and honourable members on this side are satisfied that the right course has been taken and nothing further remains to be done, then the matter may be left where it is.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Mr. President, it is unfortunate that I have to reply to this debate, because I am in charge of the Public Works Department branch of the Irrigation Department and the sales of land is under my honourable colleague the Revenue Member. The Honourable the Revenue Member has very lucidly and clearly placed before honourable members of this House the reasons and the arguments for the Resolution issued by Government. From the debate it appears to me that several members of this honourable House are under the impression that Government are deliberately handing over a very large asset of this presidency to a few inhabitants of Sind. If my honourable friends had realised that when this project was before this House in 1923 it was clearly understood that 350,000 acres were to be given at concession rates, I am sure they would not have accused Government of deliberately, at this time, handing over to anybody a vast sum of money. (Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale : It was only reserved). It was a part and parcel of the project, that 350,000 acres should be reserved to be given at concessionary rates. Now, Sir, I believe that was a part of the project that went to the Secretary of State, received the approval of the Secretary of State and received the approval of this honourable House. And to say that honourable members were not aware of this fact until this resolution was issued is not quite correct. I remember myself having discussions with honourable members on the opposite benches on this very question, not once but very often, which clearly shows that my honourable friends were fully alive to the fact that Government were committed to give a certain number of acres at concessionary rates. The point was whether Government should stick to 350,000 or should yield to the demand put forward by the zamindars that the 350,000 acres should be increased. That was the point. My honourable friends the zamindars in their minute of dissent to Fallow Rules Committee Report claimed something like 750,000 acres; they claimed 400,000 acres for fallow-forfeited land, over and above the 350,000 acres for mohag land. They also put forward the claim that fallow-forfeited land legally belonged to the zamindars from whom it was forfeited. Well, Sir, Government have refused to admit that claim, and the committee, after having gone into the legal aspects of the case, have clearly come to the conclusion that zamindars have got no legal right to fallow-forfeited land. Then the position was, as explained by the Honourable the Revenue Member, very carefully considered by Government and they came to the conclusion that they should give an area of 350,000 acres but that any claim to exceed that acreage was unreasonable. On the other hand, honourable members now contend that Government was unreasonable in having agreed to 350,000 acres. My reply is that honourable members, when they passed this project, agreed to the 350,000 acres, and therefore it is not now open to them to say that Government have committed them to anything more than what they were aware of. If they had committed them to anything more than 350,000 acres I could have understood the argument. Now, Government have looked at this matter from the equitable point of view. They have given preference to zamindars who have forfeited their land. The Honourable the Revenue Member has explained the position regarding the fallow forfeited land. I am certain that if my honourable friends who are owners of land in this presidency had their lands also forfeited, they would also clamour for its return. Therefore, I would submit that when Government concede to what they consider an equitable demand, it is not for large holders of land in this presidency to say that Government are giving the zamindars of Sind —poor and rich—preferable treatment.

I do not desire to keep this House much longer, because I would only be repeating what my honourable friend, the Revenue Member, has said, but I can assure this honourable House that Government, as a whole, have come to the conclusion that the terms of the Resolution are only equitable. They have made no concession, which they do not think the zamindars and the people of Sind were entitled to. Under the circumstances I trust, my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale will not take this matter of the cut of Rs. 10 lakhs to vote. These Rs. 10 lakhs are really required for getting on with the work. Honourable members must remember that even just now we have a supplementary demand before this House for the current year and, therefore, any cut from the estimates now submitted would only put the Government in considerable difficulty, resulting in more supplementary demands. I would also remind this House of the lump-sum cut of Rs. 25 lakhs by the Finance Department from the estimates submitted by the Chief Engineer on the undertaking that if it is found necessary they will make up that sum of Rs. 25 lakhs by supplementary demands. Therefore this further cut is not at all justified and I would, therefore, ask my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale to withdraw the amendment.

Question put and lost.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I will now put the total demand to vote. I find that the cut of Rs. 35,000 is accepted by the Honourable the General Member. So, he will have to ask for a demand of Rs. 2,13,72,000.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Sir, I beg to ask for "a demand for Rs. 2,13,72,000."

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I beg to ask for "a demand for Rs. 5,57,000 for expenditure in England, Secretary of State Reserved and Transferred ; High Commissioner Reserved and Transferred."

Moulvi RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division) : Sir, the Honourable the Leader of the House has not made any observations recommending this demand to this House. The House would certainly like to know something more than he has stated. Even though there are no cuts for this item, it is not justifiable that the House should not be enlightened on the subject.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I have no objection to make observations on this item. But everything has been shown on page 119 of the Blue Book which no doubt the honourable member has read.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Sir, I beg to move for "a demand for Rs. 9,06,000 under the head '47, Miscellaneous'."

Question proposed.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South) : Sir, I beg to move

"that the demand under head '47, Miscellaneous' be reduced to Rs. 4,00,000."

On looking at the Budget, we find that it does not give any information on this point. We find no information regarding the heavy expenditure that is incurred under the head "Miscellaneous." What is this head of "Miscellaneous"? In that "Miscellaneous" we find a sub-head "Expenditure—Miscellaneous and unforeseen charges." If we look at the expenditure under this head given on page 115 of the Budget, we find that in the year 1926-27 there is no expenditure at all. In 1927-28 the Budget estimate was for Rs. 6 lakhs and in that year the revised estimate was Rs. 3,62,000. And for this year again Government want Rs. 5 lakhs. Looking at it, we do not find any information at all as to how and why these five lakhs of rupees are required, at a time when we are trying to curtail the expenditure as far as possible and are trying to find out every avenue for retrenchment. So, when such a large amount of Rs. 5 lakhs is demanded, this House should know how this amount is spent. Every time when a demand for an expenditure is made, especially for the transferred department, this House is entitled to know the details of the expenditure, so that it will be in a position to say whether it can give its sanction or not. In this particular case, Sir, for a large amount of Rs. 5 lakhs which is described as miscellaneous and unforeseen, how is the honourable House to exercise its judgment whether the expenditure should be sanctioned or not? What does "miscellaneous and unforeseen" mean, when they have provided for everything that they require, and when, further, Sir, for every item that is not foreseen, there is the supplementary grant; the right is given under the Act to the honourable members on the opposite benches to ask for supplementary demands for unforeseen expenditure. I do not understand, Sir, why this large expenditure is called miscellaneous and unforeseen, and it requires an explanation, and I do not mind telling the honourable House what my suspicions are—in speaking about this I should be quite frank. That is, we want to be very careful and we want to see that we do not provide expenditure for reasons and objects which we do not wish to take place. For instance, I want to know whether any of this expenditure is intended for any propaganda work, any publicity work, for any such unforeseen work, for which the House, at any rate this side of the House, should not provide anything. It may be a suspicion which is unfounded. But where the figures are juggled in such a manner with no information at all about a large amount of Rs. 5 lakhs, certainly the House is entitled to know for certain why this is proposed to be provided. Again, why is Rs. 5 lakhs provided as unforeseen expenditure, why not Rs. 7 lakhs, why not Rs. 2 lakhs? How do they foresee an unforeseen expenditure and fix an amount which does not become foreseen? (Laughter). Therefore, Sir, it is a figure which calls for explanation from the opposite side of the House, and I hope the honourable members on that bench will give a satisfactory explanation before asking for this demand.

Mr. G. WILES: Sir, I confess I listened with some surprise to the honourable member's speech. This is not a new item, but one which has been put in the budget year after year ever since I have been in this House, which is many years now. It is so well known to honourable members that I did not think any further explanation was at all necessary as to what the "reserve" is. The "Reserve" is now being put in this budget ever since the reforms, though it has been getting smaller and smaller. We are getting annually nearer to close budgeting, and experience has shown that it is not necessary to put in such a large figure for unforeseen expenditure. Last year we had a sum of Rs. 15 lakhs, which, by the agreement which was made in the year 1921, I believe, with this honourable House, was distributed between the reserved and the transferred departments in the proportion of 9 and 6. If the honourable member will study the budget a little more carefully, he will see that there is a provision next year of Rs. 5 lakhs for the transferred department and Rs. 7 lakhs is the provision for the reserved department. Now, that is merely a provision to prevent us having a deficit at the end of the year. When you have got a budget of the size and complexity of our budget amounting to something like Rs. 20 crores, it is quite impossible to provide for every contingency. But instead of coming to this House and asking for a demand on the balances, we have made an estimate of the total unexpected demands which are likely to come up during the year and we put that in the budget in order that we may not have to draw on the balances at the end of the year, thereby possibly showing a technical deficit. The honourable member is under a misapprehension when he thinks that any of this money can be spent without coming to the House again. This is a sum from which we meet those reappropriations for which we come to you—to this House—from time to time in the form of supplementary demands. If the honourable member will study the supplementary demands which were made during the course of the past year, he will see that after meeting as much as we can from the savings under the departmental heads, we come to the Council for reappropriations from this reserve. We have not always spent the whole of it, and that is why you find that next year we have reduced the sum provided for unexpected expenditure from Rs. 15 lakhs to Rs. 12 lakhs. although we budgetted for Rs. 15 lakhs we have not spent Rs. 15 lakhs during the past year, and we intend next year to do with a smaller sum; we hope we shall be able to do with a smaller sum.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (In Gujarati): Sir, the honourable member the Finance Secretary has explained just now that there is a provision of Rs. 5 lakhs and Rs. 7 lakhs, for the transferred departments and the reserved departments. But the House must know where it is going to be provided, on what objects and where ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member the Finance Secretary does not understand Gujarati. Will the honourable member repeat what he wants to say in Urdu ?

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (In Urdu): I want to ask the honourable member the Finance Secretary where the provision, which he says is made of Rs. 5 lakhs and Rs. 7 lakhs, is going to be made. He says " We are distributing 5 lakhs and 7 lakhs. " I want to know exactly how these amounts are going to be provided or spent. Otherwise, how are we to vote ? Will the honourable member kindly give us this information ?

Mr. G. WILES: I may tell the honourable member, Sir, that whenever a demand is wanted by the departments, we shall come to the House and ask for it. When it is wanted, we come to the House for it.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Sir, the point that arises is this. Out of the Rs. 12 lakhs, Rs. 5 lakhs have been reserved for the transferred departments and as much as Rs. 7 lakhs has been reserved for the reserved departments. As a matter of fact, the figures should have been reversed. I myself, Sir, do not like this policy of keeping in reserve because, out of the reserve, expenditure is incurred by reappropriation by the Government perhaps on objects, the policy or propriety of which is not discussed or not brought before this House in the budget session and it is likely as it has been observed in the past that the expenditure may be incurred on objects which perhaps this House does not like at all. So, if there are some unforeseen charges or expenses, Government should incur the expenditure on their own responsibility and should bring it before the House as a fresh demand for sanction when it meets in October session in Poona. Otherwise, if we allow this item to go on as it is, it is likely that money might be misused or used against the desire or against the settled policy of this honourable House. That is why I support the motion moved by my honourable friend.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE (Bombay City): Sir, I quite understand what the honourable member the Finance Secretary says, that they provide Rs. 7 lakhs for the reserved and Rs. 5 lakhs for the transferred. Do I understand from him that, when he spends this sum out of this "unforeseen" provision, he will come before the House for sanction ?

Mr. G. WILES: Yes.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE: Everything that will be spent will come before the House as a supplementary grant ?

Mr. G. WILES: Yes.

Mr. J. B. PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association): I do not think, Sir, this House ought to waste any further time on this demand. After the very lucid explanation given by the honourable the Finance Secretary it is quite clear that this item of Rs. 5 lakhs is merely reserved for unforeseen contingencies, and that expenditure from this figure is also subject to the further sanction of the House from time to time by way of supplementary grants. I know that on similar grounds, a sum of Rs. 7 lakhs has been set apart for the reserved departments. If that is so, the sum total of both these amounts, viz., Rs. 12 lakhs seems to me to be quite reasonable, having regard to the very large sum which we budget for every year. It is a little more than half per cent. of the total, viz., Rs. 20 crores for which we sanction the budget. That being so, I do not think this House should create any difficulties, because half per cent. of the total is certainly not too big a sum to reserve for unforeseen contingencies. I accordingly think the House will be well advised in accepting the original demand.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI: The honourable member the Finance Secretary stated that this item has been appearing ever since the introduction of the Reforms, but I find from the White Book that this item does not appear in the year 1926-27. It only appears in the current year and in the budget for the next year.

Mr. G. WILES: The explanation is the one I have already given. When we come and ask for further provision in the form of supplementary grants, we take it out of the reserve and put it under the other heads to which it is transferred. Therefore, it appears in the final accounts under those other heads to which it is gradually transferred, and at the end of the year, after all is spent, you won't find it in the budget at all. If you start with a budget grant of 15 lakhs and go on transferring it gradually to other departments, naturally it gets less and less until it is all disbursed. You will find that the other departments show an increase.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, as explained by the honourable member the Finance Secretary, this is a provision for all the transferred departments for unforeseen expenditure, which we cannot anticipate at this time. For instance, all of a sudden we had floods in Gujarat and Sind. We could not, at this time last year, anticipate that we would have floods for which we would have to make provision in advance. To meet such expenses, we must have some reserve at our disposal. I will read out to the honourable House some of the items of expenditure incurred this year:

Expenditure in connection with extra sanitary measures required to be taken as a result of the floods.

Repair of roads and buildings in Gujarat.

Grants made to local boards in Sind owing to floods.

We could not have anticipated all this expenditure at the time of the last budget. I assure the House that there need be no suspicions at all about this item. My honourable friend from Bombay seemed to fear that this money might be used for some propaganda work. Even if it were to be so used, it would have to be placed before this House in the shape of a supplementary demand, and the House then could exercise its vote just as it liked.

Question put and lost.

Question that the demand for Rs. 9,04,000 under 47—Miscellaneous (Transferred) be granted, put and carried.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, I beg to move for a grant of Rs. 12,72,000 under Miscellaneous (Reserved).

Question proposed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I move:

Reduce by two lakhs—Total Demand.

Here also the same difficulty arises, as a very large amount is asked for several miscellaneous unforeseen charges. Last year we provided Rs. 9,01,000 while the revised estimate shows Rs. 4,79,000. I do not know whether they have spent Rs. 4,79,000 under this head or transferred the difference between Rs. 9,01,000 and Rs. 4,79,000 to different heads under which those unforeseen charges have been debited. If they have spent the difference between Rs. 9,01,000 and Rs. 4,79,000, that is, Rs. 4,22,000, then the provision of Rs. 7,01,000 in the next year's budget is a large amount indeed. To place such a large reserve in the hands of Government is nothing but providing them with the temptation to spend the amount because they have merely to come to this House for supplementary demands much later on and so they can meet the expenditure in the expectation that this House will put its seal of approval when the supplementary demand is made. We find that the argument usually made by Government in respect of such supplementary grants is that the money has already been spent and if it is not sanctioned Government will be put into an awkward plight, and such an argument induces some of the honourable members to say " if we do not sanction this amount. His Excellency the Governor will have to certify the expenditure and restore the grant. Why should we put him into such a position ? " And arguing in this way, these honourable members who may not like to resist Government as strongly as other members of the House, proceed to sanction the grant. For these reasons, I think that we should not place such a dangerous weapon in the hands of Government. I remember some remarks were made by the Auditor General to the effect that Government are providing a reserve much larger than what is needed. This time they can very well do with a reduction of two lakhs under this head and I consider that Government should not take a larger reserve for the Reserved Departments than for the Transferred Departments.....

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : May I ask the honourable member to what he referred when he mentioned the name of the Auditor-General or the Accountant-General ? I could not quite understand it.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I remember having read the letter from the Auditor-General while I was a member of the Public Accounts Committee for the year 1925-26 or 1926-27. In that letter from the Auditor-General he had drawn special attention of Government to the fact that large reserves were being provided under Miscellaneous Heads and said that such a procedure was not necessary, because Government were at liberty to come to the Council for getting additional expenditure sanctioned as provided for in the Bombay Legislative Council Rules themselves. What I object to is that Government should, as a matter of every day practice, first incur expenditure which is not sanctioned and then try to get that expenditure confirmed by means of a re-appropriation from some other head and then ask this honourable House to grant them supplementary demands. Therefore, it is necessary not to place this blank cheque in the hands of Government, as it would be a temptation to them to incur the expenditure and then come to this House for a supplementary demand. I think it will be a reasonable demand, even according to the principles enunciated by the Auditor-General and the Accountant General, that this reserve should not be placed at a very high figure, and there is every practicability and possibility of cutting down this provision by Rs. 2 lakhs, and providing only Rs. 5 lakhs as reserve instead of Rs. 7 lakhs. Moreover, the provision of reserve for the transferred departments is 5 lakhs and there is no reason why the reserved departments should be given an amount higher than the transferred departments. The reserved departments should, therefore, not have more than 5 lakhs and we should cut down this provision by two lakhs.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Gujarati): Mr. President, I want some information.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. I would advise the honourable member to go back to his Urdu.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Hindustani): Sir, on page 267 of the Civil Estimates, I find there is an item of Rs. 5,000 for Durbar presents and allowances to vakils. I should like to know where this Durbar is held, and who holds it, and what these presents are.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM (Bombay Chamber of Commerce): Sir, the honourable member who has moved this cut appears to be under a misapprehension. He would like this House to suppose that, by reducing this sum of Rs. 7 lakhs to Rs. 5 lakhs, Rs. 2 lakhs of expenditure will be saved. But, as has already been pointed out, this is not a fact. No expenditure will be incurred from this sum without coming to the House. I do not know what influences Government to put the figure at Rs. 7 lakhs, but the position is the same whether it is Rs. 7 lakhs or Rs. 5 lakhs. Presumably, the figure of Rs. 7 lakhs is based on some average of previous years, but no money can be spent out of this sum without Government coming to the House for a supplementary demand. Therefore, it seems necessary to make it clear that by reducing this amount by Rs. 2 lakhs no expenditure will be saved.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City): Sir, with regard to the item on which my honourable friend desires a cut of Rs. 2 lakhs, it will be seen from page 267 of the White Book that the whole of the expenditure from items A to P comes to Rs. 11,72,000.

An Honourable MEMBER: Is that before the House?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member may get up later, after having made sure of his facts.

Mr. M. D. KARKI (Kanara District): Sir, I had no mind to speak on this motion, but as I find that there is an item for the destruction of wild animals, I would like to speak a few words on the subject, as it vitally concerns my constituency. I must thank the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan for having given me an opportunity of ventilating my views on the subject on the floor of this House.

Sir, the nuisance caused by wild animals in Kanara is becoming more and more serious as days go by. In the second Council of this honourable House, I brought this to your notice, Sir, while you were in charge of the Forest and Agricultural Departments, and also I put various questions, so that the attention of Government may be drawn to the very serious state of things that is prevailing there. But before you could do anything, you were out of office, and the same state of things still continues without being in any way redressed. While the carnivora are threatening the very existence, that is to say, the very life and safety of the people as well as of the cattle of the district, the other animals, such as the pig, the elephant and the monkey, are becoming a terror and a menace to the cultivators. The loss done by the carnivora to the cattle of the district is immense. I would point out to this honourable House one or two recent occurrences and bring to its notice how life is risky in the district of Kanara on account of the carnivora. The Sub-Assistant Surgeon of Supa was attacked by a tiger in the month of July 1927. I may inform this House that he was attacked in the dispensary buildings. And at what time ? At 5 a.m., early in the morning in the month of July 1927.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : You asked a question and Government gave a reply.

Mr. M. D. KARKI : Yes. A question was asked in the Council and Government have replied that the Sub-Assistant Surgeon was attacked in the dispensary building at 5 a.m. They have not indicated how the tiger happened to be in the dispensary building, whether as an in-door patient, or an inspector, or whether it stealthily crept into the building because the doors were kept open for ventilation. On the whole, it is not known how the animal went into the dispensary building and attacked the Sub-Assistant Surgeon at an early hour of the day. Sir, thereby, he, the Sub-Assistant Surgeon, was prevented from attending to his duties for 15 days. There was no medical aid available, because he himself was attacked, and he had to be taken to Belgaum for treatment, which is a place 40 miles away from Supa. I will give one more instance, which is of very recent occurrence, that is only last month. In the town of Karwar a tiger 6 feet in length happened to be in the compound of a resident whose name is Murari Bayaji Borkar. It was on the 5th February 1928. This tiger had caused immense loss to the people, and it was indeed a terror. Fowls and calves were easy prey to it and nobody could face it. Even in a town like Karwar, which is the headquarters of the district, nobody responsible to the welfare of ryots cared to kill this tiger, which was really working immense havoc. When the tiger entered the compound of this gentleman, he was quite helpless. He thought that the lives of the inmates of his house were in grave danger. With all that, he took courage, and shot it on that very day, that is to say, on the 5th of February 1928. Now, Sir, Karwar is not a forest town, it is not a forest village. It is a non-forest town and a coastal town. If, Sir, even in a town like Karwar, which is the headquarters of the district, tigers do come and work mischief, I want to know whether life in Kanara is safe. One more instance ; with that I will have done. Last year this time I was informed by the inmates of my house that a beautiful calf—a she-calf—of my dear cow which I had fed and cared with love and affection was devoured by a panther within the compound of my house. (An honourable Member : Where, at what place?) Sir, at Karki. Karki is a non-forest village and a coastal village. If this is to happen in a village of that type in these days of civilisation and benign Government, it is nothing but a misfortune.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM: I rise to a point of order. I want to know whether tigers in Kanara are a transferred subject or reserved subject. If it is a transferred subject, should it not have come in the previous vote?

Mr. M. D. KARKI: It comes under reserved. (An Honourable Member: Unforeseen item.)

I have now given three concrete instances simply to show to this honourable House how risky is the life of cattle and mankind in the district of Kanara. I want the Honourable Member in charge to explain whether he has been spending any amount under this head for the destruction of tigers either in Kanara or in the rest of the whole presidency. I will now come to the figures as to how many tigers were killed in Kanara in the 3 years period of 1923, 1924 and 1925. In the year 1923, 18 tigers were killed; in the year 1924, 24 tigers were killed; and in the year 1925, 37 tigers were killed. But in the statements that have been sent to the honourable members it is not stated whether rewards were given for killing tigers. I think no rewards are given for tiger-killing. The statements too are silent on the point. The reason for this is not far to seek. Government want that tigers should multiply and multiply, because they want them for their hunting excursions. They think that Kanara is a nice place for pastime and merry-making. I know that Government officers of high or low rank go to Kanara on hunting excursions once or twice during the term of their office. I remember, Sir, when you were in charge of the Forest portfolio you had an occasion to visit Kanara on this hunting excursion. His Excellency the Governor visited Kanara in 1925 on a hunting excursion and it is also now rumored that he will be coming there in the month of April. For the sake of these officers and that too for making merriment, is it right on the part of Govenment to keep the population of Kanara in such a risky and unhappy condition and to make Kanara a place for play and pastime for them.

I now come to game rules. These rules have not been changed to suit the wishes of the people and Government do not want the people of Kanara to kill tigers wherever they are found. They want that their officers should go there on pleasure trips and shoot them. Most probably the figures just given by me include the tigers killed by the officers. That is not in my opinion the policy which Government should pursue. I would therefore request in the interest of the Kanara population that Government should take early measures to extirpate the tiger from the forests of Kanara. This can be done very easily by relaxing game rules and giving handsome rewards for killing tigers wherever they are found. The extirpation of tigers will increase the happiness of the people. This is with regard to carnivora.

I now come to the wild animals which cause immense loss to the cultivators. The loss caused by pigs is immense indeed. It comes to the neighbourhood of Rs. 8,00,000 a year. This figure has been worked out by a committee, known as the crop protection committee, appointed in the year 1922. The report was submitted in 1923 and Government reviewed the report in 1924 and issued a resolution that effective measures would be taken by them to put down the ravages by pigs. But I submit that nothing substantial has been done so far and the long standing grievance of the people remains unredressed still. In your time, you appointed a committee, Sir, to inquire into the grievances of the ryots with regard to forest matters. That committee has submitted a report and has fully dealt with the question under reference, that is, the ravages by wild animals. It is high time now that the Honourable Minister of Forest should give effect to the recommendation of the non-official members of that committee. When His Excellency visited my constituency this time, the ryots of Sirsi, Siddhapur and Yellapur represented to him that unless relief is given to them in that respect cultivation would be impossible. With regard to the wild elephants, this is a grievance of a recent origin. It was only in 1903 that wild elephants appeared in Kanara; and this incursion has proved a misfortune to the country. Two or three years ago all the talukas of the above-ghat, namely, Sirsi, Siddhapur, Yellapur and Supa were suffering wholesale from this pest. Some talukas in the below-ghat, however, were immune from the inroads of wild elephants. Now almost all talukas in the district are affected. This time I had asked a question in this session as to the damage caused by wild elephants in Karwar Taluka. Very recently some elephants appeared, invaded some villages, and destroyed the crops in Karwar Taluka, the damage amounting to Rs. 1,381. This is an estimate made by Government which does not always agree with that of the people. Any way Government have admitted there was damage and the amount is not insignificant. This damage was caused by two or three elephants in two or three days if I am right. Wherever there are inroads of elephants there is total destruction of crops. Reports of inroads of wild elephants are heard in each and every taluka every hour, every day and every month. Government in 1924 while reviewing the report of the crop protection committee promised that organised efforts would be made to extirpate wild elephants pest from the district of Kanara. I regret to say, Sir, that no such efforts have been made since then. I put a direct question to Government in the year 1924; if I remember right, I wanted to know what effective measures had been undertaken by Government as promised by them in their Resolution. The answer was:

"A reward at different scales was sanctioned for each elephant killed. Rs. 600 were paid as reward for killing 8 elephants in 1921, but the payment of reward was discontinued subsequently owing to financial stringency. In 1919 a special rifle was purchased from the grant of the Agricultural Department and entrusted to a shikari at Honawar. He killed 3 elephants from 1919 till the end of 1922. No more elephants were shot by him and hence the rifle was transferred to a shikari in Kumta. No other measures were adopted for the destruction of wild elephants."

Sir, I want to emphasise the words "no other measures." Is it fair on the part of Government to promise a thing and not to do it afterwards. Have they not promised that organised efforts would be made to extirpate these wild beasts from Kanara to save the population from the ravages of these beasts. Was "appointing one or two shikaris" an organised effort? At one time it was also proposed that whenever there was an outbreak of the inroads of these wild elephants, military officers should be sent out to shoot them. I am sorry to find that no step has been taken in that direction also. It is not known where and when there will be an outbreak. It may be in a village or it may be in a town even. When a tiger can come to a town and visit a dispensary building, why should it not be possible for elephants also to come? Since 1923, no effort has been made to kill wild elephants and to give relief to the poor agriculturists. According to the figures available from Government records, in 1923 one elephant was shot; in 1924, 2 elephants; and in 1925, 3 elephants. As can be seen from the reply given by the Honourable Minister--you, Sir, were the Minister then, and it was you who gave us the reply,—Rs. 600 was distributed as reward for killing 8 elephants in 1921. But since 1921 the practice of distributing rewards in that fashion was discontinued. In 1925 a small sum of Rs. 100 was spent for killing 3 elephants; in 1924 no amount was given; in 1923 only Rs. 18. Is that not a paltry sum when compared to the ravages committed by the wild elephants? I would ask the Honourable House to hear me patiently when I give a few figures and see how indifferent the Government are becoming on this vital point. The amount spent on this head (that is, rewards for destruction of wild animals) in 1920-21 was Rs. 2,226; in 1921-22 Rs. 5,900—the Government was generous at that time, because the interest of the agriculturists was at their heart—in 1922-23 Rs. 111—see the contrast —in 1923-24, Rs. 24—only Rs. 24 out of a budgetted amount of thousands—in 1924-25, Rs. 25; in 1925-26, Rs. 289; in 1926-27, Rs. 685. The accounts of the year 1927-28 are not available, but there was an amount of Rs. 1,000 budgetted; in the revised estimate also Rs. 1,000 is shown. The actual amount spent is not shown. So far as I know, nothing real has been done to allay the distress in Kanara. For 1928-29 an amount of Rs. 1,000 is being budgetted. I submit that this amount is very meagre if we compare it with the amount actually spent in 1921-22, that is Rs. 5,900. An amount in the neighbourhood of Rs. 8,000 was budgetted at that time and Rs. 5,900 was spent. I therefore request the honourable members of this House to bear me out when I say that Government have not been taking any keen interest in the agriculturists of Kanara. The whole population of Kanara is mainly dependent on agriculture; there is no other industry worth the name there. If Government do not take any real measures to help those agriculturists who suffer from the ravages of wild beasts, their conditions will go still worse.

Sir, one word more with regard to wild pigs; there was a practice in vogue in Kanara to give a reward of four annas or eight annas a tail to those who kill them. Somehow or other this reward was being paid in the past. I do not know if that practice still continues, but from the figures available from Government records it appears that Government have discontinued paying any rewards to ryots who kill wild pig. I submit that the practice of distributing rewards should be revived in the interests of the agriculturists. (Mr. P. R. Chikodi: How much amount should be paid per pig ?) Any decent amount per tail. The number of pigs killed, according to figures from Government records, was as follows: In 1923, 956 " other animals " (that is pigs and buffaloes) were killed, but no amount was given as reward. In 1924, the ryots of Kanara killed 766 pigs, and only Rs. 2-8-0 was distributed as reward; in the year 1925, 879 pigs were killed, and for this Rs. 101 was given as reward. The smallness of the amounts thus distributed shows how callous the persons responsible for the good administration of Kanara are. There is no other means under the present circumstances of getting our grievances redressed than representing the matter to the Government. In the second Council I tried my best to bring to the notice of the Honourable Members in charge of the administration the various grievances, especially the ravages caused by wild beasts. I regret nothing substantial has been done in that behalf. Unless and until we are protected from the ravages, we are not safe and we cannot maintain ourselves honestly. That is our position in Kanara.

In conclusion I would simply sound a note of warning to Government. I have repeatedly requested them to come to our help, but they have not done so. I would, therefore, simply say that unless and until Government take a very serious step in the direction of getting the grievances redressed, Kanara would go to such a point that it would be impossible to regain it afterwards. I do not know what will be the state of affairs of the agriculturists and of the people, if agriculture is not encouraged. I, therefore, leave it to this honourable House to see and suggest means, as they like, to Government to take earnest and possible measures to avert the miseries and to help the people of Kanara.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South): Sir, I think under this head I will attempt to provoke a discussion on a subject, which so far as this side (non-official) is concerned it is most anxious to take the opportunity to debate on.

I find, Sir, under the head of " charges on account of vagrants " a sum of Rs. 12,000 has been provided. I also know that it is intended for European vagrants, but I would make it clear absolutely that I do not grudge the grant of this sum at all, because it has to be given to European vagrants. I would not take objection for this amount, because it is meant for those who are needy, whether European or Indian. What I would say is this. The honourable members of this House are aware that under the special Act called the European Vagrancy Act, when an European is found loitering about the street, a search is made by an European Officer and if he does not find any money with that man and if he has no residence he is placed before a magistrate and after obtaining the magistrate's permission, he is kept in the work house. Then all efforts are made to get him employed either in the shipping office or elsewhere. Till then he is provided with food, etc. I again say that I do not grudge that, because it is meant for Europeans alone. But I do want to ask the honourable members of this House and the responsible officers of Government whether the time has not come to consider and start such a similar organisation to solve the big problem of the Indian unemployment. This is a most important question which ought to be brought before this House for discussion. Nobody will deny that this is a most important question. And I assure my honourable friend on the opposite side that this House, instead of Rs. 12,000, will be willing to grant even Rs. 12 lakhs or more out of a budget of Rs. 15 crores, if they think seriously of starting an organisation. It is the primary duty of the State to solve this question of unemployment. What has this Government done to solve this problem? They have started Labour Office and the Labour Department. And what is that Labour Office doing? Is it solving in the slightest degree the question of Indian unemployment? I say 'no.' It only collects facts and figures and when they are placed before the public, we are really sorry to read at times that there are so many hundreds and thousands, so many graduates and under-graduates, so many M.A.s and LL.B.s loitering about the street from door to door seeking for an employment. I do not know whether it is the experience of the other side of this House (official), but it is our experience that there is much unemployment. We have been receiving letters from the youths of this city requesting us to do something for them to find an employment. They say "We have been unable to get employment either on account of the conditions of trade and commerce or the retrenchment in the Government offices or commercial firms; we have been going from door to door but we are unable to get it." Therefore, I ask: "Who can take up that question except the State?".....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. I should like to know one thing from the honourable member. It is this. I think he bases his speech on the item of Rs. 12,000 shown on page 267. Does he differentiate between "the unemployed" and "the vagrants"?

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: I take, Sir, the European vagrants,—although they are described as "vagrants",—as unemployed persons. You are aware, Sir, that when a European officer of the Government finds an European vagrant loitering about the street, he takes charge of that man and keeps him in the work house till he gets employed either in the shipping office or elsewhere. Till then he is provided with food and clothes. I, therefore, say, Sir, that some such arrangement should be made for Indians who are unemployed. In view of the Indian unemployment, I would not call them vagrants, though the position is the same, I would ask Government whether they have contemplated to start any organisation for the purpose. If they have, then I may state that this side of the House will be too willing to give them not only Rs. 12,000 but even Rs. 12 lakhs.....

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, I rise to a point of order. I regret I find it somewhat difficult to understand how my honourable friend's remarks, which he is making at present, are within the scope of this demand. As has just now been pointed out by you, Sir, the item of Rs. 12,000 is for European vagrants who are controlled by a specific Act of 1874. Under that Act provision has got to be made, and this provision has been made. It has nothing to do with unemployment, and I do not see, Sir, how a debate on unemployment can take place on this item. The honourable member says this is the only occasion on which he can enter on this discussion. I think, Sir, that there will be occasions later.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Under what head?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Both in the budget and under the resolutions. There are resolutions, Sir, to this effect and I imagine the head Miscellaneous—37 pertains to this question where it might perhaps come under the Labour Office. But, surely, the honourable member will be able to discover some place where he can bring up this debate. But whether he can or not, I do not think, Sir, he can raise that debate on this question.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I think the discussion started will be admitted on either side of the House to be one of the most important debates that could be held in this House. But, as I said, it is a question whether this debate could pertinently be raised under this particular head. The Honourable the Leader of the House has not been able to tell me whether the European "vagrant" is an unemployed European or he is a man without any ostensible means of subsistence and suspected to be not of the right character.....

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Nothing to do with character, Sir. It is only a question whether he is able to maintain himself.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, the word "vagrant" is defined in the Act. "Vagrant" means "a person of European extraction found asking for alms or wandering about without any employment or visible means of subsistence." I submit, Sir, that "vagrant" is very well known to be something different from this unemployed about whom the honourable member is speaking.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I thought when the honourable member raised the discussion that he was coming to the question of beggars we see in the streets, or of people who go about begging. But, at the same time, here in the definition read there is the word "unemployed".

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: He must voluntarily be moving about without seeking employment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Quite so. I mean the instances given by the honourable member of graduates and many other members of the Indian communities who are about without employment would not strictly come under that definition. But the honourable member wants to know whether there is any other head under which he could raise the debate.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Under 47-A there is a distinct provision for Helpless Beggars Relief Committee, Bombay. An unemployed is not a beggar.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Of course, not. That is just the thing I am trying to point out, and, therefore, it cannot come under 47.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Whether it can come under some other head I am at the moment unable, Sir, to point out more definitely than I have indicated. But the honourable member is aware that the Labour Office was preparing the reports about the unemployed. Possibly it might come under that head. I am unable just now at a moment's notice to point out any other head under which it can come.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I would adjourn the matter here and adjourn the House, and I would like the honourable member himself to go into the question and, if necessary, take the help of the Honourable the Leader of the House by Monday. I would then definitely rule one way or the other on Monday. The House is, therefore, adjourned now till 1 o'clock on Monday, the 5th March 1928.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Questions.

MARKET, SHOLAPUR

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN (Poona and Sholapur Cities): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Hindus have opened a private market at Sholapur City in Shete's wada without the sanction of the Collector or the Municipality exclusively for the use of the Hindu community thus boycotting the Muslims;

(b) whether it is a fact that if the new market be allowed to continue, the Municipality would suffer to the extent of Rs. 5 to 7 thousand a year;

(c) whether they propose to take any steps in the matter?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) Yes.

(b) Yes. The Municipality will probably suffer to the extent of Rs. 2 to 3 thousand a year.

(c) No complaint has so far been made to the District Officers and Government do not consider it expedient to take steps in the matter. It is for the Municipality to take steps as it is mainly concerned.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: I did make a complaint to the district officer not once but twice on behalf of the Muslims. Why did not Government interfere on our behalf?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: If the House wishes me to interfere with local bodies oftener than we have been doing, I am prepared to do so.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: I complained to the district officer twice.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: When?

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: As soon as the market was opened.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I will make enquiries.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: Is not Government going to protect the rights of the minorities?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Yes, if there is a representation from the people concerned.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: The Hindus opened the market without the Collector's permission or the permission of the municipality exclusively for the use of the Hindu community thus boycotting the Muslims. Is not Government going to preserve the rights of the Muslims—loyal Muslims—of that city?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : If I interfere on behalf of the Muslims, the Hindus will ask me to do so on their behalf. I would like this House to lay down the policy which I should follow.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN : Had they taken sanction before opening the market ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : The reply is very clear on the point.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : Is the Collector's sanction necessary ?

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN : Yes.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Has not the honourable member or any person a remedy in a civil or criminal court against opening an unauthorized market ?

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Has the Honourable Minister carried on any correspondence with the Collector in regard to this matter ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : This is the first time I know about it.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Will the Honourable Minister kindly do so now ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I want notice for it.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : The question is already there and I do not see why any notice is necessary.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Very well, I will make enquiries.

Mr. M. G. BHOSLE (West Khandesh District) : Will the Honourable the Minister for Education be pleased to state—

(a) how many Historical, Scientific and Literary Societies exist in the Bombay Presidency, and what funds those Societies possess and what their financial condition is ;

(b) whether Government have given any contribution to those Societies—

(ii) No contribution has been given to any Society towards the printing or publication of historical documents or papers.

HISTORICAL RESEARCH

Mr. M. G. BHOSLE (West Khandesh District): Will the Honourable the Leader of the House be pleased to state—

(a) whether Government have up-to-now spent any money for the examination and publication of important documents in the Peshwa Daftar which is at present in the custody and charge of the Commissioner, Central Division;

(b) whether Government intend to take any steps and spend any money for opening a special Department for carrying on the examination and publication of these documents?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: (a) No.

(b) No.

DEVASTHANS: ACCOUNTS

Mr. S. C. JOSHI on behalf of Mr. S. K. BOLE: Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they receive statements of accounts of income and expenditure from the devasthans which receive Government aid in some form or another;

(b) if so, whether these accounts are published for the information of the public?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

RAILWAY PROJECT: KONKAN COAST

Mr. S. C. JOSHI on behalf of Mr. S. K. BOLE: Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether any survey was made by Mr. Mirkar for running a railway on the Konkan coast;

(b) whether the scheme was approved by the Railway Board and if so, why it was dropped.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Mr. G. A. Mirkar at various times presented applications to the Railway Board for a concession for the construction of a railway on the broad gauge from Bombay to Alibag and Revdanda via Sion, with four branch lines from (1) Jaskhar to Uran, (2) Koproli to Karanja Creek, (3) Bhalpuri to Vadkhal and (4) Varsoli to Alibag ;

(b) As Mr. Mirkar was considered not to have sufficient financial backing to enable him to undertake the project successfully the Railway Board were not prepared to enter into negotiations with him for the grant of a concession.

MILLOWNERS : WORKMEN'S HOUSING AND WELFARE WORK

Mr. S. C. JOSHI on behalf of Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state--

(a) whether they have asked the millowners to give effect to the recommendations of the Indian Tariff Bord as regards housing and welfare work in respect of their workmen ;

(b) how many and what millowners have given effect to the said recommendations of the Tariff Board and in what way ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) and (b) The Tariff Board was appointed by the Government of India and the report submitted by the Board is on the whole for the consideration of that Government. The recommendations mentioned in part (a) of the question are included in paragraphs 59-71 of the Report. Most of these recommendations do not call for any official action, as the initiative in such matters rests with the millowners.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Is the welfare of labour a central or a provincial subject ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : It is a provincial subject.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : The answer is not quite clear to me. Is the Government of India now considering the report or is it left to their sweet choice whether or not to consider it ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : The report is under the consideration of the Government of India.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : If the millowners do not take the initiative, why should not Government force them to take the initiative ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : If the honourable member reads the recommendations made in paragraphs 59 to 71, he will realise that the answer given is a correct one.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Next question.

BEGGAR NUISANCE : LEGISLATION

Mr. S. C. JOSHI on behalf of Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state whether they intend to introduce legislation to check the beggar nuisance in the City of Bombay and in the other parts of the Presidency, and if so, when ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : No definite reply can be given until Mr. Starte's report in regard to the prevention of professional beggary which is at present under the consideration of Government has been disposed of.

FISHERMEN AT ANJANWEL

Mr. S. C. JOSHI on behalf of Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the fishermen of the village of Anjanwel in the Ratnagiri District have been asked by the Sarkarkun of that place to remove their row or kav ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative the reasons therefor ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the said fishermen have been fishing there for a long time ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) The fishermen of this village are divided into three factions :—

(1) Rohilkars,

(2) (i) Veldurkars, and

(ii) Ghubadwadkars,

(3) Vankars.

of these the Veldurkars were so asked.

(b) The Rohilkars having complained that, contrary to the usual practice, the Veldurkars had placed their fishing nets in front of their own line the Sarkarkun, Dabhol, warned them to remove their nets from the front line. The Veldurkars thereupon made a representation to the Collector of Salt Revenue who directed the Sarkarkun not to interfere, holding this to be a private dispute between the two parties which could best be decided by a Civil Court.

(c) Yes, but in the second row.

TAGAVI : FLOODED AREAS, GUJARAT

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have decided to write off the tagavi loans issued to the cultivators of the Matar Taluka during the years before the flood ;

(b) the amount of tagavi due from the cultivators of that taluka before the floods and the new tagavi issued to them since the flood ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) No.

(b) The outstanding amount of tagavi advanced before the floods is Rs. 83,906-12-0 including interest amounting to Rs. 1,018-3-0. Since the floods an amount of Rs. 1,32,578 has been advanced as tagavi.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : With regard to (a), may I know the reason why Government have given a reply in the negative ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Because that is correct.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : May I know the reasons which led Government to come to the conclusion not to write off the tagavi advanced ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : There has been no proposal that it should be written off.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Is not the heavily indebted condition of the people itself reason enough for writing them off ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : No.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Then, what are the conditions under which tagavi is being written off ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : That does not arise out of the question.

CIVIL WORKS : PROTECTION OF KAIRA

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether any amount has been spent from the sum of Rs. 25,000 sanctioned by the Council for the protection of the Kaira town from the inroads of the Vatrak river ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : No expenditure has yet been incurred on the work out of the provision of Rs. 25,000, as the question of constructing a causeway, which it was thought would obviate the necessity of constructing the groynes proposed, has been under consideration.

Since the above answer was printed I may inform the honourable member that we have now abandoned the idea of constructing a causeway, and we are, after the floods, going to construct groynes.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Government have abandoned the idea of constructing a causeway ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Yes, for the present.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : May I know why no such convenience as a causeway is given to the people of Kaira ? Are they giving less than the other people ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I would ask for notice of the question.

BRIDGES IN KAIRA DISTRICT

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that Government have not constructed any bridge as yet in the Kaira District ;

(b) if so, when the work of bridging the rivers in that district will be undertaken ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) No. Government have constructed seven bridges.

(b) Does not arise.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Only a few days back the reply from Government in regard to this very question was that Government have not constructed any bridges. How is it that subsequently I am given this information ? Which information is correct ? This answer or the former answer ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Will the honourable member kindly refer to the former answer ?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : I have not got it here, but I am speaking from memory. I would like to know whether the former reply is correct, or the present one ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I think the honourable member knows much better than myself.

THE HARVEY-NARIMAN CASE

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Will Government be pleased to state :—

(a) the total expenditure incurred from the Provincial Funds on the Harvey-Nariman Case including Solicitors' and Counsel's fees.

(b) whether it is a fact that Mr. Harvey had left the country before the judgment in his case was delivered ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) Rs. 60,800.

(b) Yes ; with the permission of the Court.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Before Mr. Harvey left service, had he taken the permission of Government, his creditors ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : He had taken leave.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Had Government sanctioned that leave ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Yes.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Before his departure, had Government assured themselves about the recoupment of this amount, if it was proved that there was negligence or rather corruption in the Development Department ? Have Government taken any guarantee from Mr. Harvey about the recoupment of the amount ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That question was asked and answered before.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : I ask whether Government had taken any guarantee from Mr. Harvey as to the amount of Rs. 60,000.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Quite so. If I remember correctly at the last session, a question was asked about this, and there were supplementary questions and they were all answered.

LAND IN SATARA FOR TATA COMPANY : COMPENSATION

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that Messrs. Tata Sons, Limited, have made an offer of Rs. 30 lakhs to Government for the sum required to be paid as compensation to the owners of lands which are required by the company for their scheme in the Satara District although the details of the villages and the area that will be covered by it are not yet made known to Government themselves ;

(b) whether they will be pleased to lay on the table all the available information before the scheme is considered by them ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) and (b) Messrs. Tata have submitted a scheme to Government but it has not yet been examined. Government are therefore unable to make any statement on the subject for the present, or to lay any papers on the table.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : I learn that the preliminary work of acquisition is going on, and this offer of Rs. 30 lakhs is made by the company.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The honourable member has made a statement ; he has not asked any question.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Will Government be pleased to state whether the offer made by Messrs. Tata Sons, Ltd., of Rs. 30 lakhs. for the acquisition of the land is true or not ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I can only refer the honourable member to the reply already given. I have no further statement to make.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : In the reply it is stated that Government are not going to make any statement. I want to know whether Government have received that offer.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I have no further reply to make.

LEPER HOSPITAL, SHIRALA

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased—

(a) to lay on the table a copy of the conditions on which the old office of the Mahalkari of Shirala is given to Dr. Ellis ;

(b) to state whether the building is not quite in the vicinity of Shirala town ;

(c) to state whether they have taken the advice of health experts as to whether lepers and hospitals for lepers should be allowed to remain so close to the town ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) The following Resolution (Government Resolution, Public Works Department, No. 289-27, dated 28th October 1927) was issued on the subject :—

" RESOLUTION—The American Presbyterian Mission should be allowed temporarily to occupy, free of charge, the old Mahalkari's kacheri at Shirala, or such part of it as the Collector of Satara consider necessary, for use as a leper clinic, subject to the condition that the Mission shall be responsible for carrying out any necessary repairs to the building at their own expense. "

(b) The building is out side the town of Shirala, at its southernmost extremity and in an isolated position. A nalla intervenes between this building and the town.

(c) The orders mentioned in clause (a) above were issued after the locality had been inspected by an officer of the Public Health Department and after consulting the Director of Public Health, who was of opinion that the use of the building as a leper clinic would not be attended with any danger to public health.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Is it true that the nalla referred to in (c) is used by the people of the town to take water for drinking and for washing their clothes ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I would ask for notice of the question.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : It is stated in the reply that there is a nalla ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : A nalla might be used for several other purposes, and not necessarily for washing.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Will Government reconsider the matter and give the building to the district local board for educational purposes ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : That question does not arise.

COLLECTOR OF THANA : ATTENDANCE AND INTERVIEWS

Sardar G. N. MUJUMDAR on behalf of Mr. N. R. GUNJAL (Poona District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Collector of Thana does not attend office generally but works at home and that this causes much inconvenience to the visitors and his subordinates ;

(b) whether it is a fact that any Muhammadan has easy access to the Collector of Thana while any gentleman other than a Muhammadan and even his subordinates have to wait for a long time before they get access to him ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) It is a fact that the Collector has not been attending office regularly. In view of the possibility of inconvenience being caused by his practice of working at his bungalow the Commissioner has directed him to attend his office regularly. Government approve the Commissioner's action.

(b) Neither the Commissioner nor Government have any reason to believe that this allegation is true and it is not known what information the Honourable Member has which would justify him in bringing it forward.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : In view of the insidious attempt that is made of throwing mud upon the character of an eminent public officer, may I ask whether, Government, with the reliable information which they at present possess can assure the House that the allegation in the latter part of the question is entirely false ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : In the absence of any evidence of any sort as to their truth, Government presume that the allegations are entirely false.

SCHOOL BOARD, SATARA DISTRICT: ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether by their Resolution No. 3651, dated the 1st June 1926, they approved the rules prescribing the qualification for the post of administrative officer of the School Board of Satara District;

(b) whether they will place a copy of those rules on the Council table;

(c) whether it is a fact that the school board of that district recommended Mr. Yavale for the administrative officer's post and that he was accordingly appointed by the district local board of Satara;

(d) whether it is a fact that the appointment was not approved by Government;

(e) the reasons for their decision?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) Yes.

(b) A copy of the rules in question is placed on the Council table.

(c) Yes.

(d) Yes.

(e) The candidate selected by the District Local Board was considered too inexperienced to hold a post of such importance as that of a School Board Administrative Officer of a District Local Board.

Rules referred to in clause (b) of the reply

1. * * * *

2. Qualifications.—No person shall be appointed as Administrative Officer, unless he possesses the following qualifications:—

(i) A degree from any recognised University; and in addition

(ii) any one of the following qualifications:—

(a) Secondary Teachers' Certificate or Secondary Training College Diploma, or B. T. Degree or any Diploma equivalent to it; or

(b) Ten years' experience as a teacher in a recognised High School, or (c) At least two years' administrative experience in the Educational Department as a Deputy or as an Assistant Deputy Educational Inspector.

BARSI LIGHT RAILWAY: ACCIDENTS

Mr. S. C. JOSHI: Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the details of accidents and injuries to persons, cattle and property that have occurred in connection with the working of trains of the Barsi Light Railway Company since 1910;

(b) what precautionary measures have so far been adopted and what further measures, if any, are intended to be adopted for the purpose of preventing such accidents and injuries?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) A statement showing the number of accidents to human beings and cattle on the Barsi Light Railway from the year 1912 is attached. The Agent, Barsi Light Railway Company reports that the information for the years 1910 and 1911 is not available.

As regards the 14 accidents to human beings during 1926-27, which shows a large increase over previous years, it is reported that 4 were caused by passengers jumping from trains in motion, one of whom died eventually, one blind man was killed when trying to cross the line, one was a case of suicide, and one blind boy fell out of a train in motion. Two passengers were injured by the door of a wagon, 4 railway servants were injured in the course of their duties and one was killed by falling off a bridge. The large number of cattle injured in 1926-27 was due to the bad monsoon of the previous year which caused a greater number of cattle than usual to trespass on railway lands where the grass is better than elsewhere.

As regards damage to property other than cattle, two bullock carts were damaged when trying to cross the line.

(b) The Agent, Barsi Light Railway Company, reports that electric head lights have been fitted to many of the engines, and as they have proved satisfactory the remaining engines will soon be fitted with these head-lights.

Statement showing the number of accidents to human beings and cattle on the Barsi Light Railway from the year 1912

	Human	Cattle
1912-13	..	26

1924-25	5	16
1925-26	7	7
1926-27	14	27

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : As regards the reply to clause (b), will the Honourable Member be pleased to say since how long the agent of the Barsi Light Railway has been trying the use of the electric head lights for the engines ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I have no information on the point, but presumably since quite recently.

CIVIL COURTS, SATARA DISTRICT : STAFF

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : With reference to the answer to my question asked on the 13th October 1927 and printed at page 784 of the Bombay Council Debates, Volume XXI, will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have come to any decision in the matter of the clerical staff required for the civil courts in the Satara District ;

(b) if so, what their decision is ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Will the Honourable Member be pleased to state whether Government would expedite the matter ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : That is the question that is very often asked. In this case, as in others, it is impossible to give a definite answer.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : I want to know whether Government will expedite the matter.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : The question does not appear to be one of very great importance. I have no reason to suppose that any special steps should be taken to expedite it. It will be disposed of in the ordinary course.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT, PATAN : ALLOWANCES

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Will Government be pleased to state whether they propose to sanction bad climate allowance and house-rent allowance to the members of the Judicial Department at Patan in the Satara District as they have, to those of the Police Department ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : There is no proposal to this effect before Government at present.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Has Government considered the proposals ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : There is no proposal to be considered.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : These places are bad climate places, and as such will Government be pleased to consider the proposal ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That is a suggestion. From a question a suggestion cannot be taken up by Government. There are other ways to approach Government in that matter.

PRIMARY TEACHERS : SURVE COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATIONS

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have given effect to the recommendation in the report of the Surve Committee regarding the grant of allowance to teachers in particular places ;

(b) whether their attention has been drawn to the fact that in the Thana District the teachers stand in need of some extra remuneration in view of the unhealthy condition and the high cost of living in certain places of that district ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) In view of the transfer of control of primary education to local authorities in most of the districts, it is primarily for those authorities to take the initiative in the matter of local allowances. Provision for the grant of such allowances exists in the Primary Education Rules, 1924.

(b) Yes ; but the proposals of the District Local Board in the matter have not yet reached Government.

SEAMEN'S RECRUITMENT : BROKER SYSTEM

Mr. LALJI NARANJI (Indian Merchants' Chamber) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that the system of brokers for the supply of Indian seamen in Bombay has been causing considerable hardship to Indian seamen ;

(b) if the answer to (a) be in the affirmative, the steps they have taken or propose to take to protect Indian seamen from the iniquities of such a system ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) Allegations to this effect have been made to Government.

(b) Proposals are under the consideration of Government for transferring to the Shipping Office, Bombay, the Brokers' work of maintaining the Register of Butlers and Serangs.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : With reference to (a), may I know whether the allegations made are correct ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I am afraid I cannot state definitely whether they were correct or incorrect, but Government did examine these allegations.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : May I know what the result of their enquiry was ? They must have known whether they were correct or false.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : So far as I recollect, I do not think that the allegations were really proved—so far as I recollect just now.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : But in view of the reply to (b), it appears that there must be some truth.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Even then Government thought it best to take steps.

SEAMEN UNEMPLOYED

Mr. LALJI NARANJI (Indian Merchants' Chamber) : Will Government be pleased to state the number of Indian seamen that form the floating population in Bombay awaiting or seeking employment ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : 5,000 approximately.

URDU cum GUJARATI SCHOOLS : COMPULSORY GUJARATI

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have made Gujarati compulsory in Urdu cum Gujarati schools ;

(b) if not, the reasons therefor ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI :(a) No.

(b) In the case of Urdu-cum-Vernacular schools, Government had at first decided that the local Vernacular should be included as a compulsory second language in the curriculum of these schools. However in the year 1924 certain Muhammadan gentlemen (including the Honourable Member) interested in education suggested that the local Vernacular should be optional. Government therefore revised their orders and made the local Vernacular an optional second language.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: With regard to the answer to (b), the Honourable Minister has stated that Government changed their decision at the suggestion of the honourable member who has asked the question. I want to know, whether now, as the honourable member (Khan Saheb A. M. Mansuri) has changed his opinion, the Honourable Minister will again re-institute the vernacular as a compulsory second language ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Unless the matter is put before Government in the regular way, I do not think I should take any action. The honourable member (Khan Saheb A. M. Mansuri) has only asked a question.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: The Honourable Minister has stated that certain gentlemen, including the honourable member, had made a suggestion to him and he had issued orders acting on that. Now that the honourable member and others have come to a contrary opinion, will he act on their new suggestion and change the order ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: The suggestion, on which Government took action at first, was made in a different manner.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Was it done in the form of a petition ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Most probably.

POLICE TRAINING SCHOOL: GUJARATI-SPEAKING INDIAN CHRISTIANS

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities): Will Government be pleased to state –

(a) whether any Indian Christian (Gujarati) has been selected for the Police Training School, Nasik ;

(b) if not, the reasons therefor.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: (a) The Honourable Member presumably refers to the selection made in June last. No Indian Christian (Gujarati) was then selected.

(b) There were three applicants from this community, one of whom was physically unfit. Neither of the others was considered suitable by the Selection Board.

DISTURBANCES AT SURAT

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many persons have been arrested for the Surat disturbances on the occasion of the Shivaji procession at Surat ;

(b) how many of them are Muhammadans and how many of them are Hindus ;

(c) in whose name the permit for the band was issued and what were the terms of the permit ;

(d) why were

(i) the persons in charge of the procession,

(ii) those persons in whose names the permit for the band was issued, and

(iii) those who openly defied the Magistrate's order not to play any music or to make any noise near the mosque, not arrested ;

(e) whether they are aware of the fact that the City Magistrate did inform the people in charge of the procession of the danger of breach of peace in case the music and the noise near the mosque was not stopped ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) and (b) 54 Muhammadans and 1 Hindu were arrested, but 2 of the Muhammadans and the Hindu were subsequently released by the police. Of the remaining 52 who were brought for trial, the Special Magistrate discharged 18, acquitted 16, found 1 to be mentally deranged, and convicted 17. On appeal, the Sessions Court confirmed the sentences passed on 16 of the 17 convicted, acquitting 1.

(c) No permit was issued. Under the rules then in force in Surat no permit was necessary for the playing of cymbals or so-called " soft music " in processions.

(d) (i) Because there was no proof that they had committed any offence ;

(ii) Does not arise in view of the answer to (c) ;

(iii) There is no proof that anyone behaved in the manner alleged in this part of the question to the extent of committing an offence rendering him liable to arrest or punishment ;

(e) It does not appear that any such warning was given until the procession had arrived near the mosques. It was then too late, and though an attempt was made to stop the music, the disturbance continued, and firing became necessary.

LLOYD BARRAGE : MANUFACTURE OF CONCRETE STONES

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the total cost of machinery purchased for the Lloyd Barrage for the manufacture of concrete stones ;

(b) the total cost up-to-date of moulds ;

(c) the total cost of preparing the yards ;

(d) the total cost of the regular establishments including the share of the cost of the Superintending and Chief Engineers and their establishment ;

(e) the total cost of temporary establishments ;

(f) the total cost of work-charged establishments ;

(g) the total quantity in cubic feet of blocks manufactured ;

(h) the cost per cubic feet (i) of materials, (ii) of labour, including all establishments ;

(i) the number of cement concrete blocks manufactured, giving the sizes and proportions of materials used ;

(j) the number of hydraulic lime concrete blocks manufactured, giving the sizes and proportions of materials used ;

(k) whether it is a fact that it is possible to get natural stones of same sizes at less cost from local quarries ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) Rs. 2,43,553.

(b) Rs. 1,00,000.

(c) Rs. 29,609.

(d) The labour and cost that would be involved in collecting the information being out of all proportion to its value, Government regret their inability to furnish it.

(e) Rs. 1,755.

(f) Rs. 3,140.

(g) 502,095 c. ft.

(h) (i) Rs. 41 per 100 c. ft.

(ii) Rs. 5-4-0 per 100 cubic feet (including temporary and work-charged establishments only).

(i) 2,808 Blocks of size $10' \times 5' \times 3'$.
1,194 ,, ,, ,, $5' \times 3' \times 1\frac{1}{2}'$.
Proportion of material for blocks :—
$10' \times 5' \times 3'$ = 1 cement, 6 sand and 12 ballast with top 3" of 1 cement, 3 sand and 6 ballast.
$5' \times 3' \times 1\frac{1}{2}'$ = 1 cement, 6 sand and 12 ballast.

(j) 341 Blocks of $10' \times 5' \times 3'$ size.
128 ,, ,, $5' \times 3' \times 1\frac{1}{2}'$,,
Proportion of materials = 1 Hydraulic lime, 2 sand and 4 ballast with 3" top layer of cement concrete consisting of 1 cement, 3 sand and 6 ballast.

(k) No. Natural stones of these sizes would cost four times as much and would not be suitable for the work as they would be eroded by sand and water passing over them.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (In Urdu) : Why have Government changed the blocks of hydraulic lime and why are they now making cement blocks ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : From experience it was found that it was cheaper to have the cement ones than those of hydraulic lime.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (In Urdu) : Which was cheaper.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Cement ones.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (In Urdu) : At present cement blocks cost Rs. 46 and chisel fine dress stone blocks cost Rs. 50. Will it not be cheaper to have them without chisel fine dress.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I will ask for notice. I cannot answer these technical questions off hand.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (In Urdu): Will it not be cheaper to have the blocks without chisel fine dress ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Sir, I cannot follow the honourable member.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : He now asks a different question. It has been stated that the cost of stone which has been cut out is 4 annas.....

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH : (In Urdu) : 8 annas 4 pies per cubic foot ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member should wait until he comes to that question (the next question).

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO : Sir, with regard to (d), may I know whether the establishment is so large that the honourable member cannot maintain a record ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : It would take a certain amount of time and labour to work out this, which is not commensurate with the importance of the question.

LLOYD BARRAGE : STONE DRESSING

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of stone dressing machines working at the workshop at Sukkur ;

(b) the cost of each ;

(c) cost of daily running expenses ;

(d) the rate of dressing stone per cubic feet ;

(e) whether they are aware of the reports that these machines are not working efficiently ;

(f) whether they are aware of the reports that these machines are not able to dress hard stones usually available from the same quarry ;

(g) whether they are aware that a certain number of masons are employed for dressing the harder portions and that most of the time these masons sit idle ;

(h) whether they are aware that the stones are being dressed and used in the construction on edges instead of their natural bedding ;

(i) whether they are aware of the danger of these stones flaking of and resulting in failure of structures ;

(j) why it is still found necessary to employ masons for dressing stones, inspite of the huge expenditure in dressing machines and mechanical staffs ;

(k) the comparative rates for dressing stones by manual labour and by machines ?

5 Frame saws.

1 Rip saw.

2 Wire saws.

8 Planing and moulding machines.
2 Simplex diamond saws.
2 Heavy Duplex Diamond saws.

	Rs.
(b) Frame saw	5,940
Rip saw	5,150
Wire saw	1,000
Planing machine	6,500
Planing Machine Portland type	11,680
Simplex diamond saw	12,340
Heavy Duplex Diamond saw	43,050

	Rs.	a.	p.
(c) Frame saws	5	4	0	each.
Rip saws	5	2	0	,,
Wire saws	4	6	0	,,
Planing machine	5	3	0	,,
Simplex diamond saw	5	13	0	,,
Heavy Duplex Diamond saw	11	10	0	,,

(d) The rate of dressing stones is Re. 0-8-4 per cubic foot including depreciation.

(e) No, the machines are working quite efficiently.

(f) No, the machines are capable of cutting and dressing blocks of any variety.

(g) No, the masons are not employed for dressing the harder portions, but they are employed in connection with certain subsidiary works; and they are fully occupied.

(h) and (i) No. All stones used are so dressed as to be laid on their natural quarry beds, except in the case of voussoirs, which are cut in such a way that the bedding plane is normal to the line of pressure; by adopting this procedure the very possibility of flaking of these stones, resulting in failure of structures, is eliminated.

(j) Does not arise in view of the above replies.

(k) The cost of dressing by manual labour comes to Re. 0-11-0 per cubic foot against Re. 0-8-4 per cubic foot (including depreciation) on the machines.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (In Urdu): With regard to reply (k), may I know how the amount of Re. 0-11-0 was arrived at? Is that based on tenders called for or on actual work undertaken by the Department?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: On actual work.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (In Gujarati): Is it based on actual work?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: It has been stated that no tenders were called for.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (In Gujarati): Is it not cheaper to have undressed stone in foundation than cement blocks?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Sir, I do not see what relation there is between cement blocks and stone. He compares cement blocks with stone. He refers to cement blocks in the previous question and compares their price with the cost of stones referred to in this question.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : As compared with the machine cut stones and the cemented blocks the Honourable the General Member has stated in (k) on page 21 " that natural stones of these sizes would cost four times as much." The honourable member, Mr. Baloch, wants to know why is it that uncut stones required for the foundation work should cost four times as much ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Sir, it is necessary to use cement blocks, because they are to be of a certain size.....

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH : Will the Honourable the General Member speak in Gujerati, so that I shall understand him properly.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Rules do not allow me to speak in Gujerati. But if the honourable member will come to me afterwards, I shall try and explain the thing to him.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. The honourable House remembers that on Saturday under the cut proposed by the honourable member, Mr. Swaminarayan, under " 47 Miscellaneous, " the honourable member, Mr. Nariman, had raised a discussion on " Unemployment, " and the question was whether that was in order. I have considered the point and I have come to the conclusion that a discussion on unemployment under that motion would be out of order. But the question raised being very important, I think it can be raised under " 37, Miscellaneous " later on. The House will, therefore, proceed with the discussion raised by the honourable member, Mr. Swaminarayan.

Question again proposed.

Reduce by Rs. 2,00,000—Total demand—47, Miscellaneous (Reserved).

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, the honourable member from Kanara (Mr. Karki) the other day discussed certain questions as regards the wild animals in Kanara. He tried to show that the policy which has been adopted by this Government is not satisfactory.

Now, I will just state to this honourable House the different steps which Government have taken as regards the facilities which are given for killing wild elephants and also for killing other wild animals. Originally a shikari was appointed for shooting elephants in 1919, and that shikari within a period of two to three years only killed 2 or 3 wild animals. Therefore, it was decided to discontinue his services. But in 1926 a shikari was again appointed and he was stationed at Honawar.

As regards the rewards given for killing wild animals, it is, no doubt, that this practice of giving rewards was discontinued, but Government found that it was necessary and so that practice was again continued. Accordingly a shikari was appointed in 1926 and stationed at Honawar. He got two elephants killed and received a reward of Rs. 200. One private person got Rs. 100 for killing an elephant and some sportsmen who killed seven elephants got an aggregate amount of Rs. 350. During the current year three shikaris have been appointed; one is posted at Honawar, the second at Sirsi and the third at Haliyal. They have been supplied with high velocity rifles and all the mamlatdars have been instructed to avail themselves of the services of these shikaris, whenever there is an appearance of the wild animals. If the honourable member from Kanara had put a question on this point, he would have got this information. But as no question was submitted, no reply could be given.

We may tell him that three wild elephants during the last year had damaged some crops, but when the shikaris were asked to shoot these elephants, they had already disappeared from the place.

As regards the applications for granting licenses I may inform this honourable House that instructions have been issued to the District Magistrates that the licenses should be issued to those persons who are landholders, holding land about five acres and more and whose lands are likely to be damaged. We have also enquired, after these instructions were given, whether the licenses were freely issued to the landholders and what reply we got? I shall inform this honourable House the number of licenses issued in that place. The number of licenses in 1922 was 3,351 which number has gone up to 4,155 in October 1927.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Are the licenses given for smooth bore guns or high velocity rifles?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: I have not made particular enquiries in the matter. But I may submit, Sir, that generally persons, who apply for licenses, are given smooth bore guns and rifles in some cases. I have already mentioned that the shikaris who are appointed by Government have been supplied with high velocity rifles.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: What about tigers? Is there no provision made for killing these tigers?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: The fact is there that the licenses are freely issued to the landholders. But I may tell this House that we have been told by the village punchayats that whenever the necessity for a shikari is felt, they could not find one from among the people. The general experience is that many of the licenses are taken not for sports but for show.

As regards the killing of wild animals I may inform this House the number of pigs that were killed and the reward given. It is as follows:—

	Number of pigs killed	Amount of reward
	Rs.	Rs.
1925	864	81
1926	1,275	413

I shall now turn to the question of prevention of damage being done to the crops. I may state that there are two societies which are started, called " Defensive Societies." These Societies are started for the anti-pig campaign. One Society is at Hulihond and the other is at Hungund... The society at Hulihond has fenced an area of 327 acres at a cost of Rs. 6,400 and Hungund 153 acres at a cost of Rs. 5,000. Recently Government had sanctioned a loan of Rs. 10,000 for a similar fencing society at Nandi Katta (Mundgod Peta). The loan, however, was not accepted by the society owing to some disagreement among the members. No other application for tagavi loan or any other loan was received either from the society or from individuals.

[Mr. G. B. Pradhan]

Then, as regards the damage, I have also got the figures. The damage last year was only about Rs. 1,318; in one or two years it was about Rs. 2,000 or so, and the persons affected last year were 50.

Mr. M. D. KARKI: Was it not the amount of damage caused by the wild elephants?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Yes. The amount of damage was Rs. 1,318, done by the wild elephants. The honourable member put that question, and he did not ask that question in the open House; otherwise I should have told him that there were three elephants during the last year and they damaged crops to the extent of Rs. 1,318. But when the shikari went there to shoot them down, those elephants had left the district and gone away.

Mr. M. D. KARKI: There was no ready help.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: I do not suppose the honourable member expects that there will be a shikari at every point in the district, and that the moment an elephant appears at any point, the rifle and the man will be there. Three shikaris were supplied with high velocity rifles, they have been posted in suitable points, the mamlatdars have been instructed to make use of the shikaris, and so, as soon as it is known that an elephant has appeared at any point, a shikari is sent there. If the elephant disappears when the shikari is there, I do not see how that can be remedied. What is the suggestion of the honourable member? That at least one panchayat should have a rifle or a shikari? Now, village panchayats were told that they could put forward shikaris of their own. But no panchayats are putting forward shikaris of their own, and no shikaris are coming forward to take licenses. Every shikari cannot shoot a wild elephant; ordinary shikaris cannot shoot wild elephants. A shikari of a different calibre is necessary for that purpose. One was appointed in 1919 by the Taluka Development Association, and in three years he could shoot only three. And private persons have killed only seven animals. So, as I have said, the orders which were issued upon the Forest Grievances Enquiry Committee's report were communicated to the Collector and a report was called from him, and the Collector reported about the different steps that were taken for preventing pigs from damaging the crops, by aiding societies and so on, and I have also given to the honourable House the number of pigs that were killed and the wild animals that were killed, and every attempt is being made to see that cultivators do not suffer from the ravages of these wild animals. I have nothing further to add.

Mr. G. WILES: Sir, it is necessary for me to say a few words about that part of the honourable member's motion which relates to the reduction of the reserve with the Finance Department. In proposing this motion the honourable member repeated word for word the arguments which were produced in favour of the reduction of the provision on the transferred side, for reduction on the reserved side. He, therefore, seems to be under the impression that there is a different procedure with regard to the reserve on the two sides of Government, the reserved and the transferred. I can assure him that the procedure is exactly the same. I need not repeat the arguments which I used last time in pointing out the necessity for a reserve. I will only repeat the assurance that I then gave that no votable expenditure is incurred out of this grant without bringing it to the notice of this House. I need only call attention to one or two instances in which we have already come to the House for supplementary demand. For instance, there was a refund on account of the abolition of stamp duty, which cost us a lakh and a quarter. We came to this honourable House for a supplementary grant to meet that expense. We spent Rs. 1,83,000 in repairs to the irrigation works in Sind and Gujarat, which were damaged by the flood. We came and asked for a grant for that expenditure. Similarly, for the amount which we spent on khoti suits in Kolaba district.

The honourable member said that he had vague recollection that the Auditor General some years ago took exception to this reserve. My recollection is rather different from that of the honourable member. The Auditor General, so far as I remember, objected to the provision which was made or intended to be made in some other province for a reserve under each department. That is very obviously objectionable, and it was protested against in this House some five or six years ago when we proposed to have this reserve with the Finance Department. Obviously, if each department has got to have its own reserve, there is every possibility of money being wasted. Moreover, there would be no necessity for the department to come to the House for a supplementary grant; it would be within the competence of the Honourable Member or Minister to reappropriate from that reserve without saying anything to the honourable House. This reserve, as I stated the other day, is solely to prevent excess expenditure coming up at the end of the year on entirely unavoidable items which would have to be met from our balances. As it is, we estimate from our past experience, the expenditure during the year and provide in the budget a lump sum to cover it. For next year we have provided Rs. 2 lakhs less than in the current year, because we hope that the expenditure on unforeseen items will be less by that amount.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: I have nothing to add.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, I do not wish to say much on the subject. The administrative departments concerned have already given their reply, especially the Honourable Minister for Forests. The only point that I think has not been quite fully explained yet is the one that was raised by the honourable mover suggesting that the reserved departments were unduly favoured in the allocation of the reserve. I think the honourable member made that point. He said that the reserved departments have got Rs. 7 lakhs allotted to them from the reserve with the Finance Department, while the transferred departments have only got Rs. 5 lakhs. Well, the honourable member is aware that when the reserve was originally started, it stood at the figure of some Rs. 20 lakhs. It has been reduced from time to time, from 20 to 15, and from 15 to 12 as in the current year, and from the first it was explained by the Honourable the Finance Member then, and I believe his suggestion was accepted and agreed to by the Council, that the proportion should be what it now is, that of 12 to 8. We have continued that proportion throughout, and I do not think that the experience of the last four or five years has made it necessary that any change should be made. But I should like to inform the honourable member that whatever the proportion may be, it is not observed as any hard and fast line. On many occasions the sums at the disposal of the Reserved Departments are handed over to the Transferred Departments and vice versa. I do not think the Transferred Departments have suffered. I think that will satisfy my honourable friend.

Question put and lost.

Question that the demand for Rs. 12,72,000 under 47, Miscellaneous (Reserved) be granted put and carried.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Sir, I rise to make a demand for Rs. 17,32,000 under 46-Stationery and Printing, Partly Reserved and Partly Transferred.

Question proposed.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): I merely wish, Sir, to remind Government of a promise made two years back or thereabouts by the then Acting Revenue Member, Sir Lalubhai Samaldas, that revision settlement reports will be supplied to honourable members of this House. That promise does not seem to have been carried out because we do not get those reports, evidently because Government are afraid that we might offer severe criticisms about their revision settlement policy. I would like to know whether at least hereafter we shall be receiving such reports. I make this suggestion now because the subject of Government publications comes, according to my belief, under the jurisdiction of the Stationery Office.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Sir, I do not see really how it comes within this budget. Although this budget does provide for all printing work, as a matter of fact it is the Revenue Department which decides whether any of its publications should be circulated to honourable members or not. This department simply carries out the instructions of the Revenue Department. I do not see how a question of policy therefore can be raised on this demand. If the honourable member wants to raise this question, he must raise it in the debate on the Revenue Department. As a matter of fact I have no knowledge of any assurance having been given to honourable members by the Acting Revenue Member Sir Lalubhai Samaldas. The Honourable the Revenue Member is not in a position to verify that statement just now. I think my honourable friend will be well advised to remind Government in the Revenue Department of any such undertaking if it was given, when the Revenue Department budget comes before the House and if he does that, I am sure my honourable colleague, the Honourable the Revenue Member will be able to give my honourable friend a satisfactory answer.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, I beg to ask for a grant of Rs. 50,53,000 under 45-Superannuation Allowances and Pensions (Reserved).

Question proposed.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Sir, the demand is made for a sum over 50 lakhs under head Superannuation. The annual cost for superannuation under head 45 is more than 50 lakhs and we find expenses incurred for superannuation on other heads also and there is a similar expenditure in England under the High Commissioner, where it comes to ten lakhs and again there is a demand under head 45 for expenditure under the control of the Secretary of State where we find the demand comes to one lakh and some thousands. The total expenditure on superannuation, leave salary, pension allowances, if taken together from all heads like commercial undertakings which are 8 lakhs 95 thousand, the total amount comes to nearly one and a half crores. That means nearly 15 per cent. of our revenue is spent on these accounts. Almost all of this sum has been charged to ordinary revenue. I have pointed out that under Development and 55-Lloyd Barrage, nearly one crore of rupees is being spent from the ordinary revenue and general balances. Here under superannuation allowances, pensions and the like nearly one and a half crores is spent from the ordinary revenue and so the necessary heads that do require a great deal of expenditure are kept aside and a large sum is spent under this head. The superannuations and these pensions should really have been shown under the different heads on which they have been spent. Instead of doing that, they have been summed up under one head and so it is not known definitely as to whether the general administration or the police or which of these heads have to pay more than the sum which ordinarily that department should spend. I therefore hope that Government will at least henceforth make all these entries on the various heads and see that year after year the sum spent on these annuations is not increased.

Mr. G. WILES: Sir, I confess I find it very difficult to understand what the honourable member is driving at. If I have understood him correctly, he is under the impression that leave allowances are shown under this head as well as pension contributions. If he is under that impression, he is wrong. Leave allowances are not included under this head.

[Mr. G. Wiles]

As to the dividing up of superannuation charges under each department, I should think it must be quite obvious to the House that any such procedure is quite out of the question. It would be impossible to maintain separate accounts for every department of the pension charges for every man who happens to serve in that department during his service. Officers may be transferred in the course of their service to a number of departments.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Under every head.

Mr. G. WILES : That is what I have not understood. I do not know what the honourable member wants.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : I do not mean that they should be under every man's name, but if the superannuation is to be paid under General Administration, then it must be shown under that head that a particular sum is to be spent on superannuation charges, and a similar item should be shown under the other heads, Land Revenue, Excise, etc.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : How would that help you ?

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : It will show what sum has been spent for pension and superannuation charges in every head. Instead of having a lump sum for superannuation charges, we shall be able to see how it is distributed under the different heads.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Sir, I move a demand for a grant of Rs. 6,27,000 under 43-Famine Relief and Insurance. In doing so, I should like to make a short explanatory statement for the information of this House, regarding the items which compose this demand.

In the first place, as honourable members will see on page 257 of the White Book, there is an item of Rs. 1,46,500 for storage of famine grass by the Forest Department. This is in accordance with the contract made with the Bombay Mofussil Grass Trading Company for the supply of 100 lakhs of pounds a year of grass at Palghar, Godhra and Dohad. Honourable members will perhaps remember that I came up with a supplementary demand for the same amount in the course of the current financial year, and the present item represents the same demand for next year.

Then, the next item is one of Rs. 26,406 for the cancellation of the contract for the storage of grass at Nawapur. As to this, I had asked for a supplementary demand of Rs. 50,000, for the current year, and this sum of Rs. 26,406 completes the total sum which Government have agreed to pay to the company as compensation for the rescinding of their contract. The circumstances under which it has been found necessary to rescind this contract have already been explained to the House.

The next item is one of Rs. 1,83,588 for the boring operations by the Agricultural Department in precarious and non-precarious districts.

[Mr. J. L. Rieu]

Only the costs of the operations in precarious districts are, however, debitable against 43-Famine Relief, and therefore, as honourable members will see, there is a deduct entry of Rs. 47,138, which represents the cost of these operations in non-precarious districts. The operations are being carried on all over the presidency except Sind, by means of a total of 69 boring machines, of which 17 are working in the Northern Division, 22 in the Central Division, and 25 in the Southern Division, while 3 machines are working in Indian States and one is actually at present in the workshop.

The next is the establishment of the Water Diviner to the Government of Bombay, Rs.10,886. Honourable members have had supplied to them the latest report issued by that officer.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Is it for one year?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Yes, it is for one year; the votable part of the total cost is Rs. 10,886.

The next two items Rs. 2,523 and Rs. 3,900 are practically identical in character and I do not know why they have been distinguished. One of them is described in the Blue Book under the head of new items. As a matter of fact, it is not a new item, properly speaking, because these operations which are intended to open out the forests in the Satpura range have been going on for some time. Presumably, it has been classed as a new item, merely because it refers to certain additional roads under construction but these roads form part of one general scheme for opening out, by means of roads and the provision of wells, certain forest areas in the Satpuras for grazing and also for the extraction of grass from them. At present they are insufficiently provided with communications, and there is no water supply for the cattle which are taken to these areas in times of famine.

Finally, the last item is one of Rs. 3,00,000, which is the annual provision which we make for grants-in-aid to local boards for village water supply. I think honourable members are already aware of the decision which Government recently came to, that instead of insisting on local board or popular contributions amounting to two-thirds of the total cost of a work and Government providing only one-third of the cost, which was the system in force upto recently, Government now undertake to provide upto a maximum of two-thirds, leaving one-third to be contributed by the local bodies or by the people of the locality.

Question proposed.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The next item is a cut of one rupee from the total votable demand, Rs. 6,27,000 under Famine Relief and Insurance. It is a one rupee cut with all its implications.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Sir, I move:

That one rupee be reduced from total votable demand under Famine Relief and Insurance, Rs. 6,27,000.

My complaints against this department are these. Government used to provide for this purpose 63·50 lakhs of rupees every year, but now unfortunately, owing to their administrative blunders the famine-stricken areas are hereafter to be starved, and no provision under this head from ordinary revenues appears to have been made this year. The only provision that appears to have been made is from the Famine Insurance Fund, from which a transfer of Rs. 21,23,000 has been proposed, and out of this, this Rs. 6,27,000 is to be provided. As there are some other expenditures from this amount under head 15, I take this opportunity of discussing the whole expenditure from the amount transferred from the Famine Insurance Fund, namely Rs. 21,23,000.

Last year, Sir, Government allotted about Rs. 7,90,000 for fighting the water famine in tracts of precarious water supply. Unfortunately that amount was not spent and has been carried over to this year also, and 5 lakhs appear to have been provided for those very schemes.....

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Sir, may I ask the Honourable member what figures he is quoting?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: The figures are at pages 60 and 61 of the Blue Book. They refer to minor irrigation works under the Superintending Engineer, Mr. Lowsley.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Where from has the honourable member taken the figure Rs. 21,23,000?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: From page 108, transfers from Famine Insurance Fund and 43-Famine Relief and Insurance: from the revenue side. It is a transfer. Out of that amount 5 lakhs only is to be devoted this year for those famine works which have been held over by Mr. Lowsley, or rather which Mr. Lowsley has failed to execute last year. The pity is when the Council has passed those items, Mr. Lowsley at once goes to the municipalities and local bodies and asks them to contribute in a substantial manner for the construction of those works. He calls upon the Collectors to ask the local bodies and municipalities to contribute substantially towards those works, and the Collectors unfortunately get the impression that it must be something coming direct from the Government and press the local bodies to contribute towards the construction of those works. If my honourable friend the Revenue Member will read the correspondence that passed between the temple committee of Dakore and the municipality of that place on the one hand and the Government on the other, he will find that immediately after the sanction by this House of the allotment of a sum of Rs. 60,000 for the improvement of the Gomti tank, Mr. Lowsley wrote to the Collector to get the municipality, the temple committee and other committees to subscribe at least two-thirds or more than half the amount sanctioned. Now, the whole work is held over. This House passed for the improvement of that tank a sum of Rs. 60,000. That was budgetted in the Blue Book of 1927-28.....

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: That is not from the Famine Relief grant.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : The grant comes from Famine Relief and Insurance. It is to alleviate the water famine that these grants are made.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Sir I rise, to a point of order. We are discussing the grant under 43, Famine Relief and Insurance, and I have given a detailed account of the various items which are included under this head. The honourable member is referring to an entirely different provision, namely 15, Transfers from the Famine Fund, which has nothing to do with the present demand. I submit he is out of order in discussing, as I understand he is, the provision for the operations which are carried on by the Superintending Engineer on Special Duty. These operations are not provided for under this head at all : they come under an entirely different head.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Sir, I am entitled to discuss this matter. If you refer to page 108 of the Blue Book, you will find that on the revenue side Rs. 21,23,000 has been taken and on the expenditure side Rs. 6,62,000 has been allotted. In order to explain the whole thing, it is stated that Rs. 16,000 are to be taken to XIII—Working Expenses ; Rs. 14,45,000 to 15 (1) Irrigation and Rs. 6,62,000 to 43-A Famine Relief. When I was about to discuss this question on a different occasion, I was asked by you, Sir, to postpone the discussion till the grant for famine expenditure came to be discussed. So I have taken this opportunity.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : What has the honourable the Secretary to say on the point of order raised ?

Mr. G. WILES : Sir, technically we are asking now only for Rs. 6,27,000. That is the amount which is actually being provided under the head 43-A for the prevention of famine. But it is perfectly true, as the honourable member from Kaira says, that we are providing from famine grants for Mr. Lowsley, although that work is properly shown under Irrigation. That demand will be made under the head Irrigation 15, but we are financing it from the Famine Fund by a transfer from that fund. It is true that in the Blue Book we show in the same place for purposes of comparison Rs. 21,23,000, the revenue transferred from the Fund under XXXII a revenue head. In previous years we have met similar expenditure by transfer from 43-A. But it remains true that the present demand is only for Rs. 6,27,000 under the head 43, Famine Relief and Insurance, and does not include any expenditure on irrigation works. If under these circumstances you hold that the whole Famine Fund is under discussion, then the honourable member is in order.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think the honourable member is in order.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Sir, I, therefore, ask the Honourable the Revenue Member just to explain why this policy of allotting funds in the budget for an item and not spending that, is followed by Government, though Mr. Lowsley has been given for his establishment the sum of more than Rs. 1,80,000 from the Famine Insurance Fund. It was quite necessary that the action immediately after sanction of this House ought to have been taken. Besides, before the work is undertaken, no contribution of the local bodies and other public bodies should have been asked for.

[Rao Saheb D. P. Desai]

Coming now, Sir, to the actual expenditure of Rs. 6,62,000 I may just be allowed to make a passing reference to one point and that is about the policy of giving contracts for the supply of grass to the private agencies. In my opinion this policy of giving contract is a sound policy. It has been our experience that whenever this Government undertake commercial undertakings, they are never successful in any of their attempts. They had undertaken to start a pottery work, they have failed there; they had also undertaken many other things, but nowhere they have got success. And still they are now trying to enter into this grass business. But I may assure them that here also they would not be successful. It is better that this work should be given to the private agencies. As a matter of fact it is liable to accident and at the same time a dangerous affair. So, I would request the honourable member to gather together a number of grass merchants and ask them to supply grass at certain stipulated prices and on certain conditions. Of course, if Government so desire they may not give monopoly to one person, and as I have said, they may send for a number of merchants and ask them to supply grass to Government. That should be the grass policy of Government.

Again Sir, we find that Rs. 6,54,000 out of Rs. 21,23,000 has been provided for irrigation works. Out of this amount of Rs. 6,54,000, Rs. 2,54,000 have been given to the Honourable the General Member for repairing the tanks, drains, etc., damaged by floods. I would ask Government if this Famine Fund is meant for repairing tanks which have been damaged by floods. Can these Funds be used for other departments? As a matter of fact this expenditure on repairs to tanks should be given from the irrigation budget.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Does the honourable member suggest that the Famine Fund should only be used for houses and not tanks damaged by floods?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: You are aware, Sir, that we have already spent Rs. 5 lakhs last year on the Visapur tank and Rs. 4 lakhs are allotted this year. So, about Rs. 9 lakhs have been taken away by the Irrigation department. Besides, last year there was an expenditure incurred from the Famine Fund for repairing certain tanks in Gujerat and bunds in Sind to the extent of Rs. 23 to 25 lakhs.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Will the honourable member verify the figures?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (After handing over budget estimates to the Honourable the General Member): It will be seen from these budgets that Rs. 16 lakhs have been spent in the current year in Sind and Rs. 9 lakhs in the current year for the irrigation works in Deccan and Gujerat. This expenditure was formerly met from the ordinary revenues. But in order to use the ordinary revenues for some other activities of Government or to meet their losses, Government are taking these steps. Government have started this Famine Fund for the purpose of using it on other objects. That is my charge against the Honourable the Revenue

[Rao Saheb D. P. Desai]

Member. He has allowed the Famine Fund to be depleted in this fashion by other departments.

Now turning to loans granted to the people in the flooded area, I am really thankful to the Honourable the Revenue Member for sparing about Rs. 85 lakhs from the Famine Fund. He has spared this amount to be given to people for the purpose of repairing or building their houses which have been damaged by floods. But I am sorry to state that the Government have decided to charge interest on these loans to the poor cultivators. This Famine Fund has been created from the ordinary revenues of this presidency for the purpose of giving help to the people in times of famine. That being the case, I fail to understand why Government should charge interest on the loans given to the people from this Fund. About Rs. 16 lakhs have been allotted from this Fund to the Irrigation Department. Is that department going to pay any interest for that amount? I do not think so. If that is so, why should the poor cultivators be charged interest on the loans given to them to repair their houses damaged by floods? We all know that we have been spending Rs. 10 lakhs annually, practically in charity in Sind and we do not charge interest on that item. But these house loans are to be recovered from the cultivators by instalments, and will it not be a hardship on them when they have to pay interest on the loans? If we charge interest to them then it will be just as ordinary tagavi and it would cease to be a Famine Insurance Fund. I would ask Government for Heaven's sake do not charge interest and manage famine affairs at least as China does. You may not follow other countries, other western countries, countries more civilised than yourselves. But at least follow the example of China. Borrow at least the flood and famine relief policy of that country if you cannot follow the flood relief policy of either America or any other western country. But at least have the goodness to borrow the flood or famine policy of China and help the ryots in this country. Unfortunately, the impression that prevails here and at least in the Government quarters is different. Of course, I cannot blame the Government. Bureaucratic as it is, it always tries to make itself prosperous. While allowing no prosperity to the persons left in its charge, it always tries to be prosperous itself by raising the pay, by raising the salaries. Of course, their sole attention is diverted not to prosperity of the country consigned to their care or to the poverty of the ryots consigned to their care, but whether the departments are well paid or not, whether the Settlement Commissioner's pay is raised by Rs. 500 or not, whether he can find more money out of the ryots' pockets or not to meet these increments. These are the considerations that weigh more with Government than any other considerations, and the pity is, Sir, that this money is advanced to the cultivators not on a cheap rate of interest, but rather at 6 per cent. Government give 4½ per cent. and they make a profit of 1½ per cent. by advancing the money to the cultivators. That is, I think, the climax to which this fund has come to be misused. And how that building loan is used by the cultivators? I was only yesterday informed by one of the most responsible persons that Government, though they should not have collected assessments in these flooded areas, have started collections at the bayonet's point and the full assessments are demanded. This loan seems to be used in flood affected areas to pay the Government demand and a number of applications have been received by that gentleman to this effect, and I should think that when conditions have come to such a pass where the cultivators are themselves penniless, it is wrong on the part of the Collector or for that matter of the Commissioner to collect land revenue, practically the whole of it, from these flooded areas. I request, therefore, that our famine policy should be re-affirmed by the Government. Before I withdraw this motion I would request the Honourable the Revenue Member to explain what the famine policy of this Government will be in future, that is, whether the Rs. 63 lakhs which have been absorbed in general revenue and which this Government allowed the Finance Member to take away, from the Famine Insurance Fund would be again restored to its legitimate position in the budget. With this request I move this cut of Re. 1 as a vote of censure on the famine policy of this Government.

Question proposed.

Mr. J. W. SMYTH : Sir, I propose only to deal with the point raised by the honourable member with regard to Mr. Lowsley's activities and the money which is provided for them out of the famine fund. As I understood the honourable member, he complained that Rs. 5 lakhs were placed at Mr. Lowsley's disposal and that in spite of having this sum he went about to municipalities and local bodies asking them for grants-in-aid for carrying out the works. Presumably he meant that the money, which was provided by Government, should be sufficient, and that the local bodies and municipalities should not be asked to make contributions from their own funds. And he then spoke specifically of the case of a tank at Dakor in Kaira district. As is well known, there is a very famous temple at Dakor. Also the tank there for some years has not had as much water as people would have liked, and proposals have at various times been made for enlarging it and so obtaining more water. These schemes have been going on for years to my knowledge. Consequently, two or three years ago when Mr. Lowsley began his special duty, he was invited to go to Dakor, to investigate the situation and to make proposals. He did so and sent in a scheme. Now, I understand from the honourable member that he considers that this scheme should have been entirely financed by Government. As a matter of fact, the Dakor temple is possessed of very considerable wealth and it has, lying in the hands of its trustees, something like Rs. 2½ lakhs; subject to certain restrictions placed upon its use by the High Court, it is true. But the point is that this was a scheme to provide water for a place in connection with a temple which is an extremely wealthy one and which is famous throughout this side of India, and yet we are now told by the honourable member that Government and Mr. Lowsley should not have asked the municipalities or local bodies for this money, but Government should have financed this scheme directly out of the famine fund. After this, we were treated by the Honourable Member to a diatribe as to how we entirely misuse our money and fail to spend it properly, and how, generally speaking, our famine policy is entirely wrong, and that we should borrow one from China, whatever that may be. The honourable member fails to see that if we were to carry out schemes like this one without getting assistance from local bodies, where, as in this case, they are perfectly able to contribute, the famine fund would be bankrupt, i.e., we should land ourselves in a state of a chaos similar to that of the country to which the honourable member advises us to have recourse, namely, China.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, I want to be very brief on this point. I agree with the honourable member Rao Saheb Dadubhai Desai's remarks about the use of famine insurance fund. I said in my budget speech that it was not advisable on the part of Government not to provide anything in the next year's budget for famine insurance fund. Moreover I told you that it was not only that nothing has been provided in the next year, but in future it is to be reduced by 12 lakhs from 63½ lakhs which was the amount originally fixed for this fund.

Now, I will come to the grant of Rs. 3 lakhs for village water supply. This is the main head on which I want to say a few words. Looking to the demand for village water supply this amount will not be adequate. As far as borings are concerned, at present there are several agencies with whom local bodies have to carry on correspondence, namely, the Revenue Department, the Agricultural Department, the Irrigation Department, in all about half a dozen agencies, and no end comes to the correspondence which is being carried on by the local bodies and these agencies and thus the work is delayed unnecessarily. Two years ago the District Local Board, Surat, applied for boring machines for its village water supply and only recently, after two years, three months ago, it succeeded in getting a boring machine from the Agriculture Department which sent it with a machanic who was to be paid by the Surat district local board. During the three months the machine has worked only for seven days as the operator does not know his job, and the work is being delayed under one pretext or another. Soon after the arrival of the machine the president of the district local board wired to the engineer in charge of boring operations informing him that the mechanic does not know anything of boring. A reply was received that another man was being sent. The second man came and showed the first man how to operate the boring machine and went away. Still the first man is there and the machine is doing nothing. Who is to be responsible for all this waste of public money ? For every Rs. 2 that Government pays Re. 1 is to be paid by the local board and all this money will go for nothing. I would invite the attention of the Honourable the Minister of Excise to this matter ; and I would therefore suggest that some one central agency should be created either under the Revenue or the Agricultural Department for working boring machines and carrying on boring operations so that district local boards or municipalities can get work done satisfactorily.

I entirely agree with my honourable friend Rao Saheb Dadubhai Desai about charging the Famine Insurance Fund with expenses of repairs of irrigation tanks. If himayat is levied on villagers for water supplied to them, I do not see any reason why the repairs of such tanks should not be done out of the revenue derived from those tanks. If the repairs to the tanks meant for village water supply are carried out from this fund it is not objectionable.

There is a provision for the water diviner. I have read the report but I do not think he has succeeded to any extent in Gujarat, whatever miracles or wonders the water diviner may have worked in the Deccan. I think I told the Honourable the Revenue Member about two years ago that Gujarat was hardly likely to be benefitted by the appointment of the water diviner. A few days ago, in reply to a question about the water supply to the village "Dilosa" in Olpad taluka, this matter was brought to the notice of this House. I wrote to Major Pogson that he should come and mark out a spot where we could get water. He sent a Hindu assistant of his who marked out a spot and suggested that potable water will be tapped at about a depth of 48 feet, and at his suggestion, I as president of the district local board asked the Agricultural Department through the Collector for the loan of a boring machine. It was lent to me. The experiment cost about Rs. 1,000 and although we went down for 150 feet, we could find no potable water. In several villages of Olpad and Chorasi talukas there is saltish and brackish water. We are also trying boring operations in certain other villages but we do not hope to meet with satisfactory results and I think artisan wells will be required for the purpose. What I therefore urge is that there must be some central agency either under the Agriculture or the Revenue Department to look after these boring operations if we are to obtain any good results at all. At present the number of boring machines is not adequate to meet the growing demands of the various districts and Government should therefore supplement their present stock by new machines. Small irrigation works such as bandharas or small reservoirs for cattle and for human beings and also for agricultural purposes are a great necessity and more money might very well be devoted to them. Mr. Lowsley has no doubt made a survey of Gujarat but I do not know whether any scheme has been taken up as a result of his enquiry as yet, nor do I know what recommendations have been made by him.

As for the Dakor temple, I do not wish to say anything particular about this temple except that in all other places of pilgrimage, Government supply water.....

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: No, No. It is the district local boards and the municipalities which supply drinking water.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: I know that of late it has become a habit with Government to throw such responsibilities on district local boards and municipalities, but I will dilate on this point when the demand is made for the public works by the Honourable Minister in charge of that department. No district local board or municipality can afford to allot such a huge sum as Rs. 50,000 for expenditure on water supply at such places of pilgrimage as Dakor or Nasik. At the latter place I am told free water supply has been provided by Government because it is a place of pilgrimage. Dakor is equally important as a place of pilgrimage and thousands of pilgrims visit that place every fortnight and I consider that it is the duty of Government to provide the necessary supply of potable water.

I will now request the Honourable Minister in charge of the Agricultural Department and to the Honourable the Revenue Member to take into consideration the suggestion I have made in regard to the institution of a central agency for boring operations, and conclude my speech.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): Sir, I refer to page 257 of the White Book. Against the item "Water Diviner to the Government of Bombay, his Establishment, Contingencies, etc.," under Detailed Account No. 43-A, Famine Relief, there is an item of 35,000 rupees in italics and another item of 10,000 rupees without italics. Presumably the 35,000 is for the water diviner and his establishment and 10,000 is for contingencies. Perhaps it was due to a printing mistake that 35,000 in italics have been shown against contingencies. That means, it is non-votable. I would respectfully submit that this is a point for you to decide. In 1926 when the discussion was going on, the Honourable the Leader of the House led this House to believe that the post was only for one year up to the end of July 1927. The debates of 13th March 1926 show it. Before 1926-27 also it was for one year, that is to say it was to be continued up to July 1927. In July 1927, I find nothing in the debates making it an imperial and a non-voted post. Has Government the power to withdraw this sum from the vote of the Council? That is the point of order. We find that Rs. 35,000 is now withdrawn from the vote of the Council, by being shown in italics. How have Government done it after giving an undertaking that this would be an appointment for which they would come to the Council year after year in July?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: If the honourable member has no objection, we would like to refer to the papers. It would be difficult to answer this point of order at once as questions of facts are involved. If he will leave it over till after tea, then we will be in a better position.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: Most certainly.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Thank you.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I endorse the views expressed by the honourable member Rao Saheb Desai. He referred to the appointment of Mr. Lowsley, Superintending Engineer, which is financed from the Famine Fund, and Government are spending Rs. 1,86,000 every year for his salary and establishment. Now, a sum of Rs. 5 lakhs was placed at his disposal, and a list of the works that were to be taken up was put down on page 68 of the Blue Book for the year 1927-28. There was an important item put down in that list, and that was in connection with the improvements to the Hebatpur drain in the Viramgaum taluka of the Ahmedabad district, and Rs. 30,000 were provided for this work. Sir, waterlogging is a serious problem in Viramgaum taluka, and it takes place even if there is a slight excess of rainfall. Government recognised this fact, and Mr. Lowsley also has referred to this important matter in his report, and he has stated that all agriculture is rendered impracticable in Viramgaum taluka on account of waterlogging. In spite of recognising this important fact, and instead of having provided a sum of Rs. 30,000 for the improvements to Hebatpur drain, nothing was done with respect to that matter in the current year. There are also other important works which have been drawn up by Mr. Lowsley for the Viramgaum taluka, but they are not taken up by Government. Waterlogging leads to wet famine in that taluka, and the kharif crops are thereby destroyed. The level of the Viramgaum taluka is much lower than the level of the surrounding districts of the Gaekwari territory, particularly of the Kadi district. Rain water is dumped into Viramgaum taluka, and as its level is lower, and as there are no proper drains, the fields get waterlogged, and the whole cultivation is destroyed, and during the last five years the crops have been so destroyed in two years. The year before the last, there were heavy rains and kharif crops were destroyed. Of course, last year was a year of unprecedented floods, and the crops were destroyed thrice. Year before last also, it had excessive rainfall, and the kharif crops were destroyed. I had put questions on this subject to the Revenue Member, and he had recognised that waterlogging was responsible for the damage to and destruction of kharif crops in Viramgaum taluka. Two schemes have been drawn up by the Superintending Engineer; one is known as the Odhav-Solgam drain and the other as the Chhaniar-Evdla drain. The importance of these drains has been recognised by Government, and the Superintending Engineer has also recommended these schemes, but they are still on the shelves of Government. These important items have to be immediately taken in hand by Government, in order to save the loss caused by waterlogging in the Viramgaum taluka. This scheme for the improvements to Hebatpur drain was actually provided in the budget, but no work was undertaken by Government. I have, therefore, to draw the attention of the Honourable the Revenue Member to this important fact, which has been recognised by Government, and for which recommendations have been made by the Superintending Engineer.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: May I ask the honourable member what authority he has for saying that the sum was provided in the budget? All that I see there is a list of minor works "likely to be proposed for construction during the year 1927-28." That is all that is said. There is no question of any provision being made.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: That is all right, but for this work there is no objection like the one that was raised by the honourable member the Revenue Secretary, that they had to demand money from the temple authorities who are rich, or the local authorities who might be rich. This is a matter which has to be taken in hand by Government, and unless Government take up the work of constructing these drains in Viramgaum taluka, the prosperity of the taluka is going to suffer a great deal. Government have seen that, during the last so many years, there have been difficulties on account of these drains not having been constructed.

When Government have to revise the revenue assessment, they are very particular in finding out one excuse or another for the purpose of revising revenue assessment. In Viramgaum taluka the assessment has been increased by 29 per cent. Now, though this serious problem of waterlogging has not been solved by Government, though the taluka depends merely on rain water for its cultivation, though the taluka has suffered from famine every alternate year, all this history of the tract is not being taken into account, and the assessment is being raised by an abnormal percentage of 29. Now, when they want to increase the assessment without improving the condition of the taluka, I think the result will be the destruction of the population of the taluka. In the Matar taluka of the Kaira district, as the assessment was very heavy, the population declined. The people ran away from the place, and Government would take into consideration these factors only when the population begins to decrease, when people begin to run away from that particular area, or when lands are being relinquished. This is the only argument that is being put forward by Government. In the case of the Bardoli taluka also, the reply given by the honourable member the Revenue Secretary to a letter of the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik is that the people are not relinquishing their lands, and therefore they are prosperous. Where are they to go if they relinquish the land. It is only when people relinquish their land that they would recognise that there is misery and that the people are incapable of paying. Now, in the case of the Viramgaum taluka, these important problems which bring about adverse conditions in the taluka are not solved by Government. Even in the Government Resolution No. 9226, dated 13th July 1927, by which revised settlement has been sanctioned by Government, a reference has been made to the drains, and unless they have carried out the improvements, and unless they have increased the prosperity of the taluka, they have no right to demand additional revenue from that taluka, because section 107 of the Land Revenue Code actually puts down that unless the improvement is effected by the action of the State, Government have no right to take that improvement into consideration. If the improvement is effected by the action of the cultivators the State has no right to take that into consideration in increasing the assessment. If the action of the State is responsible for improving the condition of a particular village, for example, by additional works conducing to increase the prosperity, then only they will be justified in increasing the assessment. I have made a passing reference to it, because the causes which bring about the decay of that taluka are recognised by Government. If on account of the absence of these drains, even a slight excess of rainfall produces waterlogging in the tract and thus brings about the destruction of crop, then it is the imperative duty of Government to pay attention to those drains. The Superintending Engineer has in his report recommended the excavation of these drains, and this is referred to in the Government Resolution dated the 13th July 1927 referred to above. The improvement of these drains will afford great relief to the cultivators of this tract. I would like to draw the attention of the Honourable the Revenue Member to this report of the Superintending Engineer, Mr. Lowsley.

Sir, Government think that they have performed their duty if they provide a high salaried officer for a particular purpose. I think much more would be gained if the amount which is being spent on the high salaried officer is spent on actually digging wells and on boring operations. If the people of a village apply for a boring to be excavated in their village they have now to provide Rs. 3,000. Formerly they had to provide Rs. 2,000; now, they have to provide about Rs. 3,000. Now, many villages have not a good supply of drinking water. If boring is undertaken there is a possibility of drinking water being made available. In some of the villages borings have been successful: in Viramgaum borings are successful generally. There was one village which had to go for its water supply a mile and a half. Even from that village Government demanded Rs. 3,000. I think that was the reply given by Government when I put an interpellation. If they wanted a boring they had to pay Rs. 3,000. If Rs. 3,000 is to be charged for providing drinking water which is a primary necessity for human existence, then, I think, callousness can go no farther. I find a sum of three lakhs of rupees provided in this budget for grants to local bodies for village water supply. But I suggest that the grant should be distributed more liberally, taking into consideration the capacity of the people to pay. The condition of the village must be examined before the contribution of the village is fixed. If it is a rich village, it may be able to pay the general quota: but if it is a poor village and not able to pay the general quota fixed by Government, it may have to go without water supply for ever and ever. If it is not able to pay its quota, it will have no water supply under the regime of this so-called civilized and benign Government. But it is the duty of Government to help even poor villagers though they may not be able to pay on account of their poverty. I have referred to these matters, and I hope Government will pay attention to what I have said.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City): Sir, I myself wanted to raise the question which has been referred to by the honourable member Mr. Pahalajani, namely, why this item of Rs. 45,000 has been made non-votable although the appointment of Major Pogson was sanctioned by this Council. From the report issued by this gentleman (the water diviner), I find that in 16 months he has been able to locate 286 wells, some suitable for purposes of agriculture and some suitable for providing drinking water. The average cost of each well located comes to Rs. 157. But if we take into account only the wells that actually gave water at some reasonable depth, the figure will go still higher. Now, so far as divining is concerned, from time immemorial there have been people in India who possess this knowledge and charge only Rs. 4 or Rs. 5 for the purpose of indicating where the water is. Here, you have one white elephant, (the water-diviner) who has to go and tell the people where water can be found, and for the purpose of maintaining him the presidency is saddled with an expenditure of Rs. 45,000. Sir, I am not sure that it is in the interests of the ryots. I do not think there was any application made to Government by the people of the villages for the provision of this kind of divination, but if Government had money for such purposes, I would prefer they spent it in the actual sinking and construction of wells. I would suggest that a part of this Rs. 45,000, be spent in Sind, more particularly in Thar Parkar and Nawabshah districts, for digging wells. I understand from my honourable friends coming from Sind that so far as sinking of wells is concerned, for the last few years Government have given up the practice of giving tagavi to aid or encourage people to sink wells. In the Thar Parkar district particularly the people suffer considerable difficulty owing to scarcity of drinking water. Therefore Government should see its way to find more money for the purpose of giving some kind of grant—either one-third or one-half or whatever they consider reasonable—to the people of Thar Parkar. In Thar Parkar the difficulty is that you get water at a very great depth and it is not possible to construct a well within about Rs. 500. They have to spend a large sum of money. In order that the people may be assured of pure and good water supply, these wells are absolutely necessary and in order that the wells may be sunk and constructed Government should find some money to pay as grants to those districts like Thar Parkar which are affected by water scarcity. I hope, therefore, that the Honourable the Minister of Local Self-Government will try to get some money from this department in order to construct wells in these areas.

Now, Sir, with regard to Major Pogson, I think it is time for this House to indicate its opinion as to whether it is desirable, whether it is a paying proposition, to retain such a big officer costing Government Rs. 45,000 a year. The representatives from the rural areas have already told Government that their necessity is not a highly paid officer with a large establishment to locate sources of water supply, but funds to sink and construct wells. If, therefore, Government are anxious to get these wells constructed, they should put more money into the hands of the people to build these wells.

Now, Sir, coming to the question of loans granted to the people in the flooded area, I may submit that my honourable friend from Kaira (Rao Saheb Desai) has quite strongly put up the case against interest being charged to the people. Government have given hardly about Rs. 4 to 5 lakhs to the people in the form of gratuitous relief.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Rs. 10,50,000.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : I submit, Sir, that Government is not at all distributing Rs. 10,50,000 in one place. They have been distributing that amount in Sind, Gujarat and other districts. The sum of Rs. 10,50,000 in a calamity of the last floods is nothing. I am of opinion that something like Rs. 1 crore ought of have been given from this Fund. However, that may be, I shall come to the point of charging interest on the loans, which Government intend to do. I do not understand why Government want to charge people interest on loans, when the amount so given has already been lying for the purpose of famine relief. This is a very important point. I would quite understand if Government was going to borrow money for this purpose of lending to people for repairing their houses. In that case, I know that Government would incur any loss. But here is a question when money has alredy been ear-marked and is reserved as a Famine Fund. I, therefore, fail to understand why Government want to be a Marwari in exacting interest from people in the flooded area.....

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I may inform this House that a part of this amount has to be borrowed, and for that Government has to pay interest. The other part comes from our general balances on which we are receiving interest, and there is thus a loss of interest.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : If my honourable friend, the Revenue Member, looks at page 109 of the budget, he will find a large balance which is lying at the disposal of the Famine Relief Fund. This balance is far larger than the amount that has to be given by way of loan to the people for the purpose of constructing houses in villages. I, therefore, do not know inspite of this large balance, why it is found necessary to borrow money and give it to people on interest. I think it is merely explaining away the point. I say, Sir, that earning interest is a very good thing from the Government's point of view but have Government considered the difficulties of the poor people who have to pay loans by instalments and also interest thereon ? It would have been perhaps reasonable on the part of Government if they had demanded interest from the people after two or three years of respite. At present Government know the condition of the people in the flooded area, and it would not be reasonable for them to ask for interest. This item of Famine Relief Fund was kept apart and, therefore, to expect return on this is hardly fair and humane.

I, therefore, appeal to this honourable House to strongly indicate its desire that Government should change this policy of charging interest on loans.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Sir, I think my honourable friend, Mr. Bechar, has misunderstood the honourable member Rao Saheb Desai. Rao Saheb Desai complained that Government should not use money from the Famine Fund for the repairs of tanks damaged through the floods. But I would inform this House that Rao Saheb Desai, in the October session of the Bombay Legislative Council stated that it would be a legitimate demand to make on the Famine Fund.....

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : No, I am not disputing it.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Well, Rao Saheb Desai does dispute it. I remember having heard several honourable members on the opposite side speaking in eloquent terms on what Government should do for the floods in Gujerat and Sind. They stated that this was an occasion on which Government should use the Famine Fund. Accordingly Government have used the Famine Fund for the repairs to tanks damaged through the floods. Now, my honourable friend, Rao Saheb Desai, comes forward before this honourable House and takes Government to task for doing so. I do not think his position is at all consistent with the speech he made in the October session. I contend, Sir, that Government have rightly allowed the Irrigation Department to take money out of this Fund for the repairs of the tanks. My honourable friend complains that we have made inroads into the Famine Fund for repairing bunds in Sind. But he must know that these bunds are repaired under the advice given by the Indus River Commission. That Commission stated that the bunds in Sind required strengthening and repairing. If these bunds were not repaired, Government would run considerable risk of famine in certain areas. Therefore, I ask : " Is this not a legitimate claim on the Famine Fund ? " May I ask the honourable member what the Famine Fund was instituted for ?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : May I inform the Honourable the General Member that formerly the expenditure on the repairs of this nature was incurred from the ordinary revenue ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Well, that is no argument to say that money spent for the repairs of bunds in Sind is not a legitimate demand on the Famine Fund. As I have already said, the river might wash away the whole country if the bunds were not repaired. I think the honourable member from the presidency had not understood the position in regard to bunds in Sind. We refused to take the responsibility by not including the item in the budget for the repair of these bunds. Under these circumstances, may I know from this honourable House whether we have not made a legitimate demand from the Famine Fund ?

Now, my honourable friend says that we have made inroads into the Famine Fund to the tune of Rs. 24 lakhs. If you will look into the Blue Book, you will find, Sir, that in the current year we have taken Rs. 5 lakhs and for the next year there is a provision of Rs. 6,54,000. Therefore, his figures are not quite correct. Then, I think my honourable friend also contended that we use money from the famine fund for the repair of tanks under the Irrigation Department. So far as my recollection goes, not one rupee from the Famine Fund has been spent on the repair of these tanks. The money comes from the himayat, and when it runs short, it comes from the ordinary revenues of Government, and I may tell honourable members that for the last number of years Government have had to make good from ordinary revenues the shortage on the himayat. In Surat District it is perfectly true that the himayat amounts to a larger sum than the costs of the repairs. But taking the presidency as a whole, there is a loss, and that loss is made good out of the ordinary revenues.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu): Sir, I rise to support the motion for the cut which has been moved by my honourable friend. The agriculturists in Sind get water only for three or four months in the year in some places and in some other places hardly any water is received at all by them. Famine conditions, therefore, always exist in Sind, due to shortage of water and grass. Thousands of cattle are lost and human beings also suffer very heavily on account of the extreme shortage of water in Sind. Sir, Sind is fittingly called a " run " or a desert. Government ought to spend generously in such a desert for supply of water to the people. Otherwise, neither cattle nor human beings get enough water and both suffer miserably. The same arrangements which are made in other parts of the presidency for irrigation and other facilities ought to be made for Sind also, in respect of grass, fodder and water. In Thar Parkar District especially, and also in parts on the border of Larkana and other places, there is absolute shortage of water, and special provision ought to be made for all these localities. When we had flood 5 on the last occasion in Sind, Thar Parkar District and the Hyderabad District suffered heavily. Government gave Rs. 6 lakhs as tagavi. But I have heard and understood from people that those zamindars alone were fortunate enough to get this tagavi who agreed to pay Rs. 10 for every Rs. 100 to the officers who came to distribute and Rs. 10 for every Rs. 100 towards the Blind Relief hospital fund. Those who refused to pay these percentages failed to get this tagavi. I believe that these matters had also come up at the Poona session, and Government had assured the House that the matters would be enquired into and proper steps would be taken to see that tagavi reached the proper people without any trouble. If 20 per cent. of what these poor people are to receive as tagavi is to be taken away from them, I say, Sir, that Government would be worse even than the moneylenders, Marwaris or the Jews whom we accuse of exacting heavy interest. I do not think people in Sind should receive such treatment, especially when they are already suffering very much under police harassment and so on. Now, I may tell this House of an instance of police harassment. Mr. Kalandar Sufi, who was a member of this House and a big zamindar, had several guns and rifles. He gave the numbers of his guns and rifles he had in his possession, and he was prosecuted because there was an error in one gun number. Poor man was convicted by lower court but eventually High Court acquitted him. Five or six other zamindars were also prosecuted at different times and some of them were sent to jail. My point Sir, is that when even big zamindars and other people are harassed, what about the poor zamindars and poor people of Sind generally ? I may tell you, Sir, and this honourable House that the Sind zamindars are as gentle and as mild as cows. Whatever you tell them, they will do. Hence they are made to suffer by such zooloom, which they certainly do not deserve in the least. Now, if 20 per cent. of what they are to get as tagavi is to be paid by them to Government officers and hospital funds, the very object of the tagavi would be frustrated. Government ought therefore, to change their policy and ought to go into all these questions most carefully and sympathetically and I am sanguine that the Government will take steps to stop this kind of zooloom.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI (Bijapur District): Sir, I formally support this cut. As regards the storage of famine grass, as said by the honourable mover, it is very dangerous to store grass because of the risk of fire unless it is duly insured. I ask Government whether they have taken care to insure this grass.

As regards the storage of kadbi in my district, Government have not reserved any fund for doing so this year. The old stacks of kadbi need to be disposed of after three years as after three years the quality deteriorates.

As regards boring machines, I must tell the House that Bijapur needs boring machines—plenty of them—because that district is a famine-stricken district. The conditions for lending boring machines are very strict, however, and the rates are also very high. The department should reduce the rates and supply the Bijapur district with a good many of these useful machines.

As regards the village water supply, there is an item of Rs. 3,00,000. This item has been appearing year by year and Mr. Lowsley also has been very energetic in his work and yet the villagers in my district bitterly complain about the shortage of water. Although this matter has been agitated for two or three years, the scarcity has not been removed or reduced appreciably. Almost every taluka such as Hungund, Bilgi petha, Muddebihal, Bagalkote, suffers from acute want of water. Bilgi petha suffers most as villagers have to go 15 to 20 miles to bring water. As Government are aware, Bijapur is a famine-stricken district and I hope they will be kind enough to remove the scarcity of drinking water.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North): Sir, I rise to support the cut. Before I go to other items. I want to draw the attention of this honourable House to certain jugglery practised by Government without taking this House into its confidence in connection with the changing of Devolution Rules. I refer to Famine Insurance Fund. The Devolution Rules provide that the local Governments (Bombay in particular) should provide every year for expenditure for relief and insurance against famine, i.e., Rs. 63 lakhs. Under these rules Government cannot annul the assignment unless and until the total amount comes to 3½ crores. Still, under the new rules which have been framed by Government, it has been provided that Government can annul the assignment when the amount is 75 lakhs. The Famine Insurance Fund was primarily started to meet famine scarcity, etc., and for that purpose it was wisely decided that a sum of 63 lakhs of rupees should be set apart every year. Last year, owing to the policy of Government it was decided that that amount of 63 lakhs should be reduced by at least 30 lakhs. This year, however, the Honourable the Finance Member has thought it fit not to provide any amount for famine insurance and the reason given is the need for retrenchment. As I said in my budget speech, he wants everybody to make merry at the cost of the agriculturist and the taxpayer. That is the reason why the Honourable the Finance Member has chosen not to provide a sum of 33 lakhs for the Famine Insurance Fund. Last time, in the October session, my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan protested against this policy of Government of wiping out the Famine Insurance Fund. Not satisfied with that, Government have failed to provide a single rupee towards the Famine Insurance Fund on the ground that the fund is so large that it does not need to be increased and that by drawing upon it deficit budgets may be converted into balanced budgets or solvent budgets. But, Sir, this is nothing more than jugglery to lead the outside world to believe that the finances of the Bombay Presidency are in a very good condition. If the full sum of 63 lakhs had been provided for famine insurance, the Honourable the Finance Member would have had to show a deficit budget to the tune of a crore of rupees, but to hide that fact from the people of the presidency, he has thought it proper not to provide any amount for famine insurance. Not satisfied with that, Government have chosen to alter the rules with regard to the Famine Insurance Fund. Under the new rules, instead of a sum of 63 lakhs, only 12 lakhs have been provided and instead of 3½ crores, only 75 lakhs has been provided as the limits to be observed in regard to the Famine Insurance Fund. I ask the Honourable the Finance Member as to why this House was not taken into his confidence before steps were taken to alter the devolution rules.

[Mr. F. J.Ginwalla]

I agree with other honourable members as to why the post of water diviner has been made non-votable. There is nothing to show that this post was created by the Secretary of State or sanctioned by him. Possibly, the Honourable the Finance Member is so much enamoured of the water diviner's services that he does not want this House to have any control over the water diviner's activities. I hope the Honourable the Finance Member will give us proper explanation of this item also.....

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Why does not the honourable member ask the Honourable the Revenue Member about it ?

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA: I now come to the question of interest. I fully agree with other honourable members that it is not right to charge agriculturists any interest for money given to them for relieving their distress. The Honourable the Revenue Member has informed this House that some amount has been borrowed and that some amounts, that have been advanced carry interest. Whether they carry interest or not, it does not carry any conviction to me or other members of this House.

If, Sir, it is the desire of this House, and if it is the policy of Government to help agriculturists in distress and start an Insurance Fund, surely the agriculturist of this presidency is entitled to loans free of interest. Otherwise, it may be that all the agriculturists can get money at interest from Marwaris also. Then I fail to understand what is the difference between Government and a Marwari. Government charge lesser interest and a Marwari charges higher interest; that is the only difference.

Then, as regards the water diviner, I have read the report, and it has been stated that his work has been very successful, especially in tracts where water is scarce, and it has also been stated in the report that three local water diviners have been selected for this work. Sir, looking to the report, I find that no efforts have been made to train Indians for doing this kind of work. A huge amount like Rs. 35,000 is spent for engaging the services of Major Pogson, but Major Pogson has not been able to satisfy us, and he has not given an account of his work in the matter of training Indians in this kind of work. I do not think that this faculty of water divining is only confined to Major Pogson, and that suitable Indians cannot be found in this presidency for doing that kind of work. I therefore hope that, so far as Major Pogson's activities are concerned, he will give a better account of his activity at least next year.

Mr. M. D. KARKI (Kanara District): Sir, I rise to support the motion before the House, and I have got my own reasons for doing so. Though Kanara is not a district liable to be visited by famine, the scarcity of potable water is very keenly felt there. The Honourable the present Finance Member, when he was the Revenue Member, made it very clear on 6th March 1925, in stating to this House the policy of Government in regard to the Famine Relief Fund, that throughout the districts in this presidency, for making improvements in water supply, every year a sum would be allotted from this fund. Sir, the fact that there is scarcity of potable water in Kanara is a thing admitted on all hands. I put a question to the Honourable the Revenue Member on 11th March 1927, as to whether there is scarcity of potable water in Kanara. In his reply he has clearly admitted that Government are aware that in some jungle villages there is scarcity of water during the hot weather. Though I do not fully agree with the reply given by him, I submit that he was at least good enough to admit that there was difficulty felt at least in some villages. To me it appears that not only is there scarcity of potable water in jungle villages, but throughout Kanara, in every village, there is scarcity felt of potable water. No doubt, there is heavy rainfall in the district, but the supply of good drinking water is not to be had throughout the district. Early in 1921 or so, one Dr. Mhaskar was appointed to investigate into the heavy death rate in Kanara and suggest means to put down malaria prevailing there. According to my information, he suggested that an adequate supply of potable water was quite necessary in Kanara before malaria could be put down, or health could be improved. In one of the answers to my question in 1924, on the subject of "the decrease in population of Kanara," you, Sir, replied "since 1920 new wells have been dug out and constructed to improve drinking water supply in certain jungle villages. The total number of wells completed and under construction in 1924 was 23." Since then, no attempt has been made, it seems, by Government to improve the potable water supply in Kanara. It was on the 11th of March 1927 that I asked a direct question to the Honourable the Revenue Member, whether any part of the Famine Relief Fund was allotted and spent in Kanara, during the three years' period of 1924, 1925 and 1926. His reply was that Government did not think it advisable to allow something from the Famine Relief Fund to Kanara. It is this reply which has caused trouble. In 1925, when enunciating the policy of Government with regard to famine relief, the then Revenue Member was good enough to state before this House that in every district, whether that district is liable to be visited by famine or not, an amount would be allotted for improving the water supply, and the Honourable the present Revenue Member, also on 11th March 1927, in reply to another question, was good enough to say that a grant-in-aid was being sanctioned to the district local board of Kanara, as in the case of other districts, for the improvement of the water supply of villages other than forest villages. In the same session, on the same day replying to another question, he (the present Revenue Member) was pleased to say that there was no opportunity, or the Government did not think it advisable, to allot money from the Famine Relief Fund to Kanara. I do not know how to reconcile these two statements: they contradict each other. If Kanara has no claim for any amount from the Famine Relief Fund, then, how to reconcile with it the answer that for the Kanara district local board a sum from the Famine Relief Fund was being allotted along with other district local boards. I want to be enlightened as to whether or not Government is actually providing funds from the Famine Relief Fund for improving the water supply in Kanara. If Government is not providing, then, why do they not stick to the statement made in 1925 by the then Revenue Member that an allotment would be made for every district for improving the water supply. As I have already stated, the scarcity is felt not only in jungle villages but in all villages. The scarcity exists in places inhabited by backward communities, that is agriculturists and depressed classes. Almost all the houses belonging to such communities as Mukris the (untouchables), Halkki Vakals (cultivators and ryots) are situated in one place. They are utterly poor people ; they have no means at their command to dig good wells for drinking water. They dig katcha wells which provide unwholesome water. The drinking of this water brings in a retinue of ailments. Dr. Mhaskar, after a careful examination and study of the whole situation in Kanara recommended, I believe, that wells should be provided for good potable water and Government actually undertook to dig some wells up till 1924. It is not known why that scheme was abandoned and why the policy of allotting some money for Kanara for digging wells has been discontinued. The Honourable the Revenue Member said in his reply on 11th March 1927 that a special grant also was being made every year for the improvement of the water supply in the jungle villages. This special grant is as I think not from the Famine Relief Fund. I want to know from what fund this special grant is made. If special grants were being made every year, I want to know why were not wells constructed in these villages after the year 1924 ? To me it appears that no provision was made for that purpose after that year though it is contended that special grants were being made every year.

[Mr. M. D. Karki]

(At this stage an honourable member was noticed by the Honourable the President to be reading a newspaper).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. No newspaper reading in the House.

Mr. M. D. KARKI : If Government is going to give grants-in-aid for water supply schemes to the local boards, from the famine relief funds, of course Kanara will be one of them to share the grants. But, I submit, Sir, that the Kanara local board is not in a position to allot any money for this purpose from its revenue, if that is a condition precedent. The resources of the district local board are very slender, and there is no chance of improving the finances of the board by resorting to fresh taxation. The annual revenue of the district local board comes to nearly Rs. 4,20,000, but more than half of it is spent on education and nothing is left for improving the water supply in the villages. The need of water supply is keenly felt and the situation should be improved very soon. At present the position is, the district local board is not in a position to make provision for the improvement of water supply in Kanara, and Government also would not give any grants as the district local board would not share its liability to the extent laid down by them. If this state of things continues, there will be no potable water supply as desired in Kanara. This situation should not however be allowed to continue any longer. As the district local board is not in a position to allot a certain amount of money every year and demand from Government its quota, Government should allot a special grant for the improvement of water supply in all villages where water difficulty is being felt and not merely in jungle villages. This is in consonance with the practice pursued up till 1924. I therefore request the Honourable the Revenue Member to enlighten me whether any grant is actually being made to Kanara and whether that grant is being utilised for digging wells. If that is not being done, I would request him to be good enough to allot more money for this purpose, if not under this head under some other head as a special grant.

(After recess)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. Before we proceed with the business of the House, I am sure the House would wish me to refer to a matter which has been brought to my notice this moment and that is the sudden death of Lord Sinha. In his death, every honourable member will agree with me, we have lost a most eminent lawyer and one of the foremost citizens of India, whose merits were recognised by the Home Government and the Government of India in more than one way. In him we have lost one of those Indians of whom we were proud in every corner of India. I think the House will agree and join with me in conveying our condolences to his bereaved family.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, on behalf of Government I endorse every word of what you have said about the sad death of Lord Sinha.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division) : Sir, in associating myself with what you have said on the sad death of Lord Sinha, I give expression to my profound sorrow that his services would no more be available to us at this critical time. No one would have been more useful in connection with the Statutory Commission. I had the honour of personal acquaintance, I might say, long friendship with Lord Sinha and I bear testimony to his invaluable services of head and heart which were always placed at the disposal of his friends and countrymen.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, on behalf of Non-Brahmins I associate myself with what has been said in this House about the death of the late lamented Lord Sinha. Lord Sinha was a great man of India and he took a prominent part in the shaping of the Government of India Act of 1919. I know from my personal experience how much he felt for this country and how he was strong in its defence. It is most unfortunate that on the eve of the Royal Commission we have lost such a splendid and trusted leader. His loss is a national loss.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind) : Sir, on behalf of my party and on behalf of Sindhis, I beg to associate myself with the feeling of regret that has been expressed by the Honourable Chair on the demise of Lord Sinha. So far as I remember he was the Under-Secretary of State for India, when the Government of India Bill was passed into an Act in Parliament. Whatever we got by that Act was through the energies of Lord Sinha.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, on behalf of Gujarat I associate myself with the sentiments expressed by the Honourable Chair on the untimely death of Lord Sinha.

Mr. N. R. GUNJAL (Poona District) (Addressed the House in Marathi) : Sir, I fully associate myself with the feeling of regret expressed by this House for the sad death of Lord Sinha. I am sure the whole of India will feel for the sudden death of that prominent leader. He was a well-known Indian and in a short space of time he had risen to a very distinguished position. He was the first Indian Governor of a Province and Secretary of Maharastra Responsivist Party. By his death, a great void is created which it will take long time to fill. I join on behalf of the citizens of Poona in the condolences to be sent to his bereaved family.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Sir, on behalf of the Council Labour Party I associate myself with the sentiments expressed in connection with the sad demise of Lord Sinha by the previous speakers.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The next business is the debate on this last demand, Mr. Pahalajani.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind) : Sir, I did not wish to take part in the famine insurance fund debate until I discovered that in the details given on page 257 there was a water diviner to the Government of Bombay turned into a non-votable item. Perhaps members who were in the last Council remember the history of the origin and the continuance of this officer. It was in the absence of the Honourable the Leader of the House on leave to England, that this matter was placed by his temporary successor, Mr. Lalubhai Samaldas. He laid before us the opinion of the present Leader of the House as regards the necessity of having a water diviner for famine purposes, for allaying the distress of famine, and the Council passed by a narrow majority, I think of two, the creation of this officer. Now, then, Sir, subsequently in the budget session of 1926-27,—still the old Council,—the matter was again brought up by a cut before this Council, and it was then that the Honourable Sir Chunilal Mehta gave an undertaking that the post would be continued for a year, that is to say, it had to exist till July 1927 and it would be brought again before the Council. Now, that was in March 1926. Then in July 1926, we have got on page 138 of the proceedings a special resolution brought by the Honourable the Revenue Member, in accordance with the undertaking given by the Honourable the Finance Member previously which was as follows :—

"This Council recommends to Government that the appointment of Major Pogson, special officer for locating underground supplies of water, and of his staff may be continued till the end of the current financial year."

That means the appointment was to continue till the 31st March 1927. Therefore, the last sanction that Government was given by this Council,—I need not go into the debate in detail for that purpose,—was given by a special resolution moved by the Honourable the Revenue Member on the 27th July 1926, whereby the Council sanctioned its continuance up to the 31st March 1927 only. From March 1925 to March 1926, and from March 1926 to March 1927 the appointment went on by the special sanction of the Council, and on each occasion by a special motion brought before the Council, even at the budget time an undertaking being given that the sanction of the Council would be taken. Now, when it was continued for one year, we discovered in the budget of 1927-28 placed before this Council last year, that head 43, that is to say, Famine Insurance, was passed under the guillotine measure, that is to say, by default, and was not discussed here. But the resolution of the Honourable the Revenue Member that the appointment would be continued for one year still existed, and from March 1927 and thereafter right up to the present day, the present session, no sanction of this House is obtained. All of a sudden we find that in the budget of 1928-29 the item has been converted into a non-votable item. I do not know, Sir, in a peculiar case of this kind what the privileges of this House are. That is a matter entirely for you, Sir, to decide and I have, therefore, raised that point of order, because this is certain that, so far as the privilege of this House is concerned, on a question of honour, on a question of dignity, on a question of duty of the elected side of this House, the matter cannot admit of any doubt that, when Government undertakes that a request for sanction was to be renewed from year to year, or that they will come as necessity arises, as stated by the then Revenue Member Mr. Lalubhai Samaldas, and the Honourable the Leader of the House on page 1014 of the budget, from time to time before this House, is it fair, Sir, that an appointment which was so much debated and which was so much objected to in this Council, and for which the Honourable the Leader of the House undertook to come to this House year after year, should have been suddenly converted to a non-votable item. I put it to you, Sir, I put it to the House, whether the House mindful of its own dignity, of its own honour, under these circumstances, should not assert itself. I think a cut should have been of Rs. 10,000 and odd or against the whole of the provision put in the budget for this. But this is certain, absolutely certain, that this was an item,—that the appointment of Major Pogson be continued,—that the Honourable the Finance Member undertook to subject it to the vote of the Council. The then Revenue Member, Mr. Lalubhai Samaldas, who first proposed it, gave an undertaking that year after year it shall be brought before the Council for approval. This undertaking being given, I would put it to the House, I would put it to you, whether it lies with Government to make it a non-votable item.

Another thing which was referred to by the member for the Millowners' Association, Mr. Wadia, on 15th March 1927 was whether Major Pogson should be allowed to have private practice. Last year he got Rs. 5,000 from private practice. Mr. Wadia himself had engaged him for certain purposes, and he raised the question whether private practice should be allowed to a water diviner who, I think, gets about Rs. 3,000 or Rs. 2,500 as pay. Therefore, as that question was not sufficiently answered last year and we did not go into vote last year over this item, for reasons I have already explained, this House is entitled to know whether Major Pogson still exists, whether he does the work of water divining, whether his work has at all succeeded or has not succeeded. Whether his work has succeeded or not, is good or bad, whatever the quality of his work may be, he becomes one of those protected people whom the Council cannot touch. The conversion of a highly objected appointment into a non-votable appointment is certainly not dignified, is certainly, I would say, Sir, an insult to this House. If it is not an insult, then the Honourable the Revenue Member ought to place before this House the work of this water diviner; and it was done in 1926. In this session no effort whatever has been made to place before us the work done by him. The item appears in 43-A in one corner, a big item, and that item is sought to be run in and got through as a sanctioned item and no opportunity clearly given to this House to apply its mind to the sanctioning of this appointment.

Now, then, Sir, if Major Pogson is to be a permanent factor, and to be an all-India man and non-votable, is this House not entitled to find out whether his work has been successful or not? All these matters should have to be considered and I would ask the Honourable the Revenue Member and the Honourable the Finance Member to tell us under what circumstances Major Pogson is allowed to continue his work and whether this House will have an opportunity of judging him or not. Even the report that has been lately published contains no further indication of the success of his work. The report for the first year was very rosy; the report for the second year was less rosy and it was much less rosy still in the third year and I do not know whether this appointment should continue at all. I would like to know from the Honourable the Finance Member whether the appointment, in his opinion, should continue and whether private practice should be allowed and whether, if it is allowed, this one rupee cut should not be carried.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I think I should separate the discussion from the point of order raised and as the Honourable the Leader of the House had said that he would like to express his views on the point of order raised after tea, I should like him particularly to say whether the Rs. 35,000 has been by error shown in italics and, if it is not so, then to satisfy me as to how, by what authority, relying on what in the constitution the change has been made, and after that, I will give my ruling.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: May I ask the honourable member, the Secretary to the Finance Department, to explain the facts to you, Sir?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Very well.

Mr. G WILES: Sir, I submit, in the first place, that there is no question of order involved in this. I understand that the honourable member from Sukkur has asked for an explanation as to why this item appears in the form in which it does appear and I am prepared to give that explanation.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I should like to correct the honourable member. There is a point of order and a very important point of order raised, which affects the interests and the privilege of the House. The point of order is whether a temporary appointment which was to be brought up from year to year for sanction could be, without the knowledge of the House or the permission or consultation of the House, turned into a permanent appointment and made non-votable.

Mr. G. WILES: The explanation Sir, is, as I understand it, this. I think Major Pogson's first appointment was made for one year on a demand by Government at the sessions of July. The first year therefore expired in the middle of the financial year. Provision was made during that year for twelve months' pay of Major Pogson and his establishment. Since the original appointment was for an experimental period of one year only, the Finance Member at that time brought a resolution before the House that the appointment (money had been already voted by this Council for Major Pogson's services for twelve months) should be continued for the full twelve months of the financial year. There was a discrepancy between the budget provision for twelve months and the resolution of the House (agreeing to the appointment) which expired after seven months of that year. That was the position uptil the month of March 1927. In March 1927.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: That is a wrong statement, Sir. The Honourable Mr. Rieu's resolution was that it be continued up to March 1927.

Mr. G. WILES: I do not think it differs from what I said. That was the position up to the end of March 1927, as the honourable member has corrected me. In the budget which was placed before this House in March 1927, a provision was made for 12 months' salary of Major Pogson and his establishment. The establishment was voted by this House together with the whole provision.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: Under votable or non-votable head?

Mr. G. WILES: I am indifferent for the moment to the question of votable or non-votable heads. I am coming to that presently. Provision was made for twelve months and was voted by this honourable House. Unfortunately no discussion took place on it because this particular grant was put under the guillotine. It is perhaps unfortunate that owing to that an explanation of this part of the item having become non-votable could not be given. I find in this file before me a note of mine which was prepared at that time to be laid before the House, in answer to a motion which I think was tabled for the discussion on this item. We did not reach this item at that time and so we were unable to give the explanation that we intended to give. The facts are these:—

"After this provision was put in the budget as a votable item, we received orders from the Auditor-General through the Accountant General to the effect that it is persons and not merely posts which are protected under the Government of India Act, and that a protected person is always excluded from the vote, no matter what post he may be holding. The whole of Major Pogson's pay and allowance as the Water Diviner to Government was therefore to be treated as non-voted."

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: Temporary or permanent?

Mr. G. WILES: Whether the post is temporary or permanent, the essential is that Major Pogson was first appointed by the Secretary of State to service in India. The fact that he was subsequently transferred to this temporary post did not alter this: his pay under the orders of the Secretary of State which were communicated to us by the Auditor-General continues to be non-voted. Those are the definite instructions of the Secretary of State communicated to us by the Auditor-General which we had no power to go against.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: Was his military pay non-voted or his civil pay?

Mr. G. WILES: Major Pogson was first appointed, I believe, to the Military Department by the Secretary of State. Now, this Council was well aware.....

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Has Major Pogson a permanent post to which he can be reverted now?

Mr. G. WILES: I presume he can be sent back to his regiment, but I am not certain of that. That does not alter the fact, and is not relevant to this discussion at all. The sole relevant fact is that Major Pogson was appointed to the service in India by the Secretary of State. That is all that the rules require us to ensure.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think it would be useful for the House and particularly for me to know whether the original appointment in the Army still continues or whether it has ceased and his services have been enrolled in a different direction.

Mr. G. WILES : As far as I know Sir, Major Pogson can be reverted to his military post. Major Pogson is in the temporary employment of this Government and his contract, to which I will now refer, definitely makes his post with this Government temporary. The Government of Bombay was well aware that the position might not be regarded as quite satisfactory by this honourable House, we did not regard it as altogether satisfactory ourselves. For that reason it has been made perfectly clear that any adverse vote by this House dealing with Major Pogson's establishment would be regarded as an adverse vote against Major Pogson himself, and that has been made perfectly clear in the contract with Major Pogson. I will read out clause 7 of the draft agreement :

" Notwithstanding anything herein contained the continuance of the party of the first part in the service of Government shall be subject to the vote of the Bombay Legislative Council as regards the retention of the necessary establishment for his work in the budget.

Although the pay of the party of the first part is technically non-votable, his services shall be liable to termination without notice if the votable provision for his work is at any time not sanctioned by the said Legislative Council. "

So that, far from there being any insult intended on the part of Government to this honourable House, we have done all in our power to make it clear to both Major Pogson and the House itself that if this House passes any adverse vote against Major Pogson's establishment, his services will be dispensed with.

The value of the sound and fury which we have heard from the honourable member from Sukkur regarding Major Pogson's work may be gauged from the fact that there is no reference in the motions for cuts to Major Pogson. Major Pogson's establishment is votable, but no honourable member of this House has seen fit to bring any motion with regard to the establishment.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Can this House have the permission of the Chair now to object to that item, because this information is brought to the notice of the House now only ? Cannot the Chair give permission to move that cut ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, the Finance Secretary had not this volume before him, which will completely answer the questions that have been raised now by the honourable member from Sukkur (Mr. Pahalajani). He says that the House were not aware that the item of Major Pogson's pay was a non-votable item. I am quoting now from the speech of the Honourable the Revenue Member (Mr. Rieu) on the 27th of July 1926, in reply to the debate that took place on his resolution that Major Pogson's services may be continued till the end of the currrent financial year, that is the year ending March 1927. At the end of the debate, in the reply, this is what the Honourable Mr. Rieu says :

" Government have an agreement with that officer that, in the event of this Council failing to vote the supplies required for his subordinate staff—I might mention that his own pay is a non-votable item—Government will be at liberty to dispense with his services."

But there is something more than that. The Honourable the Revenue Member had then moved:

"That this Council recommends to Government that the appointment of Major Pogson, Special Officer for locating underground supplies of water and of his staff may be continued till the end of the current financial year."

To that there was an amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. A. N. Surve in these words.

"Delete the words 'the current financial year' occurring at the end of the resolution and insert instead '15th of March 1927'."

These are the reasons which he gave for that amendment:

"The idea underlying this amendment is that if we at this stage make the appointment coterminus with the end of the financial year, then at the time of the next budget that item will automatically go into the budget, and it will be very difficult for us at that time to delete it, because then it will become a permanent department which could not be abolished."

That amendment was not only moved but debated at considerable length. I am trying to see whether the honourable member from Sukkur (Mr. Pahalajani) took part in the debate. I think he did—he was the Deputy President then—and I find his name occurring here at various places.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: I think I was in the Chair.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Then certainly the Deputy President exercised exactly the same close attention which you, Sir, are exercising now, and he was fully aware of the circumstances under which this amendment came to be moved and the reasons advanced. What happened to that amendment? It was put and it was lost. This is what is printed in the proceedings:

"Question put that this Council recommends that the appointment of Major C. A. Pogson for locating underground supplies of water and of his staff may be continued till the end of March 1927."

So that, it will be.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: What was the result?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: It was lost; it was not even carried to a division. There was a previous division for adjourning the debate, but only 9 members voted for it.

It is quite clear from this debate that the House was fully aware of the circumstances at the time, in 1927, when a responsible statement was made by the Honourable the Revenue Member in reply to a debate which raised this specific issue before this House. The Honourable the Revenue Member then stated that technically the pay was non-voted, and he further went on to say what I have read out to the House just now. So, I do not think, Sir, under any stretch of imagination, can it be said that Government have departed by a hair's breadth from what they undertook to do. The honourable member the Finance Secretary has explained the orders of the Accountant General, and the opportunity was taken immediately to explain the situation to this House. The House was fully aware of it, and I do not think any indulgence of the nature asked for by the honourable member from Sukkur (Mr. Pahalajani) can be granted by you now. If there was a desire on the part of this House that Major Pogson should not be continued, it was open to them to move the deletion of the amount provided for the establishment. No honourable member with his knowledge of the facts as contained in the debates has tried to do so, and that apparently seems to me to show that there is no desire on the part of the House to do so.

I am not addressing the House now on the merits of the question.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I do not know whether I would allow an extensive discussion on the point of order, but if any honourable member has anything to say on the constitutional side of the question, I will be pleased to hear him.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, after hearing the explanations given by the honourable member the Finance Secretary and the Honourable the Leader of the House, the point that still remains is whether the salary of a servant of Government appointed by the Secretary of State to a military post in the first instance, after he comes over to civil employ and is paid by a civil department of the Bombay presidency from out of its revenue, can be considered to be protected. It is an appointment of the Bombay Government. Does he now continue to be a servant of the Government of India, or is he now a servant of the Government of Bombay. His salary is being paid out of the civil estimates, which has nothing to do with the military side. So, that point still remains. I quite agree that the honourable members of Government have explained to us the situation, and have mentioned the terms of the contract they have made with Major Pogson. That may be all very well. But he is not here as a person whose services have been taken on loan from the Government of India. We do not know exactly what is his status in military service at present; we do not know whether his lien on that appointment is suspended or not. He may be continuing there. There are certain appointments with regard to which we do not know the position of the officer. If Major Pogson continues in military service, then his pay will have to be paid out of the treasury of the Government of India. The question here is with reference to his services with this Government, and whether his appointment as water diviner is votable or not. It was stated that he is a person who was appointed to the Military Department by the Secretary of State. That may be so.

The whole point is, he has not been appointed to an all-India service. The military and the civil services are different, and so long as he is not appointed by the Secretary of State to any all-India service, it seems to me that it will not be competent to treat his salary as non-votable. The appointment may be quite all right on its merits, but there is the point of order regarding the treatment of his salary as a non-votable item. On that point of order, I think, Sir, that there has been no case made out in the explanation tendered by the honourable members on the opposite side.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Sir, I would further beg to suggest that if you are not clear upon this point, you may take some time, say, till to-morrow and not pronounce your decision now as to whether it is votable or non-votable.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : There is one point on which I should like to have information from the Honourable the Leader of the House. What is the authority of the Accountant General to intimate to the Finance Department as he has done ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, the question arose from a letter by the Accountant General, dated the 23rd February 1926 :—

" I have the honour to invite attention to Government Resolution, Revenue Department, No. 9182 dated 10th September 1925 regarding the creation of the appointment of a Special Officer in connection with the location of underground supplies of water, and to state that the pay and allowances of Major C. A. Pogson, who has been appointed to that post are classified as non-voted as he was originally appointed to his post in the Military Department by the Secretary of State. As the provision for meeting the cost of his pay and allowances, referred to in paragraph 8 of the Government Resolution quoted above is voted, I request that Government will be pleased to transfer an amount equivalent to his pay and allowances from 1st October 1925 to 28th February 1926 from voted to non-voted during the current year. The provision for the next year should also be made under non-voted if the appointment is to continue. In view, however, of the specific condition attaching to this appointment, in that its continuance with the vote of the Legislative Council, I may be informed how this condition is proposed to be fulfilled. Attention is invited to the note to list II, Appendix 8 to the Audit Code, in this connection."

On that, Sir, we made the condition, which the honourable member the Finance Secretary read, in the agreement with Major Pogson. Then, Sir, we raised the question again with the Accountant General, and this is another letter that he wrote to us :

" With reference to Government memorandum No. 9182A dated 30th April 1926, I have the honour to state that, on reconsideration, the question as to whether Major Pogson's pay and allowances as Water Diviner should be treated as voted or non-voted appears to me a doubtful one and has been referred to the Auditor General, whose orders may be awaited before any further action is taken in the matter. A further communication will be made to Government in due course. "

Then, Sir, came the resolution of the Honourable the Revenue Member in July 1926 the amendment to which was defeated.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : What does the Auditor General say ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : This is what the Accountant General wrote to us again :

" In continuation of this office letter No. G11790 dated 17th December 1926, I have the honour to state that it has been held by the Government of India that it is persons and not merely posts which are protected under the Government of India Act and that the emoluments of a protected person are always excluded from the vote, no matter what post he may be holding. The whole of Major Pogson's pay and allowances as Water Diviner to Government should accordingly be treated as non-voted. It is requested therefore that Government will be pleased to transfer the provision made under the head 43-A, Famine Relief on account of Major Pogson's pay and allowances in the estimates for the current financial year (he writes on 21st February 1927).

" From the voted to the non-voted section and to make provision accordingly in the estimates for the coming year. "

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

This is the final letter which the Accountant General wrote on the authority of the Government of India and on which we were bound to act.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: What is the date?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: This is dated 21st February 1927.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Is there not the Auditors General's letter forwarded with it?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: No, Sir, the Accountant General wrote, as I told you, on the 26th May 1926, that the matter had been referred to the Auditor General whose orders might be awaited. He added: "A further communication will be made to Government in due course." The next letter is the one which I read out to you, and that is dated 21st February 1927.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The question is whether there is the letter of the Auditor General.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: I do not find that in this file. I shall get the other files. I find this letter from the Accountant General, dated 21st February 1927, stating that it has been held by the Government of India that it is persons and not merely posts.....

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: That is after the publication of the Civil Estimates for the year 1926-27?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: That is the final letter. Then again, he wrote on the 26th March 1927.

"I have the honour to invite reference to this office letter No. G. P. 14127, dated 21st February 1927, and to enquire whether the provision on account of the Pay and allowances of Major Pogson, Water Diviner to the Government of Bombay, has been transferred from the voted to the non-voted section of the estimates under 43-A Famine Relief. It is requested that an intimation of the transfer having been effected may kindly be sent to this office before the close of the financial year."

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI: Sir, I want to.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I do not think I will allow a debate to be carried on. The House is entitled to assert its privilege, if it can be asserted, on the matter of a post of this kind which was up to this moment understood by most—I must say I am included in that—as a temporary one, the pay and allowances of which were within the control of the House. The situation seems to have changed. I see, on the other hand, that the Government of Bombay have not done that voluntarily. It appears that they too in the intitial stages held that appointment to be a temporary one and the pay of the officer as votable. I would like yet to be satisfied on further details after having had, if I may be allowed, an inspection of the file.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Certainly, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: And after discussing the matter, if necessary, with the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, and the Advocate General, I will give my ruling in the next sitting day of the Council.

As to the second point that was raised whether, a cut would be allowed now at this stage, because circumstances have come to the knowledge of the House in this particular manner, I do not think that a cut for the assertion of the rights of the House is necessary at all, because when I put the whole demand, the House can assert itself on the whole demand, basing their intention on that particular item. There would be that chance to the House. But a cut in that fashion cannot be allowed if I follow strict technicalities of the Rules and Standing Orders.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Sir, may I know whether in the event of this cut of Re. 1 being passed by the House it would affect the item of the pay of Major Pogson and his staff ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : It would not directly affect that item. But the Government would understand that the House has carried out their intention against the whole demand because of that particular circumstance having come to their knowledge.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Sir, may I point out that a number of points have been raised on this demand ? The pay of Major Pogson and his staff is one of many points which have been raised in the course of the debate. I would, therefore, enquire why the cut should be taken as necessarily relating to this item.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That is for the House to decide.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, one difficulty arises from this, if I may venture to interfere. The point that has been raised by the Honourable the Revenue Member seems to be of great importance because you have ruled that Re. 1 cut is a vote of censure. Now, we have placed before you all the facts giving the reasons why the salary of Major Pogson was turned from the " voted " to the " non-voted." Therefore we cannot certainly regard this cut as a vote of censure for that item. It would be also unusual that a rupee cut should be passed for some other reasons than a vote of censure. I suggest that this is a point which you might take into consideration. The whole thing hangs together and if, on examination of all the papers which will be placed before you, you are satisfied that there was no attempt on the part of Government to go behind the undertaking that they gave to the House, you would give your ruling accordingly. I respectfully suggest this is a matter that may be considered by you before the motion for cut of Re. 1 is interpreted in one way or the other.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : (Satara District) : Sir, I think when the whole demand is put, we shall oppose it and carry on the opposition on the ground mentioned by this House. We shall be justified in throwing the whole demand.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, I submit that it will be very difficult if the whole demand is refused. We cannot refuse the whole demand. The demand consists of several other items and one of them is the salary of Major Pogson and his staff.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. I think there is no difficulty at all in this case. It is open for the House to discuss the various cuts that may come before this House and after having discussed and gone into division, there is still the right of the House when the whole demand is eventually put. The reasons, which may actuate particular honourable member, to go to a particular lobby are quite indifferent matter. The situation is no doubt a difficult one. The circumstances under which the Government were forced to transfer that particular item have been explained. The point that I have to decide is whether the action taken by Government under compulsion or voluntarily is constitutionally correct. If it is found that it is constitutionally right, then I may give my ruling accordingly. But now, I suppose the Honourable the Leader agrees with the suggestion made by some of the honourable members that the House should not proceed with the discussion of this demand until I decide the point of order.

[The President]

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, there are other items on the Famine Insurance Fund, which can be discussed now.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Sir, I had no desire at all to-day to take part in this debate. But after hearing for one and half hour on the point of payment of Major Pogson and his staff and after seeing how that post has been changed from a temporary and votable one to a non-voted post, I feel inclined to make a few observations on this point.

It is, Sir, very surprising to find that Government do not stick to their promises. When they came before this House and stated that the post of Major Pogson was to be a temporary one, how is it that they have made it non-voted and thus put this House into confusion? This is nothing but confusion for this House.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I find that the honourable member is going back on the facts mentioned just now, about which, I have to give my ruling. If he has any other ground to debate upon he may proceed.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE: As regards the Famine Insurance Fund, I shall just point out to this honourable House that during the last two years no money was provided for the storage of grass by the Forest Department. Now, Sir, if I mistake not, this year I do not see any reason why this amount should be provided for the purpose of storing grass. We already have got plentiful rain this year in this presidency and as for grass and fodder I do not think there is any famine in respect thereof. Then, what is the reason for providing such a large amount for this purpose this year? This means that we have been putting this presidency to a loss of Rs. 9,000 per year by way of interest on the amount provided for the storage of grass.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: May I correct the honourable member? A similar amount has been provided for in the current year's budget although it does not specially appear at page 257 of the White Book. That amount was provided by a supplementary demand made in the July or October session. The same amount stands in the next year's budget.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE: Yes that may be correct but the figures are not shown in the columns where they ought to have been put. As regards the provision made for the pay of Major Pogson, I may say that a certain old system of Indian water diviners for finding water or locating water is very cheap and good and if these persons are employed they will not be so costly as Major Pogson. I regret to find that since the appointment of Major Pogson the presidency has not been benefited at all, although we spent nearly Rs. 1 lakh after the pay of Major Pogson and his staff. Instead of spending such a big amount after the pay of this officer and his staff, if Government had spent it for digging wells for the agriculturists by old methods through Indian diviners, they would have been benefited seven times more than as at present. But it could not be done, because we find that the policy of Government is to feed only the big and retiring officers and do nothing else. That policy has been carried on by the present administration in this presidency. Sir, I must again declare that Government have been feeding such white elephants in large numbers. That policy must be discontinued and unless that is done, this side (non-official) of the House will not be quiet at all. It is for the Government to see that such amounts are not wasted after the payment of an officer and his staff for doing nothing beneficial to the people of the presidency. With these words, Sir, I submit that at present I do not wish to say whether I would vote, against or for the cut.

Mr. V. A. SURVE (Ratnagiri District) (Addressed the House in Marathi): Sir, the way in which this famine fund is spent by Government is, indeed, a most wonderful one. The Honourable the Finance Member had brought to the notice of the public that in future this would be spent for village water supply. He had given certain promises when he was Revenue Member in this connection, and a department has also been started under a special superintending engineer. That superintending engineer was expected to carry out works which would meet the convenience of the poor people. Of course, some few people may have got some little benefit from his work. But I seriously doubt whether any large number of them received any benefit at all. There are many villages still which do not get water even for full three months in the year; and they have received absolutely no help or benefit from this officer's work. This famine fund is meant for the benefit of the whole of the presidency, and I do not know why this white elephant in the form of a Water Diviner has been created on a salary of Rs. 3,000 or Rs. 2,500 a month out of this famine fund. He has been of no use or benefit to any of the thousands of villages we have in this presidency. Perhaps he may have done something for those few places which may have motor roads, that is, roads over which this officer's motor car could suitably run. And he may have sunk lakhs of rupees in the ground in the name of sinking wells. In my district of Ratnagiri, which is a miserably poor district, whole villages have to go without water for four months in the year, and they have no food to eat even for full four months. The "Times of India" of the 25th February contained several articles about the deplorable state of Ratnagiri. Yet, Government turns a deaf ear to all that distress of the people. For some parts of Gujarat and Sind, which suffered from floods last year, some help has been given. On November 12th last two steamers were drowned in the Ratnagiri district, and there was considerable loss of life and property. Has Government taken any notice of those poor people? Have they made any provision whatever for the survivors of those unfortunate victims? More than 50 per cent. of the victims were Mussalmans; yet Government does not even remember this disaster and absolutely ignore it! At least some little help, some little succour, could have been given by Government to these unfortunate people, leaving aside for the moment the wants of those people who are crying for water for their villages. It was the plain duty of Government to make some provision out of this fund for those who were drowned in this accident, which was due to flood, and which was due to timely information not being supplied by the department concerned of the impending danger, and their families and survivors ought to have been provided for.

Government has appointed a high officer called Major Pogson as water diviner. I say this is sheer waste of money. I can show you a hundred mahars in my district who can point out to you spots where wells can be sunk, if you only pay them 4 annas each. I would ask Government to remove this water diviner at once and utilise that money for the good of the people. I really do not know what name to give to this Government, which is behaving in this manner, by recklessly spending money over water diviner and other useless matters and pays no heed to the real distress of the people by doing the right things. Of course, we know all our talk here will have little or no effect on Government; yet we must do our duty. Some people in Gujarat and Sind were no doubt helped by Government in their recent distress. Similarly, something ought to be done for the families and survivors of the people who were drowned on the 12th of November last in those two steamers "Tukaram" and "Jayanti." Until this is not done and until the present extravagant waste is not stopped by Government, we must support this cut which is proposed.

Mr. N. R. GUNJAL (Poona District) (Addressed the House in Marathi): Sir, several points have been made by the previous speakers on the motion for this cut and several matters have been brought to attention. I have only to add that Government have no doubt given money liberally for helping the people who suffered from the distress due to the floods in Gujarat and in Sind. But if you will carefully examine the whole situation and see exactly how the money has been distributed and given, you will find that, in many instances instead of doing any good to them, the so-called help has caused some harm on them. Because, for instance, money is given for building houses, but on that money interest is to be charged. Really speaking, no interest whatever should be charged on this help.

The second thing is, the history of this Major Pogson Saheb is very well known to this House. Major Pogson has gradually glided out of our control and made himself impregnable by the strongest attacks which the non-official side can make against him. I would call him a "Jahagirdar of the Service."

Let us now take a peep into the work which he says he has done for the Poona district. He spotted two sites said to possess water underground. Out of these, only in one he struck water and the other was dry. His report does not give the figures of wells which he dug in the different districts in a way which would enable us to guage his usefulness with any advantage. He is merely trying to mislead the Council.

I believe honourable members have heard complaints that Major Pogson was in the habit of making use of local water finders and then claiming to have found good sites himself. I find that Rs. 30,000 was sanctioned for each of the tanks in Madanwadi and Ale, but we do not know whether the work of construction has been taken in hand or not. There are similar complaints in other districts.

As stated by me in my budget speech, mere discussion in this Council does not suffice. An honest attempt must be made to spend money reserved for famine relief for purposes of relief of distress. Government owe it to the presidency that they should spend the money which is sanctioned by this Council for the purpose for which it is sanctioned. I hope Government will suit their policy at least in the future to the real needs of the province which they are administering and thus earn the gratitude of the people.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Sir, the report on the work of the water diviner was sent to us only a day or two before this Council met and it reached us only after we reached Bombay and so we were not able to verify some of the figures that are in it. We do not know who has submitted this report, but we may take it for granted that it is the water diviner himself who has prepared it. Paragraph 4 of this report contains negative reports and therein he tries to make out that the poor agriculturists are saved to the extent of Rs. 2,70,000 through the instrumentality of himself, that is, the water diviner. He says that in all he has examined 577 cases and out of these he located 220 sites. He also says that the poor agriculturists would have suffered had they not got the advice in exactly the manner that was required. I would like to point out one line in the report in which he says that the owners of those 370 fields, where he said there was no water available underground, were all potential well-excavators but on the advice of the water diviner to Government they have not wasted their money. Let us see how many, out of these 220 cases in which he said there was sufficient water underground, came forward to excavate the wells. Out of these 220, I think only 54 owners came forward, the work of whom was complete as stated in statement No. 2, and there are 36 others regarding which work is being carried on. That line is most instructive. In one of these paragraphs he says that wells have not been excavated to their full depth because of want of funds with the poor agriculturists. In one case he says that all the persons were potentially good well-excavators but in the case of 220 persons, only less than 100 have tried to excavate the wells and that in some cases wells have been abandoned for want of funds.

[Mr. L. M. Deshpande]

Had this report been supplied to us a week or so before the meeting of the Council, we would have been able to ascertain whether the depths of the different wells have been already dug and whether water has been found which is fit for agricultural purposes or for drinking purposes. As it is, the reports were sent very late and actually reached us after our arrival in Bombay. We do not know whether wells that are stated on page 6 of the report have also struck water which is useful for agricultural purposes.

Another thing is about 43-A. Storage of grass for famine purposes is made at certain headquarters. It is not known where a famine might occur, and the grass will have to be taken to that centre from the centre at which it is stored at present. But the grass from one place is not fit for use in other places, because the animals do not eat it.

An Honourable MEMBER : Why ?

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Because they are not accustomed to grass from other places. We have experience of it. I know that lots of ganjis had to be thrown away, because there were no customers for it. Under these circumstances, I think the amount should not be spent on such a purpose, where it is not required, or where it is not likely to be of any benefit.

In different items we find a lot of money allotted to the Forest Department for making roads. Here also we find a sum of Rs. 5,000 to Rs. 6,000 for katcha roads and other roads in the Forest Department. In the other items also the Forest Department takes a good deal of money. I find that where money is not wanted it is spent, and where it is urgently wanted it is not spent.

Lastly, I would say that this question of the services of Major Pogson should be seriously considered, and if, as is apparent from the tone of the whole House, nobody comes forward to say that his services have been really useful to the public, his services should not be continued.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. I do not think that the debate can be concluded to-day. I would, therefore, postpone it till the next sitting day, that is to say, Wednesday.

Before I adjourn the House I should like to inform the House that an agreement has been reached between the Mahomedan members of this House and the Honourable the Leader of the House that, sunset being now later than it was when the month of Ramzan began, they could afford to sit till 6-30. The House will therefore sit from 1-30 p.m. to 6-30 p.m. from Wednesday.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : What about making up the time that the House lost ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That is only half an hour, and that can be considered separately ; this is a different question. If the honourable member raises it on Wednesday, I shall consult the House about it.

The House is now adjourned till 1-30 p.m. on Wednesday, the 7th March 1928.

Copy forwarded for information and guidance to Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Is the Honourable Minister aware that Government have issued orders to district local boards to maintain much larger balances than prescribed under the District Local Board Act ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : No.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Is the Honourable Minister aware that by doing so the local boards have to lock up large balances and thus they are unable to meet the urgent requirements made on them ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : That does not arise.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : With regard to (c) Government say that the communication from the district local board has not been forwarded by the Collector to the Government as no specific request was made by the Board to forward it. Is it not clear from the question that the President, District Local Board, Surat, had requested the Collector to move Government in the matter ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : He is not bound to move Government in the matter.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Is it not the duty of the Collector to move the Government when requested to do so by the local board ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I refer the honourable member to part (d) of the answer.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : In the appendix it is stated in the 6th paragraph of the Government Resolution that " Correspondence of which the subject matter falls within the powers of the Commissioner or of Government should be duly forwarded by the Collector." Was it not the duty of the Collector to forward it ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The Honourable Minister says there was nothing to forward.

GUJARAT COLLEGE : STRIKE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there was a strike of students in the Gujarat College on Wednesday the 28th of September 1927;

(b) if so, what were the causes of that strike;

(c) whether the strike terminated on the Principal's assurance that he would redress the grievances of the students and his definite promise that he would give general amnesty to all the students;

(d) whether it is a fact that after the commencement of the October vacation, the Principal of the Gujarat College has commenced to write notes to parents and guardians of students who are in Government service threatening them that their sons would be dismissed from the College as they did not attend the classes along with other students;

(e) if the answer to (d) is in the affirmative, what steps Government have taken to prevent further troubles in the Gujarat College ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) On Wednesday, 28th September, some students (but not all) did not attend lectures.

(b) Alleged insult by a Professor.

(c) No.

(d) No.

(e) Does not arise.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: The answer to (c) is in the negative. Does the Honourable Minister mean to convey the impression that the students have no grievances against the principal like the cases of misappropriations of students' money which have been ventilated on the floor of this House ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: The students may have grievance but not at the time the honourable member refers to in his supplementary question.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Is it not a fact that the students struck because their money was being spent for purposes for which it was not intended ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I do not think that it is for that the students did not attend lectures.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT: How did the strike terminate ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I think the students eventually relented and came in.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Was there any amnesty ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: There might or might not have been.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Why has the reply to (b) been so worded as to make the professor a scapegoat ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: There might have been some feeling among the students about the matters referred to by the honourable member's several questions about the Gujarat College and it flared upon the occasion in question at the slightest pretext.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: What were the grievances against that professor ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: The students alleged that they were insulted by that professor.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: May I know the name of the professor ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Mr. Divatia.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Does the Honourable Minister still believe that there were no grievances of the students against the principal ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That is asking for opinion.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: There may have been.

THAKOR OF SANAND: FORCED LABOUR

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether a horseman of the Thakor of Sanand went to the house of Patel Harjivan Girdhardas, a cultivator of Nidhrad in Sanand Taluka, and demanded his wagon for carrying bricks from the tank of Nidhrad to the Darbargadh of the Thakor in the month of June 1926 ;

(b) whether Patel Harjivan Girdhardas could not supply his wagon as he had no bullocks ;

(c) whether the Thakor of Sanand issued a notice on Patel Harjivan Girdhardas on the 18th December 1926 to relinquish his fields Nos. 216, 317, 322/1 and 358/2 for the fault of having failed to do the forced labour of carrying bricks, mentioned in (a) ;

(d) whether the Talati of the Thakor took Rupees two as a fine from Patel Harjivan Girdhardas for having failed to do the forced labour and gave a receipt for the same in the Khata book of the cultivator ;

(e) if the answer to (d) is in the affirmative, how the action of the Thakor to legalise forced labour is justified and what steps Government have taken to prevent such legalisation of forced labour by the Thakor ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes, but it is not known whether the notice was issued for failure to supply the wagon demanded. The Thakor has, however, taken no action thereon.

(d) Yes.

(e) The question is one of civil rights between the Thakor and his tenants, and it is open to the aggrieved party to get his grievances redressed in a court of law. Government, in the absence of any statement on the subject by the Thakor, are unable to say whether his action was or was not justified.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Under what section of the Land Revenue Code the Thakor exacted the fine ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Under no section.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Can the Thakor take the law in his own hands and exact a fine for refusing to do forced labour ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I have already replied that this is a matter in which the Government are unable to express any opinion, as the full facts are not within their information.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Did not the officer who prepared this information take the statement of the persons concerned in order to verify the facts brought to the notice of Government ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am unable to say exactly how the information supplied in this reply was obtained. The Thakor declined to make any statement.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : If the Thakor did not make any statement, why was the statement of the aggrieved cultivator not taken for preparing this reply ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am unable to say exactly how this information was collected.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : It is stated in (c) that the Thakor issued a notice on the cultivator to relinquish his fields. Why was the Thakor permitted to issue such a notice of intimidation to compel the cultivator to submit to illegal demands of forced labour ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : No permission was asked for and no permission was granted.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Then, did the Thakor take the law in his own hands and terrify this cultivator ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I have already replied to that.

THAKOR OF SANAND : FORCED LABOUR

Mr J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether a horseman of the Thakor of Sanand went to the house of Patel Chunilal Parashottam, a cultivator of Nidhrad in Sanand Taluka, and demanded his wagon for carrying bricks from the tank of Nidhrad to the Darbargadh of the Thakor in the month of June 1926 ;

(b) whether Patel Chunilal Parashottam could not supply his wagon as his bullock was ill ;

(c) whether the Thakor issued a notice on Patel Chunilal Parashottam on the 18th December 1926 to relinquish his fields Nos. 191/1 and 359/2 for the fault of having failed to do the forced labour of carrying bricks, mentioned in (a) ;

(d) whether the Talati of the Thakor took Rupees two as a fine from Patel Chunilal Parashottam and gave a receipt for the same in the Khata book of the cultivator ;

(e) if the answer to (d) is in the affirmative, how the action of the Thakor to legalise forced labour is justified and what steps Government have taken to prevent such legalisation of forced labour by the Thakor ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes, but it is not known whether the notice was issued for failure to supply the wagon demanded. The Thakor has, however, taken no action thereon.

(d) Yes.

(e) The question is one of civil rights between the Thakor and his tenants, and it is open to the aggrieved party to get his grievances redressed in a court of law. Government, in the absence of any statement on the subject by the Thakor, are unable to say whether his action was or was not justified.

THAKOR OF SANAND : FELLING OF TAMARIND TREE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Karbhari, Vahivatdar and Havaldars of the Thakor of Sanand, accompanied by labourers, forcibly entered the compound of Bawa Jhinabharati Motibharati, situated in Nada's Bhagol of Sanand Town on the 28th September 1927 and felled down a tamarind tree belonging to the said Bawa Jhinabharati Motibharati in spite of the remonstrances of the said Bawa ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the ancestors of the said Bawa Jhinabharati Motibharati have been living in that compound for many generations and enjoying undisputed possession of the compound for hundreds of years ;

(c) if so, on what authority the servants of the Thakor of Sanand forcibly entered the compound of the said Bawa Jhinabharati Motibharati and felled down a tamarind tree belonging to the said Bawa ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes, but the ownership of the tree is in dispute.

(b) Yes.

(c) The tree is in the wanta land and the right over trees in wanta lands is claimed by the Thakor. The Bawa on the other hand contends that the trees belong to him. He has lodged a complaint in a Magistrate's Court, but the result of the proceedings is not yet known.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : It is admitted that the ownership of the tree is in dispute. Before the ownership was established regularly in a court of law, how could the Thakor's men enter the compound of the Bawa by force and fell the tree ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I do not know.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Are these Thakors and landlords permitted by Government to take the law in their own hands and enter a compound of a private person and do anything they like ?

(No reply.)

"OFF" LICENSE OF MR. NOWROJI FRAMJI, AHMEDABAD

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Chief Excise Inspector, Ahmedabad City, wrote in March 1922 to Mr. Nowroji Framji of Lal Darwaza. Ahmedabad, that his foreign liquor "off" license will terminate from 1st April 1922 :

(b) if the reply to (a) is in the affirmative, under whose orders the Chief Excise Inspector wrote to Mr. Nowroji Framji as mentioned in (a), and what was the nature of those orders ;

(c) whether the local authorities of Ahmedabad received a representation during March 1922 from Mr. Nowroji Framji containing a request for either an extension or a renewal or a revival or a re-grant of the said license ;

(d) if the reply to (c) is in the affirmative whether the said representation contained a request for either the extension or renewal or revival or a re-grant of the said license on the ground of giving the licensee an opportunity to dispose of his balance stock ;

(e) if so, why Mr. Nowroji Framji was refused the facility of disposal of his balance stock ;

(f) the quantity and value of the balance stock of Mr. Nowroji Framji as on 31st March 1922, the date of the termination of his "off" license ;

(g) the orders of the Excise Authorities to Mr. Nowroji Framji directing him as to the way in which he was to dispose of his balance stock ;

(h) the way in which the balance stock of Mr. Nowroji Framji was disposed of on or after 1st April 1922 ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Yes.

(b) The Commissioner of Excise ordered the cancellation of the license, and these orders were conveyed to the licensee through the Excise Inspector concerned.

(c) Yes ; a request for a renewal of the "off" license was received.

(d) The licensee did not put forth the ground that he required time to dispose of the balance of his stock.

(e) Does not arise.

(f) The licensee is not able now to say what stock he held in balance on 31st March 1922.

(g) No orders suggesting the way of disposal of the stocks were issued, as none was necessary.

(h) The balance of liquor was added to the stocks at the Viramgam "Off" and the Ahmedabad Hotel license held by Mr. Nowroji Framji.

GRASS CUTTING IN RAMGADH

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Karbhari Manilal Govindji Shah, acting on behalf of Darbar Jivabha Takhatsinhaji, ordered the cultivators of Ramgadh a para of Chekhla in the Sanand Mahal of the Ahmedabad District on the 8th November 1927 not to cut grass in their fields without providing sureties;

(b) if so, whether any such power of demanding sureties has been given to Darbar Jivabha Takhatsinhaji by Government;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the affirmative, under what section of the Land Revenue Code such a power of demanding sureties has been given by Government;

(d) if the answer to (b) is in the negative, what steps Government have taken to save the cultivators from such illegal orders of their landlords?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) Does not arise.

(d) No steps have been taken in the matter, as no complaint has been received from the cultivators.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: The answer to (b) says that no powers have been given to Darbar Jivabha Takhatsinhaji. How is it that he is permitted to intimidate and terrify the cultivators and to prevent them from cultivating grass in their own fields?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: I do not know.

AHMEDABAD-KUHA ROAD: METALLING

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they collected money from the khatedars of adjoining villages of South Daskroi taluka for the purpose of metalling the road between Ahmedabad and Kuha via Kanbha;

(b) if so, the amount of money collected for the said purpose;

(c) how far has the road between Ahmedabad and Kuha been metalled;

(d) whether it is true that further work on that road is at a standstill;

(e) if the answer to (d) is in the affirmative what are the reasons of stopping further progress on that road?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) No, but the District Local Board, Ahmedabad, in whose charge the road is, collected some funds.

(b) The Board collected Rs. 5,616.

(c) The road has been metalled up to the 5th mile.

(d) Yes.

(e) Want of Local Board funds.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Is it true that this road was in the possession of Government and was handed over to the local board?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (Inaudible.)

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Is it not likely that the construction of the road will be indefinitely delayed because the local board has no funds?

I think Government should go to the help of the local board or take it back from the local board and finish it as a Provincial Road.

(The Honourable Sir Ghulam Hussain kept silent for about a minute).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Is there no reply ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: There is no question, Sir.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: What does Government propose to do in view of the fact that the construction of the road would be indefinitely delayed ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Communications are a primary duty of the local boards.

MEHLOL ESTATE: OCCUPANCY RIGHTS OF TENANTS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Maha Raolji Shri Rayasinghji Narsingji Thakor of Mehlol in Godhra Taluka of the Panch Mahals District has sent a petition to His Excellency the Governor in Council, stating that his ryots had been enjoying the rights of selling and mortgaging the occupancy rights over their holdings even before and after the administration of his estate by Government and praying for the withdrawal of the restrictions on the transfers of those occupancy rights, imposed by the Collector of Godhra ;

(b) if so, what action they have taken on that petition of the Thakor of Mehlol ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Yes.

(b) The petition is under the consideration of Government.

CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY: GOLI VILLAGE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the cultivators of village Goli in Mehlol Estate of Godhra Taluka in Panch Mahals District expressed a desire to form a co-operative society and sent an application to the Registrar of Co-operative Societies ;

(b) whether those cultivators were informed by the Registrar that a society could be formed if at least ten persons each paying at least ten rupees were forthcoming ;

(c) whether in response to the information received from the Registrar, twenty-two cultivators of Goli came forward and each of them paid Rs. 10 to the Co-operative Bank of Godhra during the month of January 1927 ;

(d) whether it is true that six months after the payment of money the cultivators were told that a co-operative society could not be formed in their village and each of them was paid back the amount of money deposited by him together with interest on the same at the rate of four per cent. per annum ;

(e) if the answer to (d) is in the affirmative, what were the reasons for refusing the formation of a co-operative society for the cultivators of Goli ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Yes : they submitted their application to the Assistant Registrar, Surat, through the Taluka Honorary Organiser of Co-operative Societies, Kalol.

(b) No such reply was given by the Registrar to the promoters. The Taluka Honorary Organiser informed them to that effect, as he was under the impression that they had permanent tenancy or proprietary rights over their lands.

(c) The promoters who were 18 in number contributed collectively Rs. 180 towards the initial deposits. This amount was deposited with the Kalol Branch of the Bombay Provincial Co-operative Bank. This was not done in response to any intimation from the Registrar.

(d) The amount was deposited on 22nd April 1926 and was returned by the bank on 4th August 1926.

(e) The registration of the society was refused because the promoters were found to be merely tenants-at-will of the Mehlol Estate and thus had neither proprietary nor permanent tenancy rights over the lands which they cultivated and because being without adequate security they could not raise the necessary amount of money. Moreover, the promoters were residents of Mokal, a village in Kalol Taluka, where there is already a co-operative credit society.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Does the Honourable Minister say that there can be no co-operative societies for tenants of talukdari estates ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : There is a Society at the place from which the members came and besides they had no security to offer.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : They have no proprietary right or permanent tenancy right, and, therefore, they have no securities to offer ; if that is so, how can they have assistance from the Co-operative Society of Mokal ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : We are governed by the Act, and the rules made under it.

FLOOD RELIEF : TAGAVI TO CULTIVATORS OF MEHLOL ESTATE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether tagavi loans were given by them to the cultivators of Mehlol estate in Godhra Taluka of the Panch Mahals District in the famine years Samvat 1956 and Samvat 1968 (1900 A.D. and 1912 A.D., respectively) on the security of their holdings ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, the reasons for not advancing tagavi loans to the same cultivators on the security of their holdings during the great distress caused by heavy rainfall and floods in the monsoon of the year 1927 ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) No. In 1900 and 1912 tagavi loans were advanced to the cultivators of the Mehlol Estate on their giving sureties and on joint bonds.

(b) Does not arise.

SACHANA SURVEY

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether a joint survey was decided to be made for determining the boundaries of British and Gaekwadi limits between the village of Sachana in the Viramgam Taluka and the village of Khoraj in the Kadi Taluka in the year 1925;

(b) whether the Superintendent of Land Records, N. D. was appointed a British Delegate for the purpose mentioned in (a);

(c) whether the British Delegate who lived at Ahmedabad sent a public notice to the Mukhi of Sachana on the 22nd April 1925 for a broadcast advertisement among the khatedars of Sachana that the joint survey would take place on the 24th April 1925;

(d) whether it is a fact that the said notice was not at all given by the Mukhi to the khatedars of Sachana;

(e) whether it is a fact that the khatedars of Sachana knew nothing of the matter even after the surveyor had come and departed after doing his work;

(f) whether it is a fact that as a result of the survey having been conducted in the absence of the Khatedars of Sachana, the rights of many of them have been prejudicially affected and a field road between the boundaries which was in British possession has been characterised as belonging in common to both the States;

(g) if so, why the British Delegate gave such a short notice of less than two days;

(h) whether it is a fact that two days are hardly sufficient even for the post to go from Ahmedabad to Sachana.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) It was not the British Delegate, but the Surveyor in charge at Sachana, who issued a notice on 22nd April 1925 stating that the survey of the boundary would be made on 24th April 1925.

(d) No.

(e) No.

(f) When the survey of the boundary line was made, several khatedars were present. No one's rights have been prejudicially affected. The road, marking the boundary between Sachana and Khoraj, the neighbouring Baroda village, was common to the British and Baroda Governments and is so accepted by both Governments.

(g) Under the convention for the settlement of boundary disputes between the British Government and the Baroda State approved by the Government of India, it is not necessary to give any notice to the public. Nevertheless two days' notice is given for the information of the public and to facilitate the work.

(h) This may be so. But in this case notices were not issued from Ahmedabad, but on the spot by the Surveyor who had been supplied with the forms of notices signed by the Superintendent of Land Records. The Surveyor recorded the date on which the notice was served.

DHOLKA MUNICIPALITY : MANAGEMENT

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether during the concluding months of the year 1926, attention of the local authorities was drawn to the mismanage in Dholka Municipality by correspondence printed in "Guj. Punch" of Ahmedabad;

(b) whether the Collector of Ahmedabad instituted enquiries to verify the facts referred to in that newspaper;

(c) whether the enquiry, instituted by the Collector, revealed many instances of misappropriation and defalcations in the said municipality and the enquiry officer concluded his remarks by saying that the facts published in the press were not altogether false;

(d) if so, what action the Collector of Ahmedabad took against the municipal councillors and municipal authorities concerned ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) and (b) Yes.

(c) The enquiry disclosed that two clerks of the Municipality attempted to misappropriate small amounts of Rs. 20 and 19 but a newly appointed clerk brought this to the notice of the authorities concerned. There were no actual defalcations as alleged.

(d) No action was deemed necessary in the matter as the Municipal Board had due notice of it.

AHMEDABAD MUNICIPALITY : ASSESSMENT OF BUILDING TAX

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the city municipality of Ahmedabad uses a gradation of annual letting values, framed under rules and bye-laws passed under the old Act and deprives many rate-payers of Ahmedabad city and especially most of the rate-payers whose annual letting value is less than Rs. 200 of the benefit of deduction compulsorily provided in section 78 (2) of the Bombay City Municipalities Act, 1925 (Bombay Act No. XVIII of 1925);

(b) on what grounds the municipality of Ahmedabad is permitted to use a gradation of annual letting values framed under the old Act;

(c) what steps they have taken to prevent the city municipality of Ahmedabad from depriving the rate-payers of Ahmedabad of the benefit compulsorily granted to them by section 78 (2) of the Bombay City Municipalities Act, 1925 ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a), (b) and (c). The assumption of the Honourable Member that rules and by-laws framed under the Bombay District Municipal Act, 1901, are not valid under the Bombay City Municipalities Act, 1925, is not correct. The Ahmedabad Municipality makes the deduction required by section 78 (2) of the City Municipalities Act in the case of all the properties valued on the basis of annual rental value.

SETTLEMENT COMMISSIONER'S MEMORANDA NOS. S.T.-301

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to place on the Council table—

(a) memorandum from the Settlement Commissioner and Director of Land Records No. S.T.-301, dated 3rd July 1923;

(b) memorandum from the Settlement Commissioner and Director of Land Records No. S.T.-301, dated 14th April 1925?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) and (b) No.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: What are the reasons for not placing these memoranda on the Council table?

The Honourale Mr. J. L. RIEU: These communications passed between Government and one of their Officers, namely, the Commissioner of Settlements. Government do not consider it desirable that they should be given publicity.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Is it true that these memoranda contained certain correspondence which would reveal the attitude taken up by Government as regards the revision settlement of Viramgam taluka in which they wanted to levy four times the increase recommended by the assistant settlement officers? Is it because of that fact that Government do not place the memoranda on the Council table?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: I neither affirm nor deny that.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT COMMUNICATIONS NOS. 9226-B, DATED 11TH MAY 1925

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to place on the Council table—

(a) Government memorandum No. 9226-B, dated 11th May 1925, to the Commissioner, N. D.,

(b) Government endorsement No. 9226-B, dated 11th May 1925, to the Settlement Commissioner and Director of Land Records?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) and (b) No.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT TELEGRAM NO. 9226-B DATED 28TH JUNE 1924

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to place on the Council table Government telegram No. 9226-B dated 28th June 1924 to the Commissioner, N. D.?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: No.

HARVEY-NARIMAN CASE: COSTS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the total amount of expenditure incurred by Government on behalf of Mr. Harvey in the Harvey-Nariman case;

(b) whether the costs were to be recovered by Government from Mr. Harvey if he lost the case;

(c) what arrangements Government have made to recover the costs from Mr. Harvey and in what time and manner the costs will be recovered from the said officer ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) The total amount of expenditure incurred by Government in the Harvey-Nariman case is Rs. 60,800.

(b) The proceedings were instituted at the cost of Government but if the complaint was dismissed due to Mr. Nariman proving his allegations against Mr. Harvey the cost was to be borne by Mr. Harvey.

(c) As Mr. Nariman has not succeeded in proving his allegation against Mr. Harvey the question of recovering the costs from Mr. Harvey does not arise.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Has Mr. Nariman made any allegations against Mr. Harvey ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Yes.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Has Mr. Nariman made the allegations personally against Mr. Harvey ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : He had made allegations against the Superintending Engineer.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : What was the nature of agreement between Government and Mr. Harvey ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : It is mentioned in the reply.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : Will Government be pleased to place that Agreement on the Council Table ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : There was no such agreement at all.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : The Honourable the General Member told us that there was an agreement. So, will Government be pleased place that agreement on the Council Table ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : There was no agreement. But the orders of Government were in writing.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : Will Government be pleased to place these Orders on the Council Table ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I will have to consider the matter.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Is it true that the Magistrate said that Mr. Nariman made no allegations against Mr. Harvey ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : No.

FOREIGN LIQUOR LICENSE, AHMEDABAD : CONTINUANCE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the foreign liquor "off" license granted to Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda & Sons near Saher Kotda Police Chowki, Ahmedabad, which was to terminate on the 31st January 1928 is to be further continued by Government;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, what are the grounds of further continuing that license ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) Yes.

(b) The grounds for continuance of the license are—

(1) there is a genuine public demand for it on the part of the inhabitants of the locality;

(2) there is no reason why a rival should have a monopoly, and so keep up prices; and

(3) no disservice to the cause of temperance will be done if an "off" license is retained on premises which already have a refreshment room license.

FOREIGN LIQUOR LICENSE, AHMEDABAD: RESOLUTION OF MUNICIPALITY

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether at the time of further continuing the "off" foreign liquor license granted to Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons of Ahmedabad they took into consideration the resolution of the Ahmedabad Municipality protesting against the temporary revival of the license and demanding its discontinuance when the temporary period expires;

(b) if so, what were the grounds of rejecting the demand of the Ahmedabad Municipality ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) Yes.

(b) The honourable member is referred to the reply to clause (b) of his previous question*.

WATER CESS, NASIK

Mr. B. V. JADAHAV on behalf of Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that they charge water cess according to the area mentioned in the applications of the irrigators and not according to the land actually measured;

(b) if so, whether this system is also applicable to lands under canals in the Nasik District;

(c) whether they now propose to charge water cess to lands actually measured and not as mentioned in the applications ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: (a) Yes. Action is taken according to the Bombay Canal Rules, 1922.

(b) Yes.

(c) No.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Why the Government want to charge for services not rendered ?

* Printed above.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I do not follow the question.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : We find that if there is five acres of land and out of that land, only one acre is watered, then, I think, the usual practice prevailing is to charge only for the area actually watered. But according to the reply given, I find that Government want to charge for the whole survey area ? Why is it so ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : The answer is very clear. If the honourable member wants further details, he will please give me notice.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Question is already there. I want to know whether Government propose to charge water cess for the area actually measured.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The reply is in the negative.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : May I know the reasons of Government for not charging the area actually measured ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : If the honourable member will give notice, I shall answer that question.

WATER CESS

Mr. B. V. JADHAV on behalf of Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that they charge water cess not in proportion to the water actually taken by irrigators but for the whole year whether the supply lasts for the whole year or not ;

(b) if so, whether they intend to remove this grievance ;

(c) whether it is a fact that they charge the same water cess for taking water from Bhudkees as they do for taking water from canals ;

(d) if so, the reasons for doing so ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) Water rates are charged for the areas sanctioned by the Executive Engineer for the seasons concerned but remission of the whole or part of the water rate payable by any person may be given where such person has suffered loss,

(1) from any stoppage, diminution or increase of his water supply due to any of the causes mentioned in clause (d) of section 31 of the Bombay Irrigation Act, 1879, or to any act or omission of a canal officer not provided for in the aforesaid clause ; or

(2) from failure of his crops due to any local or general calamity where the failure is total or the outturn does not exceed one-quarter of the normal crop.

(b) Does not arise—vide reply to (a) above.

(c) and (d) Yes. It is presumed that the Honourable Member refers to the water rates levied under section 48 of the Bombay Irrigation Act, 1879, for lift irrigation from Budkis in the Deccan Irrigation and Irrigation Development and Research Circles. The reasons for levying the same rates as for water from canals are :—

(1) that the budkis or lifts erected on the banks of rivers above the headworks of canals or on the canals themselves have the effect of diminishing the legitimate supplies to the canals ; in the former case water impounded for the canals is made use of, while in the latter case water flowing through the canals is used ;

(2) that the demand for water on these canals is great and that the whole of the supply available for them can be utilised for irrigation at full rates and consequently there is no reason why the canal revenue should suffer by permitting lift irrigation at lower rates ;

(3) that in the majority of cases budkis or lifts are situated in comparatively shallow soil and as water can be taken whenever desired, it is often taken at shorter intervals than is permitted for canal irrigation ; and

(4) that the advantage of being able to take water exactly when desired is such an asset that this counterbalances the cost of lifting.

WATER CESS : VEGETABLE AND FRUIT FARMERS

Mr. B. V. JADHAV on behalf of Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that the enhanced rates for irrigation water to vegetable and fruit trees are very hard for agriculturists ; and

(b) whether they have received any representations from the Irrigators' Associations in the Central Division in this respect ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) No.

(b) Several petitions were received praying for a reduction in the revised water rates sanctioned for major irrigation works with effect from February 1926—not specifically for vegetables and fruit trees, but for crops other than sugarcane (which also include them).

RAILWAY PROJECT : NASIK-BELAPUR

Mr. B. V. JADHAV on behalf of Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether it has been decided to undertake the Nasik-Belapur railway scheme in the near future, and if so when the work is expected to be started ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Yes, after the question of the best alignment, which is now under consideration, has been finally decided.

RAILWAY SCHEME : MANMAD-MALEGAON

Mr. B. V. JADHAV on behalf of Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware that a deputation from the Nasik District had waited upon the honourable the Revenue Member in connection with the Manmad-Malegaon Railway scheme on the 29th March 1927 last, and if so with what result ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Yes. In the light of the representations put forward by the deputation, Government recommended to the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, the very early reconsideration of the Manmad-Malegaon-Satana Railway project. The Agent accordingly instructed his Chief Traffic Manager to re-examine the project. The prospects of connecting Manmad and Nardhana via Malegaon and Dhulia were also investigated at the same time. The line from Malegaon to Satana is shown by the Traffic Survey Officer to offer such poor financial prospects that when added to the Manmad-Malegaon length, the project as a whole would not provide earnings sufficient to cover the working expenses. Further, a line from Manmad to Malegaon would not in itself be justified but when a line from Manmad via Malegaon to Dhulia and Nardhana is considered, the position is entirely altered and the prospects are favourable. The Agent has therefore recommended to the Railway Board the construction of the Manmad-Malegaon-Dhulia-Nardhana Railway on the 5′ 6″ gauge.

PUBLIC SERVICE : CLERICAL APPOINTMENTS AT NASIK

Mr. B. V. JADHAV on behalf of Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to lay on the Council table a statement showing the number of vacancies of clerks' posts, the number of such vacancies permanently or temporarily filled and the castes of the persons so appointed from 1st January 1925 to 31st December 1927, in the offices of the Executive Engineer, Public Works Department and Irrigation, Nasik, the Collector of Nasik, the Forest offices at Nasik and the District and Subordinate Courts in the Nasik District ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : The information has been called for.

RESERVED FORESTS : FENCING

Mr. B. V. JADHAV on behalf of Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether they have received any representation requesting Government to put fencing round reserved areas as before, in order to prevent animals being unnecessarily taken to the pounds and providing admissions to the watering places in the forests ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : This was one of the grievances brought to the notice of Government in the report of the Forest Grievances Enquiry Committee. Government have directed that villagers shall be encouraged to fence paths by the grant of thorns free of charge and that they shall be allowed to keep the 50 feet path, to which they are entitled under the rules, clear of all undergrowth.

DISTRICT FOREST COMMITTEES

Mr. B. V. JADHAV on behalf of Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have received any recommendations from the Chief Conservator of Forests regarding the constitution, etc., of District Forest Committees as proposed in the latter part of paragraph 3 of Government Resolution, Revenue Department, dated 19th July 1927 on the report of the Forest Grievances Enquiry Committee ;

(b) if recommendations have not yet been received by Government, the cause of the delay ;

(c) if they have been received by Government, what are the principal proposals of the Chief Conservator and what action have Government taken or are taking on them ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) No.

(b) Government do not admit that there has been any delay. The submission of the report must take some time, as the scheme has to be framed in consultation with the Divisional Commissioners.

(c) Does not arise.

FREE FUEL FOR JAGRI MANUFACTURE, KANARA

Mr. B. V. JADHAV on behalf of Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether the Chief Conservator has taken the necessary action to bring into force Government's approval of the proposal to supply free fuel for the manufacture of jagri in Kanara ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Yes.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. Before we proceed to the business of the House, I am sorry that this is the third time in this session that a sad and an unfortunate circumstance has arisen when I have to allude to the death of a worthy Indian gentleman. To-day I have to allude to the death of a gentleman who was formerly a member of this House—in the pre-reformed Council and also in the present reformed Council. I have had the pleasure of knowing him personally for the last thirty years and that gentleman is Sir Ramanbhai Nilkanth. He was an illustrious member of an illustrious family and a social reformer working mostly in Gujarat and particularly in Ahmedabad. I am sure the House will join with me in sending condolences to his bereaved family.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, on behalf of Government I associate myself with the sentiments you have expressed on the sad death of Sir Ramanbhai.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Sir, I associate myself with the sentiments expressed by you. I am sure in the death of Sir Ramanbhai the whole country has lost a good social worker. He was working hard for the cause of social reform and also for female education. He belonged to that school of liberal religion and politics to which I have the honour to belong.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, on behalf of the Non-Brahman Party, I associate myself fully with what has been said about Sir Ramanbhai.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind) : Sir, on behalf of Sind, I associate myself with the sentiments expressed by the Honourable the President, and I join in the condolences to the family of the deceased gentleman. I have had an opportunity of working with him in the first reformed Council and his arduous work during those three years is still in my momory. You will agree with me that in him we have lost a good social worker and a great public man.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Sir, as an old colleague of Sir Ramanbhai, in this Council I fully associate myself with the sentiments expressed by you regarding his sad death.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, on behalf of Gujerat and especially Ahmedabad I fully associate myself with the sentiments expressed on the sad death of Sir Ramanbhai in Ahmedabad. He was a resident of Ahmedabad to which I also belong. He was a public worker of a very long standing and he was a member of this Council. So, it is but natural that we should express our condolences to his family.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities): Sir, on behalf of Ahmedabad and Surat cities I associate myself with the sentiments expressed by you. The peculiarity about the late Sir Ramanbhai was that he knew no distinction between the Hindus and Muhammadans. He considered both alike, and I would inform this honourable House that he was the President of the Anjuman-e-Islam at Ahmedabad in which he took personal interest for about 26 years. I worked with him in various capacities on the Ahmedabad municipal board for about 20 years, and he made no distinction between the sister communities and worked very harmoniously in the interests of both the communities. Sir, with these few remarks I join myself with the sentiments expressed by previous speakers.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI: Sir, on behalf of the depressed classes, and particularly of Gujarat, I beg to associate myself with the sentiments conveyed by the other honourable members of this House. I had the pleasure of knowing the late Sir Ramanbhai as a friend of mine for the last twenty years and I know very well of the keen interest he was taking in the betterment of the conditions, welfare and happiness of the depressed classes of Gujarat. With these words I join with the sentiments expressed by the previous speakers.

Mr. S. K. BOLE: Sir, I associate myself with what has been said by previous speakers. Sir Ramanbhai was a great social reformer and was a great friend of the backward and working classes. May his soul rest in peace.

(Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN rose)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: What does the honourable member want to say?

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir with your permission I want to beg to move the adjournment of the House for discussing the grave and serious situation created in the Bardoli Taluka of the Surat District by the rupture of negotiations between the cultivators and Government.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. The honourable member has placed an adjournment motion in my hands and I have to dispose it of before he says anything. He cannot make that request in the open House here. As a matter of fact, I do not know what leads him to repeat that request here. Would he tell me why he makes that statement ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: I have placed the adjournment motion in your hands.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That is all right. Then, I was just going to inform the House as to how I dispose of that request. Usually, the House knows that under the Standing Order VII, a motion has to be placed in the hands of the President and his orders are to be obtained as to whether he allows it, and then the rest of the procedure follows. This has to be done before the Council sits. I could have disposed of this matter before coming to the Council. But I purposely intend to do so openly in the Council, because I think my ruling in this respect ought to be generally known and as first hand direct from me to the House. I quite understand that the question of assessment in Bardoli is agitating the minds of people in Gujarat particularly. Bardoli is a part of my own constituency and I feel interested in the matter. But the honourable House knows, and particularly honourable members who bring in motions for adjournment should know, that I have to deal with the rules and standing orders which govern motions for adjournment. I am sure most honourable members know what the law is, but I would repeat it here to make matters clear as to what those rules and standing orders regarding a motion for adjournment are. Now, there are two rules in this connection, rule 11 and rule 12. Rule 11 lays down that—

"A motion for an adjournment of the business of the Council for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance may be made with the consent of the President."

Here, the words to be remembered are "urgent public importance." Then, the next rule, 12, lays down that—

"The right to move the adjournment of the Council for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance shall be subject to the following restrictions," and these are the restrictions which I have strictly to construe and adhere to. I would draw the attention of the House to the restrictions (ii), (iii) and (iv), particularly (ii) and (iv). (ii) is "not more than one matter can be discussed on the same motion, and the motion must be restricted to a specific matter of recent occurrence." "Recent occurrence" are the two important words. Then, (iv) is that "the motion must not anticipate a matter which has been previously appointed for consideration, or with reference to which a notice of motion has been previously given." That is to say, it should not anticipate a matter which has been previously appointed for consideration. Now the question of recent occurrence is an important question to consider; and I find that this is not a matter of recent occurrence. The honourable member has mentioned here in his motion that a serious situation is created by certain negotiations with Government having fallen through. That is not the point. The situation created is the enhancement of assessment, and that, I understand, was ordered in July last. The matter has been before the public for a long time. As to negotiations there were none, as far as I can understand. There was a correspondence or rather a letter written by one of the leaders who is taking interest in this matter, that is, Mr. Vallabhbhai Patel, and a reply has been given by the Revenue Department. That reply is, of course, disappointing to those who wish that Government should reconsider the matter, and that disappointment has become intense, because Government have definitely said that they will not reconsider the matter. That does not lead any honourable member to think that there were negotiations which were being carried on and they have fallen through, and that, therefore, a new situation has arisen. The situation is the status quo, that is, the enhanced assessment would exist. Now, every one knows and knew that under the Land Revenue Code, steps would be taken if that assessment is not paid. There is, therefore, nothing new which has come into existence. That is one important matter that has to be borne in mind. Therefore, I cannot accept it as a matter of recent occurrence. The second important point that has to be considered is that the question is anticipated in various ways in this Council. There are resolutions tabled by several honourable members. One by the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan himself, No. 42, which deals with a specific matter, and he recommends that "the revised land revenue assessments in the Chorasi and Bardoli talukas sanctioned by Government should not be given effect to." That embodies this very specific question. Similarly, there is another resolution, by the honourable member for Surat, Rao Bahadur Naik, and there are two others by the honourable member Mr. Mukadam and the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan, No. 4 and No 13 respectively. All these resolutions deal more or less with the enhancement of assessment and the Bardoli assessment in particular. It may be argued or probably honourable members may imagine, that those resolutions may not be reached, because they have not secured suitable places in the ballot: but permission can be asked for priority. If the other honourable members whose resolutions have precedence are agreeable, the subject can be brought up for discussion. There is another way the subject can be brought up for discussion and it is at the time of the Land Revenue demand. It may be argued that the Land Revenue demand may not be reached. That is not the point for me to consider. It is for the House to manoeuvre debates in such a way, and curtail discussion, as to get through all demands and discuss them. On the whole and considering the question from every point of view, I do not hold it in order.

The second point of order raised was the one raised by the honourable member from Sukkur regarding Major Pogson's pay. I understand he wishes to say something on the point.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Sir, I wish only to draw your attention to section 72D of the Government of India Act. Clause (2) of this section says :—

"The estimated annual expenditure and revenue of the province shall be laid in the form of a statement before the Council in each year, and the proposals of the local Government for the appropriation of provincial revenues and other moneys in any year shall be submitted to the vote of the Council," etc., etc.

Clause (3) says :—

"Nothing in the foregoing sub-section shall require proposals to be submitted to the Council relating to the following heads of expenditure," etc., etc.

I specially emphasize the words "nothing in the foregoing sub-section shall require."

Sub-clause (iv) of this clause (3) reads :—

"Salaries and pensions payable to or to the dependants of—(a) persons appointed by or with the approval of His Majesty or by the Secretary of State in Council."

In the present case, when the demand is to be made, the demand is to be made by the local Government as regards its own services, not the services of other Governments or of the Central Government and therefore the local Government, in making its demands, has to exclude those officers, who are appointed by the Secretary of State. We do not know, whether Major Pogson is still in the employ of the Government of India. We do not know under what conditions he has parted company from that Government. Apart from that, what the local Government has to look to is whether or not it should exclude him from the vote of this Council, he having been appointed by the Secretary of State in Council. At present Major Pogson is entirely under a contract with this Government ; he is at present entirely under an undertaking given by the Government through the Leader of the House that his salary would come up from time to time for the approval of the Council. All these things, taken together with the interpretation of the words "nothing in the foregoing sub-section," make it rather a constitutional question as to whether he does or does not come under the vote of this House.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I have discovered some further information during the holiday that intervened, but before I give that information to you, I would like to say just one word about the ground that is being taken by the honourable member from Sukkur now. I do not think it is a new ground. I think the specific question was raised by him when he argued a previous point of order and I thought that I had sufficiently enlightened him as to the view which the Accountant General as well as the Government of India take with regard to the point which is repeated this morning. It is not a question, as I read out from the Accountant General's letter, of posts being non-voted, but it is a question also of persons being non-voted, and if the honourable member's argument were to apply, then an officer of an Imperial Service, if he were lent to any other Government, would cease to be an Imperial officer and would come under the vote of the Legislative Council of the Province he was serving in. That is a position which cannot possibly be taken up.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

Sir, you were good enough to ask me what happened to the reference that was made by the Accountant General to the Auditor General. I told you then that the file was not with me at the time. I have now found it. In the letter of the 26th of May 1926, the Accountant General said that he had referred the question to the Auditor General. After that I read the letter dated the 21st of February 1927 to the House, but intervening were two further letters. On the 3rd December 1926 this Government wrote to the Accountant General asking whether the orders of the Auditor General on the point had been received. To that the Accountant General replied on the 17th December 1926 as follows :—

" With reference to Government, Revenue Department, letter, dated the 3rd December 1926, I have the honour to state that the question of the classification of Major Pogson's pay and allowance has been referred by the Auditor General to the Government of India in the Legal Department whose orders are still awaited. In the meantime the pay and allowance of the officer should continue to be shown as voted as before."

So that on the 17th December this is what the Accountant General informed us and finally on the 21st February 1927 he wrote us stating that he was writing in continuation of his office letter dated the 17th December (which I have just read out to the Council) and stated that the Government of India had decided that Major Pogson's pay should be treated as non-voted.

Now, Sir, the Council will see that it was so late as the 21st February 1927 when this letter was written by the Accountant General. By that time, the preliminary issue of the budget had already been printed....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Read clause (4) of section 72-D of the Government of Indian Act, which says " if any question arises..... the decision of the Governor shall be final." The sole authority is the Governor and not the Government of India or anybody else.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : The question, in the first place, did not arise. The section says " if any question arises." The Accountant General raised that question first himself and then withdrew it. He referred it to the Auditor General and the Auditor General placed it before the Government of India and the Auditor General informed the Accountant General that the question did not arise, and therefore there was no necessity whatever to refer it to His Excellency the Governor. But on the 21st February, as I stated, the Accountant General gave us his final reply. By that time the preliminary issue of the budget had already been placed before the House and the honourable member for Sukkur is quite correct in saying that in the preliminary issue Major Pogson's pay was shown as voted. On page 255 of the White Book of last year, the Water Diviner to the Government of Bombay, his establishment and contingencies, etc., have been lumped together and have been put down at Rs. 43,600 voted. What the honourable member for Sukkur however omitted to inform the House (and I confess, Sir, that at the moment it escaped my memory as probably it did his) was that after the receipt of the Accountant General's letter of the 21st February, Government, through the Honourable the Revenue Member, definitely informed the House of what had happened and on page 1120 of the Council Proceedings, dated the 15th March 1927, this is the demand that was moved by the Honourable the Revenue Member. He said.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Not the demand but a resolution.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : No, the resolution had been moved in July 1926, as I informed the House the day before yesterday. This is what the Honourable the Revenue Member said while moving his demand under Famine on the 15th March 1927 :

"Sir, I move for a grant of Rs. 5,62,000 under 43—Famine Relief and Insurance, Reserved." Rs. 35,000 has been declared to be non-votable by the Accountant General and the demand is therefore presented for only Rs. 5,62,000 instead of the Rs. 5,97,000 shown in the schedule."

Honourable members will see that in the preliminary issue the total demand was shown as Rs. 5,97,000 including the Rs. 35,000 for the Water Diviner's salary.

The Honourable the Revenue Member deliberately omitted this Rs. 35,000, informed the House that he was omitting it because the Accountant General had ruled it to be non-voted, and asked for a reduced demand of Rs. 5,62,000 only. That demand was passed by the House, and we were informed by the Secretary to the Legislative Council that the House had accepted the demand being put at Rs. 5,62,000 only. So that, on two separate occasions, once at the time of the resolution on which a debate had taken place at great length and to which an amendment had been moved and rejected by the House, and on the second occasion at the time of the budget session when asking for a demand, the Council was fully apprised of the decision at which the Accountant General had arrived. Sir, I speak on this at some length, in order to make the position perfectly plain to you, in order to show that no letter from the Accountant General, which I was unable to produce the day before yesterday, was kept from the knowledge of the House, and throughout we have behaved with the most scrupulous care to observe the rights and privileges of the House. I trust that the House will recognise that that has been done in this case, and I will request you to decide the point of order now.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : As I said the day before yesterday, the point of order raised is of considerable importance, because under the system under which we are working, the two elements, voted and non-voted, are elements which are jealously guarded on either side of the House, and perfectly rightly. It is therefore proper on the part of any honourable member to bring it to my notice that a departure has been made in the manner in which certain items are treated. I was myself surprised a great deal when I saw that, whereas formerly Major Pogson's salary and his establishment were voted items, now his salary is made non-votable. I therefore reserved my right to give my final opinion until I saw the correspondence and, if necessary, consulted even the Advocate General. I went through the whole correspondence—several files—during the interval that I had yesterday, and I found one thing to the credit of Government, that they have tried to the very last moment to see that the promise, which they gave to the House that Major Pogson would be a temporary servant until the House approved of his services, and as soon as the House disapproved of his services they should terminate, has been kept up. But a technical difficulty arose, and the pay of Major Pogson had to be eliminated from the votable part of the budget and marked as non-voted. The Auditor General relies on the explanation in the Audit Code, which is important, that if a member of a service, appointments to which are made by the Secretary of State in Council, is appointed to a post the filling of which is in the hands of any authority in India, his salary or pension should be treated as coming under this list, that is to say, the list of non-voted items of expenditure. That is his main authority. In this case, the matter was referred to the Government of India also, and in the correspondence I found that in the Bombay Government also the matter had reached His Excellency, and was, I presume, considered in Council.

[The President]

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: In the Cabinet?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: It was considered by the Governor in Council, I suppose. All that I had to see was whether the change in the classification of the salary was bona fide on the part of Government. I found in the correspondence that Government all along, in their correspondence through the Accountant General with the Auditor General made it clear that they would show the alteration in the budget after informing the Council of the same. But when I found from the correspondence that the Council was not informed of it, I had the Honourable the Leader of the House this morning in my office and I informed him of it. I told him that I thought that the Council ought to have been informed of the change, particularly as they had intimated to the Accountant General that the change would be made after the Council was informed of it. On that he immediately showed me the Council proceedings which he has read just now, that the Council was informed about it when the Honourable the Revenue Member moved his demand last budget session. So that one important step also has been complied with.

The next point, which is very important, is whether, by this change, the House has been deprived of its privileges in dealing with Major Pogson's services in any manner; and I find that it has not been so deprived, because his establishment is still votable, and it can be dealt with, according to the very learned ruling of my predecessor that the House can effectively deal with any matter like that by attacking the demand for establishment. But the important ground is that Government also have taken care to get an agreement from Major Pogson that as soon as the House disapproves of his services, his services would be dispensed with. I may inform the House of one important element in this, that the Government of Bombay would not give in even to the Army Department when they insisted on a condition that they should have sufficient notice of the termination of Major Pogson's services with the Government of Bombay, because they would have to make arrangements to fix him up in the army somewhere ; the Government of Bombay said that they would not be able to do that, and that as soon as the Council disapproved of his services they would terminate, and the Army Department should make their own arrangements immediately with regard to Major Pogson's future posting. The House, therefore, still has its privileges preserved to deal with this item.

The difficulty which this side of the House finds itself in is that no notice of any motion for a cut so far as Major Pogson's establishment is concerned has been given, but, as I have said, the House can discuss the point when the whole demand is asked, and go to a division on that one understanding regarding Major Pogson. However, that is an action which is left to the House to take or not to take.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA : Sir, we have not been able to follow the grounds on which Major Pogson's salary has been made non-votable. We do not know whether it is because he is appointed by the Secretary of State or for some other reason.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Major Pogson is an army officer, and in the Army List he is shown as holding the rank of Major, and he is shown in the Army List as seconded to the present appointment ; he holds a King's Commission, and he is appointed not only by the Secretary of State but by His Majesty the King.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : I request, Sir, that the letter of 23rd April from the Accountant General should be read out to the House.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I have read out the letter, and I will read it out again if necessary.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That is not necessary.

Question again proposed :

That one rupee be reduced from the total votable demand under Famine Relief and Insurance, Rs. 6,27,000.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. The discussion on the one rupee cut proposed by the honourable member Rao Saheb Desai will now be resumed. (After a pause.) If there are no more honourable members who desire to speak, I call upon the honourable mover for a reply.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Sir, the Honourable the Revenue Member argued that if this amount was not given, Government would have lent that amount somewhere else and would have earned interest. I fail to understand the reason behind that argument. I request the honourable member to bear in mind one fact that this fund is not created for earning interest but it is a fund created for relief operations during famines. Instead of giving relief from that fund Government have lent about Rs. 85 lakhs for housing at 6¼ per cent. (The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The percentage of interest stated by the honourable member is wrong.) The Honourable the Revenue Member must be aware that there is decay in all the three divisions. In the Southern Division already decay has set in as has been stated by the honourable member for Kanara. In the Central Division there is a large area of decay. In the North Gujarat a very large area is suffering from the same decay. If the presidency instead of advancing in civilisation and making economic progress continues on its decay in this manner I do not know where the country-side will be landed. In my own district the population of the agriculturists is decreasing and their suffering has increased immensely. I am really ashamed to say that they have to approach charitable institutions for relief like ordinary beggars, and in spite of this fact Government want to charge interest on the loans that are issued to them. It is a surprise to me to see that Government should sit unmoved and calm with folded hands as if it were an ordinary or natural state of affairs. Under the British rule even after hundred years people carrying on an honest industry are in the abject position of begging for financial help from philanthropists and Government, and unfortunately for the mere purpose of constructing houses agriculturists have to go to charitably disposed men for help. This is where we have come to in the course of a century on account of a wrong Government policy and yet Government sit with folded hands without taking the necessary action. I think Government should consider the whole question from that standpoint. Unfortunately I am very very sorry to say that our Bombay Government have on account of their previous blunders brought this presidency to such a deplorable condition that a stronger attitude on the part of this side of the House alone will bring them to their senses, if I may say so.

There is one point which I wish to bring to the notice of this House. The Honourable the Finance Member while he was in charge of the Revenue portfolio paid a visit to our district and saw with his own eyes that in many villages, drinking water, an absolute necessary of human life, had to be brought from a long distance. In order to provide for village water supply a scheme was formulated by which in five years Rs. 5,00,000 should be expended for that purpose ; and lakhs of rupees were to be provided from this famine fund annually to meet the expenditure. Now that fund has been depleted. I do not know how the Honourable the Finance Member is going to keep up his promise which he made as a Member of Government on behalf of Government.

The honourable member the Revenue Secretary stated that while referring to China as an example I failed to give a description of the famine and flood policy obtaining there. I thought that it was the duty of the Government to keep in touch with the practice on such vital matters in the neighbouring countries. But unfortunately our Government is very dull. They never care to enquire and know what the policy is on such matters in backward countries like China. I may state for the information of this honourable House that in China they have got a huge fund to which Government contribute. I may even say that even the contending armies and the generals that pass through these territories are compelled to contribute something towards that fund. That fund is kept inviolate by Government. In China that central fund is not disposed of as our Government do here. There not even the general who is in temporary possession of the territory is allowed to touch that fund. This central fund is started by Government and it has got organisation all over the world—they are receiving contributions from Europe, America and other places. It is not managed in any bureaucratic way when any necessity for expenditure from that fund arises. They have got organisation in every village. Here, when there is famine or mishap, the village patil has to represent to the mamlatdar and mamlatdar in his turn has to approach the deputy collector and the deputy collector has to make a representation to the Collector and the Collector in his turn to the Commissioner who at last communicates the matter to Government, which places it before their executive Council. Imagine the circuitous way and the time it takes. Imagine the difficulties of the villages under the present system in matters like these which require immediate action. That is one of the evils of the present system. There (in China) the local organization being themselves responsible take action immediately. And look at their achievement: They have constructed miles of roads; they have opened hundreds of schools; they have constructed a number of dams on rivers; and in some cases they have taken measures to prevent large areas from being flooded. If this Government can learn the lesson from a neighbouring country, then I think the amount spent on the salaries paid to them will be well spent by this House. Otherwise, I do not think this Government deserves the salary we pay them.

Mr. G. WILES: Sir, can the honourable member tell us where he got this information from? I should like to study it.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: And, Sir, I come to Major Pogson. He is our old friend....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I wonder whether the honourable member has heard the request of the honourable member the Finance Secretary. There was a request made by him for information as to where the honourable member got this great knowledge about China.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Sir, he may refer it to the Chinese Consul. He would say that I am not wrong.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, apparently there is no Chinese Consul here. Where are we to get it from?

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: There are at least Chinese crackers.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: I now come, Sir, to Mr. Lowsley's establishment. Out of the five lakhs, Rs. 1,86,000 are allotted for establishments. What does that show? Does that not show that the bureaucracy is always desirous of keeping the bureaucracy well paid? Of course, despotism will see that despots are well paid, and democracy will see that democracy is well paid. That is the distinction. Major Pogson's salary in the Military Department was, I think, not more than Rs. 800—perhaps was even less. Now, his salary is Rs. 2,500 in the civil department.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : His original salary in the Military was somewhere about Rs. 1,200 and Rs. 1,300.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Then, Government have doubled his salary. Government are fully aware of the attitude of the non-officials as regards Major Pogson and if they do not go by the non-official opinion in that matter, I think we will be compelled to go to a division on that point.

I also wish that the Honourable the Revenue Member will give us an assurance that the advances from the Famine Insurance Fund will not be charged any interest and that the interests on house-building loans will be reduced. That assurance is extremely necessary in view of the fact that the agriculturists have not fared well in the last season, and in view of the fact that in flood-stricken parts of Kaira they are collecting Land Revenue, and in the taluka of Dholka, where also the agriculturists have suffered, Government are attempting to collect one and a half times the assessment. In my own district the whole amount of assessment of 27 lakhs is being collected by the Collector, and we have been receiving many complaints from our constituency—from all parts of the district —about the injustice of collecting assessment in such bad times, and we are therefore compelled to request Government not to collect assessment. On the other hand, we had anticipated that the assessment would be remitted. Unfortunately, Government instead of remitting the assessment, I do not know whether they have passed orders, but the Collectors are collecting the Land Revenue.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. I would point out one thing here. I hope every honourable member is clear about it, that in giving a reply, honourable members have got to confine themselves to replying to points raised during the debate. They cannot make a speech raising fresh points or attempt to make a second speech on the same subject.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : I have to reply to points raised in the debate. The honourable member the Revenue Secretary was the only one who spoke on the side of Government, and I am replying to his remarks. The Revenue Member has still to reply. I want to bring to his notice the fact that the Collectors have started collecting Land Revenue in those very areas which have suffered. I touched on this point even before. Owing to their indebtedness to the co-operative societies, the sowcars and to Government, the people have been reduced to a very abject condition and the demand of assessment will add to their liability further.

I, therefore, request Government not to harass the people in this manner. If this state of thing goes on, they may positively turn out to be disloyal to Government. With these remarks, Sir, I move a vote of censure on Government by way of Re. 1 cut on the Famine Insurance policy.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Sir, the motion before the House is one for a cut of Re. 1, which you have ruled as implying a vote of censure on Government with regard to, in this particular case, the Famine Relief policy of Government. I expected, when this amendment came up for discussion, that we should have a debate on one or other of the most important questions connected with the Famine Relief policy of Government and then the effort of honourable members on the opposite side would be to concentrate on that particular question. But, contrary to my expectation, what has actually happened is a long and discursive debate in the course of which a large number of points of more or less minor importance have been brought forward in connection with the various objects of expenditure under Famine Relief Fund. If, by any chance, this vote of censure were to be passed by this House, Government would find itself in a somewhat difficult position in deciding in regard to what particular aspect of its famine policy the House had expressed its dissatisfaction. Many honourable members have spoken, but they have spoken on many different points of detail regarding famine relief. On no one such point have more than one or two honourable members spoken. If the vote of censure were passed, therefore, it would leave Government wondering in what respect the Famine policy of Government as a whole has really dissatisfied this House.

The only really important point which seems to have been brought forward and was touched upon by the honourable the mover of this amendment, as also by the honourable member from Surat, is the question of the administration of the Famine Relief Fund. Regarding this question, however, honourable members have heard the full statement on the subject made by the Honourable the Finance Member in his budget speech and I would refer them to paragraph 20 of that speech.

The honourable member from Kaira has made a complaint that Government formerly used to apply this fund for the direct relief of famine, while now they are applying it for the granting of loans at interest. As a matter of fact, the reverse is really the case. As honourable members will have seen from the statement made by the Honourable the Finance Member in his budget speech, formerly and up to now it has been open to Government under the Devolution Rules to utilise the Famine Relief Fund for indirect famine purposes, that is to say for protective measures. In future, however, if the draft Devolution Rules which are now awaiting the Secretary of State's sanction come into operation, Government will be confined to expenditure from the Fund on direct famine relief, with one exception namely that if the fund exceeds the standard minimum balance of Rs. 75 lakhs, Government may spend such excess on expenditure connected with the famine relief. As regards the so-called depletion of the Famine Fund, which has been made the subject of complaint by the honourable mover of this amendment, the reasons therefor have been fully stated by the Honourable the Finance Member in his budget speech. The minimum balance of a crore and fifty lakhs which was originally prescribed under the Devolution Rules, was based on the average famine expenditure in the period of 20 years previous to 1916. On an examination of the statistics of later years it has become apparent that the maintenance of so large a minimum balance is unnecessary, and it is therefore now proposed to reduce this minimum balance to one of seventy-five lakhs. Apart from other considerations, this change is in the interests of the finances of this presidency, inasmuch as the balance maintained in the Famine fund involves a loss of interest of from 1¼ to 1½ per cent. on its amount.

The next point which the honourable the mover has raised—and here again he has practically no support from other honourable members—is the charging of interest on the reconstruction loans. I have already stated the reasons which prevent Government from acceding to his suggestion that these advances for reconstructing houses in the flood areas should be entirely free of interest. As I pointed out when speaking in the general debate on the budget, this would involve an expenditure of about Rs. 6 lakhs a year to Government. Apart from this, there is no reason why Government should now depart from the decision which was arrived at in full consultation with this House. In the October session I presented a demand for funds to make these advances, and I then stated in detail the terms on which Government proposed to give these loans. The demand was agreed to by the House and the terms of the loans were also approved. I must correct the statement made by the honourable mover to the effect that Government are charging 6¼ per cent. interest on these loans. That is not the case at all; as the House must be aware, there are very considerable concessionary terms. Loans below Rs. 200 are charged so low a rate of interest as 3 per cent., while loans above that amount are charged 4½ per cent. for the first two years. This represents a very substantial concession. The House fully approved of the scheme and passed the grant subject to these conditions. It is impossible and the House would never agree to it, that Government should now go back on the decision then arrived at.

I would further point out that loans when given from the famine fund as ordinary agricultural tagavi are subject to the usual rate of 6¼ per cent. interest. There is no valid reason at all why loans for reconstruction, which will largely be given to non-agriculturists, should be made free of interest, while loans to agriculturists for agricultural purposes are subject to interest.

Now, I will deal as briefly as possible with the various points which have been raised by other honourable members in the course of this debate. The question of boring operations has been referred to, more particularly by the honourable member for Surat, Rao Bahadur Naik. He made a complaint that a great deal of delay takes place in connection with the execution of these boring operations owing to the fact that the operations are controlled by more than one agency. That is a complaint the reasonableness of which I admit. There are at present two separate agencies dealing with these boring operations. There is the Executive Engineer for Borings, who deals mainly with deep borings for domestic water supply, mostly in the towns and larger villages, and there is the Agricultural Engineer, who deals with what are known as shallow borings for irrigation purposes. We recognise there is a certain amount of delay and confusion as a result of this dual agency being at work, and we have now under consideration a scheme for placing all these boring operations under the direction of one officer, and I hope that this will result in the improvement of the conduct of the operations. Then, the same honourable member referred to the fact that there were not a sufficient number of boring machines at work, that the supply is short. I quite agree. This point came to my notice a little time ago. There was an insistent demand from various quarters for boring machines and the supply was not up to the demand. I accordingly asked the Agricultural Department to put up a scheme for considerably increasing our stock of machines, and they did so. But unfortunately, the cost of providing the extra number of machines, 48 I believe, amounts to Rs. 7,00,000 and in our present financial circumstances we are not able at present to provide for such heavy expenditure. But I shall bear the question in mind as I consider that as soon as possible Government should meet a demand which I have recognised to be a reasonable one.

One or two members referred to the cost of these boring operations. I am not sure whether they were referring to the cost charged to local bodies where boring operations were undertaken for them with a view to providing a domestic water-supply. But, so far as the agricultural boring operations are concerned, I contend that our charges are extremely moderate. I have before me a statement of the conditions under which these boring machines are lent, and they amount to this roughly. Each applicant is required to provide a certain number of carts, 8 or 10, to convey the machines from the nearest railway station to the site of the boring. As in the majority of cases there are several applicants in a village and this cost is spread over them all, the amount charged on this account to each individual applicant generally comes to a very small sum. Then an applicant has to provide about five coolies for work on the machine and to pay the cost of lubricating and kerosine oil at the rate of Rs. 2 per foot of boring and of coal at about a rupee for every ten feet of boring. The charge for the use of the boring machine is Re. 1 per foot for the first fifty feet and Rs. 1-8 per foot for anything over. No charge on this account is made if the boring is unsuccessful. I think that honourable members will agree that these conditions are not onerous, and, as a matter of fact, we have an enormous number of applications on these conditions, which shows that they are not of a prohibitive character in any sense.

Then, with regard to the question of famine grass operations. The honourable member for Kaira said that these operations were conducted in a very expensive manner. He appeared to think that they were being conducted departmentally, and suggested that they should be given out on contract. Well, I thought that this honourable House was sufficiently well aware that these grass operations are being conducted by a particular company, the Bombay Mofussil Grass Trading Company, under a contract. It is impossible to split up operations like these amongst a large number of small contractors. There might possibly be some advantage in doing so from one point of view, but the difficulty is that these operations involve the laying down of very expensive plant involving a large capital expenditure. In 1921, when the question was taken up of organizing these operations, it was this company alone that was in a position to take up so large a contract. The departmental work by the Forest Department is confined merely to the provision of storing sheds. All the other operations, of cutting the grass, railing it to the depôts and there pressing and baling it, are undertaken by the company. We recognise now that these operations are unremunerative. One of the principal reasons is that the demand for grass in Bombay City has greatly fallen off owing to the extensive introduction of mechanical transport and our surplus grass now commands no remunerative prices. Consequently a loss has necessarily to be borne. We have managed to get out of one contract by paying compensation, and we have very carefully considered the question of getting out of the other contract, namely, the one now current in connection with Palghar, Dohad and Godhra. But we found on an examination of the figures that it would cost us more to pay compensation than to allow the contract to run for its remaining period of about a couple of years.

Then, one honourable member, I think the honourable member for Bijapur, Mr. Sardesai, asked whether our kadbi stocks were insured. They are, in most cases. Unfortunately, we have had a series of conflagrations of these kadbi stocks due to spontaneous combustion. There was no indication of any incendiarism. As a result of this, the insurance companies are becoming very chary about insuring these kadbi stocks, and they demand higher rates. In most cases the stocks are still insured but in some cases we have taken the risk on ourselves. I may add that these kadbi storage operations are now suspended pending an examination of the whole question.

I now come to the question of the provision of wells, the item for which is Rs. 3,00,000. Several honourable members have referred to the great scarcity of drinking water in the mofussil. The districts of Bijapur, the desert portion of Thar Parkar and Kanara have been specially instanced. I have already mentioned the fact that Government have largely enhanced the share of the cost which they are willing to bear. The amount to be provided for this object is practically dependent not on the number of wells which are necessary and which it is desired to have, but on the amount of local contributions which are forthcoming. Government must demand first that the local contributions should be forthcoming, namely, at least one-third of the total cost of the well. Until that is forthcoming, it is no use Government providing money for their contribution as the work obviously cannot be carried out. Therefore it is only a question of local contributions being forthcoming to the requisite extent, when Government will make their contribution pro-rata, and if honourable members desire Government to speed up these operations, it is within their power to do so by arranging that local contributions should be furnished in the required proportion. In view of the complaints that have been made by certain representatives from Gujarat as to the deficiency of water in the Gujarat Districts, I may point out that out of this sum of three lakhs which is provided this year, Rs. 1,34,000 or very nearly half the total amount, goes to Gujarat. That ought to prevent honourable members from Gujarat from having any complaint. The next largest allotment is that for the Central Division, namely, nearly Rs. 98,000. While I am on the question of Gujarat, I may refer to the complaint made by the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan that nothing is being done in connection with Mr. Lowsley's operations in the Viramgam taluka. I am surprised to hear that he made that statement in view of the fact that a large drainage scheme in that taluka is being carried out, namely, the Odhav-Solgam drainage scheme, estimated to cost in all Rs. 1,32,000 of which the first part costing Rs. 1,04,000, has been sanctioned for execution in the current year, and presumably has been actually started. There are two other schemes also in contemplation in this taluka, although the final plans for them have not yet been submitted by the Superintending Engineer. One of them is the Hebatpur drainage scheme.

With regard to Major Pogson's operations, that hardy annual, the honourable member from Karachi Mr. Bechar has worked out an estimate of what each site indicated by Major Pogson costs to Government on an average. He calculates it at Rs. 127 and he compares that with the charges paid to local Panades amounting hardly to anything at all. But as to this I only ask honourable members to read Major Pogson's last report and to see how he brings out the fact that these local Panades have been the cause of an enormous waste of money on wells which have not given water and never will give water, and he quite rightly emphasizes the value of his work, though of a negative character, in saving the cultivators from digging wells which have no chance of giving a proper water supply. That is a very important point.

I would further draw attention to Major Pogson's statement regarding his efforts to find Panades whom he could train and use under his control. He has tested a very large number of these men, and in the case of only two individuals did he find that their successful indications come up to a 40 per cent. standard and that there was consequently justification for employing them under him.....

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : The Honourable the Revenue Member mentioned that the Odhav-Solgam drainage scheme had been taken up. May I know where it has been provided for ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I quote from the Government Resolution dated the 1st October 1927 which sanctioned the project estimated to cost Rs. 1,31,000 and under which administrative orders were issued for carrying out that drainage scheme. If by any chance, the work has not been actually commenced, I can give the honourable member the assurance that it will be started. A note has just been handed to me by the honourable member, the Revenue Secretary, which shows that Rs. 20,000 will be spent on the scheme up to the end of this month. A beginning therefore has been made and the honourable member may rest assured that the work will be pushed on.

Mr. M. D. KARKI : May I know whether any special grant will be made to Kanara ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Kanara not being a famine district, no grant can be made directly from the Famine Relief Fund. Kanara will get such share as may be allotted to it by the Commissioner, Southern Division, from the allotment for grants made to his division. No direct expenditure independent of this grant can be incurred for Kanara from the Famine Relief Fund because Kanara has never been and never will be a famine district.

Mr. M. D. KARKI : Nothing from the Famine Relief Fund for drinking water supply ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Kanara is entitled to share in the allotment for the Southern Division out of the three lakhs for village water supply.

With your permission, Sir, I would like to refer to one point in regard to this question of village water supply which I omitted to mention before. Government have had impressed upon them the fact that there has been no systematic survey over the presidency for the purpose of ascertaining definitely what the several requirements of the different districts are in the matter of village water supply. They have, therefore, ordered that a regular survey should be undertaken in all districts of the presidency including Sind, with a view to the drawing up of a comprehensive programme for the provision of village water supplies and when this survey has been made and the results of it are before Government, Government will consider the whole question with regard to this important matter. The standard which they aim at attaining is one well per village.

Question put and lost.

Question put, that the demand of Rs. 6,27,000 under 43—Famine Relief and Insurance be granted, and carried.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Mr. President, I ask for a demand of Rs. 3,78,000 for 42—Bombay Development Scheme.

Question proposed.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South) : Sir, I move,

"That the sum of Rs. 1,19,000 provided for total establishment be omitted."

In the course of the general discussion on the budget, I had promised the Honourable the General Member that there would be many occasions when I would have the pleasure of meeting the Honourable the General Member in the course of the budget debate, and this is one such occasion.

Now, Sir, I stated at the time of discussing the Suburban Development schemes that there was no justification for the continuance of that department, and I say that that remark applies with still greater force so far as the present demand is concerned, which is the demand for Industrial Housing scheme. I do not wish to deal with the administration of this department, because that subject will be dealt with very exhaustively in the next cut of Re. 1 which I am going to propose. For the present, in response to the call from the honourable members on the other side, when they asked me to put in practical suggestions, I am putting up a concrete proposal before the Honourable the General Member hoping that, just as he did on the last occasion, he might be persuaded to accept my suggestion. But before doing that, I want to point out a few figures to honourable members on this side in order to convince them that, so far as the Industrial Housing scheme is concerned, further expenditure on establishment is in no way justified.

I would ask honourable members to refer to page 104 of the Blue Book, which deals with this department, and look at the figures of receipts and expenditure. Honourable members will find that the total receipts during the current year are Rs. 20,64,000. There again, I want to draw the attention of honourable members to what we described as window-dressing in the arrangement of the figures, or what I call jugglery in figures. This is one instance of it. In the total receipts of Rs. 20,64,000, we find included an item of Rs. 14 lakhs from cotton cess receipts. Now, we all know that the whole of the cotton trade has complained about this cotton cess, and it is really additional taxation. It certainly is not a receipt on the amount spent on industrial housing, as is attempted to be shown. This sum of Rs. 14 lakhs is the return from additional taxation, and yet it has been shown here as an actual receipt from the housing schemes, and the figure of receipts is thus swelled to Rs. 20,64,000. There might have been an excuse for it if it had been explained that this is done only for convenience, in the absence of an additional column, and therefore instead of being shown separately as a return from cotton cess and then debiting it to the loss account of the Industrial Housing scheme, it has been shown in the way in which it is done in the Blue Book. That would have been the honest way of dealing with this amount of Rs. 14 lakhs. I say, instead of merely mentioning the figure, it might have been stated that it was for convenience or facility. But when we look to the last paragraph on page 107 of the Blue Book, we find that they calculate that the total loss on this department would be Rs. 5·05 lakhs, taking into account this amount of Rs. 14 lakhs which is included in receipts under this head. Instead of showing that the loss is Rs. 20 lakhs, considering the actual receipts and expenditure, they have calculated this sum of Rs. 14 lakhs as a receipt, thus artificially reducing the loss from Rs. 20 lakhs to Rs. 5·05 lakhs. This, I say is jugglery in the accounts, with a view to show that the actual loss on this department is not Rs. 20 lakhs, as the figures show, but only Rs. 5·05 lakhs. But a little closer scrutiny shows that this position is not at all tenable. Now, I want the House to consider the position from the figures. The actual receipts during the current year, leaving aside the Rs. 14 lakhs from the cotton cess, are Rs. 6,64,000. They anticipate a little more during the next year, that is Rs. 7,25,000, but I may assure the Honourable the General Member that, at the close of the year, he will be disappointed, his conclusions will prove wrong, and he will have to revert to the figure of the current year. But, even if we take it that the anticipated receipts will actually be Rs. 7,25,000, let us consider the investment. The Honourable the General Member, in the course of a debate three or four years ago, stated that this department is worked on commercial lines. Let us look at it from a commercial point of view.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: May I correct my honourable friend ? The industrial housing scheme was never worked on a commercial basis.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: I should like to point out that in the booklet written by St. Nihal Singh, the gentleman who advertised this department not only in this country but outside, it is described as a commercial undertaking. We look at it, so far as these figures are concerned, from a commercial point of view. What is the total investment, on which we are actually recovering Rs. 6,64,000 ? And, mind you, this is not the total receipt, because from this amount of Rs. 6,64,000 you have to deduct the expenditure for the collection of rents and repairs, etc., which comes to Rs. 3,14,000. We can thus see that the net receipts are Rs. 3,50,000.

We have spent Rs. 3·49 crores according to the latest figure and we get a return on this of Rs. 3·50 lakhs. A further sum of one crore by way of cotton cess has been sunk in it. Therefore the actual investment is Rs. 4·50 crores. I leave it to the honourable member who represents a commercial community to work out the percentage of return which I think works out at $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. This return of $3\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs of rupees we should get from a capital outlay of Rs. 55 lakhs, taking 6 per cent. as the ordinary investment return which every man expects. Instead of that we have sunk nearly $4\frac{1}{2}$ crores including the revenue from the cotton cess which has been sunk into it. What would have been the fate if it had been a private commercial concern with the Honourable the General Member as a shareholder or director in it ? Would he have dared to place such a balance sheet before a shareholders' meeting ? If he had done so a sensational insolvency would have been created and the company would have gone into liquidation. Without exaggeration that would have been the fate if it had been a commercial concern. I ask you, Sir, under these circumstances, is there any justification for continuing this department ? I will deal with this further according to my point of view when I move my one rupee cut. Why has this enormous loss occurred ? I am now simply putting it as a business man—some of you are business men, some of you might have been shareholders and some honourable members might have been directors. I put it to them that when they are trustees of public funds, so far as this item is concerned they have got to deal with it with the same vigilance and sagacity as if they were the shareholders or directors of that concern. If it had been a private commercial venture there might have been some excuse. On the contrary there is less excuse for this state of affairs, because we all know Government resources, Government capacity and Government power are much larger than those that are given to a private commercial concern. What are the advantages which Government possess over private landlords ? For the recovery of rents private landlords have to resort to courts of law ; if it is Rent Act they have to get a certificate from the Rent Controller. So far as this biggest and most rapacious landlord is concerned, they do not know Small Cause Courts, and the Police Courts dare not interfere with them. They recover the rent under the Land Revenue Code. Straightway they can recover the rents. They can take possession of the things of the occupants and turn him out forcibly, because the officers are supposed to exercise their rights under the Land Revenue Code. This is one of the benefits according to the gentleman who first introduced this scheme and stated that it was for the benefit and welfare of the huge class of labourers. But we all know that the labourers have not received any relief but the ratepayers have been relieved of their money. This is nothing more than pickpocketing ratepayers' money. I want the Honourable the General Member to seriously consider this question. He may say that now we have launched it there is no way out. But if Government have the will to get out they can get out of it. For this receipt of Rs. 3½ lakhs we are paying an interest of 21 lakhs of rupees on the total outlay. Just imagine the commercial sagacity of Government, the efficiency of Government, to get a return of 3½ lakhs of rupees from a total outlay of nearly 4½ crores. We are paying an interest of Rs. 21 lakhs besides Rs. 2½ lakhs which is spent for recovering Rs. 3½ lakhs. Now, Sir, it is not the Development Department alone which holds chawls in the city. We know and my honourable friend who represents the landlords and is also a member of the Improvement Trust knows that many private people own chawls, and the Improvement Trust owns many chawls. While the position of the Improvement Trust is the same the circumstances are different. It is the same ratepayers' money and it has the same sort of management. But the Improvement Trust does not show the same state of affairs. There may be losses here and there, but the conditions are quite different. In an Improvement Trust chawl in the vicinity of the Development chawl whenever there is a vacancy there is regular scramble and you never see any vacancy in the Improvement Trust chawls for labourers. What is the reason that in spite of the amenities, and comforts and the attraction of reduced rents below the economic rent provided by the Development chawls nobody cares to entangle in the tentacles of the Development chawls ? Why are these chawls not popular even with the labouring classes in spite of the temptations put in their way by the Honourable the General Member ? They do not want to get into these spiders' nets and wants to keep away. Therefore there is something in the management, in the state of affairs, in the construction, quite different from the state of affairs in other chawls in close vicinity, which I will deal with on the next motion. My suggestion is that there is no use of good money being wasted on the money that you have already lost. I assure the Honourable the General Member that Government are not going to recoup the loss. They have sunk even the cotton cess without any return to the millowners. When the cotton cess was introduced it was supposed to be a temporary measure ; and it was further held out that the mill labourers would be housed in those chawls which would solve one of the problems before the millowners.

[Mr. K. F. Nariman]

But to-day the problem stands as it was then. If the millowners had arranged to contribute 14 lakhs of rupees a year for housing their labourers they would have managed it much cheaper and much better without loss, if Government had not interfered. Now, Sir, the position is we are incurring a loss of 20 lakhs every year in order to recoup about Rs. 3,50,000 from these chawls. The time has come therefore, when Government should negotiate with one or other of the existing bodies—it may be the Improvement Trust, or it may be the large employers of labour like the Millowners' Association, or it may be the Railways or the Municipality—for the disposal of these chawls. That is the only way to get rid of this white elephant which has been thrown on the city of Bombay, which is almost sucking their blood every year and extorting from taxpayers money which they can ill afford to pay. They must enter into some concrete negotiation and try to dispose of these chawls, no matter what loss they make. Instead of incurring a recurring loss year after year without any hope of improving the situation, they will at least get rid of it once for all. I must appeal to those gentlemen who are responsible to find a way out of the present situation. It is, I say, an annual torture to the taxpayers of Bombay to pay year after year 20 lakhs of rupees without getting any return. If the suggestion I have made is not concrete, I think certainly some other method must be found. I have based my criticism on absolutely concrete figures and I move the cut.

Question proposed.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE (Bombay City): Sir, I rise to support the cut that my honourable friend Mr. Nariman has moved. Sir, it is quite clear from the figures that we have got that the return we are getting out of these schemes is very very small. We have spent nearly 3½ crores and we are getting a return of 3½ lakhs, a return of one per cent. Although we had anticipated some loss on these schemes, we never anticipated that the loss would be so heavy. When we go into the figures we find that we pay as much as 22 per cent. for establishment charges. We have an income of Rs. 6,64,000 and we spend Rs. 3,14,000. Therefore, the net revenue is 3½ lakhs, against which we are paying one lakh for establishment charges. That makes it 22 per cent. Now, this is a heavy charge. The Honourable the General Member may probably say that at present out of the 207 chawls only 92 are occupied, but that in future all the chawls may come to be occupied and yet the establishment charges will not much go up. But I ask how long is he going to wait? Is it not already time that we should seriously review the position? While we are paying nearly 6 per cent. interest on 3½ crores, or 21 lakhs of rupees, we get a return of 1 per cent. that is 3½ lakhs. If we deduct from our revenue of Rs. 6,64,000 the expenditure of Rs. 3,14,000, we get a net revenue of Rs. 3,50,000. Against that we spend Rs. 80,000 on annual repairs and Rs. 5,000 for sanitary stores, which means 25 per cent. of the net rental income is spent on repairs. Taking the net revenue and the net expenditure, we find that the expenditure amounts to 47 per cent.

[Mr. Hooseinbhoy Abdullabhoy Lalljee]

of the total net revenue. These figures are very high indeed, but that is not all: we have also to take into consideration one more fact, and that is we have also to provide a sinking fund, and that sinking fund will swell the percentage of expenditure. Therefore, it is high time that we devised some means by which we can dispose of these chawls. My honourable friend Mr. Nariman suggested that they might be transferred to the Improvement Trust or some other body. But I am not sure whether they will take them. It is a concern which we have to dispose of in the same way as we disposed of the Salsette Railway. Or you can dispose of them by auction. At the present moment we get a return of 3½ lakhs, which, calculated at six per cent. return, gives a capitalised value of 55 lakhs. Therefore, if we get for these 207 chawls at least 55 lakhs, I shall be only too glad, because we will get that amount of money back and we will get rid of these chawls. It will be that as a result we shall suffer a loss. But if we go on with this, we will have to suffer much more losses. Further if we dispose of these chawls, we shall be able to avoid collecting this 14 lakhs of cotton cess.

Sir, I am of opinion that this department ought to be abolished as soon as possible to save further heavy losses. If we want retrenchment in this department that is certainly one means at present. I would also like to suggest to the Honourable the General Member to consider whether it will not be possible to get the Improvement Trust to manage these chawls. They will collect the rents and charge a percentage for collection. The Improvement Trust is a body which at present mostly exists for nothing else but collecting rents, therefore, they can be asked to collect the rents of these chawls also. I think Government would be well advised to get the rents of this Development Department collected by the Improvement Trust or some other agency until these chawls are disposed of instead of spending such a large sum of money on establishment. I am supporting this cut with one desire and that is to get from Government a reply that they will curtail this department and I am sure Government will assure us that they will do so soon.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI (Indian Merchants' Chamber and Bureau): Sir, we find that a new head has been opened and under this head a further loss of Rs. 5 lakhs has been provided for from the general revenue. The previous speakers have suggested that something concrete must be done to wipe off this loss of 3½ crores. Re. 1 crore are said to have been recovered from the taxation or cotton cess on this account. Still after crediting this one crore the item of Rs. 3½ crores is in the book of Government against this housing scheme. For that purpose what sum is required? I think Rs. 50 lakhs can be taken as value of all the chawls if net return is capitalised at 6 per cent. If the values as stated by the other honourable members are taken, then I think Rs. 50 lakhs will be recovered by outright sale out of the cost of Rs. 3½ crores. I must acknowledge that the Honourable the General Member has saved to this House from considerable losses by decreasing 50,000 tenement programme to 16,000 tenements. Government take about Rs. 14 lakhs from the cotton cess every year on the full proposed programme of 50,000 tenements, but if the one-third programme is executed and if only one-third is taken of the cotton cess, then I think there will be a further and more loss of Rs. 10 lakhs. I would submit, Sir, that if the cotton cess is to be continued, if agricultural people are willing to pay it, Government should not utilise that amount in this way. Why cannot Government utilise that amount in a better way? By the present system, Government must know that our liability will remain the same without any reduction, and cannot be wiped off. There are various ways of wiping off this loss. But it is no use bringing such off-shoots from the Development Department as housing scheme head. Government should come forward boldly and show to this House that the loss is incurred. They should come forward and say "for the circumstances well-known to this House, Government have to write off a loss." In this way this honourable House may know as to how much they have to provide for and in what manner, by what instalments every year as we are providing 20 lakhs per year for Back Bay.

As regards the chawls, I submit that we have been getting only Rs. 3 per tenement. Government gets Rs. 3 per tenement; there are 10,000 tenements and the net return comes to Rs. 3,50,000. So, roughly speaking it comes to Rs. 3 per month. If we have to receive only Rs. 3 per month, I say "Why should we not offer these chawls to the employers of labourers, who have already sacrificed so much for those chawls?" Last time I had suggested that the rooms in these chawls should be rented at Rs. 4 each.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Well, we have accepted your suggestion.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: But you have not acted upon it.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: This honourable House will remember that during the last session I offered these chawls to be rented at Rs. 4 per tenement if taken en bloc.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: You put that proposal before this House. I do not know whether there are any employers of labour in this House. But you ought to have put this suggestion to the public at large.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I may inform the honourable member that we published this fact in the newspapers. We informed the Millowners Association, the Railways and different other public bodies.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: May I know if these chawls were offered at Rs. 4 per tenement free of taxes and other charges?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: We did offer the chawls at Worli at Rs. 4 per room. They had to pay nothing except this rent.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: But even taking that we shall be receiving Rs. 4 per tenement, there will be some loss. I would, therefore, ask Government: "Why not provide in the budget for the further loss?" If we receive Rs. 3 or Rs. 4 per tenement, the realising capital value of all our chawls will be Rs. 60 lakhs or maximum Rs. 80 lakhs. And there will be a loss of Rs. 3 crores, as the sum of Rs. 3½ crores is standing in the book.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : How are you going to realise that amount ?

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : I cannot say that. It is for Government to find out ways and means. What you are doing at present is that you are taking taxes, you are incurring expenditure and you are keeping an establishment of Rs. 1,19,000. The Honourable the General Member knows that the Income-tax Officer does not allow more than six per cent. for the establishment charges. So, if Government are going to get something like Rs. 7 lakhs, they should not spend more than Rs. 42,000. They should not spend the sum of Rs. 1,19,000. It is on these grounds, Sir, that I support the cut of Rs. 1,19,000.

I would also like to know from the Honourable the General Member whether he would be willing to hand over this department to some other department, as the previous speakers have suggested. I do not know whether he is willing or not, but this is certain that he will have to do something to get rid of this loss.

Mr. J. B. PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association) : Sir, we must remember that whatever we may do, we have got to face one fact ; and it is this. The chawls are already there ; we cannot remove them elsewhere ; and they cannot be got rid of. There is only one way out of the difficulty ; and it is to find out some way by which more rent can be realised out of them, in order that at least the cost of management may be substantially reduced. It must be remembered, Sir, at the same time, that, for various reasons, the Government have given us only a third of the original programme of 50,000 one-room tenements, and that therefore the cost of management and the ratio of supervisional expenditure over these chawls must necessarily be much higher than would have been the case, had all the chawls, originally contemplated, been available for occupation. But, as far as I have been able to follow the speech of my honourable friend, the member for Bombay, his concrete proposal is that some way should be found for reducing the current expenditure of the Department by transferring the management of these chawls either to some other department of the Government, or to some public or semi-public body that may be willing and ready to take it up. I think the honourable member for Bombay suggested that by handing these chawls over to the P. W. D. for management, a good deal of saving can possibly be effected. I am not at all sure if it will be possible for the Government to translate this suggestion into action. I would first like to hear the Honourable the General Member on this point. I would like to know from him whether, in his opinion, the suggestion is a practicable one ; and if so, whether he will be prepared to make use of that suggestion for the purpose of reducing expenditure. Personally, I do not think it is a practicable suggestion to have the chawls transferred for management either to the Improvement Trust or the Municipality, for the simple reason that both these bodies have their hands already too full and I do not think they will be prepared to take up the management of these chawls.

So far as the cotton cess is concerned, it has been repeatedly pointed out to this House,—and I wish to place this aspect of the question before the House once more with all the emphasis that I can command,—that it is not fair to the cotton industry and the cotton trade that this cess, inspite of the altered circumstances, should be taken from these sources to the fullest possible extent, as originally contemplated. It is a well-known fact that the cotton industry cheerfully and readily agreed to pay this tax in order that the Industrial Housing Scheme started by the Development Department, chiefly to house those engaged in the cotton trade and industry of the city, may be quickly brought into existence and completed. Now however that the original programme, for reasons beyond the control of the Government, has been reduced to about a third of its former size, I submit, Sir, that it is not fair, under these circumstances, to call upon the cotton industry and trade, to bear the burden to the same extent as they were originally expected to do. I think, it is reasonable to demand that they should be relieved at least to the extent of the reduction of the housing scheme from its original size to its present proportions. I do most earnestly hope that the Government will seriously consider and give effect to this aspect of the question, if not to-day, at least at a very early date.

Turning again to the question of the transfer of these chawls for management, to some public body or some other department of the Government. I am afraid, the transfer, even if possible, will not help the Department in the slightest degree. I know that every endeavour is being made by the Development Department to let out all these chawls, but it is not possible to do so. I may say, Sir, with my personal experience of these chawls, that there are many reasons why they are not all fully occupied. One of them is that they are not well-lighted. The other reason is that the labourers like to live among their own people in their own way amidst their old familiar surroundings. A third reason is that they are now occupying chawls which are insanitary and not as well-provided for as the Development chawls, and for which consequently, they have to pay much less than they have to pay for these chawls. These are some of the reasons why they are unwilling to occupy these chawls. It must be added that the continuance of the Rent Act also very largely comes in the way of the occupation of these chawls. The right way of solving this problem is to abolish the Rent Act and to get the municipality to bring pressure to bear upon the owners of unhealthy and insanitary chawls which are at present occupied by the labourers, and compel them either to improve them and make them more sanitary, or to pull them down. In any case, I believe, Sir, that it is not the fault of the department at all. And so long as these chawls remain occupied, it is quite natural that there should be a deficit. However, every attempt should be made not only by Government but also by the municipality and other public bodies to devise ways and means of solving this problem.

[Mr. J. B. Petit]

Before I conclude, I do hope that Government will consider the advisability of reducing the cotton cess, to the unfair incidence of which on the cotton trade and industry of the presidency, I have already alluded It is no fault of the cotton trade and industry that the Government, for various reasons beyond their control, have not been able to complete their original programme. It is quite fair and right that those on whom this tax mainly falls should expect Government at least to substantially reduce if not altogether abolish it at an early date.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM: On a point of information. Does the honourable member support or oppose the proposal?

Mr. J. B. PETIT: No; for the moment I am neither opposing nor supporting it. I have an open mind on the question and will decide after hearing the Honourable the General Member.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Sir, I am sorry the Honourable the General Member is not here just now when I have to say something about these Development chawls. Looking to the vacancies in these chawls which have been built at an enormous expenditure of public money, I am inclined to support my honourable friend Mr. Petit's statement that proper efforts have not been made by Government to get these chawls filled up by inducing public bodies and private individuals to come and take up these chawls. (The Honourable Sir Cowasji Jehangir comes in) I am glad that the Honourable the General Member now comes in. I say that Government's efforts have been altogether on wrong lines. My complaint against them is that just as they have offered certain facilities to public bodies, similarly they have not given equivalent facilities to private individuals wishing to occupy these tenements. The reason why the chawls did not attract more tenants was that even the rents now charged were more than an average labourer was able to pay. Last year also, in discussing this very item of Development chawls, I made certain suggestions regarding the reduction of rents. The Honourable the General Member has acted on those suggestions but he has done so only in respect of chawls which are at a very great distance from business places, by roads insufficiently lighted and inadequately policed when the tenants have to go from these chawls to their places of work. These labourers are subject to attacks from budmashes and other undesirables who molest them especially in the evenings and during nights. As the Honourable the General Member is aware, these people leave their homes at 6-30 to 7 in the morning and return from work at about 6-30 or 7 or even later than that in the evening. I mean the Worli chawls. A woman residing there was killed by two Mahomedans only five days ago when in the evening she was returning with her brother after redeeming some of her ornaments from the Marwari with whom they had been pledged. This case has been reported in the " Times of India " and other newspapers of this city.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: When did the murder take place?

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE: About five days ago, I think. The woman was residing in one of the Worli chawls. I bring this to the special notice of the Honourable the Home member. The chawls are big chawls containing 80 tenements with 20 rooms on each floor. The length is over 100 feet. There is not a single light there, the Nhanis cannot be kept clean for want of enough water. The labourers have to scramble for water every evening after return from work at about 7 in the evening. Considering the large number of tenants that occupied each chawl, I would strongly urge that more water taps should be provided on each floor and there should be sufficient lighting arrangements in the chawls. If these two conveniences are provided for these chawls, I am sure there will be no vacancies. In fact our Textile Labour Union sent in a representation to Government some three months back about this matter but I do not know what action has been taken on it.

I find that the estimated income has been put down at Rs. 7,25,000 by way of rents from these chawls. As against this income, there is an estimated expenditure of Rs. 3,76,000, or nearly 50 per cent. expenditure. Can the Honourable the General Member, who himself is one of the biggest landlords in the city of Bombay, tell me whether he considers 50 per cent. as a reasonable expenditure and whether he himself is spending that much on maintaining his own property? Is it not a sheer waste? Here we have got an officer called the Land Manager on Rs. 1,000 per month. Then there is an assistant land manager who used to be paid Rs. 1,000 but who will now be paid Rs. 550 per month. Is it necessary to have such highly paid officers for doing this kind of work?

One suggestion I would make this year is that the chawls which public bodies are prepared to take should be given to them within three months from now. The remaining chawls should be farmed out to the public under contracts at a deduction of ten per cent. This would bring about a reduction of 40 per cent. of the present expenditure. There would of course be deposits kept by the farmers in respect of almost all the chawls. If this is done, far from there being 100 chawls unoccupied as feared by the Honourable the General Member, there will not be a single chawl remaining vacant. They are not pigeon-holes as stated by some honourable members. If Government act on my suggestion, there will be a saving to Government on the contrary.

The other point I would like to urge is about the reduction of rents. At present only Rs. 3 on an average is recovered per room. If an average of five rupees per room is charged, I am sure the results will be good. The labourers earn not more than 20 to 25 rupees per month, and out of these earnings, they cannot afford to pay more than five rupees for rent. In other parts of the city the rents for such rooms in old buildings owned by private owners are Rs. 8 or Rs. 9 still, and therefore my suggestion may profitably be considered by Government.

With these few remarks and suggestions, I would again request the Honourable the General Member to give kind consideration to my suggestions whereby Government will be profited and the labouring classes will also be benefited.

Sir VASANTRAO DABHOLKAR : Sir, the honourable mover of this amendment has said that Government has not used its commercial sagacity in building these chawls. From the very beginning when this scheme was put forward, I was entirely against the scheme because I knew it for certain that the labouring classes would never take advantage of these chawls, and the fact remains so to-day. But may I know what commercial sagacity has been shown by the honourable mover of this motion ? What does the honourable member want by his motion ? He wants that the establishment charges should be reduced without handing over the chawls to any public body. Who is going to look after the chawls if the establishment is curtailed. As long as Government is not in a position to dispose of these chawls, how will it be possible for Government to reduce the establishment ? There must be somebody to look after the chawls, and the establishment must be there.

My honourable friend Mr. Nariman has stated that these chawls should be handed over to the Improvement Trust. My honourable friend, who is a trustee of the Improvement Trust Board, does not know the Improvement Trust Transfer Act. The Improvement Trust cannot take over this property from Government, because they are governed by a different Act. Even assuming that these chawls are transferred to the Improvement Trust, what can the Improvement Trust do ? The Improvement Trust will not be able to put in tenants into these chawls, because of one reason, for which this House and particularly my honourable friend the mover of this motion is responsible. This House has extended the life of the Rent Act, and I am quite sure that there will be a recommendation from the Development Advisory Committee that, as long as the Rent Act remains in force, there will be no possibility of these chawls being occupied. The Improvement Trust wanted to acquire Dharavi, as it is one of the most insanitary areas, and this insanitary area has been occupied very largely by the mill-hands, and this in spite of the fact that the mill-hands come from such districts as Worli, Fergusson Road and other places. If they can afford to go and stay at Dharavi, surely they can stay at Worli in these sanitary chawls, but they do not want to go and stay there, even when the rent has been reduced to Rs. 4. An offer has been made to the millowners and mill agents to take the chawls for the labouring classes, but the labourers prefer to go and stay at Dharavi, because they know, as a matter of fact that, under the Rent Act the landlord cannot increase the rent, and moreover it is very difficult for the landlords to recover arrears of rent because the process is such that by the time you go and get the rent controller's certificate the tenant will have gone away keeping broken chatties for the landlord. Now, as the honourable member has pointed out, rents are recovered from these chawls under the Bombay Land Revenue Act, and it is, in his opinion, not a healthy system. But if these rents are to be recovered in the same way as an ordinary landlord does, then you will find that to-morrow all these chawls will be full. The tenants will come and occupy the rooms, the rents will fall in arrears, and when the rent is to be recovered in the ordinary way, they can leave the chawls in any way they like. Now, Sir, it has been stated that the Rent Act does not affect the chawls.

An Honourable MEMBER: You want it to be abolished, and the landlords left free to do as they like ?

Sir VASANTRAO DABHOLKAR: Certainly. It is their birthright, and the landlords must have it. It was on account of the War that the Rent Act was introduced. But the War was over ten years ago, and in these days of democracy, my honourable friend Mr. Nariman wants to extend the life of the Rent Act, and there will be another Nariman who would want to extend it by three years. Why should there not be a limit on the incomes of pleaders ? Why should the landlords only be restricted ?

Sir, a reference was made to the Improvement Trust. In the Improvement Trust, we have got about 9,000 rooms, and there too we have got vacancies to the extent of more than 10 per cent. We have about 1,000 rooms vacant to-day, and the loss of revenue, on account of the Rent Act, which the Improvement Trust has to suffer is to the extent of somewhere about Rs. 7 lakhs.

There is one more point, and that is that mill agents like my honourable friends Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee and Mr. Lalji Naranji can take advantage of the bona fide offer of Government that they are ready to give them these Worli chawls at Rs. 4 per room, which is absolutely dirt cheap. Even a poor labourer, who is working as a mill-hand can safely take a room and by sharing it with another family can incur an expense of only Rs. 2 per month for rent. My honourable friend Mr. Asavale has put the average income of the mill-hand at Rs. 20 per month, but I think he is rather modest. Any man working as a labourer can make Rs. 30 a month, and if he shares a room with another family, a rent of Rs. 2 per month is not much to him.

There is one aspect, which was also referred to by my honourable friend Mr. Asavale to-day. It was pointed out to Government some two years ago in one of the reports of the committee meetings of the Development Advisory Committee—and my honourable friend Mr. Bell will bear me out—that unless sufficient police help is given in the locality, it will be very difficult to rent the chawls, and that recommendation is in one of the reports of the Development Committee. Then, as regards medical relief, that is another drawback, but as far as that is concerned, that is more or less the function of the Corporation and the Government, and some improvement has been made in that respect by the opening of the King Edward Memorial Hospital.

Then, Sir, it was stated that it is much better to negotiate to dispose of the property. But we must try to make the best out of the worst. Who is going to take up this white elephant ? Merely out of sympathy for the working classes, Government came to their rescue, by spending Rs. 3½ crores, in order to house the poor labourers. But this sympathy on the part of Government was abused by the labourers. Not only that, but it has been further encouraged by the mill agents themselves. With the exception of one or two mills in Bombay, the rest of the mills have got their labour scattered all over the city; the labourers live so far north as Dharavi and Sion, and some of them go even as far as Thana. If these mill agents would take up the offer of Government, Government would be able to make some profit. No doubt, Government would not be able to make as much profit as they had expected, or even be able to make both ends meet. A rent of Rs. 4 a room, with 6,000 rooms, will bring in a monthly rent of Rs. 24,000 a month, which means about Rs. 2,40,000 a year as far as Worli is concerned. But Rs. 3½ crores have been spent on the whole scheme, and even assuming that all the 15,000 rooms are occupied at an average of Rs. 6 per room, that will come to Rs. 90,000 a month, or about Rs. 10 lakhs a year. But even that would not be sufficient to pay the interest on the Rs. 3½ crores that have been spent. But there is one more offer, which is in the hands of my honourable friend Mr. Nariman, and that is that in the year 1935, if it is the desire of the Corporation, the Corporation can take this property. Why does not the honourable member Mr. Nariman suggest this to the Corporation, that in 1935 as they have the option of taking over this property, the Corporation should do so?

An Honourable MEMBER: It is a long way off.

Sir VASANTRAO DABHOLKAR: It is not a question of its being a long way off. These chawls are located in the midst of the mill area.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: Will they last till 1935?

Sir VASANTRAO DABHOLKAR: I can assure my honourable friend and compliment him that he is a good police court pleader, but is a bad engineer. He ought to know better than to expect these chawls to come down in 7 years. One should use common sense in this matter.

Now, my honourable friend Mr. Asavale said that these chawls are pigeonholes.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE: I never said so.

Sir VASANTRAO DABHOLKAR: It was mentioned that these chawls were pigeonholes; I do not know whether it was by the honourable member Mr. Asavale, or by somebody else. What idea has that honourable member got of pigeonholes? When every chawl has got a surrounding open space of 30 feet, and enjoys 63½° light how can the chawls be called pigeonholes? Not only that, but I have found that in DeLisle road the chawls have been provided with windows in place of concrete shutters. All these facilities have been provided. As regards nhanies which my honourable friend suggested they have been provided in all the chawls which are now occupied. When the chawls are not occupied and when there is no tendency on the part of the people to occupy those chawls how can you expect Government to spend any money? If there is a tendency on the part of the people to occupy, Government will spend more money on the construction of nhanies. This is rather a big proposition. The scheme was first started in the interest of the working classes and to remove congestion from the city by the Government. Then the Municipal Commissioner, Mr. Monie, took the census and found out that 50,000 single tenements would be required. He found that so many people were sleeping in the streets. The scheme to build 50,000 tenements is based on the statistics prepared by him. Government have stopped to build any more chawls because they find that the chawls are not being occupied.

Then my honourable friend Mr. Asavale suggested that these chawls could be given on contract. If you give these chawls on contract, the working classes will be left to the mercy of the contractors. In the Improvement Trust we have got a collectorate. If you give these chawls to the contractors what will they do ? They may not let the chawls to the working classes and the occupants that come in will be at the mercy of the contractors. Now, we have built these chawls, we have to maintain them till such time when we get co-operation from the railway and mill agents, and when representatives of the people like my honourable friend Mr. Nariman induce the people not to stay in insanitary places like Kamatipura and Dharavi and to occupy these chawls. (Interruption) I am talking in the interest of the people and telling the representatives of the people to induce the people to occupy these chawls. The honourable member Mr. Nariman comes here with the argument of commercial sagacity and cutting down the expenditure on establishment without handing over the chawls to anybody. There must be some time at the disposal of Government to transfer the chawls to the Public Works Department. Assuming these chawls are handed over to the Public Works Department, even then they must have an establishment. Unless establishment charges are provided it is difficult to hand over 15,000 rooms to any body. At present it is much better if the honourable member who moved the amendment withdraws it.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Mr. President, I rise to offer a few observations on the motion of my honourable friend Mr. Nariman. Now, Sir, it is an admitted fact that the housing condition of the working classes in the Bombay city is most miserable. More than 66 per cent. of the population of the city is living in one-room-tenements. The living in single-room-tenements has a serious consequence on the health, morality and infant mortality of the people who reside therein. The statistics for the last five years show that the infant mortality in the city of Bombay is appalling. The infant mortality in the city of Bombay is 562 per thousand births registered. Analysing these figures further we find, Sir, that the infant mortality per thousand in single-room-tenements is 784 ; in two-room-tenements it is 482 per thousand ; in three room tenements it is 386 per thousand ; and in four-room-tenements it is 212 per thousand births registered. So, we find that the proportion of deaths varies inversely as the number of rooms occupied by the parents.

No doubt, it was very good of the Government that they undertook the Housing Scheme not on commercial basis but for the benefit of the poor to relieve their distress so far as the housing condition was concerned and to provide better and more improved tenements for them. But while doing so they committed a sad mistake in having launched on a scheme of building one-room-tenements. These one-room-tenements may be superior to the tenements at present occupied by the 66 per cent. of the population of the city and more than 90 per cent. of the working class population. Still we find, Sir, that out of the total of 207 chawls only 92 chawls are so far occupied by the strenuous efforts made by Government. Therefore it is necessary to find out the main reasons which are at the bottom of these large vacancies in chawls.

Sir, when we consider the question we find that the present condition of the houses is very miserable. Still we find that people are not prepared to go to better places. Are they so conservative that they do not like to go to better places to live? Certainly not. The only thing that stands in their way is the economic cause. We find from the statistics published in the Labour Gazette by the Labour Office that the average wages of a labourer per month come to Rs. 30-10-8. Further, according to the statistics published by the same office we find that the average rent paid by a working class man ranges between Rs. 3-8-0 to Rs. 5. Now, Sir, we understand that only so much they can afford to pay. If we take into consideration the present reduced rates we find that the percentage that these people will have to pay varies from 23 to 33 per cent. of the pay they now get. Can they afford to pay so high a percentage by way of rent only? The chawls have been built with the main object of housing the working classes. If that is so, is it not fair on the part of Government to reduce the rents to a figure which will be within the capacity of those people to pay? I submit, Sir, that it is the first duty of the Government to see that the chawls are occupied by the labouring class people. When times change, the prices come down and the wages of the labourers are increased, then that will be the time of Government to reconsider the whole question and they may if advisable think of the proposals for increasing the rents. If rents are reduced it will be possible that all the chawls will be occupied. On behalf of the labour unions in the Bombay city I assure the Honourable the General Member that we shall try and make every effort to see that the remaining chawls are occupied by the labouring people. The Labour Office addressed letters to the labour unions in the city and we held a meeting for considering the position of the labourers. The labourers contended and very rightly contended that they were not in a position to pay as much rent as was being charged by Government out of the poor salary that they were getting.

There are other suggestions which I have to make for the consideration of the Honourable the General Member. First, it is necessary to have good transport facilities afforded to the areas where these Development chawls are situate. The Tramway Company may be asked to lay their lines in all the chawl areas. Another thing which must be done is that there must be given police protection of person and property. It is necessary to establish schools, markets, shops, temples and other amenities of life. It is also necessary to give a more adequate and larger water supply.

Sir, it has been suggested that these chawls should be sold, and disposed of once for all at whatever price they will fetch. We have spent already Rs. 4,50,00,000, and if they will bring only Rs. 50,00,000 then may I know how the deficit will be made good ? Will it not even then be a burden to the extent of four crores of rupees on the tax-payers for years to come ? That being so, why not make the best use of this white elephant ? Why not economise the management ; reduce the expenditure on the management as far as you can ? We see in the present budget that an assistant land manager drawing Rs. 1,100 has been replaced by another officer drawing Rs. 700. That is no doubt a welcome proposal. But it is necessary also to make further reductions in the expenditure. An effort should also be made to see that all the chawls are properly and immediately occupied. If these chawls are sold, it will be a danger to the working class population from the rapacious landlords, and I am entirely against any such thing being done.

Similarly it has been suggested that these chawls should be given on the contract system to the millowners and other employers of labour. I think that also will certainly put difficulties in the way of the employees.

If these chawls are not at present filled up, every effort in the direction I have suggested should be made to popularise them. Once they are popularised and people get accustomed to them, then the time may come to reconsider the whole situation in the light of the circumstances then prevailing.

In conclusion, I have only to submit that any proposal to dispose of these chawls should be opposed as prejudicial to the interests of the working classes.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind) : Sir, while going over the note of the Honourable the General Member in the Blue Book, I was considering whether it was any part of the Finance Department to put down any unnecessary expenditure or any expenditure that appears on the very face of it to be unjustifiable or excessive. I do not know what the functions of the Finance Department are exactly, but I consider that this should be one of the functions of the Finance Department. Now, the irony of the whole situation is in the note in the Blue Book :

"The provision of Rs. 80,000 this year is for the 207 chawls constructed. Of this 207 chalws, 92 were occupied in the beginning of the current year and about 125 chawls are likely to be occupied by the end of the year. Therefore the average number of occupied chawls during the year is 108. The provision of Rs. 80,000 is for current repairs to both the occupied and the unoccupied chawls. It is assumed that the average number of occupied chawls next year will be 126."

(that is only one more than the number occupied at the end of the year).

"Allowing only Rs. 700 per chawl for current repairs to occupied chawls, which is the figure recently accepted by Government, Rs. 88,200 would be required for the 126 occupied chawls leaving Rs. 11,800 only for the 81 unoccupied chawls."

So that, whereas Rs. 80,000 is the revised estimate (for repairs and maintenance) for the current year, with the same total number of occupied and unoccupied chawls (207) with one more occupied—at present 125, and Government expect 126 to be the number occupied next year—Rs. 1 00,000 is the amount budgetted for the next year.

[Mr. B. G. Pahalajani]

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Where is that figure '125'?

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: At present, it is 125 and not 108; 108 is the average. It was 92 in the commencement and 125 at the end of 31st March 1928, and therefore the average was 108. For the present year they begin with 125 and at the end of the year, if they have any hope, it ought to be more than 126, but they take it only 126. Now, with 125 occupied chawls at the end of the year, the pay of officers is estimated at Rs. 12,000 in the revised estimate; but with 126 occupied chawls, the estimate for next year is Rs. 17,000.

Mr. R. D. BELL: Sir, may I make a correction? The figure '17' is a misprint for '7.' The total '119' is correct; but the figure '17' is a misprint.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: Then the pay of officers has gone down from Rs. 12,000 to Rs. 7,000. But the pay of establishment has gone up from Rs. 54,000 to Rs. 63,000 (I hope that is not a misprint); allowances and honoraria from Rs. 15,000 to Rs. 19,000. So that, after all, when 125 is the number estimated to be occupied at present and 126 is the expected average at the end of the next year, I cannot understand—I hope the Honourable the Finance Member and the Honourable the General Member will assist me in understanding it—why the pay of establishment should increase by Rs. 9,000 and allowances and honoraria by Rs. 4,000. The losses sustained by this adventure in the current year is Rs. 3,86,000 debited to revenue, and next year the loss is expected to be Rs. 5,05,000, and admittedly it is likely to grow. While there is this increase, which is, apart from interest charges, mainly due to the increase in pay of establishment from 54 to 63 and allowances and honoraria from 15 to 19, what is the proportional increase in income? The proportional increase estimated for occupation is very small.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: How is it very small?

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: It is 125 actually occupied at present. At the commencement of the year it was 92; the average for the current year is 108; but we are starting the next year with initial number of 125 occupied.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Will you please read it again?

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: They have in all 207. Of these 92 were occupied in the beginning of the current year and "about 125 chawls are likely to be occupied by the end of the year. Therefore, the average number of occupied chawls during the year is 108." At the commencement it was 92, but about 125 chawls "are likely to be occupied by the end of the year." "It is assumed that the average number of occupied chawls next year will be 126," against 125 at the end of the current year.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: The average this year is 108.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: We started this year with 92 and at the end of the year it was 125; so the average will be 108. But there has been a progressive increase and it was 125 at the end of the year. If we expect to progress and not retrogress, then certainly beginning with 125 at the commencement of the next year we must progress not only up to 126 but much more.

On the question of loss for expenditure, I find its increase from Rs. 3,86,000 to Rs. 5,05,000. Details of the establishment for chawls is not given at this page. But other establishments are given at page 242. If you will turn to page 242 of the Blue Book, it is stated there:

"Office of the Assistant Land Manager, Development Department Chawls, Rs. 47,840."

For this year this amount of Rs. 47,840 is not there, because it has now been transferred to a separate head of "42." I suppose, Sir, that this is the pay of the establishment of Assistant Land Manager, as the pay of the Land Manager has been shown separately as item No. 4 on the same page. If you go further, you will find an item of Rs. 14,468 as house allowance. I do not know how the total of Rs. 63,000 has been calculated. That is the situation. I put it to the Honourable the General member whether it is fair to charge the cost of the office of the Superintending Engineer and the Executive Engineer for the work of repairs—Rs. 23,000 and also pro rata share of the cost of Secretariat establishment—Rs. 4,000. You will, therefore, see that of Rs. 27,000, apart from the item of Rs. 63,000 for the establishment that I have already mentioned, is also debited to this department for superintendence. That is the expenditure for looking after 126 chawls.

I will put it to the Honourable the General Member, who is one of the biggest land-holders to say that if this were his private property, would he have appointed the Superintending Engineer and the Executive Engineer and so on and spent Rs. 23,000 for that purpose? Had he employed an establishment which would cost Rs. 63,000 for the collection of rents, when nothing else has to be done? I do not think so. But in the present case it is the property for which the taxpayers have to pay. Will the Honourable the General Member or will the Honourable the Finance Member allow such things, if this were their own property? The facts are there and everything is quite clear. If the Honourable the General Member comes forward and says: "This is the minimum establishment charges and there is nothing for reduction," I do not think anyone will believe him. I, therefore, ask: "Is it the way of managing affairs?" If you cannot manage that properly, why not give a contract to another to collect rents? Give the repairs to the contractors, if the Government cannot manage to do it cheaply. Or why should they not hand over the property to the P. W. D.? The most surprising thing is this. The more chawls are being occupied the more establishment charges are incurred. When 125 chawls were occupied, the expense was 1 lakh and when 126 came to be occupied the expenses increased by Rs. 19,000. So, you will find, that instead of decreasing the expenditure establishment for when more chawls are occupied, it goes on increasing. So, I think if all the 207 chawls are occupied, the Honourable the Finance Member will have to make a provision of Rs. 10 lakhs for the establishment. Let us have some fixed calculation. Let not this honourable House be misguided by the figures. The Honourable the General Member must tell this House the exact position and he should try to reduce the expenditure as far as possible.

Mr. R. D. BELL: Sir, the honourable mover has directed his attention in this case to the establishment charges and I propose to deal with these in detail in the first instance.

It is quite impossible to explain every single particular which makes up an item in the budget. The honourable member from Sukkur (Mr. Pahalajani) who has just spoken, has, on account of what I may call necessary omissions, been led to make wrong deductions from the figures. Although the cut refers to the establishment charges, I shall take the figures of expenditure given on page 104 of the Blue Book, item by item, because nearly all the items have been referred to.

The first item of Rs. 1,00,000 is for the annual repairs to chawls as compared with Rs. 80,000 expended during the current year. I may state that the cost of repairs is based on an average of Rs. 700 per occupied chawl. The cost of repairs and maintenance includes not merely repairs to the buildings which are trifling but other items also. The principal of these items is white-washing once a year, which is, on sanitary grounds, most essential. Another item is the cost of maintaining the sanitary fittings. These are very expensive and their maintenance forms a very heavy item, because most of the tenants were, at first, entirely unacquainted with their use and caused considerable damage to them.

There are outside pavements to be maintained. There are also open spaces, large open spaces, at Naigaum and Worli to be maintained with trees and outside lighting. This charge for repairs includes the cost of outside electric lighting. Now, the cost of the chawls is roughly, on the average, Rs. 1,66,000 per chawl, and honourable members can work out for themselves that the figure of Rs. 700 per annum per occupied chawl is about half per cent. of the cost of the chawls.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE: Are lights supplied to any chawls? I think no lights are supplied to any chawls.

Mr. R. D. BELL: I am referring to outside lighting. Now, the Millowners' Association of Bombay drew the attention of Government to what they considered was the very heavy incidence of expenditure of all kinds on chawls, and I personally met the committee of the Millowners' Association and discussed every item, one by one, with the members, and, with their advice, was able to make some reductions; Government finally wrote to the Millowners' Association giving them their revised figures of expenditure of all kinds, and I gather from the fact that no further correspondence on this subject has taken place that they were satisfied.

The honourable member for Sukkur complained that only 125 chawls were expected to be occupied by the end of this year and only 126 chawls next year while the cost of repairs had gone up, by 25 per cent., from Rs. 80,000 to Rs. 1,00,000. Well, the comparison is not a fair one, because the figures given in the Blue Book are the average number of chawls occupied in the year, namely, 108 in the first case and 126 in the other. Honourable members will realise that a great many of the chawls which were opened for the first time this year have required no repairs during the year. The current year opened with 92 chawls in occupation and whitewashing had to be done in all of these. But 33 new chawls were opened in the course of the year, and probably at least half of these have required no whitewashing; they will not be whitewashed for the first time till next year. This circumstance explains how the other items on page 104 of the Blue Book, viz., general-tax, water-tax and halalkhore-tax, have all increased apparently disproporticnately. If honourable members refer to item (4), halalkhore-tax, they will see that it has increased from Rs. 20,000 to Rs. 25,000,—exactly in the same proportion as the increase in repairs.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE: Were tenders called, for whitewashing?

Mr. R. D. BELL: That is a matter in the discretion of the executive engineer or the superintending engineer, and it has not come to my notice.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE: Is it not beneficial to Government to call for tenders?

Mr. R. D. BELL: Retrenchment has been carried out in the matter of repairs and sanitary stores, which are the only two items which we can possibly vary in section (a) of the expenditure on page 104 of the Blue Book, and there is no prospect of any further permanent reduction being now made. Indeed, after the first draft of the budget had been prepared this year, the estimates for sanitary stores had to be raised because, owing to the amount of cutting down which had taken place, there were complaints about the insufficient use of sanitary powders.

The next set of items on page 104 of the Blue Book relates to establishments. The officer who has been in charge of the chawls till now was paid Rs. 1,000 a month for very special reasons. At the beginning of 1925 Government were dissatisfied with the general state of rent collections and with the organization, and it was thought that the best course to pursue at the moment was to put in an accounts officer. Government then put the Audit and Accounts Officer in charge for a short time in order that the position should be thoroughly investigated. The Audit and Accounts Officer, for a month or two thus replaced the then Land Manager, and one of his assistants was put in to manage the chawls. It was found that it would be rather a waste of time to get this officer to make an investigation and write a long report, and that the best thing to do was to give him time, instead of writing a report, to put the chawls on a good working basis. In 1925, as honourable members may recollect, there was a very severe mill-strike about the end of the year and we lost many tenants, and very heavy arrears were left uncollected. So, the result of that year could not be taken as a fair test.

[Mr. R. D. Bell]

But now a standard of collection has been reached, which we know is practicable, and the present seems a suitable time for putting in a less highly paid officer to run the concern which is now thoroughly well organized. To give honourable members an idea of the state of rent collections at the present time, I may tell them that last year the collections were equal to 98 per cent. of the demand and this figure has been maintained this year up to the present day. In the latest figures, arrears do appear largely, but this is because everybody in Bombay is in the habit of paying their rent in arrears; that is to say, they pay the rent for March on the 1st of April. These rents due for March, which are not paid till April, appear in our books as "arrears." As a matter of fact, a large proportion, a very surprisingly large proportion, of Government tenants now pay their rent for the month during the currency of the month. The demand in January was Rs. 51,000. I am excluding now rents from concerns like the B. B. and C. I. Railway and merely refer to rents due from individual tenants. Out of a demand of Rs. 51,000 for rents during the month of January, Rs. 19,000 were collected during the month, and a further sum of nearly Rs. 3,000 was collected in advance for rents due in February and March.

The arrears on the 1st of February, were only Rs. 44,000, that is to say, less than the rents due for the month of January. That is the condition of affairs which I think is quite satisfactory. There is a reason why the Development Department should obtain better results than the Improvement Trust. Government, as one honourable member mentioned have exceptional powers under the Bombay Land Revenue Act, so that it is in no spirit of boasting that I give these figures. I agree that the state of rent collections in the Development Department should be better than those in the Improvement Trust. When making comparisons with the Improvement Trust, honourable members must distinguish between the pre-war chawls of the Improvement Trust where the rent is still governed by the Rent Act and the post-war chawls. I have not got actual figures with me but figures were prepared about three years ago, during the year of the mill-strike, which showed that the two bodies collected exactly the same percentage of rent in the post-war chawls and since then the state of affairs in the Development Department chawls with regard to rent collections has greatly improved. It is in those circumstances that a change is now being made in the post of assistant land manager. The officer will be a senior mamlatdar who has acted as a deputy collector and who belongs to the classes which largely use these chawls. He is a Non-Brahmin.

The next item to which exception was taken is Establishment which has increased from Rs. 54,000, the revised figure for 1927-28, to Rs. 63,000 for the next year. The honourable member for Sukkur referred to this as the collection establishment. It is not the collection establishment. It includes the collection establishment and a great deal more than that. More than half this sum is required to pay the sweepers attached to the chawls. The figure is certainly over Rs. 30,000, judging from a rough calculation I have made just now. There is one sweeper for each chawl and this number, the committee of the Millowners' Association seemed to agree, cannot be reduced. There is a mucadam over every 20 sweepers and there is one sanitary inspector who gets, as far as I remember, Rs. 150 per month, over the whole staff. I do not think that any honourable member considers that this provision is extravagant The actual rent collecting establishment consists of chawl superintendents who have other duties than rent-collecting. There are at the present time nine of them. The maximum number of tenants at the end of last year was over 8,000. These chawl superintendents therefore manage, on an average, 1,000 tenants each. They are paid on the same scale as ordinary clerks in the lower division in Bombay. They start on Rs. 60 and rise in the course of 30 years to Rs. 160 per month. Those, who were engaged first of all, also get a house rent allowance of Rs. 20 a month. Acting on the advice of the Advisory Committee, they are also paid a bonus on their collections. But in comparing them with ordinary clerks, I think honourable members should realise that their work is very much harder : they start work at about 7-30 in the morning and with a short interval in the middle of the day, their nominal working hours are till 5-30 in the evening, but they have actually to work till ten and eleven at night especially after mill pay-days. They have few real holidays. They have to work often even on Sundays. They get no leave unless some of their fellow rent-collectors relieve them and they are not entitled to any pension. I think, Sir, that it is very desirable that these chawl superintendents should be sufficiently paid because, as honourable members, who come from Bombay city, well know, these rent collectors are subject to various temptations. In point of fact, if a rent collector does not reach a certain standard in his rent collections, the cause may be suspected but cannot be ascertained and we find that there is no other remedy except to dispense with his services.

The honourable member for Sukkur referred to the establishment debited pro rata and referred to the figure of Rs. 23,000 on account of engineering establishment. That figure is the standard figure, more or less, which is always debited in the Public Works Department against works. The Public Works Department charge is at the present time 24 per cent. as you see, the cost of repairs for next year will be one lakh of rupees, so that in the ordinary way the Public Works Department would allocate Rs. 24,000 for the engineering establishment as a pro rata charge. I think that disposes of the suggestion that there is anything exceptional in the pro rata charge in the case of the Development Department chawls.

These are the main details explained but there are one or two general points to which I should now like to refer. The honourable mover of the amendment suggested that the manner of showing the receipts was a bit of jugglery and it did not seem to him to be an honest way of showing the figures. In this matter of showing figures, the Government themselves are very largely in the hands of the Accounts Department and the Accountant General, but the reason why a tax is shown as a receipt under the head " 42 " is this. This is the only instance, as far as I know, in the Bombay Government's budget where a tax is earmarked for a specific head of expenditure. It is shown here naturally and, I suggest, very properly. There has been no attempt whatever to conceal the loss which has been very carefully explained in the last paragraph on page 107. That loss has been somewhat unexpected, at least the greater portion of it has been, and the House is entitled to an explanation. At the end of 1924-25, the balance at the credit of the cotton cess account was over Rs. 15 lakhs and it was thought that, on a diminishing scale of expenditure and increasing rent receipts it would be about sufficient to see the chawls put on a paying basis. Unfortunately, in 1926-27 there was a heavy fall in the receipts from the cotton cess which fell, from an average for five years of 15½ lakhs a year, to Rs. 11·14 lakhs in 1925-26, so that the balance which was available for meeting future losses was seriously reduced. Not only so, but in the revised budget of this year and the budget estimates for the next year, we have had to take a lower figure for the cotton cess receipts than would have been justified on the average figures for the first five years.

Another temporary disappointment, I hope, was the rate of interest. The chawls were built out of loans which were all taken at rather high rates of interest. The average rate of interest is at the present time about 6·1 per cent.

If Block 8 in Back Bay had been ready for transfer this month, we should have been able to save Rs. 77,000 of interest charges in the housing scheme next year. These are the main reasons why this burden on provincial revenues has come upon them sooner than the Department thought 18 months ago.

I referred, Sir, to the diminishing scale of expenditure, and perhaps, in my previous remarks, I did not sufficiently refute criticisms which pointed out that, to some extent, the expenditure, taken as a percentage on the receipts, was actually rising. I have explained how it has risen, to some extent, from the nature of the expenditure itself, that is to say, that when new chawls are brought into use, the full expenditure on them is not incurred till the following year. But there is another reason. These chawls are let at specially low rents, and these rents have been reduced from time to time during the last 4 years. Now, when the rent is reduced, it is not possible to reduce the cost of whitewashing and other charges. We cannot reduce proportionately the pay of the sweepers and rent-collectors, or the cost of electric lighting. Everything goes on as before, and the lower the rents are made, naturally the higher the expenditure appears to be. That is quite unavoidable, and if honourable members press, as many do, for a reduction of the rents, they must be prepared to face what appears to be a percentage increase in expenditure; it is a matter of arithmetic, and nothing else.

The honourable mover referred to another matter. He asked, what would be thought of a commercial concern which spent Rs. 350 lakhs, or Rs. 450 lakhs according to his calculation, and got a return of only 1 per cent. ? It was never intended that these chawls should bring in a return in the shape of rents which would be a fair return on the expenditure. They were started as a social scheme, for the better housing of the working classes. The criticism from the honourable mover surprises me the more, because in another local body, of which he is a member, he is a wholehearted supporter of reduced rents, but he never asks the question there, what would be thought of a commercial concern which would reduce rents in the circumstances in which he advocates them elsewhere.

Allied with that criticism is the suggestion that something improper has occurred, in that the capital of the chawls is shown as Rs. 350 lakhs, while the honourable mover suggests it is really Rs. 450 lakhs, because interest charges were written off during construction. Now, if he does care to regard it from a commercial point of view, I should like to point out to him and to the House that commercial concerns in this city, under certain circumstances, have, and have been permitted by law, to pay dividends from capital. In the case of the housing scheme, the reverse is the case. The housing scheme was fortunate in this way, that during construction it had a revenue from the cotton cess, and it seemed to be elementary sound finance, that when it had this revenue during construction, interest charges should be met from this revenue. At all events, this was one of the accounts matters which are not entirely in the hands of the department or even of Government. The Audit Department laid it down categorically that a scheme with a revenue of this kind must write off its interest charges during construction against that revenue.

Then, I must confess to disappointment in the constructive suggestions, from the commercial point of view, of the honourable mover, because when they were boiled down they emerge in this shape : somehow or other we are to get rid of the chawls and save a recurring loss, the recurring loss being, as a matter of fact, a slight difference on the right side between the rental receipts and expenditure. Well, Sir, supposing Government did get rid of the chawls, what is going to happen to the capital debt ? How are the interest charges going to be paid ? That is the crux of the financial position. Whatever uses the chawls are put to, whatever rents we let them at, these interest charges have to be met, that debt has to be extinguished. I admit, Sir, that in some respects the cost of collecting rents by Government agency is higher than a private chawl owner would incur. I say that this higher cost is absolutely unavoidable. A private individual with a single chawl can manage all his affairs without any subordinate staff, but we cannot expect the Honourable Member in charge of the department to go round the chawls, collect the rents, and see that they are properly repaired, neither can we expect the Secretary of the Department to do so.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : Every landlord requires a Bhayya.

Mr. R. D. BELL : The only escape from this position is, as some honourable members have suggested, to farm the chawls. But if you farm the chawls, you cease to run the scheme as a social scheme, and the farming of revenue has not, in past history, been found to be free from very grave defects and abuses in any country, least of all in this country. And, finally, what would the friends of Labour—and among friends of Labour I include employers of labour in many cases,—say to such a proposition ?

The problem at the present time is to fill the empty chawls, and the position is briefly this. At Sewri, Naigaum, and DeLisle Road the chawls are sufficiently full. But a further reduction in the rents, even if it secures the filling up of every room, would entail a further loss, that is to say, the reduction in the rents of the present tenants would not be covered by the rents from the newcomers. Unless honourable members are prepared to agree to a further increased burden on the general revenues there is no good talking of reduction in rents in these three areas. As a matter of fact there are no vacant chawls at Sewri ; there are only five chawls at Naigaum ; and only four vacant chawls at DeLisle Road. But at Worli we have 75 unoccupied chawls. It has been asked why these chawls have not been occupied and it is suggested that they are not suitable in all respects for the habitation of the people for whom they are intended ? I think this suggestion has already been disposed of by the actual figures of tenancies. Up to the end of last December, 3,000 tenements had been occupied at Worli. The Improvement Trust has no such large block of chawls occupied anywhere. There are 3,000 tenements now occupied at Worli and the Worli chawls are the most popular of the chawl areas of Bombay. But all the chawls there are not filled because the supply is far in excess of the demand. Since the census of 1921 there has been a large reduction in the population of Bombay. The figures were given to the advisory committee and showed that there was a reduction in population of 1½ lakhs. You see therefore that if conditions reverted to those of 1921 a great many of these chawls would be filled.

Some suggestions were made that the amenities of the chawls are insufficient. I dispute entirely any suggestion that police protection is not adequate in any chawl area. In DeLisle Road there is a police station actually in the area itself. At Naigaum there is a police station immediately adjoining the area. At Worli there is a permanent police post. Worli is as safe as any other area in the city which has no police station in its immediate vicinity. There is a municipal dispensary at Worli. There are municipal schools in all the areas ; and there is a child welfare work going on in three of the areas. The Young Men's Christian Association has provided facilities for recreation and instruction at Naigaum. There are shops in all the areas. With regard to the suggestion made by one honourable member with regard to water supply, it is ample in all the areas. The chawls as habitation are as satisfactory as any building constructed by human agency can be. Rents are now exceedingly low. Employers of labour can get chawls at Worli at Rs. 4 a room. That is one rupee less than what the individual tenant pays. At DeLisle Road a reduction of Rs. 1-11-0 per room has been made in the rent to employers. We have even offered as an experiment to give chawls to contractors to see what would happen. After all there is no great harm in making an experiment. So far, there is no offer even from contractors. (An Honourable Member: Did you advertise?) I did not advertise but Government issued a Press Note explaining fully what the terms of the offer were for each chawl area. The only solution of the difficulties of filling the Worli chawls is the return of prosperity to Bombay. I hope that these remarks will assure honourable members that the chawls at present are managed satisfactorily and that the demand of one lakh ninteen thousand for establishment is justified.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu): Sir, I rise to support the cut moved by my honourable friend Mr. Nariman.

Mr. D. A. JANVEKAR: May I know whether the honourable member is allowed to speak in Urdu?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: Last year Government showed a revenue of Rs. 6,64,000 and provided Rs. 2,14,000 for repairs and taxes and Rs. 1,00,000 more for establishment amounting to Rs. 3,14,000 which is enormously heavy expenditure which amounts to 50 per cent. of the income. What is the balance? In the case of income tax collection Government are very strict in collecting the full assessment and refuse to take into account any establishment charges that we may have to incur. They only allow us one-sixth of the income to be incurred for repairs and other charges, but they themselves do not care to spend 50 per cent. for the repairs and other charges. In the coming year they have shown a revenue of Rs. 7,25,000, i.e., an increase of Rs. 61,000. But at the same time they have increased the expenditure by 62,000 with the result that there is no increase in the revenue over that of the last year; on the contrary there is a loss of 1,000. I do not know whether Government are moving in darkness. Yet, they tell us that they are unable to spend less than this. They are going to spend Rs. 17,000 on officers next year....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The figure is '7,' not '17' as corrected.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: No Sir, Page No. 104. Blue book Establishment item No. 5 pro rata makes my point clear. This year they spent Rs. 16,000 on one item of establishments but next year they are going to spend 27,000 on the same item, i.e., 11,000 more. Whether it is on establishment of officers or on establishment of engineers, the public expects Government to cut down the expenditure. The honourable member the Secretary stated that although the rents were reduced to Rs. 4, nobody came forward to occupy the rooms. But I say, Sir, that the rooms will not be occupied even if the rent will be reduced to Rs. 2. I have been there to see the rooms, and may I tell you what they are like? The inmates have to cook, and sit at ease in one and the same room all through the day. I had been to Calcutta which was notorious for its Black Hole. But I did not see any. On the contrary Bombay is full of Black Holes. For the rooms in these chawls are veritable Black Holes. Government had employed engineers on Rs. 3,000 and above with house-rent allowances, overseas allowances, and other miscellaneous allowances, and this is the kind of rooms that those engineers have designed and built. There are no chimneys for the smoke to escape, and when it rains the water percolates through the ceiling into the room. Such being the method of construction, how can Government expect tenants to come and occupy them ?

Then, look at the figure of one lakh of rupees for repairs : I am a contractor myself, and I know something of this business. The British nation is said to be a race of baniyas, but while their Government in Great Britain spends like a true baniya, their Government in India spends like a 'Miabhai.' Even a person like my honourable friend Mr. J. B. Petit has stated that the chawls are insanitary. I hope Government will try to reduce the rent and make it possible for the labourers to occupy those rooms and bring down cost of maintenance so that the Housing Scheme may not press heavily upon the revenues of the presidency.

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : Sir, I rise to support the cut proposed by my honourable friend Mr. Nariman, and in doing so, I warmly associate myself with the observations made by my honourable friend Mr. Joshi. Sir, the object of the honourable mover is evidently to raise the question of economy in the expenditure incurred on recovery of rents of the Development chawls. The gross revenue in the revised estimates is estimated at Rs. 6,64,000, but the expenditure on repairs and taxation amount to Rs. 2,14,000 and on establishment alone it is Rs. 1,00,000. There is, therefore, a net income of Rs. 3,50,000. The House is aware, Sir, that Government have invested 3½ crores on these chawls, but the nett return from these chawls is only 3½ lakhs, that is only one per cent. You know, Sir, that the object of the Government in carrying out the scheme was to provide housing facilities for Labour in Bombay. As Labour is still dwelling in most insanitary premises and surroundings which are in the most deplorable condition, I hope and trust that Government will not abandon their housing policy to which they are committed. They should retain the chawls in their own hands, but our contention is that the excessive expenditure incurred on them should be brought down to a reasonable level. If they secure some well established agencies like the registered trade unions in the city, I feel confident that they will be able to effect saving to a considerable extent. With regard to private landlords in the city, it is an indisputable fact the they do not spend more than 10 per cent. on rent recovery and repairs, why then should Government incur an enormous expenditure of 3·14 lakhs, which works at about 45 per cent. of the aggregate income.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Sir, may I ask the honourable member whether he is aware of the fact that trade unions were addressed and asked to take the chawls ?

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : Sir, in answer to the Honourable the General Member, I may state that the trade unions of the City were communicated with by the Labour Office, and in pursuance of that communication, we held several meetings of mill hands in the City. But the grievance of the labourers was that the rents were too high. If the rent of the rooms is reduced to Rs. 4 or less than that, I am sure the labour class will resort to these chawls and the labour unions would be able to see that all the chawls are occupied.

Another point with regard to these chawls raised in the course of the discussion is that the chawls are single-room tenements and therefore a lot of inconvenience is caused to the occupants. Besides, there is widespread infant mortality due to congestion caused by single-room tenements. I would suggest that these one-room tenements should be converted into two-room tenements and Government should also try to curtail their expenditure incurred in connection with the collection of rents. If these two things are effected, I am sure Government will have no cause to repent for having constructed these chawls. My honourable friend representing the Bombay Millowners' Association (Mr. J. B. Petit) has taken this opportunity to ask Government to reduce the cotton cess. But I may state that the millowners agreed to the levy of cotton cess to facilitate the industrial housing scheme, as they could not on their own initiative start a scheme of welfare work for their own labour. Now, when Government has brought the scheme to fruition, the millowners should not, out of their moral duty back out of the scheme. That is the situation. I would, therefore, urge on Government to reduce their expenditure and if necessary, they should entrust to an agency the work of collecting rents from the tenants. I find that some observations were also made with regard to police arrangements and transport facilities. As regards the first point, I will not dilate upon it, as it has already been dealt with by the previous speakers. However, I would only say that the police protection afforded to the chawls thus far is extremely inadequate. But in regard to the conveyance facilities, I am at a loss to understand why Government should not make proper arrangements. What is required of Government is that they should in co-operation with the municipality suggest to the Tramways Company to start a tramway line to Worli for the convenience of the labourers. If all such facilities are provided, then I feel sure there will be no difficulty in getting these chawls occupied.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Sir, at the outset I must say that the Housing Scheme in the interest of the labourers was a great necessity. But if we go through the history of this scheme, what do we find ? Sir, when the Housing Scheme was taken in hand, no one was consulted as to the site for the chawls. The present Worli site, I would say, is far far away from the mill centre and therefore out of the way. It must be remembered that the mill workers like to stay in chawls which are in the vicinity of their mills, so that they can very conveniently go home in the recess time to have their meals and return back. But this Worli site being far away is not approved of by the workmen.

[Mr. S. K. Bole]

As regards the design, I understand it was made by an European Officer who did not know the customs and habits of workmen and he was paid handsome remuneration for preparing this design. As far as my information goes, I understand that there was an Indian officer in the Development Department, who had prepared a scheme of his own, but that scheme was never taken into consideration by Government. Hence, this design has proved to be very defective.

I had an occasion to see some workmen and at their request I took a deputation of these workmen to Mr. Monie, who was the Secretary in charge of this department. I put all the grievances before him. These grievances were with regard to the want of " nahanis " and the removal of concrete windows, as it was said that these windows shut out light and ventilation. But to my great surprise, I found that Mr. Monie was very petulent and he said : " The habits of these workmen are very bad and the construction of " nahanis " would render the chawls insanitary. " So, he did not move an inch in the matter. But after some years the construction of " nahanis " was taken in hand ; and some movable windows were fixed in place of the concrete ones.

I would also submit that the cost for the construction of these chawls is higher than the cost of the chawls built by the Improvement Trust.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Certainly not.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : That is my impression. I know of a chawl built by the Improvement Trust at Clarke Road after the war. There the rooms are of the same size as those in the Development Department chawls, but the rent charged there is only Rs. 7. Whereas the rent charged for the rooms in these chawls was in the beginning from Rs. 14 to Rs. 16. I had gone to Mr. Monie and told him that the rent was very high and it would be very difficult for the workmen to pay that rent. But he said : " Government want economic rents." There were some associations who were willing to take a contract if the rents were reduced but no heed was paid to their request. The question would naturally arise as to why these chawls were costlier than other chawls ? The answer is that the contract of the chawls was given to impoverished contractors, who then sprang up like mush-rooms. Therefore, it is no wonder that the cost of these chawls became higher than that of the other chawls belonging to the Improvement Trust.

There is another defect in these chawls at Worli. At the back of these chawls there is an open sewer, which is a nuisance and which breeds mosquitos and gives bad smell. The second defect is that there was no police protection. Meetings were held and resolutions were forwarded to Government for giving police protection, but all these resolutions fell on deaf ears. It is only now that a police post is placed there. But what is wanted is a police station. If all these defects were removed in the beginning, I do not think that these chawls would have remained vacant. So, it will be observed that the Government and this department has committed blunders after blunders (hear, hear) and this is the result of these blunders.

[Mr. S. K. Bole]

Now coming to the water supply, the same complaint was there. There were no sufficient water taps, which would provide water for the occupants of those chawls. And the consequence was that an affray used to take place on the water tap, which had resulted even in murders. And now it is said that there is copious water supply but that is after murders were committed. And it is now that markets and schools have been provided. Had they been provided long ago, the chawls would have been occupied by many of the workmen. Then again Government have built these huge barrack-like chawls suitable only for army men, single men ; they are not fit for family men. Sir, look at the difficulty experienced by these men. There are 20 rooms in a line, and from one end of the room the man has to run for water to the extreme end on the other side. There is no privacy. And how are these people, who are, accustomed in their native places to live in separate houses, to live in such barrack-like huge buildings ? The Improvement Trust have built very compact chawls and, therefore, they are very well occupied. The percentage of vacancies is not so much there as in these chawls. And, then, an European officer was appointed and placed in charge of these chawls. Sir, an officer who knew the habits and customs of these men,—an Indian officer—ought to have been appointed. Complaints were made to the higher authorities as regards that but no attention was paid and it is now,—and I am thankful to the department for it,—that they have appointed one officer belonging to the backward classes in place of this European officer. Had it been done before, I think he would have been able to induce the workmen to occupy these chawls.

Then, I am against the proposal of selling these chawls. These chawls should not be sold to any landlords. Of course, their tendency is quite well known. So, these poor workmen should not be left to the mercy of those rapacious landlords, and the cotton cess should be utilised to make up the loss that is being made on account of these chawls. I would suggest, Sir, that the solution would be to reduce the rent of the Worli chawls to Rs. 3 per room and to reduce the DeLisle Road and Naigaum chawls rent to Rs. 5 per month per tenement. That would solve the difficulty and all these chawls would be occupied in due course of time. I may tell the Honourable the General Member that resolutions to this effect were passed at meetings which were presided over by my humble self and some other friends of labour, and I would request him to give due consideration to these resolutions.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Have the rents not been reduced ?

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Not to Rs. 3, Sir.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Why not say they should be given for nothing ?

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Sir, I may tell the House that the rents have been reduced to a certain extent and some advantage of the same is taken by some of the workmen. But if the rents would be still further reduced, then more workmen would come forward to take advantage of these chawls. What is the use of keeping these chawls vacant ? If they are occupied even at very reduced rent, I think the loss will then be reduced to some extent.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The House will now adjourn to half past one to-morrow, Thursday, the 8th March 1928.

The Honourable the President: Order, order. Questions.

EXCISE ADVISORY COMMITTEE, BOMBAY

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many times the Bombay Excise Advisory Committee was called during the last four years;

(b) what sort of proposals of reforms regarding liquor traffic were made by the Committee;

(c) which of them were carried out by Government;

(d) to give specific reasons for not carrying out the others?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) 48 times. The Committees actually met 38 times and were consulted 10 times by circular.

(b) The following recommendations were made—

(i) Transfer of shops (67).

(ii) Opening new shops (3).

(iii) Earlier closing of shops (2).

(iv) Reduction in the number of country liquor shops (1).

(v) Closing of refreshment rooms at 9 p.m. and of hotels at 11 p.m. (1).

(vi) Retention of the existing number of foreign liquor shops (1).

(c) (ii), (iii) and (vi) and 62 out of the 67 recommendations under (i).

(d) In five cases the Committee's recommendations under (b) (i) as regards transfer were not accepted for the following reasons:—

(1) The locality was well provided with shops.

(2) The site selected was situated in the vicinity of three mills.

(3) The objections on account of which the Committee disallowed the transfer were of no weight.

(4) The site was in a mill area, and in the vicinity of two schools and a cemetery;

(5) The transfer was objected to by the residents of the locality and the proposed site was near a public band-stand and recreation ground.

The recommendation under (b) (iv) for the reduction in the number of country liquor shops was not accepted as the accommodation at the existing shops is already inadequate and a further curtailment of the facilities for securing drink would not have resulted in furthering the cause of temperance, but in accentuating the evils usually attendant on the deprivation of normal facilities.

The recommendation under (b) (v) for the closing of refreshment rooms at 9 p.m. was not accepted, since Refreshment Rooms are allowed to be kept open up to 11 p.m. on payment of a late closing fee, mainly for the benefit of those who cannot leave their work at an early hour, and who, but for the late closing, would be put to great inconvenience in not being able to obtain their accustomed food and drink. Besides, many people are regular boarders at these Refreshment Rooms. Hotels also usually close at 9 p.m., but are allowed, as in the case of Refreshment Rooms, to remain open till 11 p.m. for the public convenience.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : As regards reply (b) (i), does the Honourable Minister mean that the committee had asked for all these transfers and they were refused ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : The committee had asked for transfers of 67 shops, out of which 62 recommendations were accepted.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : As regards reply (d) (3), may I know what were the objections which were of no weight ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I want notice of that question.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : As regards reply (d) (5), will the Honourable Minister state whether the residents of that locality had sent in their objection before the shop was located or after the shop was located ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I require notice.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : As regards reply (b) (v), what has become of the recommendation which was made to Government as regards the country liquor shops to be closed at 8-30 p.m.? Nothing is mentioned about it in the reply.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Where did the honourable member ask that question ?

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : I had asked for the time, but the reply in (b) (v) only refers to the closing of refreshment rooms at 9 p.m. and of hotels at 11 p.m. Was there no recommendation as to the closing of the country liquor shops at 8-30 p.m. which was passed in the committee and recommended to Government ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I do not know whether that recommendation was received by Government or not. If the honourable member will kindly give me notice, I will look into the matter.

DADAR RAILWAY STATION EXIT

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the exit near the overbridge on the western side of the Dadar Railway Station of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway is not allowed to be used by the passengers at times when the traffic is heavy such as office time in the morning and evening ;

(b) whether on Saturdays and Sundays the gate of the exit is not opened at all ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) and (b) No. The gate in question is normally open from 7-30 a.m. to 11 a.m. and again from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. every day including Sundays, and is only closed when owing to illness or special duties, staff are short at the station. The Agent, Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company, however, reports that arrangements are being made to reduce the closing of the gate for special reasons, as given above, to a minimum.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : Does the reply mean to say that at no time were these gates closed, as the answers in (a) and (b) contain a definite "No ?"

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : That "No" applies to the suggestion that the gates are closed when the traffic is heavy, viz., at office hours.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : Were they at all closed ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : They were not ordinarily kept closed but only on exceptional occasions.

KUTCHA KHANDY CASE

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN on behalf of Mr. DAWOODKHAN SHALEBHOY (Northern Division) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the amount of cost in the Kutcha Khandy case of Bombay ;

(b) whether in view of the decision of the Chief Presidency Magistrate in the Kutcha Khandy case they propose to go on with the case against the other accused ;

(c) whether the Advocate General was consulted before launching upon the Kutcha Khandy prosecution and if so to lay upon the Council Table the opinion of the Advocate General ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) The cost to Government was negligible.

(b) and (c) An appeal has been filed and has not yet been decided. Government cannot reply to these questions while the case is still sub-judice.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT : RECOMMENDATIONS OF RETRENCHMENT OFFICER

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Will the Honourable the Minister for Education be pleased to state—

(a) whether the consideration of the recommendations of the Retrenchment Officer with regard to savings in the Educational Department has come to an end ?

(b) If the reply to the above be in the affirmative, whether he will place the order of Government on the Council Table ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) and (b) The Retrenchment Officer has not recommended any savings in the Educational Department.

NEW PENSION RULES

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR on behalf of Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have come to any final decision as regards the revision of the present pension rules as applicable to subordinate Government servants ;

(b) if so, whether they will place on the Council Table a copy of the Revised Pension Rules ;

(c) if Government have not come to any final decision in the matter, the reasons for the delay and also the approximate time which they will require for arriving at a decision ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) The rules are under consideration by Government and will, it is expected, be issued shortly.

LINKED COURTS

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR on behalf of Mr. S. C. JOSHI : With reference to the answer to my question asked on the 13th October 1927 and printed at page 785 of the Bombay Council Debates, Volumes XXI, will Government be pleased to state the decision they have arrived at in the matter of linked Courts ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : A reference is requested to the answer given during the present session of the Legislative Council to clause (b) of the question on this subject asked by Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale (Satara District), Non-Muhammadan Rural Constituency, on the 29th February 1928.

POLICE LINES, PATAN

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR on behalf of Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that they intend to give the Police Lines, now vacant at Malhar Peth in the Patan taluka in the Satara district, to some missionary institution ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Yes, the Sub-Inspector's office and lock up with only two vacant rooms in the Police lines at Malhar Peth in the Patan taluka in the Satara district are proposed to be leased to the American Presbyterian Mission in Western India.

DISTRICT LOCAL BOARD, SATARA : CORRESPONDENCE IN "AIKYA"

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether their attention has been drawn to the correspondence published in the supplement of the issue of "Aikya" (a weekly paper in Satara) dated 17th December 1927 under the heading "History of Twelve Rupees" ;

(b) whether any attempt has been made by Government through the district local board, Satara, or otherwise to verify the truth of the facts disclosed therein ;

(c) what steps have been taken or are intended to be taken by the district local board or by Government in the matter ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes.

(b) and (c) The matter is being enquired into.

PRIMARY TEACHERS : ATTENDANCE ALLOWANCE

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether their attention has been drawn to the fact that the present system of giving allowances to teachers in primary schools has given rise to jealousy and discontent among them ;

(b) whether their attention has been drawn to the fact that the rules regarding the grant of hajiri allowance to teachers, although they are neither third or second year trained, while such trained teachers have to serve for 10 and 5 years respectively before they are entitled to such allowance, operate harshly and in a manner derogatory to the status of teachers ;

(c) whether they intend to modify such rules ;

(d) if not, will they be pleased to state the principle justifying their existence ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Government understand that there has been a certain amount of dissatisfaction among teachers in connection with the selection of Head Masters.

Government are not in a position to say whether this dissatisfaction is due to the system or to the manner in which the system is being administered by the School Boards.

(b) The allowance is not a hajiri or attendance allowance. It is a duty allowance paid to Head Masters, and in large schools to the first assistant, in view of their increased responsibility. The amount of the allowance is calculated on attendance, with certain modifications, as this is the simplest and most convenient method of determining the importance of a school. A restriction has been placed on the award of these allowances to second and third year teachers with less than 5 and 10 years' service respectively, because such teachers are needed as assistant masters for the higher classes of large schools and not as Head Masters of small schools. The rules do not therefore operate harshly and in a manner derogatory to the status of teachers.

(c) The question is under consideration.

(d) The question does not arise.

SECONDARY TRAINING COLLEGE

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) what the total number of students at the Secondary Teachers' Training College is ;

(b) whether to maintain its efficiency the expenditure of this institution has been increased twofold recently in spite of severe retrenchment ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) The number of students at present (8th February 1928) on the roll is 60.

(b) A comparison of the figures for 1924 and 1928 shows that the number has increased from 32 to 60, while the expenditure has increased from Rs. 55,000 to Rs. 64,000. In addition to the regular work of the College, the staff now give lectures to about 100 S. T. C. students. These lectures were not previously given. The sum of Rs. 10,000 is now given as stipends. Formerly, this sum was not given. Thus, the number of students has almost doubled, while the actual working expenses have remained about the same.

POLICE : GUJARATI-SPEAKING INDIAN CHRISTIANS

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of Gujarati-speaking Indian Christian Sub-Inspectors of Police in the Bombay Presidency ;

(b) if there is none, why none is appointed from this community ;

(c) whether they are aware that the community is a backward community ;

(d) what steps they intend to take for their enrolment in the department ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) Three.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) Yes.

(d) Applications are invited from all classes by advertisements in the Public Press and the cases of candidates from the backward classes receive every consideration.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that a Kachhia by name Mohan was assaulted and injured by a Ghanchi in Godhra (Panch Mahals) on the 1st Gokul Ashtami day ;

(b) whether the Police of Godhra have been able to find out the culprit in this case ;

(c) whether they are aware that on the 11th of September 1927 one Kachhia Dahya Pitamber by name who has got a vegetable shop in Godhra bazar was forced by a Ghanchi to purchase vegetable brought by him and was abused in the market for refusing to purchase and was assaulted and beaten in his shop when he refused to pay the price demanded by the Ghanchi for the vegetable ;

(e) whether they are aware that on the same day another Ghanchi the companion of this Ghanchi, threw a brick-bat in broad day light in the bazar on one Mr. Panachand Narsidas, a banker and a grain merchant and an Income Tax payer of Godhra City who was standing near the shop of the Kachhia ;

(f) whether the City Police of Godhra have been able to find out culprits in this case ;

(g) whether it is a fact that on the 15th September 1927 Soni Punjalal Chhaganlal's daughter was assaulted and her ornaments removed by a Ghanchi at Godhra in Panch Mahals District ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) Yes.

(b) No. As the complaint was non-cognizable, the Police Sub-Inspector referred the complainant to a magistrate. As far as is known, the complainant did not make a complaint to any magistrate and the police consequently were not called upon to investigate the case.

(c) Yes.

(d) Yes.

(e) No.

(f) No complaint of this nature was made to the Police.

(g) A complaint to this effect was made, but the witnesses failed to indentify the person accused and he was accordingly discharged.

THEFT BY A GHANCHI

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that one Soni Vadilal Bhogilal caught redhanded a Ghanchi committing theft and handed him over to the Police ;

(b) whether they are aware that a threat to cause murder was given to Soni Vadilal by Ghanchi and that the said Soni brought this fact to the notice of the District Magistrate, Panch Mahals, by a registered letter and asked for protection ;

(c) if so, whether they will put a copy of the letter on the Council table and state what protection was given to him ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) It was reported that Soni Vadilal had caught a boy in the act of committing the alleged theft, but Vadilal himself failed to identify the boy in Court, and as stated in the answer to clause (g) of another question put by the Honourable Member, the boy was thereupon discharged.

(b) Soni Vadilal sent a letter to the District Magistrate, but that letter did not mention any threat to commit murder.

(c) The District Magistrate did not consider that any special protection was necessary.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI : Is it not a fact that the Ghanchis are not a criminal tribe, but are merchants ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : They are not a criminal tribe, but they include many criminals in their number.

SHIVAJI AND SANGATHANISTS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(c) if they are not aware, whether they intend to make inquiries in the matter ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) The contents of the book have been brought to the notice of Government, who are advised that they do not amount to an offence against the law.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

ENCROACHMENT ON GOVERNMENT LAND BY AMBA DAHYA OF KATARGAM

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the local revenue authorities of Surat received applications forwarded with several signatures regarding the encroachment on Government land by one Amba Dahya of Katargam, taluka Chorasi, district Surat, to the east and south of his house ;

(b) if so, what was the outcome of their lengthy official inquiries :

(c) whether they found any real and obvious encroachment on Government land ;

(d) if they did, whether they took measures to get it removed ;

(e) whether the applicants were informed of the decision ;

(f) the reasons why they did not issue orders to get the encroachment cleared off when it caused a deal of inconvenience to the public ;

(g) the reasons why the encroached land was given on a nominal rent and penalty, instead of redressing the grievances of the public and in spite of their oft-made opposition ;

(h) whether they propose to take any action in the matter ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b), (c), (d), (f) and (g) The Prant Officer inspected the site and found that Amba Dahya had encroached on the site to the east and south of his house. As the road on the south was sufficiently wide and the site had already been built upon, he recommended that the land encroached upon should be given to Amba Dahya on payment of occupancy price and fine, in addition to the annual rent. The Collector accepted this recommendation and sanctioned the grant.

(e) No.

(h) No further action will be taken.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Will the Honourable the Minister of Education be pleased to state whether he is a member of the new party formed during the last session of the Council and led by the Honourable Member Mr. Pahalajani ?

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Will the Honourable the Minister for Agriculture and Excise be pleased to state whether he is a member of the new party formed during the last session of the Council and led by the Honourable Member Mr. Pahalajani ?

Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I am an associate of the Party.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : May I know what is the difference between a member and an associate ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The honourable member may consult a dictionary.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : May I know whether an associate is entitled to the support of the party as much as a member ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The answer already given is intelligible.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Intelligible to whom ? I want to know whether an associate is entitled to the support of the party as much as a member.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Generally yes.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Particularly no ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : No.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : May I know if the Honourable Minister is entirely in agreement with the policy of the party ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I am an associate, and as such I may not always be in agreement with the views of the party on any particular question.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: When the Honourable Ministers are associates of the new party, is that new party a ministerial party?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (Inaudible).

RAILWAY CABIN AT KALKHODA

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the cabin named Kalkhoda between the stations of Lasalgaon and Summit has not yet been opened for passenger and goods traffic;

(b) whether they are aware that in the adjacent villages the agriculturists carry on a good deal of trade in onions and also other vegetables;

(c) whether they are aware that the Kalkhoda cabin is of no use to these traders so long as it is not opened for traffic;

(d) whether they are aware that the villagers have submitted many petitions to the railway authorities requesting that the cabin be opened for traffic, and that the request has not yet been granted;

(e) whether they are aware that the opening of the cabin for traffic will benefit the agricultural population in the adjacent villages;

(f) whether they have considered the advisability of urging upon the railway authorities to open the cabin for traffic as requested by the villagers?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Kalkhoda has never been opened for passenger or goods traffic.

(b) Government understand that the acerage of vegetables within a radius of 7 miles from Kalkhoda cabin is 680 acres.

(c) Yes.

(d) A petition was addressed in December 1927 to the Local Advisory Committee, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, who discussed it at their meeting held in February 1928 when it was agreed that there was no justification for opening a station at Kalkhoda for booking passengers or goods.

(e) Government consider that no direct benefit is likely to accrue. The local market is at Lasalgaon, which is 3 miles from Kalkhoda cabin. The area round Kalkhoda is deficient in water-supply and development does not appear to be likely in the near future.

(f) Does not arise in view of (e) above.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Who presided over the conference ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Sir Mahomed Habibullah.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : (Asked a supplementary question which was inaudible).

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Yes.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Did the conference issue a report of its proceedings ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I shall have to make enquiries.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : (Asked a supplementary question which was inaudible).

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : May I ask which Government is going to pay the travelling expenses of the Honourable Minister ?

(h) Four to five annas.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : With regard to (f), how did the Collector inspect the rice crop in January ? Was it not removed ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : He did not inspect the crop. He checked the valuation.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : How did he check the anna valuation ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : By enquiry.

CROP REMOVAL : SHELLA

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Karbhari of the Utelia State served notices on the cultivators of Shella, a village in the Sanand Mahal of the Ahmedabad District, in the month of October 1927, ordering them not to remove their crops and intimating that a chowkidar on Rs. 15 per month had been posted to keep a watch over them ;

(b) if so, whether such power of preventing the removal of crops was given to the said Karbhari by Government ;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the affirmative, under what section of the Land Revenue Code such a power has been given by Government and what are the circumstances under which that power can be used ;

(d) what steps Government have taken to prevent the landlords from using the powers with which they are invested long before the vighoti instalments are due ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.
(b) Yes.
(c) This power has been given in virtue of the Commission granted under section 88 of the Land Revenue Code. It can be used when there is reason to believe that land revenue cannot be recovered without recourse to coercive measures.
(d) The powers can be used before the vighoti instalments are due : no action on the part of Government is therefore required.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Can the powers be used in the month of October, two to three months before the vighoti instalments are due ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : That is already replied to.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Is this not a vindictive policy on the part of the talukdar to ruin the cultivators by attaching the standing crops and leaving them free for depredations of roaming beasts ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: I have no reply to make.

MEAT SHOP NEAR TEMPLE, AHMEDABAD

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Mr. Bapalal Harjiwandas Travadi, the priest of the temple of Shree Ranamukteshwar Mahadeo and other Hindu devotees of the temple outside Raipur Gate, Ahmedabad, have been repeatedly sending their protests and applications to the Municipality and the local and higher officers of Government against the location of a meat shop in the vicinity of the temple ;

(b) if so, what action the municipality has taken in the matter and what action Government have taken in the matter ;

(c) if no action is taken so far, what are the reasons of delaying and disregarding the matter which seriously wounds the religious feelings of the Hindus ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN HIDAYATALLAH: (a) Yes.

(b) None.

(c) No action could be taken against the owner of the meat shop in the absence of by-laws controlling scattered meat shops. By-laws under section 61 (1) (b) (ii) have now been sanctioned and necessary action will be taken in the matter by the Municipality.

LAND REVENUE GROUPING: AMBAVADA VILLAGE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the village Ambavada in the Prantij taluka of the Ahmedabad district was granted 100 per cent. remission of the enhancement of land revenue made in the settlement of 1892 ;

(b) whether as a result of the remission referred to in (a), the said village was being charged maximum dry crop rate of Rs. 2 per acre during the period of the last settlement ;

(c) whether the population of the said village decreased from 912 to 680 and the waste land increased from 94 acres to 897 acres during the last settlement period ;

(d) whether the assistant settlement officer, Mr. Moulvi, placed the said village in group II in the settlement report of the Prantij taluka which he compiled in the year 1925 ;

(e) whether the said village is not less than 8 miles from any of the three railway stations, Talod, Prantij and Sonasan of Ahmedabad-Prantij Railway ;

(f) if the answers to (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) are in the affirmative, on what grounds they have transferred the said village of Ambavada to the higher group I in Government Resolution No. 6968/24 dated 14th May 1927 ;

(g) whether they are aware that the result of the transfer of the village to group I will be the increase in the maximum dry crop rate of the said village from Rs. 2 per acre to Rs. 3 per acre, that is, an increase of 50 per cent. in the land revenue;

(h) if so, whether they intend to lower the said village to group II in accordance with the recommendation of Mr. Moulvi?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) Yes.

(f), (g) and (h) On reconsideration Government have lowered this village from group I to group II.

LAND REVENUE GROUPING: VADHROTA VILLAGE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the village Vadhrota of the Prantij taluka of the Ahmedabad district was granted 100 per cent. remission of the enhancement of land revenue made in the settlement of 1892;

(b) whether as a result of the remission referred to in (a), the said village was being charged maximum dry crop rate of Rs. 2 per acre during the period of the last settlement;

(c) whether the population of the said village has remained almost stationary and the waste land has increased from 60 acres to 555 acres during the last settlement period;

(d) whether the assistant settlement officer, Mr. Moulvi, placed the said village in group II in the settlement report of the Prantij taluka which he compiled in the year 1925;

(e) whether the said village is not less than 7 miles from Prantij railway station and 6 miles from Sonasan railway station;

(f) if the answers to (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) are in the affirmative, on what grounds they have transferred the said village of Vadhrota to the higher group I in Government Resolution No. 6968/24 dated 14th May 1927;

(g) whether they are aware that the result of the transfer of the village to group I will be the increase in the maximum dry crop rate of the said village from Rs. 2 per acre to Rs. 3 per acre, that is, an increase of 50 per cent. in the land revenue;

(h) if so, whether they intend to lower the said village to group II in accordance with the recommendation of Mr. Moulvi?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) Yes.

(f), (g) and (h) On reconsideration Government have lowered this village from group I to group II.

SACHANA SURVEY

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether a protest was made against a survey having been made on the 24th April 1925 in the absence of the khatedars of Sachana, a village of the Viramgam Taluka in Ahmedabad District, and without giving proper notice to them;

(b) whether the Superintendent of Land Records, N. D., personally went to examine the case on the 21st June 1926;

(c) whether it is a fact that the notice of the intended visit of the said officer was issued on the 19th June 1926;

(d) whether it is a fact that the notice was not received by the khatedar concerned before the place was actually visited and the enquiry was finished;

(e) if so, the reasons why the Superintendent of Land Records issued such a short notice of less than two days ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) The survey of the boundary line of Sachana and Khoraj was made in the presence of the khatedars of both villages, and two days' notice of it was given. A protest against this survey was received from one khatedar of Sachana only.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) There is nothing on record to show that the notice of the Superintendent's visit was not received by the khatedar concerned, but it is a fact that he was present when the Superintendent of Land Records visited the place.

(e) The honourable member's attention is invited to the reply to clause (g) of his other question on the same subject asked on 7th March 1928.

SMALL CAUSES COURT, BOMBAY: BACKWARD CLASSES

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR: Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the resolution regarding 50 per cent. recruitment from backward classes has been sent to the Chief Judge, Small Causes Court, Bombay;

(b) whether the order has been duly carried into effect in the administration of this department of Government;

(c) if so, how many persons from backward and advanced classes respectively have been recruited during the period, since the promulgation of the said order;

(d) whether it is a fact that there are only two petition-writers in the court, and that an application from a backward class man for the third place of a petition-writer was not entertained, though the Chief Judge was disposed to create an additional place in view of the large number of petitions with which the two existing petition-writers are flooded;

(e) whether Government intend to increase the number of petition-writers in the court, and if so, whether the new places will be given to backward class men ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: (a) Yes. The percentage of recruitment from the backward classes for Bombay City is 33 per cent., not 50 per cent.

(b) Yes.

(c) Nine persons from the backward and 13 from the advanced classes.

(d) and (e) There are two petition-writers in the court, and there is no necessity, at present, for any increase in the number. An application was received from a man presumably belonging to a backward class in September 1927 for a post of this kind, but it was not granted. If a third petition-writer is found necessary and a suitable applicant from the backward classes is available, his claims will be duly considered.

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR: Is the percentage for recruitment even outside Bombay city only 33 per cent. ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: I think the resolution on the subject has been placed on the table of the House. It shows that in some places it is 33 per cent. and in other places 50 per cent.

SMALL CAUSES COURT, BOMBAY: INTERPRETERS

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR: Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Small Causes Court, Bombay, had about the month of October 1927 invited applications from backward class candidates for a place of court-interpreter and translator;

(b) if so, whether the appointment was made;

(c) whether a backward class man or one from advanced classes was appointed;

(d) whether qualified persons from backward classes had applied for the post, and if so, their number;

(e) the reasons for giving the place to the man appointed ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: (a) The post was advertised about the beginning of November 1927. The advertisement stated that a candidate belonging to the backward classes would be preferred.

(b) Yes.

(c) A man from an advanced class was appointed.

(d) Yes. Eight.

(e) All the applicants were examined. The man appointed was in all respects the most suitable. He had had nearly seven years' experience as an Interpreter, and the courts were immediately in need of an efficient Interpreter.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Who examined these interpreters ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: I presume it was the chief judge of the small cause court. I am not sure.

Mr. S. K. BOLE: Is that going to be the policy of Government in making new appointments from the backward classes ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: What does the honourable member mean by "that" ?

Mr. S. K. BOLE: The policy here is that these candidates from the backward classes were not appointed and a man from the advanced class was taken, because he has had some experience. If the same policy is going to be adopted, the backward classes will have no chance.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: I think that orders are perfectly clear that it can only be applied with strict regard to efficiency and the most efficient man available will be appointed.

Mr. S. K. BOLE: Did not the candidate from the backward class possess the minimum qualification ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : I do not know what reply I can give except that while the candidate from the backward class possessed the minimum qualification the other gentleman possessed the maximum qualification.

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : Who held the test ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : I find from the papers that the examination was held by the chief translator in the court itself but the results of the examination are subject to the approval of the chief judge.

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : Who is the chief translator ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : I am afraid I cannot say.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : What is his caste ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : I cannot say.

TALI PALMS IN KANARA : PERMIT FEES

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state what proposals they have received from the Chief Conservator of Forests regarding the reduction of the permit fee for tali palms in Kanara ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : The Chief Conservator has recommended that no reduction should be made in the existing rate of permit fee for tali palms.

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR : Will Government be pleased to state whether there was any permit formerly ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I must have notice.

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR : Whether there was any increase in the permit fee from Rs. 2 to Rs. 4 and whether it was sanctioned by Government or by the department ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I must have notice to find out when the first levy was imposed.

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR : Are not Government aware that the pith of the tali palm is the food of the poorest of the poor ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Enquiries show that persons even from distant places are coming to pay the permit fee for tali palm.

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR : Is it also true that the fruit of the tali palm is not liked even by dogs and crows ?

DISTRICT LOCAL BOARDS : SUBSIDY TO TALUKA LOCAL BOARD

Mr. G. A. D. WASIF (Central Division) : Will Government be pleased to state whether the amount of subsidy paid to taluka local boards by district local boards is governed by any rule, and if so, what the rule is ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Yes. The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to section 76 of the Bombay Local Boards Act, 1923.

Question again proposed :

" That the sum of Rs. 1,19,000 provided for total establishment be omitted."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. The discussion on the honourable member Mr. Nariman's motion under 42, Bombay Development Scheme. Mr. N. A. Bechar.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City) : Sir, I quite agree with the honourable member the Secretary for the Development Department (Honourable Members : Louder please) that these chawls can only be run on social lines and not on commercial lines. If this had been kept in view from the very beginning the kind of chawls that have been built now would never have been constructed. Ever since these chawls have been built a large number of people having a social outlook have visited them and I myself have had the misfortune of seeing these chawls. And one and all have condemned them as unfit not providing even minimum amount of comforts for human dwelling. I do not mean that you should have the kind of palaces in which the Honourable the General Member, responsible for this department, lives ; or one of the type in which the Development Secretary lives. But certainly these chawls should be habitable by the labouring classes. That has been the complaint all these years and I would not have minded the loss of 3 crores if only the chawls had satisfied the needs. Now coming to the current year, from the figures given in the budget you will find that as against Rs. 7,25,000 provided as receipts from rents, Rs. 90,000 is provided for repairs, excluding the repairs on chawls that are not occupied. Rupees 8,000 is put down as cost of repairs on chawls that are likely to remain un-occupied during the whole year. Another Rs. 1,10,000 has been provided for establishment. You know according to the District Municipal Act the municipalities make an allowance of 10 per cent. for repairs to the landlords, while calculating the house tax. As the Honourable Minister in charge of the Local Self-Government, the House and the Government have agreed that 10 per cent. should be allowed for repairs to the landlords, I expected that they would take the same view in regard to the repairs on these chawls but we find here that the figures work out at 12½ per cent. for repairs and if you add a part of Rs. 1,10,000 on establishment (because all the establishment cannot be taken as meant for collecting rents) the percentage will go higher by about 5 per cent. Thus it comes to 17 per cent. Now, I ask whether an ordinary businessman would spend about 17 per cent. on repairs—and the charges on recovery of rents comes to 13½ per cent. We heard yesterday that Government have applied the Land Revenue Code for the purpose of recovering rents. That is a very swift method of recovering rents, and therefore one would expect that the charges for recovery of rents would be lower. The honourable member the Secretary for the Development Department stated that it was not possible, as it is with individual landlords, to go and collect rents personally and do all other kind of business themselves and thus reduce the working charges. But I put it to him whether, when we have a large organisation, and such a large number of chawls, the overhead charges should not be less than in small organisations. Therefore one would have expected the charges for repairs and recovery to have been much less. If you combine the charges for repairs and recovery the percentage comes to 31½ per cent. Now, I ask you whether this 31½ per cent. for repairs and recovery is a proposition to which we can subscribe. I have omitted the municipal charges, because that is certainly on a different footing. But on repairs and recovery alone Government is paying 31 per cent. Now, I think, that is rather exorbitant in all conscience, and I consider that a sufficient amount of retrenchment ought to be made. Fifteen per cent. would be considered sufficient, 10 per cent. for repairs and 5 per cent. for recovery. That is one point which I want to place before the House.

As regards the suggestion of my honourable friend Mr. Nariman about disposing of the chawls, I would submit that having sunk such a large amount of money for the benefit of these poor people a suggestion now to sell away these chawls and to take away from them whatever benefit we can now give is one which I do not think will be supported by this side of the House. My honourable friend Sir Vasantrao Dabholkar representing the landlords wanted to obtain a verdict in advance from this House regarding the advisability or otherwise of the rent control. Sir, this is not the proper occasion for me to speak anything about it. But he mentioned an important point, namely that the municipality wanted to acquire certain lands in Dharavi, and he stated that that locality was very much congested and insanitary.. I wish to ask that honourable gentleman who is an important member of the Bombay Municipality, what the difficulty is in the municipality declaring the whole of that area, with all the chawls there, as insanitary and unfit for human habitation. But I know that so long as the landlords who dominate the Bombay Municipality continue to dominate that body, the municipality cannot and will not take such action, which will encourage people living there at present to leave that locality and to go and live in better localities and fill the chawls which are vacant. So, if my honourable friend was really anxious to remove the insanitary conditions and the congestion in that particular part of the city, the remedy was with him and his co-workers in the Bombay Municipality. From the way in which they are sitting over the matter, I am not sure that they will do anything in that direction.

Now, Sir, coming to the question of rents. When my honourable friend Mr. Bole suggested that we should reduce the rents of chawls in order that they may be occupied by the labouring classes, the official benches at once asked "Why not free?" Sir, I do not wish to go at very great length into that question. I do believe that even big private trading corporations when they want to introduce their wares have to advertise them, and for the purpose of advertisement they have to part with their wares for nothing. Look at how the tea growers introduced their tea. In villages, and even in cities, they engaged agents who offered cups of tea free to people so that they may get addicted to the tea habit. Look at the way in which the cigarette manufacturers are pushing forward the sale of cigarettes. They are in the initial stages giving cigarettes free to the people in order that they may get addicted to cigarettes and pay a lot of money later to buy cigarettes. Now, that apart, I regard all these chawls to have been built out of the savings of the labour of these poor people. If you give them these chawls free, I do not think that the society or the community will be doing anything extraordinary. I was reading recently a very informative article by Mr. Trevelyan, who was Education Minister in the late Government of Macdonald. He was dealing with the Vienna Municipality and was describing how that Socialist municipality was carrying on a very practical scheme of socialism so far as housing was concerned. There, the condition of housing was no better than in Bombay. They taxed the rich and wealthy people and the large amount of tax received they utilised for the purpose of building fine houses for the labouring classes. If my honourable friend the General Member wants to read that article and see how things are carried on in other parts of the world, I can certainly give him that magazine the Socialist Review. He will be able to see for himself how people outside India are carrying on their social scheme. This Government seems to have a stupid conception of its functions which does not go beyond maintaining law and order. However, Sir, if my honourable friend the General Member is still anxious to get the fullest revenue from the chawls which have been built, I wish to put it to him seriously whether Rs. 3 will not be a paying proposition After all, Rs. 3 is not going to be consumed in merely paying the overhead charges; it will certainly leave a certain amount of margin. Moreover, it will certainly enable those chawls to be put to use by those people for whom they were intended. You have also to consider that if you leave these chawls unoccupied for years and years, the wear and tear will be much more and their life much less than would be the case if they were occupied. From that point of view also, I suggest some practical measures should be devised to encourage people living in congested, filthy and insanitary houses to go to these chawls, even if it entails a temporary loss to the State. I am sure once they begin to go there it will not be difficult to induce them to pay a little more later on. I, therefore, hope that the Honourable the General Member will consider this matter sympathetically and not simply say that Rs. 3 is a very low rent and Government will rather allow the chawls to remain vacant than to let them out for Rs. 3.

Dr. M. D. GILDER (Bombay City, North): Sir, I have been greatly interested to hear how the intelligent self-interest of the various constituencies that honourable members represent in this House has brought forward various suggestions to the Honourable the General Member about the Development chawls.

We had the honourable member from Bombay City, South (Mr. Nariman) and several others who have drawn our attention to the deficit and the annual charges we have to pay for the maintenance of these chawls. The honourable member representing the Millowners' Association (Mr. J. B. Petit) took this opportunity and asked Government to reduce the cotton cess, and the honourable member—nominated—from Bombay, who represents the Landlord class talked about the removal of the Rent Restriction Act. I am wondering, Sir, what has been passing in the mind of the Honourable the General Member. I do wonder whether the Honourable the General Member has found in this multitude of counsel wisdom—or safety—safety in carrying on this department as he is at present carrying on.

It has been stated that Industrial Housing should be on the business basis. But I would point out, Sir, that if one looks at any part of the world, one will find that nowhere are industrial housing schemes carried on on a business basis. In England, the Government and local bodies give subsidies. In Paris they have built large blocks accommodating more than 200 families each and they do not expect to realise more in the way of rents than would be sufficient to pay the charges of collection, repairs and depreciation. We need not go so far away, the Honourable the General Member has only to ask the members of his own family about the state of the housing schemes meant for our community. We have got various schemes for the middle-class housing in our community, but none of these schemes are on a business basis. The tenants generally pay an amount which would cover only depreciation and maintenance charges of such buildings.

Further, it has been suggested that we may get rid of these chawls, or we may hand over these chawls either to the Improvement Trust or the municipality. However advantageous such an arrangement may be for us, I do not think that any of these departments would be willing to take the management of these chawls. There is a Gujarathi proverb which says :

બળતું ઘર કોણ ભાડે લે.

In accordance with that proverb, no one would like to take over the management of these chawls.

The main reason of these chawls not being occupied by the labourers is that they are at a very long distance. These chawls have been built by Government at Worli, which place is far away from the mill area. If you will go to the mill area, you will find the difficulties of the mill workmen. When they get recess at 1 o'clock, you will find how they are in a hurry to go home and take their meals. The females working in mills have to prepare their food and also in a great many cases to nurse their children and, therefore, it is most essential that they stay in the vicinity of the mills. If they do not do so, they have to engage another man to fetch their meals from home, which is, no doubt very expensive for these poor men.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : What do you call a "distance ? "

Dr. M. D. GILDER : What I mean to suggest is this. Their houses should be at such a distance that they will be conveniently in a position to attend their work in time, after doing their household affairs. But the present chawls are far away from the mill area.

Another point raised in the discussion is about the shortage of water taps and want of police protection. I am sure if all these facilities are afforded, there will be a reduction of the deficit that we have incurred.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City South): Sir, I must confess that I am rather disappointed at the result of this debate. The disappointment is due to the fact, Sir, that the state of affairs which has been reduced to a desperate condition that this Council and the honourable members of this House have not been able to suggest any solution for. Such a hopeless state has been created by the expert bunglers amongst the Government that it is very difficult now to get out of it. But nobody has suggested any solution for this problem. Various other suggestions were made, but I am sure the loss which has been incurred and sustained by this presidency will not be reduced for years together. I also confess that my suggestion that these chawls should be sold is not wise. Because I do not think that we shall find another set of fools to buy them. These chawls have been so well advertised that I do not think, Sir, that at the present moment we shall find any member from the landlord class, which is usually a very shrewd class, to buy these chawls. So, that suggestion of mine should be turned down. But I do maintain, Sir, that no doubt the housing problem should be solved. In any other country, in any other important city, I do not think that Government have taken upon themselves a problem which would solve the housing question. It is only in this country that we find that this question has been taken up by Government. It is for the municipality and the Corporation that has to solve the housing problem. So, in this city we were told that the proper body which should take up this question is the Bombay Improvement Trust. In my opinion, the Public Works Department is the proper body under the Devolution Rules to take charge of all such activities. But in order that the ratepayers should not have any control over the activeties of this nature, the original designer of the scheme proposed in this way and this department was made a reserved subject.

I am very glad in a way that this has turned out to be a failure. And what was the reason for taking away this work from the Public Works Department or from a transferred subject and entrusting it to the reserved department and making it a reserved subject? The arguments advanced were that this is such an exceptional, such a complicated problem, that they would not like the conference or advice of so many representatives. It would be better if a few advisers on the part of Government in the reserved department are alone consulted and they would be able to put it through more successfully and with better results. Well, Sir, we have tried the experiment and I hope that this example will always be quoted to show the efficiency of the reserved part of the Government!

Now, Sir, I again repeat that the honourable members of the other side have got very short memories. Not only have they got very short memories. but they have very convenient memories. They like to remember things whenever it suits them, and they want to forget things whenever it suits them. I do repeat that the Honourable the General Member did state, either to inspire confidence in those who might be expected to take up the loan, subscribe to the loan, or to inspire confidence in the honourable members on this side, but he did state, and the advertisement was given to the whole of the Development Department by the publication of a book by St. Nihal Singh, that the Development Department was run on commercial lines. I could not hit upon the passage yesterday, Sir, but I have done so to-day and I quote the passage and give a reference to the Honourable the General Member himself. When a question was asked in July 1924 with regard to a publication that was done by St. Nihal Singh, which was advertised in foreign countries and other places, a question was asked as to what was the necessity of incurring expenditure and seeking advertisement even outside Bombay presidency, and the reply given by the Honourable Sir Cowasji Jehangir was :

"Though every commercial firm does not work secretly, if it wants to sell anything it must advertise. The Development Department is worked on commercial lines."

Again, in reply to another question, he repeats :

"The Bombay Development is run on commercial lines ; and it is open to an offer from any party."

I ask honourable members to remember the wording "Bombay Development is run on commercial lines" ; not only the Back Bay Reclamation Scheme or any other scheme. That was a statement made at the beginning when probably the scheme was to be popularised, when confidence was to be inspired. If it succeeded, they would have maintained that "we entered upon it on commercial lines, our commercial sagacity made us succeed." Now, when it has failed, they turn round and say it was never intended to run it on commercial lines ; it was a charitable and social problem ; Government was prepared to lose on it ; but their primary object was to go to the rescue of the unfortunate citizens of the city. It was with that object, knowing full well that losses were to be incurred, and the losses they are prepared to bear. Therefore, I will say, Sir, that honourable members on the other side have got very convenient memories, and when I stated it yesterday, the statement was challenged. You may refer to the records of Government itself, which actually says what the Honourable the General Member said.

Now, Sir, in all the statements that I heard, the point was, what was the cause of the unpopularity of these chawls ? Several honourable members have given various reasons. And particularly what is the cause of the unpopularity of the chawls at Worli ? We find that the Worli chawls are the least popular. I may correct the honourable member from Bombay, North, who last spoke, who said that the reason is that they are very far from the mills. If he only visits the place, he will find that it is an ideal place for the labour population. It is close to the mill area, at the same time it is quite open, almost open to the sea. It is an ideal spot for the labour population, and if on account of the situation the chawls ought to be made popular, there is no other situation for the mill population in the city than the Worli area by which those chawls could be made most popular. It is very near to the mill area and very close even to the sea shore ; removed from the congestion of the city, at the same time it is very close to the mill area. Therefore, I say it is ideal. In spite of that, why is it so unpopular ? And one reason given by the honourable member Mr. Baloch was his experience of his visit, that when he went there he found it difficult to stop there, that he almost felt that he was almost on the point of suffocation on account of the smoke. I had occasions to visit the chawls very often, and I would ask the honourable members to visit them, not in the dry season but in the monsoon, to see whether it is possible for any human being to live in that place. It is absolutely soaked into water and converted into ponds, and if the Honourable the General Member remembers, it is a very recent occurrence, during the last heavy monsoon these unfortunate labourers were forced into it, simply because some large employers of labour had taken up these chawls without consulting the labourers. They ran out and said that " we cannot live here in this weather because all the roofs are absolutely leaking." Not only were the roofs leaking, but there was water leaking from every quarter even from the walls. At the time that I had been there, there were regular ponds, and the labourers' little things were actually swimming in them. Is that a place for habitation for a labourer ? If the honourable member the Secretary remembers, there was a committee of Engineers called on the spot to consult what should be done. It was only in the last monsoon. Still, Sir, how do you expect, with all the reductions of rent, how do you expect these chawls to be popularised and to be occupied, in view of the conditions in which these chawls have been kept ? Recently, we know of chawls, 10, 20, or more, where people have been much worse than in other places, but at least they are in habitable conditions. But these chawls are not in a habitable condition. If the Honourable the General Member visits these chawls next monsoon, we may take it and he will see for himself that it is not possible for your workmen to live in those chawls. I expected the Secretary, when he really took one hour of this honourable House, to explain only one point as to what was the reason for the enormous enhancement in the original estimates for these chawls, the reason for an increase of 200 per cent. or 300 per cent. over the original estimate. What was the total amount which was set aside as an estimate for 625 chawls which were to be erected according to the original programme ? Two hundred and seven chawls, which were actually erected, might have cost not more than one crore of rupees. What is the reason why the estimates have enhanced so enormously, nearly 200 per cent. or more ? That is the question which I wanted either the Honourable the General Member or the Secretary to answer. They have not been able to answer. I will try to answer, but not now, but when I will move my next cut. I will try to prove by facts and figures why the estimates have enhanced so enormously. Honourable members have got to remember that, so far as the construction of the chawls was concerned, there were no unforseen factors about that. In the case of the Back Bay they had an excuse that there was no proper boring ; the clay turned out to be softer; the dredger did not work properly as was expected and all those things, so far as the reclamation was concerned and there might be some excuse. The best engineers might make mistakes so far as the reclamation was concerned, and they did not know, as they ought to have known, what was beneath the sea. But what was the difficulty in the case of the chawls, when hundreds and thousands of them have been built? It was all on the surface; everything was seen; everything was known; nothing unknown; nothing unforeseen. Still such a huge difference between the original estimates and the actuals! After all, when you prepare estimates, you take into account all the considerations.

That is the question which I wanted to be answered but that has not been answered. With regard to these suggestions, I still maintain that there is no justification for spending any further amount after this establishment. I still maintain that although it will not be possible and feasible to sell off these chawls it may be possible to transfer them for the purposes of collections to a body like the Improvement Trust. The principal and the only function of the Improvement Trust is to collect rents and look after the Trust properties such as various chawls of the Trust in Bombay. This will only be adding a little more to the function which the Trust is already doing; it will curtail the cost by about 60 to 70 per cent.; the collections will be better and the management will certainly be as efficient as it is to-day.

I may also point out one more reason why these chawls are unpopular, namely, the method of collection of rents. Probably, the Honourable the General Member thinks that these are speedy methods whereby they can secure rents without going to the law-courts, but if the Honourable the General Member is present when his officers are taking possession of articles and chattels of the poor tenants when they may be in arrears of rent for a month or two, he will see what a commotion is raised in the locality. That is why no man likes to go and live in such chawls and be liable to suffer under similar circumstances. For some reason or other, for reasons of strike or for reasons of ill-health and for various other reasons, it may be that the man, although he may be intending to pay, is not able to pay rent for a month or two for reasons beyond his control. The land manager or the assistant land manager goes there with his army of peons and sepoys and takes possession of the man's articles and chattels, drives the man and his family out into the street to find accommodation for themselves. That leads others to fear that if they too go and live there and if they happen to make a default for a month or two, their condition too will be the same. One man turned out of his house goes round and is bound to tell others what fate overtook him and the evil report naturally spreads far and wide and no one ventures to take up a tenement in these chawls. Some of the chawls have been occupied not because the labourers are willing to live there but because large employers have, to oblige Government, taken over some of these chawls and they have forced their employees to go and live there.

[Mr. K. F. Nariman]

I would therefore suggest that so far as this cut is concerned, I do hope that the non-official members will consider seriously not as a point of economy, not as a point of retrenchment, not as a vote of censure which will come up on the next item, but as a practical suggestion, to see if some arrangements can be made to transfer this rent collection work to the Public Works Department or to see if any other suitable arrangement can be made. As has already been pointed out, the charges are exorbitant the honourable member the Secretary to the Development Department himself admits that Government charges are more exorbitant than the charges of private owners or landlords. Why should they be so ? I do hope therefore that this cut will be accepted by this honourable House.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Mr. President, most of us have short memories and my honourable friend Mr. Nariman is by no means an exception to the rule. He has told us that the Housing District is a commercial department and he has also given this House a graphic description of the losses made on these chawls. He has told us that they cost 3½ crores of rupees and that another crore has to be added from the cotton cess. Then he pointed out that the receipts were only Rs. 6,64,000 during the current year. But, hearing him I wondered whether he had ever read the debate in the Legislative Council when this project was first brought to the attention of this honourable House in, I think, 1921. At that time there was strong public opinion in Bombay that something should be done to house the working classes. It was known that there was a serious shortage and the Municipal Commissioner had reported that according to the figures that he had before him at the time the shortage was 50,000 one-room tenements. I admit those were boom times and therefore my honorable friends opposite, according to the mentality of the day, were anxious that Government should move forward immediately and do something to allay the outcry that existed in Bombay as to the shortage of housing for the labouring classes, but it was by no means an easy matter to work out a scheme. Every scheme was bound to result in a loss and the public of Bombay and Government were perfectly aware of the fact, so much so that to make up for the loss they imposed a cess on cotton. Therefore when my honourable friend Mr. Nariman comes forward and tells this House that there is a huge loss on these schemes, surely he ought to have reminded the House that the loss was anticipated and provided for by special taxation.....

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : I was not a member of the Council then.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I did not say the honourable member was ; I said he had not read the debate, and I also said that he ought to have reminded the House that the loss was fully expected and provided for. My honourable friend Mr. Nariman admits himself that he did not remind the House of that fact because he was not then a member of the House, which conclusively shows that my honourable friend is not aware of the facts. (Laughter.) Before he got up to make his speech, surely he ought to have made himself acquainted with facts, with the basic facts which were placed before the public before the scheme was launched. Now to say that he was not an honourable member of the House at the time is no excuse. It was a well known fact that there was going to be a big loss and, I will repeat, in order to meet that loss a special cess was levied. When these accounts show that the moneys realised from the cotton cess are put to the credit of this scheme, as has always been the intention, my honourable friend accuses us of jugglery with figures. I fail to understand how any honourable member, reading the accounts in the Blue Book, could in any way be deceived. We say "Receipts, Cotton Cess, 14 lakhs." Is there any attempt here at jugglery with figures or at concealing facts? We go on to explain what is the actual loss from general revenues over and above the cess. Now, Sir, this is mere exaggerated language which I excuse. My honourable friend is here to use exaggerated language (Laughter). That is a part of his duty (Laughter). It is a part of our duty to place the actual facts before this honourable House. Now, Sir, I have shown that a loss was always expected but we are quite prepared to admit that we did not expect that over and above the cess we would have to draw upon the general revenues of Government, but there are one or two explanations for this fact. In the first place, the loss on the chawls up to now was paid from accumulations of the cotton cess and we expected that we should be able to pay the extra loss from these accumulations for another couple of years. But the cess, on account of depression in trade, dropped from Rs. 18 lakhs to Rs. 14 lakhs. We used to get Rs. 18 lakhs a year from the cess; the accounts show that for the last two years we are getting Rs. 14 lakhs, and we expect Rs. 14 lakhs next year. Therefore, we are short by Rs. 4 lakhs a year.

Now, Sir, we have been told that there is a great deal of extravagance as far as the establishment and the repairs and maintenance of the chawls are concerned, and, with your permission and the permission of the honourable members, I would like to go into a few details. When honourable members compare the total receipts with the cost of establishment and maintenance, they must not forget that the rents charged are by no means economic rents. These chawls cost Government Rs. 16-8-0 per month per tenement. One hundred and twenty-one out of the 207 chawls are being let, and are offered at Rs. 5 per month per tenement. Therefore, although you let them at Rs. 5 instead of at Rs. 16-8-0 which they are costing, it does not mean that your cost of maintenance or the cost of collection of rents is any less, and therefore, naturally, the lower you bring down your rents the higher are your percentage of collection charges and maintenance charges. Take, for example, a house that costs Rs. 10 lakhs. If you cannot get a tenant for it, you let it at Rs. 1,000 per month. The cost of maintenance on that house will be on Rs. 10 lakhs, and the percentage of the maintenance on the rent will be huge. That is the position before us. What I have to justify now is that the cost of maintenance and the cost of collection and establishment is not extravagant. Now, Sir, I will go into details. We expect to let, during the next year, a little over 10,000 tenements. The cost of the establishment is shown as Rs. 63,000. We propose to employ 117 sweepers, costing Rs. 32,468; 8 mukadams costing Rs. 1,728; one sanitary inspector, costing Rs. 1,520. Total cost of the sanitary staff is Rs. 35,716.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA: I want to know whether the sweepers are to be employed outside or inside the chawls.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: They are for the chawls. Now, I would remind honourable members that private owners of chawls own a chawl here or a chawl there, and they employ no sweepers; the municipality does the work for them. Very rarely do private owners employ sweepers. Now, we have got 121 chawls in one block alone at Worli, and I maintain that a sanitary staff is essential, not only for the health of those who live in the chawls but for those who live roundabout. Then we come to the rent collection staff. We have got 9 rent collectors; we are to collect rents from nearly 10,000 tenants; we are paying them Rs. 8,160 a year, an average of about Rs. 75 a month. There are 9 night watchmen for the chawls at 2,160 rupees and 9 peons about 2,160 rupees; there is a provision of Rs. 2,400 for any extra staff that may be required on account of any other extra chawls being brought into use over and above those taken into our calculations. That comes to Rs. 14,880. Then there is the supervising staff. There is one court clerk. Now, I have been informed by my honourable friend the Secretary of the Department that the graphic description just given by my honourable friend of the way in which rents are collected is not quite correct. I am informed that what is attached is a part of the wages, and that the tenants are not, as is described by my honourable friend, put out on the street to starve. Sir, we have got to collect these rents, and I feel sure that owners of chawl property in Bombay will sympathise with the head of the department who is responsible for collecting rents of 10,000 one-room tenements. The tenements in all are 16,000 but we hope to let 10,000. Then, Sir, there are 2 trackers, Rs. 1,536; 4 clerks for the Assistant Land Manager's office 3,696 rupees and 3 peons 720 rupees; the total is Rs. 7,169. Then we have got the accounts staff, and this staff is kept in the Audit Office, independent of Government, and that costs Rs. 6,000 a year. This is the total of Rs. 63,000 that is provided for in the budget....

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: How much rent is recovered from the big employers of labour?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Five chawls for the B. B. & C. I. Railway, one chawl for the municipality, and three chawls for the police. Those are all the chawls we have rented out to big employers of labour.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: You must deduct those chawls.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: We do. Only a very few chawls are let in that way. I have not worked out the figures.

Now, Sir, over and above this, as the budget shows, we have got the Assistant Land Manager on Rs. 550 per month; he is a deputy collector.

[Sir Cowasji Jehangir]

I now come to the cost of maintenance, which is Rs. 80,000 for the current year and Rs. 1,00,000 for the next year. The basis is that the cost of maintaining one of these occupied chawls is Rs. 700 a year, and that works out to ·6 per cent. on the cost of the construction of the chawl. My honourable friend Mr. Bechar said that somebody or other provided 10 per cent. for the cost of maintenance. All that we have provided for maintenance is Rs. 700 per occupied chawl per year, for which there is a provision of Rs. 1,00,000 next year and Rs. 80,000 in the current year. It comes to ·6 per cent. on the cost of construction, and I propose to give the details, specially for the benefit of my honourable friend Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch. We take Rs. 300 per chawl for whitewashing once a year which for 100 chawls comes to Rs. 30,000. I am now informed that the latest tender is Rs. 200 for whitewashing a chawl once a year. (An Honourable Member: How many rooms are there in each chawl?) There are 80 rooms in one chawl. My honourable friend Mr. Baloch told us that we were charging one lakh of rupees for whitewashing; and asked why we should not give it out on contract. May I tell him that whitewashing has been done by contract and is being done by contract at the rate of Rs. 200 per year per chawl? Then we have Rs. 180 per year per chawl for the following purposes: establishment: (1) for pipe service; (2) to keep the flush tanks and latrines in order, (3) petty repairs to wood work and floors of nahanis and water closets, (4) for driving the pumps at DeLisle Road and Sewri for sewage and for water supply, (5) for maintaining open spaces for which a few sweepers are also employed. We pay Rs. 40 per chawl per year for electric power to the company direct. Then we pay Rs. 60 a year per chawl for painting water tanks and shutters once in 3 years. We have to pay Rs. 35 per chawl per year for oil and stores for the pumps; Rs. 70 per chawl per year for materials for repairs; and Rs. 15 per chawl per year for extras. This gives you Rs. 700 per year per occupied chawl. I will repeat that this works out at ·6 per cent. on the cost of construction. Sir, from the few details I have given I think honourable members will be able to see that this expenditure has been carefully examined. I may also tell the House that the repairs at first cost Rs. 1,000 per year per chawl. After cutting down all sorts of items we have come to Rs. 700 and it may be possible to reduce it to Rs. 600.

Now, Sir, I will come to the main question as to what should be done. There is no doubt that over and above the cotton cess there is a loss next year of 5 lakhs from the general revenue. There has been a suggestion from the honourable member who moved the cut that we should sell the chawls and he himself in his reply has told us that it will be very difficult to find fools to buy these chawls. Well, Sir, leaving aside that question whether we can find fools or whether we cannot, let me ask my honourable friend whether he is serious when he suggests the sale of these chawls. We have built these chawls for the special purpose of relieving congestion and giving relief to the housing condition of the labouring classes. Now, we are asked to sell these chawls, because the supply is more than the demand. I am informed that there is a serious reduction in the population of this city specially among the working classes. I have been told that it amounts to 150,000. Therefore if there are 150,000 workmen less in the city of Bombay than were in the boom time, nobody will be surprised to hear that the supply is more than the demand.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA : I question the statement of the honourable member about the reduction in the working class population.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I have heard it from the Health Officer of the city. (Interruption.) I leave it to the honourable member to decide it in the corporation. It is possible that with the return of prosperity in trade we shall be able to fill up all these chawls.

We have been told that these chawls are not filled because we have not provided certain facilities. My honourable friend Mr. Bole related the past history of 8 years ago when he went and asked Mr. Moni to provide nahanis and Mr. Monie said "no". Is the honourable member aware of the fact that nahanis and windows have been provided ? We were then told that lighting conditions were bad. That may be so ; but we are looking into the matter and certain chawls have already been provided with lights in the corridor. We were then told that there was insufficient police protection. It may have been so nearly two years ago ; but I am now credibly informed that it is not so now. As a mere expression of opinion I may say that Worli chawls are as safe as any other in Bombay (Honourable Members : No, no). Then we have been told that there is not sufficient means of communication. My honourable friend Dr. Gilder mentioned that these chawls at Worli are at a distance from the mills. That depends upon what one calls a long distance or a short one. A few yards may be a long distance to one man and 3 miles may be a short distance to another. But these chawls are within a distance of about a mile and a half of a large number of mills. We were also advised to approach the Tramway Company to bring in trams nearer to this area. I need hardly say that we have not forgotten that and that has been done. I am afraid that it will not pay the Tramway Company to extend their lines in that direction and they have refused. The next suggestion is the reduction of rents. (An Honourable Member : What about the leakage ?) I am told that last monsoon there was some trouble at Worli in some chawls. (Mr. K. F. Nariman : You might not have been there to see it.) No. I was not there. But steps are being taken to remedy the defect.

Now, Sir, we come to the question of reduction of rents. Honourable members will recollect that at the last budget session I informed the House of the reduction that we were going to put into effect. The rents at Worli were being brought down to Rs. 5 per tenement. The result of these reductions is as follows. From March 1927 to 31st December 1927 our occupied tenements rose from 5,965 to 8,234. (An honourable member : For which chawls ?) That is for all chawls. (An honourable member : For Worli ?) At Worli they rose from 1,840 to 2,948.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT : Is the number in reference to tenements occupied or number of tenants ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : So many tenements occupied. But since December 1927 until the 4th February, which is the latest date I have got, there was a set-back due to the partial mill strike. Sir, as honourable members know, only a few mills were affected by the strike, and yet that has had an adverse effect upon our tenements. We have lost from the end of December 1927 to the 4th February 1928 382 tenements. That shows that a vast number of our tenants must be mill hands. It shows also what a difference it makes to us even if a small number of working men leave the city of Bombay.

The point is, is it advisable to further reduce the rents ? I would remind honourable members that the more you reduce the rents the higher will be your average cost of collection.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : (Inaudible).

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : The collection charges will go up because more tenants will come in.

Now, Sir, at DeLisle Road, Sewri and Naigaum, there is no case for a further reduction. We have got a fair number of tenements occupied, but at Worli there are a large number of empty chawls. Will a reduction in rents affect us prejudicially or will it benefit us financially ? That is a point some honourable members would like to consider. I know there are others like my honourable friends Mr. Bole and Mr. Bechar who would say : " It does not matter what loss there is : give them at Rs. 3." But my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji, and I think also my honourable friend Mr. Nariman, would turn round and say : " Oh, no : do not increase your losses." Now, Sir, let me point out that if we reduce our rent from Rs. 5 to Rs. 4 at Worli, we shall have a loss of Rs. 2,484 per month on the present occupied tenements. And in order to make up that loss we shall require 1,440 new tenements to be occupied. The question for consideration from the financial point of view is whether by a reduction of Re. 1 you are going to get 1,440 more tenements occupied. If you fail to do so, there will be a further loss.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA : I shall guarantee....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Now, Sir, there is a considerable difference of opinion as to whether rents should be reduced. The Millowners' Association has advised Government that they should reduce rents no further.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Then increase the cotton cess.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : There are honourable members in this House who are in favour of a further reduction. All I can say is that the matter is receiving our serious consideration.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : When will it end ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : It will not go on for a life-time. If we find that there is any prospect of our reducing our losses with a further reduction in rents, I think we shall be going in for a further reduction of rents. But if we find that there will be a further loss I am afraid I for one will not be in favour of a further reduction of rents.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: (Inaudible).

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Establishment will increase. Now, Sir, I am sorry that the Leader of the Nationalist Coalition Party was absent from the House when I was giving details of cost of establishment.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: (Inaudible).

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: At any rate, I cannot repeat it all over again for the benefit of my honourable friend, but if he wants them, I will give them to him. Now, Sir, I have given you such details as I could lay my hands on within the last few hours, and I trust that you will realise that after all we have a huge estate and you cannot compare the management of 207 chawls with 80 rooms each with the management of a private owner who has one chawl or two chawls.

I have also shown you that we are making every attempt to keep these chawls in a sanitary condition by employing a sanitary staff. Of course we can get rid of this sanitary staff, but if we do so, the complaints from honourable members, I feel sure, will be most serious and legitimate.

I will finally refer just to one point which has been made by my honourable friend the representative of the Millowners' Association. He asked Government to consider whether the time had not arrived when the cotton cess should be reduced. My honourable friend the Leader of the House has already explained, I think, on another occasion, during this session, that we have asked the municipality for their views in this connection as the municipality share the cotton cess with Government, and we are awaiting their opinion.

Sir, I have nothing further to say. I can only mention that if my honourable friend's motion is carrried, it will mean that we shall have no sanitary staff, no rent collectors and the chawls will have to look after themselves. (Mr. S. K. Bole: The tenants will look after them). Yes.

Question put and lost.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South): Sir, I beg to move:

"Reduce by Re. 1 Total Expenditure Rs. 26,23"

After great consideration, I have decided to move this cut on this demand, with a view to create an opportunity for a discussion of what I consider to be a very important subject.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. I have repeatedly pointed out to honourable members that they should table a cut very much bigger than Re. 1 in order to raise a more general discussion. On item after item I see that Re. 1 cut is proposed and no censure motion is honestly meant. I would, therefore, warn honourable members that they cannot raise a general discussion by Re. 1 cut.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : I do not quite understand your ruling, Sir, I would move this Re. 1 cut with the object of passing a vote of censure and to have a general discussion.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : If a Re. 1 cut is moved, it essentially means a vote of censure and censure of course must be a matter of very rare occasion. If a censure motion is moved, it is understood that it would be fought to the last, and that the censure motion should, if possible, get through successfully. But I see in this session that member after member gets up and proposesa Re.1 cut and openly declares in the beginning that he wishes to raise a general discussion only. Therefore, as I have said and as my predecessor has held that Re. 1 cut would only mean a vote of censure and for the purpose of raising a general discussion, honourable members should table a cut of not less than Rs. 100.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : If you permit me, Sir, I submit that in order to show to this House that a vote of censure is deserved I have to point out several defects in support of my argument. That is what I mean to say by raising a general discusion.

As I have stated, I consider that this discussion will be of great importance. Otherwise I would not have taken the time of this honourable House. The first point which I wish to clear at the earliest opportunity is to refute the allegations the Honourable the General Member has made with regard to this department. I consider that very serious charges are levelled against me by the Honourable the General Member. He said that an opportunity was given to me of a Court of Enquiry, but I did not avail myself of it and the result was that the department had to suffer these losses. On account of this attitude on my part of not accepting the invitation of Government, the whole department had to suffer. These are the words of my honourable friend, the General Member. (The Honourable the General Member shakes his head). I find that the Honourable the General Member shakes his head, but if he will refer to his speech, he will find having said " Mr. Nariman did not accept the offer and did not help Government in an enquiry which has resulted in heavy loss."

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I did not admit that.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : I remember these words. So, in order to clear my position, I have to state all facts to this House. I may submit, Sir, that I have never been unreasonable in my attitude so far as the Development Department is concerned. I will point out this fact to the House from the Council Debates. All along I was very reasonable . It is the Government who refused to grant an enquiry. The Honourable the General Member stated here that in the October session of 1924 I had made no allegations against the department. But I would refer him to the Council Debates of October 1924, which would controvert his statement. (At this stage the Honourable Sir Cowasji Jahangir was about to leave the hall). I find, Sir, that the Honourable the General Member leaving his seat. But I do hope that the honourable member, the

[Mr. K. F. Nariman]

Secretary of the Development Department, will take a note of what I say now.

In the first instance, I may state that the Honourable the General Member told this House that there were two resolutions on the subject —one was moved by me and the other resolution was of the honourable member, Mr. Lalji Naranji. He said that there was no difference at all between these two resolutions. He further added "Though I refused to accept the resolution of Mr. Nariman, Government accepted the resolution of Mr. Lalji Naranji, which was the same as that of Mr. Nariman." I would ask this House to decide for themselves if there is no difference between the resolutions which I shall now read for the information of the House. I wanted that an enquiry should be made into the administration of the Development Department whereas Mr. Lalji Naranji demanded in his resolution for an enquiry to be made into the future activities of the department. This will be quite clear from the perusal of these resolutions. My resolution runs thus :

"This Council recommends to Government :

(a) that a committee consisting of 12 non-official and elected members be appointed to inquire into the whole administration and working of the Development Directorate, to suggest ways and means of effecting retrenchments and to report on the advisability or otherwise of continuing the schemes taken in hand ; "

I would request this House to mark the words "whole administration of the Development Directorate." That means the past working of the administration. Further, we find :

"(b) that the Development Directorate be requested to co-operate with the said committee and afford all facilities and help in conducting the said inquiry and in making the said report ;

(c) that an independent officer or expert be appointed to help the said committee."

That is my resolution. Now I shall draw your attention to the resolution of Mr. Lalji Naranji which runs thus :

"In view of the conclusions arrived at during the period of war boom that the land available in Bombay was inadequate having proved erroneous, this Council recommends to Government that a committee, with a non-official majority, be forthwith appointed to enquire into the activities of the Development Department as to how far and in what directions such activities should be continued and as to whether that department should not be amalgamated with the Public Works Department and a considerable saving thus effected."

Now, Sir, you will find that the distinction is very clear. It really means that the one wanted an investigation into the whole administration of the department including past and the other wanted investigation as regards the future administration, whether the department should continue or not. Even in the course of that debate, myself and the then honourable the Leader of the Swaraj Party made it quite clear to the Honourable the General Member that if he will accept the suggestion of incorporating four members on the advisory committee and enlarge the scope of the resolution of Mr. Lalji Naranji, we were quite prepared to accept the committee, but he did not accept our suggestion. In the course of the debate that took place in October 1924, I had made various allegations in order that a thorough enquiry should be made. I had also challenged the Honourable the General Member of what would result by non-compliance with my resolution. I will now read here a portion of my speech which is given at page 881 of the Council Debate Vol. XIII of 1924. It is

"I should not like this committee to be called an advisory committee, because my resolution calls for an investigation into the administration of the Development Department, and, as soon as you make a particular committee an advisory body, I am sure the Honourable the General Member or the Director of Development will object to that advisory body going into the administration of the department, and say that that is not the function of the committee. If Government accept the very laudable suggestion made by the leader of the Swaraj Party that four or five members of this House should be appointed on the committee, and if the terms of my resolution are referred to that new committee. I think it would be an arrangement which would be satisfactory to both sides of the House. I do not think there should be any very serious objection to this reasonable suggestion, I am very anxious that the terms of my resolution should remain, because, if you compare the two resolutions, the resolution of Mr. Lalji Naranji and my resolution you will find that the resolution of my friend Mr. Lalji Naranji confines itself only to one point, namely, to see whether the activities of the Development Department should continue or not, whereas my resolution goes much further. I want a committee to go into the whole administration of the Development Department, such as the several public scandals that have been existing about the contracts, the establishment, the tenders, the purchase of stores, etc. I desire that all these matters should be enquired into by the representatives of this House."

That was so far back as October 1924. I had made my position absolutely clear, that I was very anxious that the advisory committee should be given the power of investigation, and if these powers were given, not only myself, but three or four other members, who were invited, would have very readily joined and conducted the investigation. And particularly, the enquiry was wanted about the contracts, establishments, tenders and purchase of stores. It certainly does not specify what each item is, but it is general enough to suggest that even at that time I had made my position clear as to what I described to be a scandal. Unfortunately, whilst giving a reply to that debate, the Honourable the General Member would not accept the suggestion and, therefore, the statement ended there. Again, when I had another occasion in March 1925, I made it again very clear and challenged the Government for an enquiry and even went further and stated that if this open challenge was not accepted, the verdict of the public would be against the Government even without an enquiry, because there were ugly rumours, and I seriously made several charges against the Development Department, including the charge of mild steel bars. In spite of that, the enquiry was not granted. And again, referring to the correspondence, I regret very much, Sir, that the Honourable the General Member referred only to a part of the correspondence, thus misleading the House. It was not right or fair to read only a portion of the correspondence and base upon that item alone the conclusion that I rejected the offer of Government for enquiry simply because a Government officer was going to be included into the committee of enquiry. I even accepted the offer to include in the committee an officer of Government—a judicial officer of Government—and I made it clear in that correspondence which was in the hands of the Honourable the General Member but which was not read. This is what I said :

"If the Government desire to associate a Government officer of high judicial attainments with the said non-official committee recommended by the Council, I for one will certainly welcome his inclusion in the said committee and if the selection of the gentleman is happy and satisfactory, I would not mind even his presiding over and guiding its deliberations or even if the Government consider a committee of 12 non-officials as unwieldy and inconvenient, the House may even accept a reduction of the number. In short, I believe any reasonable modification of the said resolution would be acceptable to the majority of the House, provided that the principle of the right of non-official elected members to investigate is admitted. Their entire exclusion from such an investigation betrays a want of confidence and trust on the part of Government in constitutionally elected representatives of the people and it is but natural that, in view of the attitude I have taken up, I could not participate in any proceedings that not only cast reflection and slur upon the House by admitting its incapacity to investigate, but also directly results in flouting a resolution of the Council passed at my own instance.

I hope I have made my position quite clear and have left no room for any deliberate misrepresentation as was indulged into in the past. I also hope the Government will accept the reasonable counter-proposals contained in this letter and take immediate steps to appoint such a committee including the said judicial officer, as I am most anxious, in the public interest and for the future safety of public funds, to have this matter thoroughly investigated and thrashed out. The Government apparently do not seem to realise and appreciate that investigation in such matters, to be effective, should be started immediately after allegations are made, otherwise in the course of time all available material and evidence may, for one reason or other, disappear and thus the investigation may be seriously hampered and prejudiced."

There, Sir, again, I made my position clear, and in referring to only a part of the correspondence the Honourable the General Member was not fair. He should have referred to this part also when I stated that I did not mind even if a judicial officer or a Government officer were presiding, provided only that non-official members were associated with that officer. Now, Sir, I ask you whether my attitude was justified or not. Was I not justified in merely asking for the association of three or four non-official members even with the Government members who might be appointed by Government to go into all these questions ? Even that suggestion was not accepted. And what was the object ? The sole object, Sir, was that no non-official member, even a representative of this House, selected by the honourable member of the Government himself, should be associated in any way with the investigation in connection with the Development Department. That was the persistent effort on the part of the Honourable the General Member, no doubt under the baneful influence of the then Director of Development ; he persistently resisted any effort on the part of any honourable member, any non-official member, to pry into the affairs of the Development Department. Now we know, Sir, why that anxiety of the Honourable the General Member to keep out non-official members from any such enquiry. It may be, Sir, that the Honourable the General Member may not have any particular reasons, but at that time I am sorry to state that he was entirely guided and controlled by the honourable member the Director of Development. He very stoutly resisted any non-official interference. That was the reason why the reasonable suggestions made by this side of the House were not accepted. Therefore, Sir, I have made my position clear, so far as the honourable members on this side are concerned, that it was not reluctance on my part to start an enquiry, whether a Government officer was a member or not. I only wanted that honourable members from this side, three or four, should be associated in the enquiry. I am glad, Sir, that the demand which was made in 1924, which was stoutly and steadily resisted, as I say, under the baneful influence of the then Director of Development and other officers,—now being removed from that influence, the Honourable the General Member has accepted the very demand which the Council made in 1924 for the appointment of a committee to enquire. He himself has nominated four members of this honourable House and has conceded the right of the House to enquire and investigate into the affairs of the Development Department.

Now, Sir, I might point out, as I stated on the last occasion, what was the reason for this resistance on the part of the Government or the Honourable the General Member to all efforts of the non-official members to pry into the affairs of the Development Department ? I have pointed out in the course of the debate the state of affairs that was prevailing, and naturally the reason for the resistance on the part of the Development Department for any non-official enquiry was that they did not want the ugly facts about the Development Department to leak out of the Development Department. There is no question now, and it has been admitted by the honourable member the representative of the Millowners' Association the other day, he complained the other day, that as a member of the advisory body they were not very fairly treated ; information conveyed to them was not quite accurate, and they had to make complaints about it. We had received complaints from other members also that not only false information was supplied to them, but information called for was not supplied, and on account of that fact some members did not continue their membership. And it is now admitted—the Director of Development himself admitted it before the Mears Committee—that it was the policy of Government at a certain stage to keep back information from the public because they thought that if the true facts were put before the public there would be a panic and a scare. These are statements made in replies given by the Director of Development himself before the Mears Committee when he admitted that some of the statements made by him in the report of the Directorate of Development were false, false to his knowledge, false deliberately, simply because the policy of Government was that the whole information should not be conveyed to the public lest there might be a panic and a scare. That is the reason why false information was given. That statement was challenged. I can point out various replies given by the Director of Development wherein he has admitted such to be the case and the Mears Committee itself has held that some of the information given by the Director was not correct.

Coming direct to the Housing question, which is the principal point now before the House, I maintain in connection with this administration also that the great percentage of wastage, the great percentage of the enhancement of the estimates was due to the corrupt practices, to the fraud and corruption that were prevailing in the department. I will point out facts and figures which cannot be controverted and which form part of the records of the Government Department itself, and I will point out in how many cases lakhs and lakhs of public funds have been wasted simply with the view to allow profiteering and favouritism to private friends in the public administration.

[Mr. K. F. Nariman]

With regard to the chawls contracts, it is to be remembered that the original programme was, as has been admitted by Government records, 625 chawls to be erected in the course of eight or nine years. As the programme was chalked out, a certain number of chawls were to be erected in each year. Now, originally it was decided that these chawls were to be constructed departmentally and some of the chawls were actually started to be constructed departmentally, and in 1920 or 1921, at some period, one sample chawl was constructed which was considered to be a departmentally designed chawl after carrying out several experiments. That chawl was formally opened by the Governor. That was to be the departmentally designed chawl, after which design the rest of the Development chawls were to be constructed. Somehow or other, shortly after that, under the advice and recommendation of the Superintending Engineer, the construction by the Department was given up and it was decided that tenders should be invited for giving on contract the construction of these chawls.

A curious phenomenon happened just at this time. When the Superintending Engineer decides to recommend that the departmental construction should cease and the construction should be carried out by contract, somehow or other, friends of this very Superintending Engineer in his various activities of life either decide to resign their positions which they were occupying or go on long leave and start new contract firms of building contractors, and start new activities shortly before tenders are to be invited. I will give a few instances and I will point out that it could not have been merely accidental or coincidental that, when it was decided to give up departmental construction of the chawls and to invite tenders, as if by a pre-arrangement, as I said before and I repeat it now with all my responsibility, that most of the contracts should go to the friends of the Superintending Engineer, no matter at what cost, whether it would cost lakhs of public funds or not. I will point out instances after instances and I challenge honourable members on the opposite side to controvert these facts, and I will point out from the very records of Government, that what I am stating is a fact. The first gentleman to resign from the post of Executive Engineer, Military Lands Scheme, at Colaba, Reclamation Development Department, was an Executive Engineer for nearly two or three years drawing Rs. 2,000. His name is Major Parselle. That gentleman admittedly was a great friend of the Superintending Engineer. As soon as it was decided or shortly before it was officially decided that the departmental construction was to cease and that the construction was to be carried on by contract, this gentleman immediately and suddenly took interest in that chawl construction. He left his work at Colaba and used to go up to Worli to see the departmental construction of chawls and it is admitted that the Superintending Engineer or the Executive Engineer used to take him round even when he was an Executive Engineer Reclamation Branch in that Department. Shortly after, in September 1922, he tenders his resignation and, in the very next month, in October 1922, he joins a firm of contractors in Bombay called the Bombay Concrete

[Mr. K. F. Nariman]

Construction Company, a few months before the tenders are to be invited. One of the conditions of his agreement with the Bombay Concrete Construction Company was that he would continue to be a member of that company only if he was able to secure contracts worth ten lakhs of rupees within a period of six months from the date of the partnership and that if he was not able to do so, his partnership was to cease. This gentleman, an absolutely new arrival in Bombay, coming from Simla, who had never done contract work before and who had been a military officer all his life, and who had been an Executive Engineer for two or three years drawing a decent salary of Rs. 2,000 a month, gives up his job and his fat salary on the mere chance of getting contract work worth ten lakhs of rupees in a strange city like Bombay within six months, and he provides the capital of three lakhs, the very capital that was wanted for the contract of Worli chawl. A curious co-incidence indeed that within the very period of next six months, i.e., in January or February, he gets a contract from his friend, the Superintending Engineer, not of ten lakhs but of eighty lakhs for 80 chawls, the largest contract in the whole Development Department, which ultimately went over a crore of rupees. This contract fell to the lot of Major Parselle within six months according to the contract which he had made with the Bombay Concrete Construction Company.

Now, Sir, I would ask whether he got this contract because the Bombay Concrete Construction Company gave the lowest tender. It is the usual procedure that tender forms are given only to those contractors who ar qualified to do the work and who have b en found, after due enquiries, to be quite satisfactory and to be able to carry out the contract work in question. Tender forms are not given to each and every contractor that asks for them but only to those who are able to do the work and who, after proper enquiry, are found to be satisfactory and capable of doing the work. In spite of that condition, the contract for 80 chawls was given to the Bombay Concrete Construction Company represented by Major Parselle although that firm was the fourth on the list and there was a difference of Rs. 13,000 per chawl between his rate and the rate of the first tenderer or the lowest tenderer. The first tenderer quoted for 80 chawls at the rate of Rs. 84,496 per chawl, the next was Rs. 88,914 and the third (a well known upcountry contractor) was Rs. 93,005, and the fourth was Major Parselle with Rs. 97,192. The difference was very large, Rs. 13,000 per chawl, making a total difference of over ten lakhs of rupees on the contract. Therefore, a subtle engineering device was resorted to. It was a very clever engineering advice. This Major Parselle was allowed to put in an alternative design, the only gentleman whose alterna ive design was accepted. One of the conditions of the alternative d sign was that there should not be any less area than the departmental design and there should not be any more cost. On that condition Major Perselle was asked to put in an alternative design, so that there might be some excuse for giving him the contract as otherwise the large difference would be likely to draw attention towards itself. Rs. 13,000 per chawl and a total of over ten lakhs of rupees was certainly a big difference because the departmental design was settled after long experiments, after great expenditure. The public had accepted it, the Government had accepted it, and still that design was allowed to be altered only by Major Parselle just in order to find some excuse under which the contract could be given to him. He did submit his tender, and I would point out from the records of the department that the alternative design was approved after the tender was accepted. That has been brought out in the course of evidence. He did submit an alternative design, on the condition that the area was the same, and on that excuse he got the contract. But even with that alternative design there was a difference of Rs. 7,000 to Rs. 8,000 between the lowest tender and this tender. Now, I would point out to the House the reason why these Worli chawls are the least popular and the least occupied. The reason is that they are the worst constructed chawls. Out of the 121 chawls, in spite of all the advertisement and the temptations held out, not more than 24 of the chawls at Worli have been filled up to-day. The reason is that the construction of these chawls was worse than that of all the rest of the chawls, because, in order to oblige this friend, Major Parselle, the Superintending Engineer removed all the supervising staff from the construction work of these chawls by Major Parselle. That is on the record....

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM: I rise to a point of order. Is this strictly relevant to the motion before this House? Was it not to give the honourable member an opportunity to prove his allegations that the Honourable the General Member has appointed a committee of investigation only the other day? Is this not merely taking up the time of the House?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member has moved a cut of one rupee as a censure motion on this demand for chawls, and therefore he is perfectly entitled and in order in going into all these details, unpleasant as they may be.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: I am glad of your ruling, Sir. I might advise honourable members on the other side that though these details are very unpleasant and very nasty, we cannot shirk them; we have got to face them. The time has come when facts have to be brought to light, however unpleasant and however nasty they may be. We have got to face them, and we cannot shirk them for ever. I quite appreciate the remarks of the honourable member who raised the point of order that this debate might probably hamper the investigation which is likely to take place. I am aware of that fact, but I know what I am about. Nobody is more anxious for the investigation that is to come about than myself, and I am not going to state such facts as are going to hamper the subsequent enquiry. The facts I am stating cannot be altered; they are committed in the court of law; they are on the records of the department, and cannot be altered.

This alternative design was accepted on the express understanding that the space area of the chawls was exactly the same as, and not less than, the departmental chawl area, and I take it that the Honourable the General Member or even the other Members of the Government, when they allowed this alternative design to prevail, it was on the express understanding that the space area, so far as the rooms and the other construction is concerned was the same as that of the departmental chawls. Now, I challenge the Government to prove that it is so. The chawls are there, Government have got their own engineers; let them go and make enquiries and see if the building area is the same. It is 319 square feet less per floor per chawl, or two-room space less per floor per chawl in the chawls constructed by Major Parselle, than the departmental chawls constructed elsewhere. I challenge the Honourable the General Member to prove to the contrary. If he is not aware of the fact so far, he can go there, have the chawls examined by his own engineers—I want honest engineers to make this enquiry—and I think he will find that the area is 319 square feet less per floor per chawl, or two-room space less per floor per chawl. If they had reduced the number of rooms to 18 instead of 20 per floor, it would have been easily detected. Any ordinary layman visiting the chawl would see that the number of rooms is less. But the number of rooms is the same, but for each room that he constructed the area is less by 2 inches from each side and 2 inches from the passages. Each room has contracted to such an extent that the total contraction comes to 319 square feet, the total space area which is less being equal to 2 rooms per floor. I hope the Honourable the General Member will accept the challenge and have this investigation made as early as possible, because after I have made these allegations, it is not likely to be altered; it is not possible to extend the area of these chawls. The plans are there, let him have them examined by his own engineers—not by our engineers—and even by looking at the plans he is bound to come to the conclusion– a conclusion which has been admitted by his own engineers in a court of law that the alternative design has given 319 square feet of area less per floor. Now, the rooms are 16 feet by 10 feet and 320 square feet is the area of two rooms. What was the result of the reduction of the space area? The result was that the cost of construction was reduced by Rs. 10,000 per chawl. That was the trick played in order to lessen the difference between the two tenders. By adopting the alternative design they made the difference between the two tenders a little lesser, as it decreased the cost by about Rs. 10,000 per chawl, and thus the chawls construction continued. As I said, this can be investigated, and I stand by my statements and I stand by the consequences of my allegations, without claiming the privileges of this House not once but half a dozen times, so far as Major Parselle is concerned. I am going to reserve several other acts of favouritism, certain misquotations of Government specifications and Government Resolutions in order to have payments made to Major Parselle under one pretext or another; enormous sums were being paid as extra items, for one reason or other, to this gentleman. So far, Sir, for the Worli chawls. I will return to the details when the Honourable Member will ask for the reward to be presented to the Superintending Engineer for his efficiency and for his good work. I will then point out his efficiency and the good work that he has done by giving specific instances of a glaring description. The next thing that happened with regard to the Worli chawls was that the contractor who had to be set aside in order to favour Major Parselle made a complaint to the Director of Development. I do not know if the complaint has reached the Honourable the General Member at all.

[Mr. K. F. Nariman]

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: In what year was it?

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: In 1923 or 1924. I think he is not aware of it. Unfortunately, the Honourable the General Member is not aware of many things, and, as I stated, even at this late stage it would not be too late for him to know something about his own department.

The other contractor who was rejected presented a complaint, wherein he stated all these facts, including the fact of this alternative design.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: You are talking of 1922.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: And he also offered a challenge. He said "Let independent engineers go and make enquiries with regard to my allegation, whether the space area is not less," but that enquiry was not undertaken; the complaint was shelved. But as a sort of compensation, or as a sort of hush compensation, if I may call it, 25 chawls which were intended to be constructed departmentally at Worli were transferred to Gaya & Co. for construction, after their plan was altered, so that further complaints may not be made by the contractor. Gaya & Co. constructed 25 chawls; although half of them were constructed departmentally, still the rest of them were transferred to Gaya & Co. Messrs. Gaya & Co. were favoured on the same principle, that the contractor had to be a friend of the Superintending Engineer in order to get contracts for the work. Gaya & Co. got it, as was practically admitted, because Mr. Vaidya, a very important officer of the department, the Deputy Secretary of the Development Department, and who was also the land acquisition officer was a friend of the Superintending Engineer. This gentleman, very shortly before it was decided to give him contracts, did not resign because he was not quite sure of his position, but went on long leave for two years.

Shortly after, Gaya and Company as contractors got the contract for 25 chawls. It has now been openly proved that by virtue of an arrangement between the Superintending Engineer supervising the work and the company that 12½ per cent. of the profit should go to the Superintending Engineer and 12½ per cent. to the contractor. That has been proved and admitted not on oral evidence but by records. Major Parselle was an engineer in the Improvement Trust and he was admittedly a friend of the Superintending Engineer and though Major Parselle was employed on the Development Department he resigned his post when tenders were invited for Sewri chawls. Here also the position is exactly the same. His tender was the fourth which he offered in the name of Ferrow Concrete Company. The three other lower tenders were rejected and the tender was given to this company with a difference of about Rs. 8,000 to Rs. 9,000 more per chawl. With regard to the Sewri chawls the lowest tender was Rs. 84,000, the next one was Rs. 86,000 and the tender of the Ferrow Concrete Company was Rs. 93,000. Therefore the lowest tender was Rs. 84,000 and highest was Rs. 93,000. The highest tender was accepted and the contract was given to Major Parselle who was favoured with payments for compensation for reduction in the number of chawls. As I referred to in the general debate this compensation was paid to the extent of Rs. 43,000 in spite of the protest of the financial adviser, although the gist of the contract was that payment should be made for the work done. No compensation was allowed under the contract. In spite of that a large sum of Rs. 42,000 and Rs. 7,000 more was paid to him shortly before the departure of both the gentlemen together in the same boat to Italy and other places. He stated in his evidence: "I recommended the payment of compensation and by a strange coincidence we happened to be in the same boat bound for various places." Various other payments have been made. It has been proved to the satisfaction of this honourable House that payments for works not done have been made, in spite of the report made by subordinate engineers, who protested against it. The subordinate engineers stated that they had seen the work and it had not been done. In spite of these objections payments were made. The most interesting company with regard to the construction of chawls was the Indian Construction Company. I should like the Honourable the General Member to throw more light on this question, because my information is not so full. There was a syndicate formed long before even Back Bay Reclamation was launched or even thought of. The syndicate consisted of influential gentlemen partly in India and partly in England. It was contemplated that the contract of the reclamation was to be given to this syndicate without inviting tenders. But it does not touch the present point. For certain reasons there was criticism in the press and the syndicate had to be broken up. In the formation of this syndicate some initial expenditure had to be incurred. As the reclamation contract was not available the syndicate formed the Indian Contract Company to recoup their initial expenditure. This company which was supposed to have expert American engineers was given the contract for the DeLisle Road chawls. As in the case of the Ferrow Concrete Company which was given the contract for the highest tender to favour Major Parselle, so also in this case Government refused the lowest tender and gave the contract to the Indian Construction Company. There was systematic and regular corruption and I do not wish to go into the details as the House has got a claim to discuss these matters. In this way lakhs and lakhs of rupees have been wasted. Without any exaggeration I state this, because the Honourable the General Member will gloss over it by saying that I am in the habit of exaggerating. I may point out that the contract for Rs. 35,000 was raised to Rs. 44,000 simply because particular individuals were admittedly friends of the Superintending Engineer, colleagues in the same department, in order that they may be allowed profiteering. My submission to this honourable House is this. When we start with the discussion we must find out the reasons for this abnormal increase over the original estimates of chawl construction, which is after all a simple construction. You cannot shut your eyes to these facts. These facts will come out sooner or later. You cannot scare away agitators by your police courts. Somehow or other these facts will come to light. That was the reason why you evaded an enquiry, as these facts would come out and it would be detrimental to your interests. The Honourable the General Member has been led to take that attitude by the interested men in the department, which he might not have taken otherwise. A demand from the public for a non-official enquiry was persistently resisted. For what reason ? Because these facts are such that no department would like to be dived into by anybody outside the department. That is the reason why a non-official enquiry was evaded for so many years. Now, the facts are known. But most of the officers have gone and most of the contractors are gone. Now, the Honourable the General Member with a generous gesture comes to appoint a committee to enquire. When the opportunity was given he did not think of holding such an enquiry. Now, he has lost that opportunity. Now, he has appointed a committee. No matter howsoever late with the materials we have in our possession we will bring out as much truth as we can in spite of the obstacles we may have in the way. I have detained the House for a longer time than I wished, because I was anxious to place all these facts before my honourable colleagues in the House.

Question proposed.

(After recess)

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD (Poona City) : Sir, I support the motion. Impotent as we are we cannot do anything more. If all the facts stated by my honourable friend Mr. Nariman were true—they must be assumed to be true because they have been proved, so to say, in a court of law—in any other country all the officers directly or indirectly concerned would have been brought to book. Here constitutionally we cannot do anything more beyond a vote of censure. This Development Scheme has been a white elephant not only to the finances of this presidency but also to the proceedings of this Council. We have got twelve days allotted for discussing the demands for grants, and out of those twelve days we have spent about eight or nine days over the single item of the Development Scheme, and I do not know how long we may have to devote our time and attention to this item. From the very beginning Government have committed blunders after blunders, and the crowning blunder was the prosecution of the honourable member Mr. Nariman. Now, these schemes, Sir, are not a financial success ; they cannot be expected to be a financial success ; nobody ever anticipates that they will be financially successful,—because these schemes are intended primarily for ameliorating the condition and adding to the comforts of the poor labouring classes—and nobody expects that they will return 6, 5 or 4 per cent. A man who expects such a return will never go in for houses. My experience is that a Marwadi never purchases a house ; he may have one hundred thousand houses in mortgage, but he never purchases a single house. The reason is quite obvious: money invested in the purchase of immoveable property cannot be expected to give a return of 4, 5 or 6 per cent. Of all landlords Government is the worst landlord, because Government labours under all the disadvantages of a private landlord and has none of the advantages of a private landlord. If private persons cannot expect such housing schemes to be financially successful, much less can we expect Government to be financially successful with such schemes. But we have a right to expect of Government that they will be honest. But in this case we find from the beginning that the Government officers who have had any hand in the carrying out of the scheme have not behaved quite honestly. What about this Gaya and Co; Major Parselle, Vaidya, and a thousand and other things? I can understand Government spending honestly for the Development Scheme. Nobody would have blamed Government if the scheme had not been financially successful. But when we find that all these moneys have not only been spent but misspent, I think Government owe a responsibility to this House and to the public. We have, Sir, to pay not only for the money used for ameliorating the condition of the poor and the oppressed, but also the money which has found its place in the pockets of the officers who have had to do with this Department. Lakhs and lakhs have been spent. Now, the whole scheme may have cost about two or three crores. I am not much concerned with that question. Assuming all the chawls at the disposal of Government are fully occupied, the return will be 12 lakhs. Out of that we have to spend 2 to 3 lakhs for paying municipal taxes and in addition charges of managment and supervision. In short, the net income of these chawls, assuming for the sake of argument that all are fully occupied, will be only about 7 lakhs. Now, we find that we have to pay by way of interest 21 lakhs every year. My principal objection is, when all these moneys were being spent, when Government came to know that there were ugly rumours, they did not proceed in a straightforward manner. They ought to have brought to book the persons concerned. Not only did they not bring to book those persons who were concerned in this ugly affair, but the highest officer in charge of the department played into the hands of the subordinate officers. If we take the words of the honourable member Mr. Nariman to be correct—and there is no reason why we should not take them to be correct—he was refused an enquiry. And as I have already said, the crowning blunder was the order given to prosecute the honourable member Mr. Nariman. That is the last thing he should have done. Certain definite allegations were made against the officers of the Department. If I had been in his place I would have myself prosecuted those persons or at any rate I would have told them to get their character cleared. But Government have all along not only blundered, but acted half-heartedly. They have been neither fair to the officers nor equitable either to the public or to themselves. They ought to have prosecuted the officers or asked them to get their character cleared. They did not do either. They spent the money for the prosecution of Mr. Nariman. When the demand comes before the House I am going to state that they acted ultra vires and illegally. Government had only a choice between two alternatives. They could themselves have prosecuted or they could have left the officer to get his character cleared. They had no third alternative. They arranged that they would bear the cost and if the officer was successful then they would remit the cost.

[Mr. N. B. Chandrachud]

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That demand is not before the House at present.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD : That is not before the House, but I refer to it to show how they have committed blunders after blunders, how public money has been wantonly wasted, how they have not brought to book the persons concerned in this. As I have already said, the only thing we can do constitutionally, impotent as we are, is to move a vote of censure, and I believe Government richly deserves it.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM (Bombay Chamber of Commerce) : Sir, the honourable member from Bombay South who knows me well enough (for we are not strangers either in this House or elsewhere) to realize that no insinuations of his that I am anxious to avoid the terrible revelation which he is making will turn me from saying what is in my mind. I certainly agree with the previous speaker (Mr. Chandrachud) that the House should pass a vote of censure for having its time wasted over this subject, but I suggest that it should be directed not against the Government front bench, but against the honourable member who has moved this cut. He is, to my mind, quite inconsistantly taking up the time of the House. Only the other day he moved a vote of censure, and there was a heated debate over that motion. In the end Government conceded what he wanted, that is a committee, and the motion was dropped. I submit that it was exactly for the purpose of enquiring into these allegations which the honourable member has again been making to-day that this committee was appointed and that the committee is the proper body to examine them. In the circumstances it is not consistent that he should move this vote of censure again to-day on the same subject. If he had been sincere in his desire to pass it he should not have withdrawn his previous motion the other day. Personally I think his conduct is quite inconsistent and instead of this vote of censure being moved against Government, I think it should be moved against him.

Now, Sir, I am not concerned to defend Government. Government's back is broad and they can very well look after themselves.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : You are the supporter of Government.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM : That is entirely uncalled for. Government may fight or Government may compromise. I am not concerned. As far as I am concerned, I protest against the attitude of the honourable member who brings these allegations before this House in season and out of season allowed, if I may say so, Sir, by yourself. I submit, Sir, that in all fairness to this honourable House, the honourable mover should not take the time of this House, but he should take those allegations before the committee which has been recently appointed. One more point which I wish to emphasise is this. I do not know how this discussion raised by the honourable the mover of this cut has anything to do either with the past or with the coming year's budget. All his so-called facts seem to me to relate to a time much previous and I can only come to the conclusion either that the honourable member has his tongue in his cheek and is not sincere in his desire to pass this vote of censure or he is actuated by some motive which is not apparent.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: I want to expose certain facts.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM: If my honourable friend wants to expose certain facts he should do so in the proper place. Honourable members should beware of being led away by the magic of the honourable mover's oratory into thinking that this is a good stick with which to beat Government. By all means let us beat Government when we have a good case, but let us beware of attempting to do so when like the present we have no case, as we should only weaken our position on some future occasion.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. One thing I am forced to refer to. The last speaker (Mr. Winterbotham) in an indirect way has referred, or rather in other words, criticised my ruling on his point of order. I do admit that there is a good deal of repetition of the debate we had had on the Development Department. But I have allowed the honourable member to move this motion. I can differentiate between this and the last motion on which he spoke the other day. On his last motion he obtained a committee which would enquire into the various cases of corruption. While this is a censure motion against the department and Government, because, as I understand from him, of their neglect of responsibility. So, there is a distinction between the two. In moving this motion, he, of course, has had to repeat many of the arguments that he has used before, but that could not be helped. I think the honourable member was perfectly right, as I held, in moving the cut.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South): Sir, on the point of explanation. The honourable member, who spoke last (Mr. Winterbotham) seems to have not been present at the time of the last debate. There is no inconsistency on my part. He should know that the last cut was moved by my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan and was not moved by me. I, therefore, say that he was absolutely wrong when he said that I was inconsistent in moving this motion.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM: If the honourable member desires to get this motion passed, let him take this vote of censure to division.

Mr. R. D. BELL: Sir, after the remarks of the honourable member who spoke last, I intend to be very brief. I desire only to make one main point and give two illustrations. The honourable the mover of this cut has dealt with, at some length, a great many allegations with regard to giving contracts for Development Department chawls.

[Mr. R. D. Bell]

I submit, Sir, that most of these allegations were dealt with and brought forward by the honourable the mover of this motion before the second Presidency Magistrate.

It is, therefore, entirely out of place for the honourable mover to come forward now and state in this House that this contract, that contract, and the other contract were pre-arranged. That word he used more than once, that these contracts were "pre-arranged" between the contractors and the Superintending Engineer. I have read the judgment of the court several times and, at all events, as regards the honesty of the Superintending Engineer, he has obtained complete exoneration by the magistrate. I, therefore, think, Sir, that it is a waste of time for these allegations to be repeated in this House on this occasion. To illustrate to the House the real nature of these allegations, I shall deal with only two. The first one is the allegation that, when tenders were invited for the construction of a large number of chawls at Worli and Naigaum, Major Parselle was the only contractor who was permitted or who was invited to submit alternative designs.....

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: His alternative design was accepted.

Mr. R. D. BELL: I think, Sir, the honourable member said that Major Parselle was the only contractor who had been invited to submit an alternative design. The statement now appears to be that he was the only contractor whose alternative design was accepted. Is it suggested that any other contractor submitted any alternative design?

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: I suggested that his alternative design was accepted, and I adhere to that statement.

Mr. R. D. BELL: The suggestion then, Sir, was,—it was a suggestion, not a statement,—that Major Parselle had been unduly favoured in this respect. In the general instructions to tendering contractors and the conditions of contract which were issued when these tenders were called for, condition No. 3, which should be acted upon by any contractor, was as follows:

"Should contractors have any chawl structural proposals to put forward which, although not reducing the strength of the structure, would decrease the cost, they are at liberty to do so as alternatives to the present design. In this connection, however, the room dimensions, general lay-out of rooms and general exterior appearance must not be altered materially."

I was not aware that the suggestion was that other contractors had submitted alternative designs. But I am bound to say that, as far as I can see from the records, other contractors did not submit alternative designs. On the other hand, I have a clear recollection that in the proceedings in court one of the matters which were made clear was that a gentleman, who was at one time an honourable member of this House, wrote to the Director requesting that one alternative design which had been submitted by a contractor, presumably Major Parselle's firm, should be made available for all contractors in order to enable them to submit alternative tenders on this alternative design. The Director, as a matter of fact, refused to disclose an alternative design which was presumably the result of special knowledge and experience of the firm which submitted

[Mr. R. D. Bell]

it. The other matter which I desire to explain, again merely as an illustration of the way in which these allegations are needlessly repeated time and again, is with reference to the compensations paid to the firm of contractors which erected the chawls at Sewri. It was originally intended to construct 16 chawls at Sewri and in the advertisement calling for tenders that number of 16 chawls was specifically mentioned and tenders were called for on that basis. One of the tenders was accepted and the contract was given on a K-2 Form. There are only three conditions on K-2 Form. It is a form of contract which is intended for simple piece-work like earth work rather than anything in the nature of structural operations. But engineers of the Public Works Department like the form because itgives them complete control over the contractor. There are three simple conditions. One of these conditions, the third, reads as follows :

"The Executive Engineer may put an end to this agreement at his option at any time."

That is the beginning of the condition. In building the chawls the usual procedure has been that the foundations of one chawl are begun, and after these are completed and the work is going on on the ground floor, the foundations of the second chawl are begun, and so on, until a series of chawls are in various stages of construction. When the operations had reached about the twelfth chawl, the Superintending Engineer came to myself and explained that there was the possibility of some difficulty in completing the last four chawls at Sewri. These four chawls were very close to a hill which was on Port Trust land and which, when the arrangements were made with the Port Trust, they intended to remove by blasting. The Port Trust had not carried out the removal of the hill, for reasons which need not concern this House, and the Executive Engineer was doubtful, in the first place, whether it was a sound proposition to allow the chawls to be built with the possibility of the hill being removed afterwards by blasting and probably damage being caused to the structures. It was not impossible to proceed with the structural operations, but the Superintending Engineer consulted me as to what I thought would be the attitude of Government towards the curtailment of the programme at Sewri. Well, by this time it was realised that there was going to be, for many years, a very much larger number of chawls than could be inhabited, and I, on my own responsibility, told the Superintending Engineer that I thought that Government would be prepared to consider proposals for reducing the programme at Sewri, provided, of course, the terms were reasonable. The Superintending Engineer thereupon submitted proposals that the programme at Sewri should be stopped at twelve chawls, and that the contractors should be paid compensation for the limitation of their contract. Now, the question arose here as to what the legal rights might be under the K-2 contract, which gave the Executive Engineer or the officer who gave out the contract the option of terminating the contract at any time. This matter has been discussed in another connection and Government have taken the attitude that, whatever may be their legal rights under the K-2 Form, they are prepared to settle matters with contractors on a reasonable basis. Legally, it may be said—I do not know whether my legal opinion is correct or not—that the Government can terminate a K-2 contract at any time. If that is so, then as soon as a contractor has collected his staff, his materials, his plant and as soon as he has started operations, legally it appears that Government can terminate the contract and pay no compensation. That, I am sure, honourable members will all agree, would be perfectly inequitable. Therefore, the termination of the Sewri contract was discussed on the basis that the contractors had an equitable claim. Government had advertised for tenders for 16 chawls and the contractors who had tendered—the successful and the unsuccessful contractors had tendered on the assumption that certain overhead charges would be spread over the 16 chawls. These overhead charges were the centerings, the supervising staff, water tanks, pumping engines and such like. The honourable mover of this cut has stated that the Financial Adviser was entirely opposed to the grant of any compensation. That is quite inaccurate. The honourable mover of the cut has a certain amount of inaccurate information about the attitude of.....

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: The Deputy Financial Adviser.

Mr. R. D. BELL: As he says just now, of the Deputy Financial Adviser's opinion on these matters. I may explain in the first instance to the House that in the Finance Department it is more or less the traditional duty of a Deputy Secretary or Deputy Financial Adviser to take the most adverse view of any claim for money or expenditure which an administrative department may put forward. A claim of this kind first comes to the Finance Department, whose concurrence is required. In examining that claim, it is the traditional duty of the Deputy to take the most adverse view of the claim. Then it is left to the Secretary to pronounce a quasi-judicial opinion on the conflicting opinions of the administrative department and his Deputy. Apart from that position, the Deputy Financial Adviser or the Deputy Secretary to the Finance Department is neither the Finance Department itself nor is he Government. In this case the Deputy Financial Adviser did set forth all the points which could be mentioned against the grant of any compensation. In particular, he raised the legal position. The Financial Adviser considered his Deputy's criticisms and advice and concurred in the recommendation of the Development Department that the amount of compensation recommended was, in the first instance, reasonable. But I should like to point out that even if the Finance Department had not concurred, the decision ultimately lies with Government itself and whatever the subordinate officers may say in these matters, the responsibility for the ultimate decision lies with Government. Because the Deputy Financial Adviser in this case set forth certain reasons on one side of the case, there was absolutely no reason whatever for the honourable mover of the cut or any other honourable member of this House to conclude that, because Government followed the advice of the Financial Adviser and not that of his Deputy, some over-generous treatment had been meted out to the contractor.

[Mr. R. D. Bell]

These are the only two illustrations I want to give. I think they are sufficient to show the nature of a great deal of material which the honourable member who moves this cut has presented, not for the first occasion, in this House and elsewhere.

If there were time, many more matters could be dealt with in similar detail but on a broad view, I submit, Sir, that the general allegation of "pre-arrangements between this officer and that contractor" has now been settled, I hope once for all, in the magistrate's court.

Mr. D. A. JANVEKAR (Southern Division): What about the shortness of the area which has been brought to notice by my honourable friend Mr. Nariman, that 319 feet is less than the area. .....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I think the Honourable the General Member will deal with all the points raised by the honourable member Mr. Nariman.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: I move the closure, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I accept it.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South): Sir, there is hardly anything in the debate to reply to. I am not surprised at the suggestion made to the House by the honourable member, Mr. Winterbotham, that instead of passing a vote of censure against the Development Department, they should pass a vote of censure against the mover of the motion, but as I stated then and I repeat again now that if this House is not the place for discussion of these matters, then I do appeal to the non-official side of the House and not the other side, as to what other place there is where these matters can be mentioned and ventilated. .....

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM: The special committee that has been appointed.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: I am afraid then that my honourable friend has completely misunderstood the function of this House when he says that this House is not the place to discuss a matter of such supreme importance to the public of the whole presidency. If a certain section of this House is not prepared to undergo the pain of listening to the ugly disclosures that are made on the floor of this House, I would ask them to leave the Chamber for the time being, but let me assure them that just to please them we cannot be debarred from doing our duty. They may move a vote of censure against me, I for one would consider a vote of censure passed against me while in the discharge of my duty to the public in no other light than that of a compliment. But certainly on that account I am not going to give up my right as an honourable member of this House to discuss matters of this kind on the floor of this House.

Now, coming to the merits, I regret very much that I am disappointed in my hopes. I had expected to get definite explanations from the honourable member, the Secretary to the Development Department.

[Mr. K. F. Nariman]

If not I, the House at least was entitled to definite explanations because I know that details of this description are more within the immediate knowledge of the honourable member, the Secretary to the Department, than within the knowledge of the Honourable the General Member. I know that all through this period it was he who was very closely connected, it was he before whom all these matters used to be brought up directly because for most of the period he was either the Secretary of the Department or the Acting Director of the Development Department. But he simply brushed aside the whole argument. He did not touch one important point of this grave scandal. He did not tell the House how friends of the Superintending Engineer came to resign their posts, how they took up contract work at admittedly more favourable rates than the rates given to other contractors. I did expect some sort of a definite explanation from him. As he has not given any, the only legitimate conclusion that can be drawn from it is that there is no explanation that he can give. If there was any, this was the occasion on which to give it to the House. Probably he thinks that the mover of the cut has a right to explain further facts and that probably he reserves the explanations for the Honourable the General Member. The Honourable the General Member is however in as helpless a position as the mover because, I do admit, the Honourable the General Member, though he is responsible to this House for what is happening in his department, has an executive head under him, namely, the honourable member, the Secretary to the Development Department. In this particular case, he has failed to give any explanation with regard to all the definite statements ; I will not describe them as charges for the present, but I do say that they were definite statements made by me, and I could not be more definite than that. But he has not touched a single point. He has touched upon one or two points about the compensation to the Ferro-Concrete Company. Since he has touched only that point, it becomes necessary for me to explain and to go into details with regard to this claim. The fact that the area available for building was only enough for 12 chawls, and that there was not enough space available for all the chawls was known to the Superintending Engineer when he called for tenders. This is one of the objections raised by the Deputy Financial Adviser, that when space was available only for 12 chawls tenders were called for 16 chawls ; the rest of the plots were to be obtained afterwards. It was known that the further 4 chawls were to be curtailed. But the most curious part of it is that it is not the contractor who puts in that claim in the first instance. He does not put in his claim that he is entitled to compensation because the construction of 4 chawls has been abandoned. It is the Superintending Engineer who sends a memorandum to the contractor to remind him to put in his claim. There are letters of the Superintending Engineer on the record, if the Honourable Member cares to refer to them. The Superintending Engineer first moves in the matter ; instead of resisting the claim from the contractor, he is the first to move in the matter. In accordance with the wishes of the Superintending Engineer, naturally which contractor would not submit a claim in response to such generous wishes? So he puts in a claim for Rs. 40,000. That matter was being investigated; the subordinate officers reported against it; for 8 months from that date the matter rests. Evidently, it must have been thought that the claim was negatived on the reports of the subordinate officers. The Executive Engineer reported that he is not entitled to compensation; he proved that some of the items which the contractor had put in were bogus items, and that he was not entitled to compensation. For 8 months afterwards the matter rested there. Then the time came for the Superintending Engineer to go on leave to England, and again, before going on leave, he revived the matter by sending a fresh memorandum to the contractor asking him again to revive his claim. It was a very urgent memorandum saying "Put in your claim; I want to settle your claim before I go on leave." The claim was thus revived after 8 months, and this time the contractor put in a claim not for Rs. 40,000, but for Rs. 54,000. It was the same matter, but the claim was enhanced by Rs. 14,000. It was very willingly sent to the Superintending Engineer, and the Superintending Engineer with very grave regard for the expenditure of public money conceded the claim. As I said, I do not want to go into the details of the correspondence, but honourable members on reading through it, even the Honourable the General on reading through the correspondence, will see that it was the Superintending Engineer who was more anxious about the claims of the contractors than the contractors themselves, and if the Superintending Engineer had not moved in the matter, the contractor would have had no desire whatever to move in the matter at all. In this way the whole thing is settled, although against the law. He admitted that in law the contractor was not entitled to it, but in point of equity he should get it. That was the point touched upon by the Deputy Financial Adviser. He said that the contractors were not ignorant, they were not illiterate, they knew what they were about, and there was nothing in law or equity to justify the claim. But what surprises me most in this matter is this. I could understand the contractors putting in all sorts of claims, but there is not a single claim of this description—there were many of them—which has been turned down. They were all simply passed by the Superintending Engineer without the slightest opposition. This is what surprises me most. He says that the Deputy Financial Adviser is not the Government. The report of his own subordinate officers goes against him, but he criticises them. He says that the Deputy Financial Adviser is in the habit of taking the most adverse view and rejecting the claims. I know, Sir, that the Deputy Financial Adviser was not the Government, neither the Secretary of the Department was the Government, neither the Honourable the General Member was the Government, nor so far as the Development Department was concerned, the Cabinet was the Government. Sir Lawless Hepper was the Government so far as the Development Department was concerned. I am prepared to prove that Sir Lawless Hepper, simply and individually was the Government; he bossed over the whole show, whatever other figure-heads

[Mr. K. F. Nariman]

there may be for the purpose of explaining matters in the Council. I do maintain that he was the Government as far as the Development Department is concerned, but unfortunately he is not present here, and from him I had a right to demand an explanation ; and the fact that I have not gone into further details is because the real officer from whom the House had a right to demand an explanation is not before us. That is why the sting of the opposition is lost.

As I stated, there is hardly anything to reply to, because the points that have been raised have not been refuted. Naturally, all of us did want to know something more about the very serious matter which I have referred to. The honourable member the Secretary of the Department read out the condition on which the alternative design was permitted ; it was that there should be no lessening of the space. That is the condition which he read out just now. I have stated, and I repeat, that that condition was not fulfilled, and as soon as that condition was not fulfilled, the alternative design ought to have been thrown into the wastepaper basket, because the primary condition of that design was not complied with. A mere comparison of the two plans would have shown the Superintending Engineer that the area was not equal. But that point has not been touched at all by the Secretary of the Department. It cannot be touched ; it is not a matter which the Secretary can explain away, because it is a matter which can be verified by the Government's own engineers. After this statement, I hope that the Honourable the General Member will take action even though it is so late in the day, by looking at the chawls. With these few words I hope the House will consider that a fit case has been made out for this cut.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Sir, while asking the House to accept his cut of one rupee, my honourable friend Mr. Nariman put some words into my mouth which I did not utter. He said that I had stated in this House on some other occasion that had he (Mr. Nariman) accepted our offer, the loss to the department would have been less. I did not say anything of the sort. I did not say that any revelations that the honourable member may have made would have reduced the loss. What I did say was that the honourable member was given every opportunity of bringing the allegations of corruption to the notice of Government, and the honourable member deliberately evaded every opportunity given to him. I confirm every word of what I said, and I am in a position to repeat it just now, and to prove that the honourable member did evade every opportunity given to him to bring his allegations to the notice of Government to enable Government to bring such officers to book as the honourable member may be able to prove to be corrupt. We could do no more than beg of the honourable member, and we actually begged of him, and for proof of that I have read out to this House my speech in this Council when the honourable member first made his allegations of corruption, and I will again read out the few lines that I spoke on that occasion ; the honourable member, on this occasion, has deliberately charged Government with not having appointed a committee to investigate his allegations of corruption, because Government desired to shield their officers. The allegation he makes that Government desire to shield their officers is so incorrect that I take the liberty of reading out again what I said. This is in answer to the honourable member when he first made his allegations :

" I ask my honourable friend, in the interests of Government, in the interests of the opposite benches, to give one name to me privately, if not publicly, and I promise him that I will give him every assistance, and I feel sure that my honourable friend sitting behind me (Sir Lawless Hepper) will also give him every assistance to try and prove any allegations, not only in public, not only before this House, but even privately. I am prepared to say that I will take such action as will give him satisfaction, provided he proves his allegations."

For one and a half months we did not hear anything from Mr. Nariman (Interruption) It is quite incorrect. No contractor came to see me. The only time when contractors came to see me was at the time when an allegation was made that they were not allowed to go into the room of the chief engineer when he was opening certain tenders. It was in 1926. I took immediate action and disposed of those tenders myself. There was no allegation at that time that any contractor was shown any favourable treatment. I have stated these facts before this honourable House on a former occasion. The only honourable member of this House who came to me with a frank statement of facts was the honourable member Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee, and certainly not the honourable member Mr. Nariman. The honourable member Mr. Nariman would not come forward. We offered to appoint a judicial officer of high legal attainments to investigate any allegations he made. But his answer was " appoint a committee." Our reply was that it was far better to have a single judicial officer than a committee to investigate the matter. I now ask this honourable House whether that attitude of Government was not correct. Is it not better to appoint one judicial officer to go privately into the cases of corruption so that Government could straightaway prosecute the officers who were guilty ? Or would it have been better to have an investigation by several laymen and then ask Government to proceed and take action ? What was the result ? The honourable member Mr. Nariman refused and gave his reasons for his refusal to co-operate with a judicial officer of high legal attainments. Now, he comes forward and says that no opportunity was given. We did all we could. When the honourable member Mr. Nariman would not take advantage of the opportunity given to him what could Government do ? I have given the House the reasons for the honourable member Mr. Nariman's refusal. I did not read out his letter, but I summarised it to the best of my ability. At any rate there was no desire on my part to withhold any correspondence that might have passed between us and the honourable member. As a matter of fact the correspondence was printed and circulated for the information of the public. After all these facts, I do not understand how the honourable member Mr. Nariman can go on maintaining that he did not get an opportunity. He was given every opportunity. It was only when absolutely forced to prove these allegations by Government who desired to find out the truth as to whether their officers were guilty of corruption that he attempted to do so.

[Sir Cowasji Jehangir]

Now, Sir, Mr. Nariman has repeated several of his allegations of favouritism to contractors, especially with regard to two contractors. He has stated that he expected a reply from my honourable friend the Secretary to each one of those allegations, because my honourable friend the Secretary was dealing with those cases. I do not think he was quite correct, except in one case, because all these cases of alleged corruption did not take place in our time. As to the allegations with regard to Major Parselle the contract took place before our time. Whether the contracts were given before our time or in our time we are supposed to be responsible for all contracts. At any rate I do not wish to shirk my responsibility as a Member of Government nor am I willing to let off any officer of Government whether he be proved to be corrupt in my time or before my time, because it is the same to me. If an officer is found to be corrupt, I will not plead that he was before my time. Government are most anxious to see that officers who were corrupt 10 years ago, 8 years ago, 6 years ago are brought to book. We are not going to shirk our responsibility. My honourable friend accuses the Secretary for not having first-hand information. He is not correct in saying so. The Secretary can give information from records but he cannot imagine things which happened when he was not here. The Sewri compensation case is a very simple one. A contract for 16 chawls was given and the land was provided by the Port Trust. In a portion of the land there was a hillock, which the Port Trust undertook to level by blasting, in order that four chawls might be constructed there. The first 12 chawls were under construction. At a later date there were some doubts as to whether it would be advisable to blast the hillock when chawls were under construction. By that time we decided to have only 12 chawls instead of 16 chawls. As has been explained by the Secretary the Superintending Engineer approached him and asked whether Government were anxious to have all the 16 chawls by blasting the hillock or whether they would give up four chawls. Government stated, as the Secretary informed the House, that they would be willing to give up four more chawls. There was a question as to how that could be done and the contractors claimed damages. I looked at all those papers most carefully then. It was a pure and simple question of equity. You have given a contract for 16 chawls; you have stated in the K-2 form that 16 chawls will have to be constructed; you come to the conclusion, for one reason or another it may be, that the land is not available or the Port Trust will not place it at your disposal,—that Government do not require 16 chawls; but the contractor has brought the imaterial to the site on the assurance that 16 chawls will be required and he has incurred some expenses and overhead charges. There is a clause in the contract that Government can stop the work; that is the K-2 form. If contractors really believed that Government would stop the work at any time and they would take advantage of the clause in that K-2 form, that K-2 form would not be in existence to-day. It has been understood in the past, and it will be understood in the future, that even under K-2 form Government will take an equitable view of the matter. The compensation was not based on any profits that the contractor might make on the 4 chawls, but on the losses that he did suffer on account of the change of programme, and that compensation was sanctioned by Government.

My honourable friend Mr. Nariman stated some further facts in his reply, of which I only heard when I read of them in the newspapers. If those facts are correct they must only appear in some other file in the Superintending Engineer's office; they were certainly not in the files of Government. I have given facts about Sewri to this honourable House from personal knowledge. As for the other facts I am quite prepared to give honourable members all facts that are available from the records. But they cannot then turn round and accuse us that those facts must be first hand; they cannot be first hand and they can only be from the records.

Now, Sir, a specific question was asked just now about those chawls that were constructed in 1922 at Worli which are now stated to be less in measurement than the plans and estimates. That is the allegation; is it not? Well, to tell you the truth, I do not remember having read that allegation even in the newspapers. I presume my honourable friend Mr. Nariman brought these facts to the notice of the Magistrate.....

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: Yes and it was admitted by the officer himself.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: At any rate it has escaped my notice and it has escaped the notice of my honourable friend the Secretary. If this debate had lasted till to-morrow those chawls could have been measured by to-morrow morning. But it is impossible to get them measured just now. But I promise to get them measured.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: Even the plans for both designs can show the difference.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Instructions have already been issued that the chawls constructed by Major Parselle in 1922 should be measured to see how far there is truth in that allegation.

There is just one point more. My honourable friend Mr. Nariman suggested that Government gave in and appointed a committee to investigate into the administration of the Department rather late in the day. May I remind him, Sir, that Government have accepted no committee to go into the administration of the Department. The only idea with which we have accepted a committee—it was made perfectly clear by me when accepting the committee and cleared up again in another debate and I will clear it up again a third time—the only idea is to enable my honourable friend who will serve on that committee to furnish Government with further allegations of corruption. My honourable friend knows very well indeed why I make this request to my honourable friend. As my honourable friend was rather reluctant to go into the details, I have also to be reluctant, because it may do harm to the interests of both the opposite benches and of ourselves. Therefore, this committee was appointed to enable Government to be informed of all allegations of corruption that may have been brought forward by my honourable friend Mr. Nariman in the Harvey-Nariman case.....

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: The committee to assist in the investigation and not merely to give information.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR:..... and to advise Government as to what steps should be taken on such allegations. Now, Sir, that is the scope of the committee.....

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Does the Honourable Member say that charges which were not brought out in that case will not be within the scope of the committee?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I say those allegations which were made in the course of that case and any allegations which honourable members may have to bring forward and which Government can investigate. (An honourable member: Allegations of corrupt practices?) Yes, only allegations of corrupt practices. As a matter of fact even before this debate I intended to appeal to my honourable friend Mr. Nariman to give me some instances, because I very well knew that without his assistance we could bring no officer of the Department to book, as it is not easy to find evidence of corruption and those who have given bribes are not likely to come and admit it either to me or to any officer of Government; they will only admit it to a person like my honourable friend Mr. Nariman. And therefore it is only just and right that my honourable friend Mr. Nariman, after all the trouble he has taken, should volunteer his services and assist Government only for this one object, namely to find out who was really corrupt, and to supply us with such evidence—if he fails nobody will blame him; I would not; nobody in this House will blame him; but we shall give him every opportunity; we shall give him every assistance—to give such evidence of corruption that will enable Government to take another step forward.

Now, Sir, these are the only matters that I desire to allude to in replying to this debate. I think I have made matters perfectly clear, and I trust we shall not hear again of allegations that Government did not give the honourable member Mr. Nariman an opportunity of bringing allegations of corruption to their notice, even from the day; he first made such allegations.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: On a point of information, Sir, if you will permit me. I want to make the position clear. We distinctly understood the Honourable the General Member, when he accepted the committee, to say that the committee was to assist Government in the investigation.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: In the investigation of what?

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: In the investigation into the allegations; now, I understand the Honourable the General Member to say that the function of the committee is merely to give information to the Government. These are two distinct things.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Whatever the Honourable the General Member said the other day has been recorded, and the honourable member has a right to look into that, and if he finds that what he said has not been recorded he can bring it to my notice. Otherwise, what is recorded will be the final record.

Question put and declared lost.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Sir, I claim a division (Honourable Members: No, no.)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I want to know definitely whether a division is seriously claimed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: I do claim it, Sir.

[Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan]

Question put that the whole demand of Rs. 3,78,000 on 42, Bombay Development Scheme be granted, and carried.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Sir, I move for a grant of Rs. 1,42,94,000 under 41, Civil Works, partly reserved, partly transferred.

Question proposed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, I move.

"That the total demand for 41-Civil Works be reduced by Rs. 10,00,000."

Sir, we have been talking of financial stringency, and on each occasion whenever we require Government to do something that would be necessary for the people, the financial stringency is an argument which is given by the Government Members. Sir, here it is possible for the budget being cut down by Rs. 10,00,000, because there are many new items which are not absolutely necessary and which need not be taken in hand in the current year. As for example, we have, say, the first item of Rs. 50,000 which is to be spent in work for Government Houses. Now, that is an expenditure which can very well be omitted. Then, there is another item, for a new mamlatdar's kacheri at Amalner, Rs. 40,000. That item can very well be omitted, when it is a case of financial stringency. Then, construction of quarters for menials at the St. Georges' Hospital, Rs. 35,300. That is a new item and that can stand over in the current year. The construction of a new block for better class male patients at the Central Mental Hospital, Rs. 20,700, is a new item, and of course, such an item should not be taken up. Government ought not to differentiate between better class, first class, and other patients. They should provide general accommodation for all insane patients, and where special accommodation is needed, that should be provided by the parties concerned. Then, improvements to the Infectious Diseases Hospital, item 11. That is also a new item. In this way, if new items are not taken up, then there will be a saving of Rs. 10,00,000.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Will the honourable member point out new works worth Rs. 10,00,000 ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Yes ; there are various other works in other directions. For discretionary grants last year you had Rs. 9,66,000. This year the amount has been increased in each and every item. And then, on the question of repairs there is a very large provision made this year in comparison with the amount provided during the last year. Sir, I take up 41, Civil Works, item 2, repairs. Last year there was provision of Rs. 51 lakhs. This year also, the same amount has been provided. It can be very well reduced. If account is taken of the items in various parts of the budget, it is possible to cut down this expenditure. Therefore, I move that the total demand be reduced by Rs. 10,00,000.

Question proposed.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District) : Sir, I propose to speak of the small item of Rs. 40,000 which has been provided for the construction of a new mamlatdar's kacheri at Amalner. That is one of the items proposed for retrenchment by the honourable member, Mr. Swaminarayan. He thinks that it can stand over. But for his information I can say that complaints have been made in this House for the last six or more than six years of the condition of this kacheri where it is impossible for human beings to sit together for five hours. I think I have been clamouring in this House for a new kacheri, and I do not understand how my honourable friend proposes to omit this item which is meant to remove the very great inconvenience caused at present to the public. I do not know much with regard to the other items, but with regard to this item, I strongly submit that it is absolutely essential that this kacheri should be constructed at the earliest possible moment. If all the other items which the honourable member proposes for omission or postponement are of a similar character, I would strongly oppose his motion rather than support him in making retrenchment in this fashion.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I submit, Sir, all these items may be considered when the financial stringency is removed, when the financial situation improves.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I thought I would be accused of not asking the Finance Department for more money, Sir. All that I have been given is only Rs. 2 lakhs for new expenditure, and that, too, was given by the Honourable the Finance Member because the claims of the various departments were pressed on his attention and he thought that those claims were reasonable. The honourable member, Mr. Pataskar, has shown the necessity of the kacheri at Amalner, and similarly there is need for the other provisions, which are for medical relief and for no other purpose. And as for works in progress, Rs. 7 lakhs are for communications already in progress. I hope therefore the honourable House will reject the honourable member's motion.

The THAKOR OF KERWADA : When large amounts are spent on communications, why is nothing spent in Gujarat ?

Question put and lost.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : (Kaira District) : Sir, I move.

Reduce by Rs. 10,000—Votable Demand.

I have one complaint to make against the Public Works Department.....

Honourable MEMBERS : Only one ? (Laughter).

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : That complaint is that the Public Works Department is a transferred department which is in charge of communications and such other conveniences and that it has failed in its duty. As a matter of fact, in the year 1920 or 1921, the Reforms year, the Public Works Department budget was 188 lakhs of rupees. Unfortunately, this time we find only 120 lakhs are to be spent from the ordinary revenues and about 54 lakhs from borrowed funds and the whole amount from ordinary reserve has been taken to the reserved side. Again as regards the policy of spending borrowed funds on the Public Works Department, I for my part had expressed the opinion that it was not a good policy on the part of Government to spend borrowed money on public works which seems to have become the policy of Government for the last three or four years. I would call to mind the opinion of the Auditor General behind whom Honourable Members of Government on many occasions seek shelter. The Auditor General also objected to this policy of spending borrowed money on public works.....

[Rao Saheb D. P. Desai]

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Who says?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: He has expressed that view in his report. Whatever it may be, the Honourable Minister may at least hereafter discontinue with advantage that policy and again restore his budget to the 1921 figure. In that year, though we had less revenue we spent 188 lakhs from ordinary revenue on public works. Now, the revenue has been increased by additional taxation and still I see the sorry spectacle of the Public Works Department budget having been reduced to 120 lakhs of rupees.

The other complaint is about the cost on establishments namely, 29 lakhs of rupees which works out at about 40 per cent. As a matter of fact, 51 lakhs for repairs and about 10 lakhs for original works, is the total amount of work to be done and on this, there is an establishment costing about 29 lakhs of rupees. May I ask the Honourable the Minister to work out the percentage? Prices of materials have gone down all round, yet establishment charges have not come down. Expenditure on original works is being reduced by Government on account of financial stringency, but the establishment and working charges do not show a reduction. There was a time, as the Honourable Minister may perhaps remember, when only 11 per cent. of the total budget was spent over establishment charges. Then they went up to something like 21 or 22 per cent. and now they are over 40 per cent. If we deduct the grants in aid to local authorities, etc., the actual amount which the Public Works Department will be spending on public works and communications will not go beyond 63 lakhs. That being so, to spend such a large amount on establishments alone is certainly a great drawback.

Then, out of 120 lakhs, only Rs. 50,000 has been diverted to Gujarat. Out of this Rs. 50,000 for original works in Gujarat, Rs. 20,000 were necessitated by the floods. That leaves only Rs. 30,000 for the unfortunate province of Gujarat. On a former occasion I said that the time might come when, like Sind, Gujarat might have to agitate for separation from the Bombay Presidency (Laughter). I am speaking in all seriousness that Gujarat cannot submit to being taxed the highest and yet to be denied the facilities which such a heavy taxation entitles Gujarat to expect from Government. So far as I have been able to gather from Government settlement reports, communications have been quoted by settlement officers as a ground for enhanced assessment. In Bardoli this argument has been made use of by the settlement officer for recommending enhancement of assessment. For thirty years now, my unfortunate province has been subjected to increased taxation and yet we do not see any large amounts spent on improvement of communications and such other conveniences by the Public Works Department. For such a state of affairs, I do not think the Honourable Minister deserves any thanks of my province.

There is still one complaint I have to make and that is in respect to tolls. My province gives the largest revenue from tolls which operate the greatest hardship on the agriculturists who often cannot go from their fields to their homes without having to pay the toll. The Honourable Minister has been promising to abolish these tolls but during the last six or seven years I do not know how many tolls have actually been removed or reduced. So far as I know, the Honourable Minister has taken good care to remove tolls in places like Poona, Mahableshwar and so on (Laughter). But he has been doing nothing for Gujarat. That has been my standing complaint. As he stays in Poona and as the seat of Government for a part of the year is Poona, you will find a lot of items for the Central Division, but so far as the Northern Division is concerned, I see only a few thousand rupees here and there, and particularly for Gujarat only Rs. 20,000 or Rs. 50,000 are provided. Therefore, I would request him again to abolish the tolls and provide larger amounts for Gujarat, and to do away with this bad business altogether. If he cannot do it at once, he can do it gradually, but he should do justice to all. If he wants funds he can put the screw on the Honourable the Finance Member to supply more money, especially for communications, which the agriculturists are in great need of. Government cannot realise the hardships to which they are put. In the monsoon, they have to go through ankle-deep mud and to wade through waist-deep water. With these remarks, I move that Rs. 10,000 be reduced from the demand.

Question proposed.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, I also have to complain about the heavy establishment charges under this head. The total amount provided under this head is Rs. 1,20,82,000. Out of this Rs. 19,51,000 have been provided for grants to local bodies, Rs. 1,00,000 is the reserve with Government, and Rs. 2,00,000 are kept in suspense. Deducting these amounts from the total, we have a balance of about Rs. 98 lakhs, and if we deduct Rs. 30 lakhs for establishment charges, about Rs. 68 lakhs remain. According to that calculation, the establishment charges come up to about 46 per cent. I therefore maintain that the establishment charges on the works are very heavy, and I would advise the Honourable Minister to curtail these establishment charges. I understand it was the intention of Government—and I think it is still the intention of Government—to hand over to local boards which maintain qualified engineers as many works as possible under their charge, and give them the establishment charges at the same rate at which Government are receiving them from the local boards, and, under this arrangement the district local board of Ahmednagar has been already handed over all the public works to be carried out through that agency in that district. I think if this arrangement is brought into force in the case of other local boards which, as I say, maintain qualified engineers, both the local boards and Government will be benefited, and Government will be able to curtail their establishment.

Now, I should like to refer to another point, and that is as regards the provincial roads in the presidency. Five districts of Gujarat have 889 miles of provincial roads, while the 13 districts of the Deccan and Karnatak have 6,500 miles of provincial roads. As has been rightly pointed out by my honourable friend Rao Saheb Dadubhai Desai, Government always take into consideration, when they revise land revenue assessments, the condition of communications. Well, Sir, I do not want to grudge the Deccan and the Karnatak having these roads. It may be that the Deccan and Karnatak do really require greater help in the matter of roads. But I simply compare the present state, as it exists. Looking to the mileage, we find that there are 889 miles of roads for the five districts of Gujarat, whereas the mileage in the Deccan and the Karnatak is 6,500, which is about 7½ times more than that of Gujarat. If you take the land revenue alone, the five districts of Gujarat pay Rs. 110 lakhs, while all the 13 districts of the Deccan and Karnatak pay Rs. 289 lakhs, which is only about two and half times more than that of Gujarat. Looking to this, it will be seen that Gujarat has not been properly and equitably treated up to now as far as communications are concerned. Moreover, Gujarat has a legitimate grievance, in this respect, because in two districts of Gujarat, namely Broach and Surat, there is black cotton soil, which is quite impassable during the monsoon. Not only is it not possible to move in carts, but it is very difficult to move in the districts of Broach and Surat in the monsoon on foot. Surat has got 188 miles of Provincial roads and Broach has got about 58 miles. I really wonder whether the Honourable Minister for Local Self-government has ever tried to move about in these two districts on foot in the rainy season. I am quite sure that he will not be able to go even for a mile during the monsoon on foot in these districts. Therefore, I say Gujarat has not been properly and fairly treated, and I hope the Honourable Minister for Local Self-government will see to this in future. I am surprised to find that no provision has been made in the budget for these two districts in spite of their urgent needs.

Now, I come to another item, namely, grants to district local boards. The amount provided is Rs. 19,51,000. Now, this includes communications; taking into account the total figure of land revenue paid by all the districts of the presidency which is 538 lakhs, it comes to about 3¼ per cent. thereof. I think this is not at all sufficient, because communications have got a great deal to do with the land revenue and the agriculturist requires facility of good roads for marketing his produce. That is my whole point. I think more money should be allotted to local boards as grants. Sir, while I am on this point, I want to bring one thing to the notice of the Honourable Minister that the Surat district has got 358 miles of roads under its charge and we got as Government grant in the year 1920 Rs. 89,000, in 1921 Rs. 72,000, and in 1922 Rs. 81,000. In subsequent years it dropped to Rs. 56,000, Rs. 56,000 and Rs. 50,000 respectively. This has since been raised to Rs. 1,00,000. But I should like to say that this also is not sufficient, looking to the condition of the soil and the mileage of the roads which are in the charge of the district local board. Therefore, I would request the Honourable Minister to consider this question very carefully, and raise the grant to this local board as much as possible. The same is the case in Broach. Broach has got very few miles of provincial roads, and the soil of the district of Broach is as black as that of the district of Surat, and therefore Broach district should also be treated with due consideration.

While I am on this point, I wish to bring to the notice of the Honourable Minister one point. I understand that the Examiner of Local Fund Accounts is interfering very much in the administration of local boards. In regard to these grants, I understand that a letter has been addressed by the Examiner of Local Fund Accounts to Government that all district local boards should allocate a lump sum to the works from these grants, and all these works must be approved by the Collector, and secondly that the Collector should give a certificate that the works have been satisfactorily and properly carried out. Now, Sir, if this is so and if the suggestions are approved, where is Local Self-government ? It means that the power of budgetting is taken away from the hands of local boards and given over to the Collector. This is most objectionable, and I bring it to the notice of the Honourable Minister. Not only is it objectionable, but it is a most retrograde step that the works which are to be carried out from the grants given to local boards for communications should be selected by the Collector, and again certified by the Collector as having been properly carried out.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: It is not so.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: I have got a copy of the letter forwarded by Government to the Commissioner in my hand.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Read it.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: I read the following extract from the memorandum addressed by the Secretary to Government, General Department, to the Commissioner, Northern Division.

"1. At present the Commissioners make lumpsum grants to the District Local Boards out of the funds placed at their disposal. The District Local Boards should allocate the lumpsum to specific works and obtain the collector's approval to such allocation. There is no need for the boards to show the amounts they intend spending on those works from their own resources as there is no statutory obligation that the total expenditure should be shared in definite proportions by the board and Government. However in the case of water supply works when the District Local Boards have to provide twice the amount of the Government grant the information should be given.

"2. At the end of the financial year the Collectors should give a certificate that the works for which allocations should be made have been satisfactorily carried out.

"The Commissioner is requested to be so good as to favour Government with his remarks on the above suggestions."

All the works for which grants are to be spent should be approved by the Collector. Not only that, but these works should be certified by the Collector as satisfactorily done. Thus the power of budget of the district local boards is to be taken away from them. The audit department comes and checks the accounts with a view to see that there is no misappropriation or abuse. I welcome the audit as much as the Honourable the Minister for Local Self-Government does, but I would not like to see the Audit Department interfering in the executive or administrative functions of the Board. The power of budget is not vested in the president but in the whole district local board. If one lakh of rupees is given as grant to a district local board the whole board budgets for the amount and allots Rs. 3,000 for one and Rs. 6,000 for another work and so on. If all these works are to be approved by the Collector as suggested by the Examiner, which is not in any way feasible, how to get the work approved and certified by the Collector ? If he is not satisfied with any particular work then the grant for the next year will be withheld. It is within the power of the Honourable Minister in charge of the Local Self-Government to see that this little power is not taken away from the local bodies. This is nothing but interference with the internal administration of the local boards.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member is repeating himself.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : With these remarks I only repeat what I said before that Gujarat should be treated on an equitable basis.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The House is adjourned to 1-30 p.m. to-morrow, Friday, the 9th March 1928.

BOMBAY : PRINTED AT THE GOVERNMENT CENTRAL PRESS.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Questions.

TRAINING SCHOOL, DHULIA

Mr. M. G. BHOSLE (West Khandesh District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that they are going to close the Training School at Dhulia;

(b) whether they are aware that the District Conference of Primary Teachers held at Dhulia in the month of December 1927 passed a resolution requesting them not to close the school;

(c) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, the reasons why the school is to be closed?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) No.
(b) No.
(c) Does not arise.

CROPS IN KADEGAON

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that locusts have damaged almost all the crops in certain survey numbers of Kadegaon and other villages in Khanapur Taluka of the Satara District;

(b) what steps they have taken to prevent such damage;

(c) whether the Government officers have taken into consideration the damage done to crops while submitting their annewari reports?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) There was no visitation of locusts in the Khanapur Taluka, but grasshoppers damaged the Bajri crop in some villages.

(b) A fieldman was appointed to demonstrate how the grasshoppers should be destroyed. Committees of cultivators in each village affected were also formed to promote and supervise measures of destruction and to help the village officers.

(c) Yes.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: Locusts in Marathi means "Tol." If that is so, I had personally seen many fields in which they were preying on the standing crops.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : "Tol" means both locusts and grasshoppers. Tols are able to fly : grasshoppers mostly not.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Was there any destruction to the crops because of these grasshoppers ?

2. The time for completion of the Pandharpur Town Extension shall, subject to any extension of time, which the Secretary of State may see fit to grant, be the 30th day of September 1915.

3. (1) Such interest may be paid until the end of the half-year in which the Pandharpur Town Extension shall be actually completed and opened for traffic, but for no period extending beyond the date mentioned in Clause 2 hereof.

(2) The amount so paid out of capital by way of interest in respect of any period shall in no case exceed a sum which, together with (a) the net earnings (if any) of the Pandharpur Town Extension during such period, and (b) the amount (if any) by which the interest received by the Company from any investments in which any moneys raised by the shares or debentures or debenture stock issued under this Contract are invested, and from any bank or banks in which any such moneys are deposited, and the profits realised by the Company by the sale of any such investments as aforesaid, and any other miscellaneous receipts in the nature of revenue on account of the Pandharpur Town Extension during such period, shall exceed a sum equal to interest for the same period at the rate of ½ per cent. per annum on such debentures or debenture stock for the time being issued or on the amount for the time being paid up on

(1) Such charge shall not exceed as a maximum the cost of carriage for 20 miles at the mileage rate quoted from the station of origin to the station of destination on the undertaking of the Company.

(2) The levying of such charge shall be optional with the Company, but if such charge shall be levied on any particular item or description of traffic it shall be levied in both directions and charged on both through and local traffic, the charge in both cases being calculated at the same mileage rate and for the same distance.

(3) Any such charges which are intended to be levied must be notified in the tariff changes memoranda, and must be subject to the Conference Regulations in every respect as regards any changes in the rates and conditions that have once been notified.

7. The provisions herein contained with respect to the Pandharpur Town Extension shall supersede those contained in Clause 35 of the Contract of 1902, which clause shall be deemed to be expunged from that Contract.

8. The cost of the existing terminal station on the north bank of the River Bhima and of any other works which shall be rendered unnecessary by reason of the construction of the Pandharpur Town Extension shall remain at the debit of capital, provided that the value of any materials removed from such station or works and used for revenue purposes shall be credited to capital.

9. The cost of preparing the returns and statistics and copies referred to in Clause 54 of the Contract of 1902 and incidental thereto, so far as such costs relate to the Pandharpur Town Extension, shall be charged to capital until the same extension is opened for traffic, but so far as such costs relate to the Pandharpur Extension as defined in the Contract of 1905 (the whole of which has been opened for traffic) they shall be included in working expenses.

10. Capital moneys raised by the issue of shares or debentures or debenture stock with the sanction of the Secretary of State for the purpose of the Pandharpur Town Extension shall be deemed to be included in the expression " capital " in Clause 60 of the Contract of 1902.

11. Nothing herein contained shall affect the provisions contained in the Contract of 1902 as altered by the Contract of 1905 with respect to the capital to be raised for the construction of the Pandharpur Extension as defined in the Contract of 1905 or the payment of interest on such capital.

(a) whether they have received a petition from the khatedars of Sahijpur Bogha, a village in the North Daskroi Taluka of the Ahmedabad District, stating that they were in undisturbed possession of their fields for more than the last eleven hundred years since 846 A.D. The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

PLOUGH TAX : ARANDI

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the khatedars of the village Arandi of the Godhra Taluka of the Panch Mahals District have filed a Civil Suit No. 339 of 1923 in the Court of the Sub-Judge at Godhra, protesting against the oppressive halia tax (plough tax) levied by the inamdars of that village, in proportion to the number of ploughs in the family though the land in the possession of the family may remain the same and praying that the inamdars should be prevented from levying the tax in the oppressive manner as shown above ;

(d) If the answer to (c) is in the affirmative, what decision Government have arrived at on the petition of the cultivators and what action they have taken to prevent the rack-renting of the cultivators in the way shown in (a)?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) A suit was filed in the Sub-Judge's Court, Godhra, on 22nd October 1923, but it was dismissed on 20th February 1926 with costs as the plaintiffs did not furnish the full number of stamps required by the Court.

(b) The Mamlatdar decided an assistance suit on 1st May 1925 in favour of the inamdars, granted a decree with costs and levied from the tenants a penalty equivalent to one-fourth of the demand. The penalty amounted to Rs. 481.

(c) Yes. A petition to this effect was received.

(d) Government declined to interfere. The village is unsurveyed and unsettled. The tax is levied on the number of ploughs owned by each tenant irrespective of the area of land occupied by him. The custom of levying a plough tax is prevalent in most unsurveyed villages and has the sanction of antiquity.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Government Resolution, Revenue Department, No. 5275, dated 31st May 1911, authorises Collectors to take on lease and rent premises as liquor shops in places where suitable accommodation is not available;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative why in the notification of the Collector of Ahmedabad, dated 8th February 1927, and the similar notifications in the preceding years, the responsibility of finding premises for shops is laid on the shoulders of the bidders in term No. 4 of the conditions of auction sales of Ahmedabad country liquor shops?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) Yes; but only in exceptional circumstances.

(b) Because it is ordinarily the business of the successful bidders to find premises.

LIQUOR SHOPS: PREMISES

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether in paragraph 8 of his petition, dated 4th January 1924, to the Commissioner of Customs, Salt and Excise, Bombay Presidency, Bombay, Mr. Hiraji Hormasji Anklesaria drew attention of Government to the difficulty of securing suitable premises for country liquor shops on account of the monopoly of the existing shop premises having been secured by Mr. E. R. Fanibanda and his friends in the City of Ahmedabad ;

(b) whether in reply to his petition the Commissioner of Customs, Salt and Excise in his No. 57-58/23, dated the 1st February 1924, informed him that " It is the duty of the licensee to arrange for the premises required " and threw the whole responsibility of securing the premises on the bidders ;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the affirmative, why the Commissioner of Excise, Customs and Salt gave such a reply in spite of the existence of Government Resolution, Revenue Department, No. 5275, dated 31st May 1911 ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) and (b) Yes.

(c) The Commissioner was not convinced that exceptional circumstances existed in that case.

HEBATPUR DRAIN : IMPROVEMENTS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether improvements to the Hebatpur Drain in the Viramgam Taluka of the Ahmedabad District, involving an expenditure of Rs. 30,000 during the year 1927-28 was included in minor irrigation works under the Superintending Engineer on Special Duty for which a provision of Rs. 5,00,000 was made under the expenditure head 15 ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, how much work was done on the Hebatpur Drain up to the 31st December 1927 ;

(c) if no work has been done, what were the reasons for delaying the work though provision of money was made in the budget of 1927-28 ;

(d) whether Government intend to commence the said work early enough in the year 1928 so as to expend the amount provided in the budget before the close of the official year 1927-28 ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) It is presumed that the Honourable member refers to the list printed on page 68 of the Blue Book (Budget) for the year 1927-28, entry 3 of which under Northern Division refers to the Hebatpur Drain—Rs. 30,000 were shown in the last column of the entry as the probable expenditure on the work during the year. The total probable expenditure on all the works mentioned amounted to Rs. 7,80,000, but it was explained in paragraph 94 of the Explanatory Memorandum under the head " 15—Civil " printed on page 67 of the Blue Book that in view of the uncertainty of some of the projects being taken up during the year a provision of Rs. 5 lakhs only had been made. It will be seen that the work referred to by the Honourable Member was mentioned as one of those likely to be taken up during the year, but no provision was actually ear-marked for it or for any other work.

(b) The work was not commenced during the year.

(c) The preparation of plans and estimates took more time than was anticipated owing to the necessity for an exhaustive enquiry into the area which would be affected by the drain.

(d) No.

(a) whether they have considered the question of preparing a register of the agriculturists who are heavily in debt with the help of the Registration Department and the Co-operative Credit Societies with a view to enable Government to know the real condition of the agriculturists at present;

(b) if so, what further steps they wish to take in this matter?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) No. Government do not consider than an attempt to compile such statistics from the records of the Registration Department and the Co-operative Societies would secure the result desired.

(b) Does not arise.

CROP DESTRUCTION BY WILD PIGS

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the cultivators are not allowed to enter the forest to destroy wild pigs, etc., which destroy the crops in the fields near the forest;

(b) if not, why not?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) and (b) In Kanara Western, Southern and Coast Divisions the cultivators are allowed to enter the forests for the purpose of killing wild pig destroying crops in the adjacent fields. In other districts, villagers and cultivators are allowed to beat for pig in any of the Reserved Forests where the Collector in consultation with the Conservator considers that the destruction of crops by pig is serious, provided that they give 24 hours' notice of their intention to the nearest forester or forest guard.

VILLAGE WATER SUPPLY SCHEME, CENTRAL DIVISION

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that they have under consideration a comprehensive scheme for the improvement of village water supply of the districts in the Central Division and that they have ordered a detailed survey to be made in order to enable them to frame a working programme?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Government have under consideration a working programme for the whole presidency.

Question again proposed :

Reduce by Rs. 10,000—Votable Demand.

Mr. M. D. KARKI (Kanara District) : Sir, the budget estimate for 41, Civil Works, for the ensuing year is a poor show if compared to that of the current year. I shall quote certain figures which will show comparison between the expenditure for this year and the ensuing year. For the current year the budget estimate for this item is for Rs. 1,27,83,000 and the revised estimate is for Rs. 1,28,32,000. But the budget estimate for the ensuing year 1928-29 is for Rs. 1,20,82,000. So, it will be observed that the expenditure on this item is going downhill. However it should be admitted that the budget estimate for the ensuing year is an improvement and an advance on the estimate for 1926-27 when it was for Rs. 1,17,06,756 (actuals). It is to be noted that the non-voted expenditure side under establishment charges is expanding. If we look at the figures for the year 1926-27 we find that the expenditure in that year was Rs. 6,89,339. This amount came up to Rs. 14,04,000 in 1927-28 and the revised estimates for that year were Rs. 13,95,000. But this year this item has gone up to Rs. 14,83,000. Although this item is increased, no explanation has been given in the Blue Book as to why this expenditure is so expanded. If we compare the figures given in the Statement III of the Blue Book, what do we find ? In the year 1921-22 the expenditure was Rs. 1,88,000 ; in 1922-23 it was Rs. 1,06,000 ; in the years 1923-24, 1924-25 and 1925-26 it was Rs. 98,00,000, Rs. 92,00,000 and Rs. 92,00,000 respectively. Here you will find that the expenditure is on the decrease. But in 1926-27 it again rose and went up to Rs. 1,22,000 and in the revised estimates for the 1927-28 it still rose and went up to Rs. 1,33,000. If you compare these figures, you will find that the expenditure since 1922-23 is decreasing. This I submit is no progress in this nation-building department.

Sir, if there is any department under this Government, which can give amenities to the people, it is this department. We do not expect Government to open Tramways, Railways and instal electric plants in the countryside. All that we, the people in the countryside, expect from the Government are good roads, nice culverts, beautiful bridges, strong causeways, fair-looking mile stones, furlong stones and sign-posts and lastly grand avenues of road-side trees. These amenities can be got only from this department. Therefore they love this department. Their attitude with regard to other departments has now—a—days quite changed. Take, for instance, the Revenue Department. They have lost all faith in it. We find that they are tired of village officers, the circle inspectors, mamlatdars, deputy-collectors, collectors, and commissioners. They are disgusted with the police. They have no liking for magistrates and judges. That is the state of affairs.

If you take education, you will find that the village teacher has merely to repeat the Sathye-Paranjpye scheme. In the countryside there is no independent schoolhouse for boys and girls. They, i.e., schools are either held in a dharmashalla, a temple or a private verandah. If petitions are made for a permanent house for these schools, no heed is paid to them but they are thrown into a waste paper basket. So they are tired of that department also. The sins of the Forest Department are too many to be narrated. The days of that department are nearly counted. God only knows when the present system in that department will vanish. Now, Sir, I come to the point.

All the amenities I just mentioned, i.e., culverts, bridges, causeways, and so on, come under the head "communications." I do not know whether road-side trees also come under that head. What is the state of things about these communications ? Is Government allotting sufficient money on communications ? I would just show to this House, Sir, that Government is not providing money sufficiently under this head also. In 1925-26 they had spent Rs. 9,59,089. This was raised in 1926-27 to Rs. 13,82,865. In 1927-28 estimate it was again brought down to Rs. 11,29,000, but the revised estimate was for Rs. 14,41,000. In the ensuing year the figure is only Rs. 7,08,000. Sir, it is stated that on account of financial stringency an adequate sum of money could not be allotted to this department. There was also last year a cry that there was financial stringency, and the budget also was a deficit budget. Yet we find that the amount allotted under this head was Rs. 14,41,000. If there was financial stringency and if there was deficit last year, why, then, was this amount of Rs. 14 lakhs spent ? This year we have allowed taxation bills and now there is no fear for the Government. They will be realising more revenue under the Stamp head. Though the amount budgetted for communications comes to Rs. 7,08,000 next year, I request the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government that this amount may be raised to Rs. 14 lakhs in the estimate, to be revised hereafter, so that every district may have a fair chance of getting more money for "communications."

Now, Sir, I come to my own district. It is a matter of some consolation that the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government has somewhat responded to the requests and suggestions made by me both inside and outside this House. I repeatedly brought to his notice the serious position prevailing in my constituency with regard to the Public Works Department affairs. I asked several questions and also started regular correspondence whenever necessary to inform him that immediate steps should be taken to remedy the want if there was any. Kanara, Sir, is very differently situated from the other parts of the presidency. Its condition is very peculiar. No doubt it is a nice country. It has been said by the Governors of the presidency from time to time in the past that Kanara is the pride of the presidency. In 1925 when I had the honour of welcoming the present Governor, Sir Leslie Wilson in Kanara His Excellency said to me that Kanara was a very lovely country. Sir, the needs of Kanara are, therefore, great and require to be solved. From the point of view of communications, of course, Kanara is very backward. I have repeatedly said on the floor of this honourable House that Kanara is backward from this point. Road communication is the main one, if not the only one. There is steamer communication, but it is most inconvenient to the people—to the passenger traffic. The steamers are not run throughout the whole year and they are not calling at every port in the district. I wanted, therefore, the Honourable Minister to study these things and also the requirements of the people in person by visiting Kanara. I accordingly gave him invitations twice, but he has not responded to them. I now leave him to himself. But it is a matter of satisfaction that at least he has responded to my request with regard to the improvements in roads.

Now, Sir, I have repeatedly complained about the Public Works Department administration in Kanara. Even now it is not so satisfactory as it ought to be. They have committed themselves to certain things in the past and they do not go behind them. I may say they hug to them. They are not progressive. They are rather conservative. Sir, on the floor of this House I brought to the attention of the Honourable Minister that there are rivers and creeks intercepting the coast road, which is nearly 100 miles in length. I wanted him to have one or two causeways, one on the Venkatapur river in Bhatkal petha and one over the Badagani river in the taluka of Honawar. In 1924 the causeway over the Kumta ferry was sanctioned and it has been completed in the year 1927. But these two causeways which I have been urging on the mind of the Honourable Minister since 1924 have been not yet undertaken o be constructed. When I made a speech this time in 1926, I specially invited the attention of the Honourable Minister as regards the necessity of constructing causeways over these two rivers. But the head of the Public Works Department administration of Kanara said in his report on my speech which was sent to him for report, that the causeway over Venkatapur river would involve greater expenditure and that the causeway over Badagani river was not necessary as landing stages were constructed. Now, Sir, I was not content with the said report. It was placed on the Council table in reply to a question of mine. I took a copy of it at my own expense and it is with me. Again, this time I have tabled a resolution, one with regard to Venkatapur river and one with regard to the Badagani river. I wanted definitely to know what would be the attitude of Government especially of the head of Public Works Department Administration, Kanara, in regard to these causeways. Therefore, I asked questions in this House in regard to the said causeways. Though I was not present when the replies were to be given, the replies have been printed on pages 45 and 45 of the second and third lists respectively of questions and answers of this session. The Government say that it is possible to build a bridge or causeway over the Venkatapur river but it would be so costly that the work could not be justified, and.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: But was this reply given in the Council? The honourable member is wrong in referring to it. The question was not put.

Mr. M. D. KARKI: But it is printed, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: No, no. The honourable member is not entitled to read it as the question has not been put and answered in this House.

Mr. M. D. KARKI: Anyhow, Government have made up their mind not to undertake these two causeways. Though I am trying my best for better amenities, the Public Works Department in Kanara is not helping me. Therefore I say they are not progressive but hugging to things to which they have committed themselves. The absence of causeways on these rivers is inconveniencing the passenger traffic. I would urge strongly on the mind of the Honourable Minister that this year or at least in the life-time of this third Reformed Council, the causeway over the Badagani river costing about Rs. 16,000 may be undertaken and finished. The causeway over the Kumpta creek was estimated to cost Rs. 16,000, then the estimate went up to Rs. 18,000 and lastly it rose up to Rs. 24,000, but I am certain the causeway over the Badagani river will not cost so much provided strict economy is observed throughout; it may cost at the most Rs. 16,000, which is a mere fleabite to the finances at the disposal of the Honourable the Minister for Self-government and the Public Works Department. On the advisibility of having a causeway over the Badagani river, the Collector of the District and the Commissioner of the Division may be consulted. One point more as regards the maintenance and the upkeep of the roads. I find that consolidation work is not so satisfactory. That is why the roads suffer heavily in the rains. The roads on the coast line are not equipped with rollers and the like, so the consolidation work suffers. Besides no sufficient care is bestowed by the Administration on the consolidation work which is necessary for the good upkeep of the roads.

I want to draw the attention of the Honourable Minister to some items in the budget estimate for 41, Civil Works. Last year certain amounts were allotted for improving of the Kumpta-Hubli Road, Sirsi-Kodakani Road, Khanapur-Yellapur Road, Sadashivagad-Kadra Road and for constructing a diversion road near Dhareshwar in mile 4 of Mirjan-Madras Frontier Road. Sir, if the lengths of the roads under the Public Works Department Administration are more in any district, they are in Kanara. Owing to the peculiar circumstances of the district, on account of the absence of transport facilities and the conveniences of easy communication, it became necessary for Government to open new roads and keep up the old roads that were in use in pre-British days. The length of roads comes to about 672 miles maintained by the Public Works Department. If any district contains a larger portion of unmetalled roads, it is the district of Kanara. In the report for 1925-26 you will find that the unmetalled portion of the roads came to 259 miles and 280 ft. in Kanara. In the Thana District there were only 5 miles of unmetalled roads. The following are the figures of unmetalled roads in other districts :—

Surat	18 miles and 4503 ft.
Broach . ..	0 mile.
Kaira	9 miles and 680 ft.
Panch Mahals ..	17 miles and 2640 ft.
Ahmedabad	82 miles and 460 ft.
Satara	45 miles and 330 ft.
Poona	70 miles and 2580 ft.
Sholapur	0 mile.
Ahmednagar	17 miles.
Nasik	27 miles and 1140 ft.
East Khandesh ..	10 miles and 660 ft.
West Khandesh ..	3 miles and 2640 ft.
Belgaum	36 miles and 4250 ft.
Dharwar	37 miles and 1945 ft.
Bijapur	113 miles and 241 ft.
Ratnagiri	0 mile.
Kanara	259 miles and 280 ft.

In these days of greater amenities and facilities, it is indeed regrettable that the greater portion of the roads in Kanara should remain unmetalled. I admit that some provision has been made for the improvement of certain roads in Kanara, but it is not sufficient. More money is required for improvement throughout. There is some appreciable improvement in the ghat portion of the Kumta-Hubli Road. A sum of Rs. 63,942. has been allotted for the improvement of Sirsi-Kodakani Road. A sum of Rs. 20,000 has already been expended. What is the result ? His Excellency the Governor was to visit the Gersappa Falls. So, some improvement of the road was taken up in hot haste and finished in a hurry at a cost of Rs. 20,000. Sir, in spite of that, the improvement is not satisfactory. The limit of motor car speed for His Excellency's car was kept at ten miles per hour and in some places it was four miles only. Such is the state of a road on which a sum of Rs. 63,942 has been allotted. I hope by the time the money is entirely spent, there will be a better improvement in the condition of the road. Although the sum of Rs. 20,000 has been spent on the work done, I am sure the work could have been done better with even Rs. 10,000.

The improvement of Sadashivagad-Kadra road was started in 1924. Since then the improvement has been carried out but not to completion. I hope it will be finished early to facilitate traffic between Londa and Karwar.

As regards the Diversion Road, no doubt a sum of Rs. 16,931 has been allotted for this in the estimate of the current year. But I was struck with horror and indignation when I found that a provision has been made for Rs. 16,931 when the length of the road is not more than 4 furlongs. The length should be between 3 and 4 furlongs only. The portion to be built up is only about one or 2 furlongs. That too to the height of two or three feet on plain land. The lead for materials is quite near. The filling is done with sand and not with stones ; yet such a large amount has been provided. I do not know whether this amount includes a provision for compensation to the owners of land acquired. Even if it does, the estimate is a large one. A causeway of a permanent character, lasting for centuries, could be built at that cost. If a length of four furlongs costs Rs. 16,000 and odd, I think it would be very difficult to go in for metalled or any kind of roads in Kanara. It is not in any upcountry place like Sirsi or Yellapur but it is in a coastal place like Dhareshwar and for such a road in such a place, the sum of over sixteen thousand rupees is certainly enormous. I would ask the Honourable Minister to look into this matter very carefully.

Now, Sir, one more point and I have done.

(At this stage the honourable members Messrs. Munshi and Mukadam in going out of the House came between the honourable member addressing the House and the Hon'ble the President).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. This practice is increasing day by day, and honourable members have begun to neglect the instructions given. I trust they will not.

Mr. M. D. KARKI: I would like to point out that it has become the habit of the officers of the Public Works Department to follow traditions. That is to say, a former officer creates a sort of policy in that department and it is handed down to his successors to follow. Every officer wants to keep up the tradition left by his predecessor. If one officer compiles an estimate of Rs. 20,000 for a work costing Rs. 10,000, his successor prepares an estimate of Rs. 25,000 for work which can be done at Rs. 10,000. The wonder is that no one of them will betray the other.

I have now to make a few remarks with regard to the landing stages of Badagani in Kanara. The building up of landing stages at Badagani was undertaken in the year 1924. The estimate was for Rs. 12,123 but Rs. 12,230 were actually spent. There was a great cry that even half of the amount was not expended on the work. I put several questions on the subject, and pointed out that the cost incurred in building up that landing stage was not proportionate to the work done. With all that, the Honourable Minister has whitewashed the misdeeds of the department by saying that everything has been done according to plan and estimate. I wanted to know what sort of filling was provided for in the estimate. The filling was done with sand only. It was very near at hand, and it might have cost Rs. 200. But the cost of the landing stage came up to Rs. 12,230; see the enormity of the amount that was expended. In fact, the work could have been done in the way in which it has been done by spending only Rs. 7,000 to Rs. 8,000. So, I am afraid that the officers are always keen to keep up old traditions and to make high estimates. In the case of the diversion of the road at Dhareshwar, I think it must have been done on the same lines. Of course, if the Honourable Minister sends my speech to the officer concerned, he will say that Mr. Karki has been always uncharitable towards them. I must make one point very clear. I have no personal grudge against any officer. They are all good men. My complaint is against the system of their working and against their tradition which should be broken up. He would say that they were doing their best to improve the condition of the roads in Kanara. With all that, I can say according to the dictates of my conscience that higher amounts are expended on works which can be done by spending smaller sums.

Now, Sir, as a grant-in-aid to the local boards for local public works Rs. 19 lakhs have been provided. This item is a very nice one. Of course, I feel that in every district there is a necessity for the construction of village roads. Wherever I have gone during my term of office as a member of the Forest Grievances Committee, I have found that in the rural areas there is a lack of roads, not only in Kanara but in every district of this presidency. It is true that Rs. 19 lakhs have been provided, but the amount must be earmarked for the opening up and improvement of village roads. There are already big main roads, and there should be a net-work of roads connecting the villages with the main roads. Only in that case will the people in the rural areas have the benefit of the roads; otherwise not.

Sir, in the letter No. S. 220-28952-W. addressed by Mr. N. N. Ayyangar, Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Public Works Department, to me, on the 16th January 1928, there is some happy news to me and to my constituents. It is stated in the letter "I have further to state for your information that a programme of improving the roads in Kanara involving an expenditure of Rs. 9 lakhs is at present under consideration." I welcome this announcement so far as Kanara is concerned. I expect the day to come soon, when Government will undertake this work. I know many schemes are under the consideration of Government for the last so many years, but if this proposal regarding Kanara is to meet with the same fate which the other schemes have met with, then there is no hope for Kanara. I say that the conditions prevailing in Kanara do call upon the attention of the Honourable Minister that immediate steps should be taken and money allotted for the improvement of roads in Kanara. With these remarks, I resume my seat.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu): Mr. President, I desire to make a few remarks on this demand under 41-Civil Works. I wish to point out that the first item is for buildings, and the amount allotted is Rs. 3,94,000. Out of the whole of this amount only Rs. 27,000 are going to be spent for Sind. Now, it will be seen that this com s to about one-sixteenth of the amount provided, and that is going to be spent for the benefit of Sind.

Coming to the question of roads, I find that Rs. 7 lakhs are going to be spent, but in the whole of the item, I do not find that a single pie has been provided for Sind. During the next year I do not see that anything is intended to be spent for roads in Sind, and during 1926-27 and 1927-28 also nothing was spent. Sind covers an area of 350 miles long and 100 miles broad, and it has been under the British administration for the last 85 years. Karachi is the entrance to Sind; it is also the headquarters of the Commissioner in Sind, and it is a place visited by Governors, Lieutenant-Governors and high officials of Government, but there is not a single road in Sind which enables them to go from one city to another. Only in the city of Karachi two or three small roads have been constructed. The first road is the Salt quarry road, which is 8 to 10 miles long. That road was constructed for the convenience of Government, to enable them to bring salt which they require. The second road, the Magar Pir road, was constructed about 20 to 25 years ago. The third road, i.e., Malir road was constructed when the Governor was coming to Karachi. We had great expectations that that road would be connected to all the important places throughout India, and it would enable everybody to come to Karachi by motor cars. But I am sorry to say that only 5 miles, i.e., up to the European Club the road has been completed. Not an inch more has been constructed. Secondly there is another road from Karachi to Landhi, because the military headquarters are there. That too is not in the interest of the public. If we look at the presidency divisions, there is a net-work of roads fit for motor cars between Gujarat and Bombay and Bombay and Poona and all through India. We have not got such a system of trunk roads in the interior of Sind. While money is being lavished on the asphalting of the few roads that exist in Karachi to ensure smooth running for the motor cars of officials, not a pie is spent on the construction of even ordinary roads in the interior of Sind, which are in such a bad condition that the carts jolt so badly that the occupants hit their heads frequently on the roof of the carts. The Bombay Government has not so far spent any money at all on the construction of roads in Sind, in spite of our boast that we have a Sindhi man as Honourable Minister in charge of the portfolio for the last seven years, and that Sind contributes richly towards the general exchequer of this presidency to the tune of 2½ crores. It may be that the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government is afraid of being criticised by the provincial members if he spends appropriate amount of money for Sind. Out of the total amount provided for Civil Works the amount allotted to Sind is very meagre, and if the Bombay Government ruling over Sind since 85 years are not able to treat Sind fairly as they do the other divisions of the presidency, they should separate Sind, and make it an independent province. Even in the amount provided for Government have betrayed their mania for costly establishment. On page 4 you will find that the amount provided for works is Rs. 73,40,400 and the establishment charges on this work come to Rs. 29,12,300, which is 40 per cent. of the amount provided for works. In India there is no scarcity of labour and there is unemployment everywhere. Government can get and maintain an establishment at a very cheap cost. Still we find the establishment charges are abnormal in proportion to the cost of the works. Most of the amount provided for establishment is consumed by travelling allowance, house allowance, a passage allowance and a number of other allowances. I do not find any necessity for any of these allowances. The price of foodstuffs, the cost of clothing and the other necessaries of life have gone down very much and still why should there be any increase in the establishment charges ? Government are indifferent and the complaints we have been making are let in by one ear and let out by another. Unless Government pay attention to our complaints and take action we must force them to do so.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Sir, I rise to support the motion moved by Rao Saheb Dadubhai Desai. Firstly, I would again point out a defect in the presentation of the budget for 41, Civil Works, which I pointed out in previous years also. If we turn to page 15 (of the Provincial Civil Works Budget Estimate, 1928-29), we will find that it purports to give details of expenditure amounting to 54 lakhs of rupees, but the details are contained in ten lines. You will not find in the budget of any other province the details of such a large amount shown only in ten lines. Moreover it is in such a form that no honourable member of this House can form any idea as to what amounts are spent on what works or form any opinion as to whether the amounts are distributed properly and reasonably. Now, I certainly think that Government should give us much more details than what is given in these ten lines, as this is an expenditure of 54 lakhs of rupees. You cannot find details of this expenditure anywhere else, and this page is supposed to give a full detail of the expenditure. It is not an abstract of the expenditure, but is supposed to give details. That the details should cover only ten lines when you are spending 54 lakhs cannot possibly be regarded as satisfactory.

Another thing which I should like to point out is the expenditure on establishments. I will not fall into the error into which previous speakers have fallen of saying that the expenditure on establishments comes to 40 per cent. If you will look at page 42 (Provincial Civil Works Budget Estimate, 1928-29), you will find :

"Each of these heads was debited with 21½ per cent. on the estimated cost of works and repairs for Establishment and 1½ per cent. for Tools and Plant till the year 1926-27 These percentage rates having been increased to 24 for Establishment and 3 for Tools.

[Mr. H. B. Shivdasani]

and Plant with effect from 1st April 1927 in view of the average rates of actuals for the previous five years....."

So, the expenditure for Establishment and Tools and Plant has been raised from 23 to 27, an increase of 4 per cent. Moreover, we find that after deducting for Establishment charges at the rate of 24 per cent. under all other heads we get 29 lakhs left against repairs under 41 Civil Works. So, if we take the entire expenditure in the Public Works Department and work out the Establishment charges on the entire expenditure, it will work out to about 30 per cent. If we take all the expenditure, it is 24 per cent. on some items, but on the rest it comes to 40 per cent. So, the expenditure on establishment comes to 30 per cent. on the whole. So, I think it is high time that Government gave its attention to this matter. An expenditure in the neighbourhood of 30 per cent. for establishment and about 3 per cent. for Tools and Plant means an expenditure of nearly one-third swallowed up. When you are undertaking large works, this is certainly excessive.

I would again bring to the notice of Government the desirability of providing better communications in Gujarat. We do not ask for a net work of good trunk roads. At present we only ask for one good trunk road. There is at present not a single good road in Gujarat. If you look to the south of the presidency, you will find that Poona has got beautiful trunk roads in all directions. There is a trunk road from Poona to Bombay, and trunk roads from Poona to Satara, Poona to Mahableshwar, Poona to Nasik, Poona to Sholapur, Poona to Ahmednagar and so on. If you can give a complete net, work of roads to one centre you can certainly give at least one trunk road to Gujarat. Give us at least one road from Bombay to Ahmedabad, and I can assure you that we will not ask for anything more for several years to come. Of course, the road is likely to cost a very large amount, but the expenditure could be distributed over a number of years. If you look to the income and expenditure sides, you will find that Gujarat contributes a very handsome surplus to the Government revenues. The one district of Surat alone contributes a net surplus of no less than 50 lakhs of rupees to the Government treasury. Of course we do not want to go on the principle that whatever we give should be spent in our district, but we do certainly maintain that those districts which contribute handsomely to the provincial exchequer should receive an equally good treatment as other parts which do not contribute so handsomely. We are entitled to receive equal, if not better, treatment. But we find we are being treated very shabbily. I do not know what has been the cause. It may be because Ahmedabad has never been the seat of Government. Poona is the headquarters of Government for several months in the year, and naturally it is likely to receive greater attention and better communications. Now, if you look at this budget we find that new works and works in progress are estimated to an expenditure of nearly 50 lakhs of rupees. Out of that there is not a single pie to be spent either in Surat district or in Broach district, and each of these districts contributes a handsome surplus to the Government treasury. As a matter of fact in the whole of Gujarat the total of the schemes is 3½ lakhs and this year the amount proposed to be spent is Rs. 51,000. If we take Poona District alone, we find that the total of the schemes is Rs. 11,80,000. If we take East Khandesh, the total schemes are for Rs. 10,50,000. For the one district of Poona you have got schemes which are going to cost Rs. 11,80,000. For the whole of Gujarat the schemes cost about 3½ lakhs, and for the two districts of Surat and Broach you have not provided even one pie for any scheme. Yet, I am prepared to lay down a challenge to any Government officer who has served in Surat, who has got an intimate knowledge of the Surat communications, to deny that communications in the Surat district are probably the worst in the whole of the presidency. My honourable friend Rao Bahadur Naik invited the Honourable Minister to visit the Surat district in the monsoon. I am sure the Honourable Minister would not be able to get very far into the district; unless he took a big elephant he would not be able to go very far. I would also invite him to visit the Surat district and ask him to see for himself what the state of the communictions is in that district. At present there is a road in the Surat district which has been a provincial road for the past several years. That is in charge of Government. Yet the Honourable Minister has admitted that even bullock carts cannot pass along that road in the monsoon. A provincial road which has been in charge of Government for several years is in such a condition that even bullock carts cannot pass along it. I ask, is this not a disgrace to Government? First of all they do not take up a sufficient length of roads as provincial roads in Gujarat, and secondly even the short distance that they have taken up they are not maintaining in good condition. This road is from Navsari to Chikhli taluka beyond Sisodra. It was stated by Government in reply to a question asked by me that even bullock carts cannot go along that road in the monsoon. How long will they take to improve that provincial road? If you told any one that in the Bombay Presidency we have got a provincial road along which even bullock carts cannot pass, he would certainly be greatly amused and he would think that our Bombay Government was very incompetent and inefficient. The other great inconvenience is that we have got several unbridged rivers. Surat district is near the sea and several rivers get tidal water and sometimes for a period of as much as eight to ten hours at a stretch the rivers are not fordable. Bulsar is probably the biggest taluka town. It has got a river to the north, the Auranga, and for about eight to ten hours at a stretch, when the tide comes in, the river cannot be crossed and all vehicular traffic is held up for eight to ten hours at a stretch.

There was formerly a scheme for a bridge on the Auranga river and I believe Government have prepared an estimate for that. But I do not know when they are going to get that bridge ready. When His Excellency the Governor visited Bulsar, the people of Bulsar made a request to him for this bridge. A great inconvenience is caused to people, as large traffic is carried on from the north of Bulsar. I do not want to put forward the claims of a particular place, but I certainly do feel that we have not been treated fairly by this Government. We are entitled to receive our due share of the amount, which Government may be in a position to spend. To reply " we have no funds " is not proper. I do not say " Give us this much or that much." But I say that Government should give us our due share. We are contributing more than our due share. We are probably contributing twice as much on a proportionate basis. When we are contributing so handsomely, we certainly expect to get our due share out of the funds that are available. I, therefore, trust that the Honourable Minister will distribute funds according to the claims of different places. At one time the Honourable Minister said "If you want all these facilities, give us more money by way of more taxation." I would tell him that my demand is not that Government should give us this much. But my demand is that we should get our proper share. At least give us one trunk road for Gujarat. You have given several to other parts of the presidency, so why not give us at least one such road. If this is given, we will not ask Government to give us more for some years to come. I, therefore, hope Government will give a considerate reply to this demand made by me.

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER : Sir, At the outset I regret to have to bring to the notice of the honourable House that my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Naik—either wittingly or unwittingly—was guilty of making a seriously misleading statement in his remarks regarding a certain official communication which was made to him on the subject of the audit of expenditure of grants-in-aid from Government by the Local Boards. He quoted certain extracts from an official document which according to him prescribed that the programmes of works to be undertaken by the Local Boards with the aid of the grants made by Government were to be approved by the Collectors, and that the expenditure on such works was not to be passed till the Collector had certified that these works had been satisfactorily completed. Now, Sir, these extracts were taken from a memorandum addressed by Government to the Commissioners in which it was stated that the procedure mentioned in these extracts had been suggested to Government, and the Commissioners were asked to favour Government with their remarks on them. Presumably the Commissioner, Northern Division, forwarded this memorandum to my honourable friend, who is the President of the District Local Board, Surat, for favour of his remarks before he reported to Government. It will thus be seen that the extracts quoted by my honourable friend did not contain any orders, but merely suggestions and that these suggestions were circulated by Government with the object of obtaining the opinions of their officers and of the Local Boards before taking any definite action on them. I think, Sir, that my honourable friend should have read this memorandum more carefully and with his experience should have been able to distinguish between a Government Resolution and a memorandum calling for remarks,—before he came before this honourable House and made the misleading statement which he made yesterday. I ask the honourable House to consider whether his action was fair.....

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : On a point of information, Sir. Has not this suggestion of the Examiner been approved by Government ?

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER: It was not approved. I would refer the honourable member to the extracts from the memorandum. It is perfectly clear from their wording that the suggestions were being circulated or opinions before Government passed any orders on them.

I would now ask this honourable House to consider how important it is that a strict check should be kept on the expenditure of the grants-in-aid made to local bodies. It has to be remembered that the resources of the District Local Boards are derived to the extent of four-fifths from grants-in-aid made to them by Government from the amounts voted by this honourable House. The Honourable Minister and this Department are in the position of trustees in regard to the funds voted by this House for such grants-in-aid, and are bound to take all possible precautions to see that they are properly expended. They can only do this by maintaining a strict audit on such expenditure, and insisting that the works done are inspected by their local officers who are in the best position to know whether such works are carried out or not.

I must remind this honourable House that in two districts recently Government have had an unfortunate experience of the working of the District Local Boards. The honourable members are familiar with what has happened at Sholapur where the District Local Board has been superseded. In that case it was proved that monies were paid to parties, and it cannot be established that these parties were entitled to the sums they received. In the other case which is at present under enquiry the evidence of over-payments and of improper payments is so considerable that it is reasonable to hold that disbursements amounting to about two lakhs of rupees are open to the suspicion that due care has not been exercised in controlling these payments. I regret to say that there are two other cases which have recently come to the notice of Government in which certain members of the local bodies concerned have made definite complaints against the boards regarding the irregularity of their expenditure. In view of these experiences I maintain, Sir, that if the Honourable Minister did not insist on a strict audit and inspection he would be failing in a proper sense of his responsibilities.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: Are you judging him?

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER: No, Sir. I would only add that so far from considering the present check imposed by the Audit Department adequate, the Auditor-General in a strongly worded letter which he has recently addressed to the Finance Department has threatened to accept no further responsibility for local audit unless it is tightened up and steps are taken to see that the irregularities pointed out by the Audit Officers are promptly rectified.

Mr. A. D. SHETH (Ahmedabad District): Sir, while supporting this cut of my honourable friend Rao Saheb Dadubhai Desai, I wish to place before this House some of the ideas which I hold about the Public Works Department. Only yesterday the Honourable Minister said to the House how it is difficult to secure money from the Honourable the Finance Member, and yet he received a good deal of money for this transferred part of his department. We all very much wish that everything given to the transferred department should be very jealously guarded and, as a matter of fact, no retrenchment is ever desired by this part of the House in the matter of transferred departments. But the fact stands that we do require more money. Our necessities are certainly great. Government purse is certainly tight. In that case, we ought to find out some remedy whereby we can fulfil our desires and may not have to go to Government at every time. For this reason, I believe that we ought to go at least once into the whole question very seriously to consider whether there is a real necessity or whether any real retrenchment can be effected in the Public Works Department. I believe, Sir, it is possible. There is a very wide scope of retrenchment in Public Works Department, and I say, Sir, that I do not speak it airily. I want to speak concretely. From the experience of my constituency and my taluka I want to point out to the Honourable Minister that though the local board sundry works like schools, tanks, dharamshalas and other buildings are far outnumbering the Public Works Department works in the taluka, and though the local board has got about 10 miles of metalled roads and 36 miles of unmetalled roads, and the Public Works Department has got 54 miles of metalled roads, and the local board has got three bridges while the Public Works Department has got none, yet, Sir, with about 46 miles of road of the taluka local board with three bridges and a number of small sundry works, we have got only one overseer, two mistries and two karkuns. And with 54 miles of metalled road and with very little sundry work, the Public Works Department have maintained one sub-divisional officer, (the assistant engineer), some three overseers, and sub-overseers, road karkuns and mistries. Only two years back, Sir, this Public Works Department handed over to the local board 10 miles of metalled road. From these two years' experience of ours, I can very confidently say, Sir, that what we inherited from the Public Works Department we have found to be a very, very expensive boy in our family—a boy who can very easily be treated with only necessaries of life—was being given all the luxuries which the Public Works Department was capable of giving. I mean, in these two years' experience we have been able to reduce establishment expenditure on that road by about one-third. The three bridges that we have been given for the last two years, every year I am particularly visiting to find out whether the budgeted amount can be spent, and I very frankly say that I am always puzzled how to spend that budgeted amount for current repairs for these bridges. I enquired of some of the old workers how this Public Works Department could spend all this amount, and I will be content with saying that everything was not quite proper. I mean, after only two years' experience both the taluka local board and the district local board presidents have concurred that on the expenditure side even keeping the condition of the roads and bridges even better, we can certainly reduce that expenditure by one-third. I say, Sir, that after we, the taluka local board, got the management from the Public Works Department both in the establishment and in the expenditure we have found that we can reduce the expenditure on both grounds. Now, Sir, in our taluka we have one road from

[Mr. A. D. Sheth]

Ranpur to Dhandhuka, and one from Dhandhuka to Bhimnath. They are very good roads and necessary to be maintained throughout. But, Sir, for the last five years after we have got a railway in the taluka, the traffic on these roads is not even five per cent. of what it was in pre railway days, and still the same sort of establishment continues and no appreciable change has been effected even in the expenditure. I do not say so for the reason of criticising. I want to point out, Sir, that this particular side of the Public Works Department expenditure, that is, recurring expenditure, has not been very seriously looked into. Every year "ditto" is being passed, current expenditure is being sanctioned, so much per cent. for construction, so much per cent. for building, and so on, the same as before. Like that things continue to go on, and I believe if some very serious business is made and if enquiry is being made about every recurring expenditure to be incurred, there would be a lot of saving in other talukas as there is in my own. So far as the engineering works both of the local board and the Public Works Department in our taluka are concerned I am quite sure, I speak from the administrative point of view, I do not speak as a mere critic in this House, I manage this road as the president of the taluka local board for the last two years and I confidently say that even if both these works of the Public Works Department and local board are to be done, at least half the expenditure in establishment can be very easily reduced and at least one-third on the expenditure side can be as well reduced.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Without interfering with efficiency?

Mr. A. D. SHETH: Yes.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Without interfering with the efficiency?

Mr. A. D. SHETH: Yes, without interfering with the efficiency. My reply to my honourable friend's enquiry is that I challenge the Public Works Engineers to visit the district local board roads in my district of Ahmedabad and say whether or not they are on par if not better roads than the Public Works roads. I say if this matter is very seriously looked into, quite a decent saving could be effected and that saving could be utilised for the benefit of the department from which retrenchment may be made. I do not say that money saved by retrenchment from a transferred department should be handed over to any other department or that it should go into the general coffers of Government. In my district if things are managed economically and in a business-like way, there would be a very substantial amount of retrenchment which can be profitably spent for popular purposes. My concrete suggestion to the Honourable Minister would be to appoint some sort of a committee to go in detail into the current expenditure of the Public Works Department in the light of the new situation arising owing to the railway and to see whether it would not be possible to reduce the establishment to an appreciable extent. A substantial reduction of establishment without loss of efficiency is possible at least in my district. I do not know whether it would be possible in other districts but it would be the duty of the proposed committee or of Government to find out what can be done to curtail the establishment charges in other districts. In all probability, the situation in other districts will resemble that in my own district.

My honourable friend Rao Bahadur Naik spoke yesterday about the interference of the District Collector in the matter of these district local board roads. The Honourable Minister then shook his head and said " Oh, if we don't control the money that we give to local bodies, then it might get all spent up in other directions. " Till a couple of years back we thought and understood that all the grants that were being given by Government to district local boards were grants to be spent on any part of the district local board's activities. We now know that that was a misunderstanding on our part. If I remember rightly, this has been the attitude taken up by Government only since last year and after that there has been no diversion of money. My honourable friend Mr. Turner said that auditing must be there. I assure you on behalf of local bodies that auditing must be there and we do welcome it, in fact we would not mind even more severe auditing than that called for by Government. We appreciate that the honour of elected representatives and the honour of self-governing institutions is closely involved in the proper use of funds placed at the disposal of local bodies and therefore we want a certificate from the auditors to that effect. We know we the elected non-official put at the head of the executive have got to entrust many times many things to office people and therefore auditing must in every case be insisted on. We welcome it most wholeheartedly, but what we seriously object to is the interference by the District Collectors. What is the meaning of Collectors interfering in matters like water supply, wells, tanks, roads etc. etc. ? Only recently we passed a famine grant of Rs. 3,29,000 for water supply in the districts affected by famine or liable to famine. That grant will go to local bodies. Together with these grants a number of conditions are being attached. Even that I don't so much object to. Let mamlatdars, assistant collectors or Collectors have all sorts of inspections they like. That would keep us more vigilant. Our objection is against the power of veto exercised by the Collectors. We pass an item and the Collector vetoes it. That sort of thing we object to.

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER : I made it plain then to Rao Bahadur Naik that they were mere suggestions by Collectors and not orders.

Mr. A. D. SHETH : I did understand Honourable Mr. Turner rightly. But I refer not to roads but to Bhal water supply to which I come just now.

Now, as regards the grant for Bhal water supply which is given by the Revenue Department to local bodies, the contention of the Revenue Department is that it is Government money and the man who pays the piper must call the tune. So they say, " the money is ours and we will conduct the whole affair. " They only ask from us our plans. We give plans say for Rs. 65,000 and they sanction about Rs. 30,000. They argue, therefore, they ought to have some control over the expenditure of that money. I quite agree that it is a Government grant. But where does the money come from ? It is public money. It comes from the people who pay taxes. The people living in local board areas pay taxes to Government. Water supply is not a part of the Revenue Department's work. It is not the business of revenue collection or anything connected with assessments due from agriculturists. It has been conceded to be the business of the local bodies which are conversant with local conditions in every taluka and in every village. The local bodies maintain their own technical staff such as engineers and so on, they have with them members who have personal knowledge of real situation, while the Revenue Department have no such technical staff, nor personal knowledge. What do their mamlatdars and assistant collectors know of technical matters, rates of labour and so on ? I say, therefore, that this sort of Government policy is not conducive to really good work ; on the contrary it handicaps heavily the legitimate work of the local bodies. I therefore strongly urge that the local bodies should be allowed a free hand in these matters (subject of course to the usual auditing) as they are matters which are primarily and substantially a concern of themselves and not of the Revenue Department of Government.

With regard to Gujarat roads, there has been a lot of complaint and possibly the Honourable Minister and other honourable members have by now got tired of hearing the same song. They may think that Gujarat is a bit jealous of Poona or other districts in the Deccan. Far from it. We very much relish that our friends in the Deccan are having their road requirements properly looked after. Whether they are or are not well looked after, our case is that we deserve better treatment both because we pay the highest revenue to Government and because Gujarat is now in a miserable condition. Possibly when members like myself make use of the word " misery " it may be taken to be a mere exaggeration. It is not so. Some of my honourable friends have spoken about the situation in the district of Surat, etc. In my taluka of the Ahmedabad district we have what are called Bhal villages, villages which are not fordable even on foot or horse-back or in bullock carts for one month continuously. Instances have happened when one man, having gone out to a village for some work just before the monsoon, has not been able to return home because the monsoon started and for about 20 to 25 days there was no other way back, neither a track nor a road nor a village path of any sort or kind. This is the condition in Gujarat not in one taluka only but in many talukas of Dhanduka, Dholka, Viramgam and other talukas also. I can quite realise that we cannot spend a lot of money on having metalled or trunk roads in these places because to do so would be awfully expensive, but this is a matter which deserves special consideration. Some way ought to be found whereby these places may be made fordable either on foot or in bullock carts especially at such times of the year when the monsoon makes it impossible to go from one place to another. Lastly I draw the special attention of the Honourable Minister to the resolution recently passed by the Ahmedabad district local board which has made some concrete proposals for road making. And I wish and request that the same would receive the very generous support of the Honourable Minister and the Government. With these remarks I conclude.

Khan Bahadur S. N. BHUTTO (Larkana District): Sir, as a representative from Sind, I wish to offer a few remarks so far as the roads in Sind are concerned, so that it may not be misunderstood that my province has no cause to complain. Sir, really our tale is more painful than that of the other parts of the presidency. The roads in Sind are in a more disgraceful state than those in the other parts of the presidency, or in any parts of the whole of India. Sir, we have got no metalled roads worth the name, except a few miles here and there, and I am sure I will be borne out in this by most of my official friends as well as non-officials who represent Sind. I am surprised at the criticism from honourable members from all parts of the country, where we know they are far better situated, and almost all these crores of rupees that have been spent for roads have been utilised mostly in those parts of the presidency which are the foremost to express their dissatisfaction and disappointment, and are not satisfied in spite of the crores that have been utilised and spent for their comfort and convenience, while we from Sind are hopelessly watching, and asking for, what has already been done for all other parts of the presidency. In fairness it is only our province which has utterly been neglected by giving preference to the rest of the presidency, who do not seem even to thank Government inspite of all what has been done for them. Then, Sir, the railway service. Let us compare, it is far more inferior in my part of the country than in the rest of India. For instance, it will not stand any comparison with the railway service between Bombay and Poona which have got excellent metalled roads in addition connecting all parts of Deccan. But even between Ahmedabad and Bombay the railway service is far superior, than we in Sind can expect during next half a century unless we have got our own Government to put things right for us. Sir, unfortunately, when we see the roads in the neighbouring provinces on our frontier, we realize the extent to which Bombay Government have neglected us, we cannot claim to be put on the same level as those in Punjab, the most fortunate lot, where one finds prosperity alround, but even the bankrupt province of Baluchistan, which depends on the charity of the Government of India, can claim far superior metalled trunk roads and communication than Sind can dream of for another 25 years. Sir, on the completion of the Barrage we expect a general development of Sind, and unless improvement of communications are immediately taken in hand, I think we will be very much handicapped so far as the export of our raw material is concerned. Sir, Government ought to very seriously consider road question in Sind and to start with take up at least one of the trunk roads, I mean the trunk road on the Right Bank, which is the most important road in the province of Sind, passing through Barrage zone used by high officials frequently, having heavy public traffic and used by Military while marching from Quetta to Karachi or Hyderabad.

[Khan Bahadur S. N. Bhutto]

Sir, the district local boards are doing their best to keep these roads in good condition. We know that the cost incurred by the local boards in the maintenance of the roads is far less than that incurred by the Public Works Department. The Honourable Minister who is in charge of Civil Works, when he was last at Larkana, had an opportunity to drive about 15 miles on a district local board road and 6 miles on Public Works Department roads, the cost of maintenance of the former is Rs. 70 to Rs. 80 per mile, while the latter from Oaki to Muhejo Dero which is in charge of Public Works Department cost over Rs. 1,000 per mile for maintenance. Now, I do not know why Government should hesitate to transfer these provincial roads to the local boards, when they can safely save so much money, and from the savings they can improve and maintain at least a far greater area of the roads, than it is done for the present.

Sir, I know that the Government have appointed a special officer to investigate the problem of roads in Sind. But the special officer will hopelessly fail in his efforts after wasting huge public funds, if he doesn't acquaint himself with local circumstances, and does not take the local boards into his confidence and if he does not carry on experiments in consultation with them, and no good results would be achieved. One of our young honourable members of this House, Mr. Soomro came to our rescue recently, when this special officer was proposing to carry out an experiment at a cost of Rs. 18,000 on a portion of a road in the face of all adverse circumstances. The experiment had proved total failure, with Rs. 18,000 loss to taxpayers and with a detrimental result to our province if it had been submitted to Government and had not the honourable Mr. Soomro pointed out all defects to the chief engineer who agreeing with Mr. Soomro changed the site at once, and accepted Mr. Soomro's suggestions in full. Sir, some of the honourable members are under wrong impression owing to their ignorance, that we have got camel services and need no roads. There is no part in Sind where there is no water and motor lorries' heavy traffic and local boards cannot meet the maintenance cost for want of funds. The Local Boards Act of 1923—gives local boards powers to impose additional taxation. Some of the local boards, particularly my own at Larkana, took action immediately and imposed the taxes in face of strong public opposition on the understanding that the Government will appreciate our courage and action and will give us full support. On the contrary Government have created all possible difficulties in our way and have taken years simply to accord their approval to our proposed taxes. Does it mean that the Executive desire us to prove a failure ? If affairs are so slow, I do not know whether we can expect much improvement and progress under the circumstances.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI (Belgaum District) : Sir, I rise to support the cut. Just now we have heard complaints from all districts that their demands are not being met, and sufficient money is not provided for their requirements. The Honourable Minister for Local Self-government has himself complained that the demands are many, and that he has not got sufficient money on account of financial stringency. He has not got even that much amount which he had received last year. He has received less than that to the extent of Rs. 7,50,000 for next year. But this reduced amount for Civil Works (transferred) when compared with the increased amount that has been given for the reserved side is worth studying, and I leave it to the Honourable the Finance Member and the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government to explain it, because, only the other day the Honourable Minister rather waxed eloquent that the Finance Department was helping him always, and he himself now raises the cry that he has received less, although the demands are many.

Sir, I maintain that the establishment charges have gone up to the extent of 40 per cent. and when it is said that they have gone up only to 30 per cent., I think my honourable friend Mr. Shivdasani has not taken into account certain deductions which have to be made from the total. Grants to local boards to the extent of Rs. 19 lakhs and Rs. 1 lakh reserve with the Government have got to be deducted. If that is done, there remains a sum of Rs. 71 lakhs, and the establishment charges calculated on that amount come to 40 per cent.

Are these not very heavy ? I wish to draw the attention of the House as well as of the Minister to the fact that although on account of financial stringency there has been less expenditure on works, the establishments remain the same, and consequently the charges are getting higher. Since 1921-22 the length of roads under Public Works Department has been reduced by 1,433 miles. In 1921-22 there were 9,951 miles of roads while in 1927-28 they are only 8,518. In the year 1921-22 the cost per mile of repairs and maintenance was only Rs. 256 while in 1927 it has gone up to Rs. 406 ; an increase of nearly 59 per cent. This has been admitted by Government themselves. I am quoting the very figures given by the Government. Government have further admitted that this increase has occurred in spite of the fact that the rates have fallen very considerably. If that is so, what explanation have they to offer for this increase of nearly 59 per cent. in the charges for maintenance and repairs. Is there no room for reduction ? Is there no room for retrenchment ? Why this increase has taken place ? Further, without heeding the recommendations of the retrenchment committee and the retrenchment officer, they have gone on creating new posts involving large expenditure. A new circle to my surprise has been created called the Irrigation Development and Research Circle in the Deccan. (An Honourable Member : It is not new.) That appears under 41, Civil Works. So, I mention it. This book which I hold in my hand concerns entirely 41, Civil Works and the creation of the post appears under this head. Following are some of the proposals made by the retrenchment committee and the retrenchment officer which have not been carried out. I mention them for the information of this House and of the Honourable Minister in order that he may reduce the expenditure on this account and meet the demand of the people with that saving. The system of permanent travelling allowance has not been applied in the case of the upper-subordinates and officers of the Provincial Service of the Public Works Department, while it has been given effect to in regard to only certain officers. I fail to understand why this system should not have been given effect to in the case of all officers in the Public Works Department. The sub-division allowance has not been stopped. The retrenchment officer and the retrenchment committee have remarked that this sub-division allowance should go, but still we find that it has been maintained, although I must state that it has been reduced from 75 to 50. Even in spite of this reduction it is not necessary and should be done away with. Then again, I fail to understand why the headquarters works division, the Sub-divisions of Sholapur and Ahmednagar, East Khandesh and West Khandesh and Dharwar Irrigation works are maintained, in spite of the unanimous recommendations of the retrenchment committee and those of the retrenchment officer appointed by Government themselves. The retrenchment committee recommended a reduction of Rs. 14,52,000 for the whole of the Public Works Department and what Government have done is to effect only a retrenchment of Rs. 3,46,000. There ought also to be a transfer of roads from the Public Works Department to local boards, where local boards have a qualified engineer whose appointment has been approved by Government. It was intended that there ought to be a programme and a system whereby seven selected districts were to be brought under this new experiment in the first instance. But that has for the present been postponed on account of the view taken by the roads committee. But there is no objection to try the experiment in individual districts as is being done now in Ahmednagar and Poona districts. If the roads are transferred the expenditure will be less.

With regard to the complaint of interference I want to say this. Interference by revenue officers, that is, Collectors, is one thing and audit is entirely a different thing. No doubt the functions of the local boards have been enlarged and larger powers have been given. But one blunder has been committed by Government. It seems that the Government want to see that these powers are misused and then to say that we are unworthy of them. When functions of local boards are expanded and more powers are given, along with it Government ought to have provided for the power of proper check. The powers of surcharge and disallowance have not been given. Even in England where local self-government has reached a stage which we have not yet reached these powers are provided for. Had these powers been given there would not have been instances like Nasik and Sholapur District Local Board. In the Madras presidency these powers are given. The local fund audit department has brought this to the notice of the Government in their report. (An Honourable Member : Where is that ?) I have not got the audit report here ; otherwise I would have pointed it out. By this power of check members are personally held responsible for any loss or damage caused by mismanagement, if certified to that effect by an auditor. In order that the auditor may not misuse his power, a right of appeal is given which will lie either to Government or to a civil court. If in the appeals also the decision of the auditor is upheld, the members responsible for the damage are made to pay. The very existence of such a power will prevent mistakes. (Interruption). This power has been given to the Audit Department all over the world. I challenge any member to show a local institution either in America, England or Europe where this power has not been provided for. Because these powers are not given here, mistakes are committed sometimes by ignorant members and Government pounce upon them saying that they are not fit to use any power. If powers of check are provided for such mistakes will not occur. (An Honourable Member: What is the power of surcharge and what is the power of disallowance ?) These powers are defined.

With regard to the plea of trusteeship, I at once say that along with Government we also are equally responsible for the money spent. It is not only men like the honourable member the Secretary to Government who are trustees, but also we who sit in the opposite benches. We also want to see that the moneys are spent in the best interests of the people and we do not want to see them misused. We want more powers : at the same time we do want to see that those powers are used in the best interests of the ratepayers and the people. The example of Nasik and that of Sholapur may be quoted. But I can throw that charge on the face of Government by quoting the Bombay Development Department.

Sir, as regards the distribution of grants to district local boards I have got one complaint to make. I say that Karnatak has been very badly treated. Gujarat has complained ; I do not know whether the Deccan is going to complain or not ; Sind has also complained. Although the Minister is from Sind still the Sindhis also have complained that they have been badly treated. But I should like to point out that Sind has been fairly treated. (Rao Saheb R. V. Vandekar : By facts and figures). Yes. I shall prove now. Under the local boards Sind has got 10,870 miles of road of which only 40 are metalled roads.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: Is that kutcha ?

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : If you do not understand, you sit quiet.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : Under the local boards Sind has got 10,870 miles of road of which only 40 miles are metalled, while the local boards in the presidency have got 10,970 miles of road of which 2,790 are metalled roads. Yet, the grant given for Sind is in exactly the same proportion in which grants are given to other divisions. Is this not starving the district local boards in other divisions ? Is expenditure the same on metalled as on unmetalled roads or fair weather roads ? (An honourable member : More on unmetalled roads). I believe metalled roads require more expenditure than unmetalled or fair weather roads. If that is correct, then Sind people have got no reason to complain. At the same time if Sind requires more roads, let us combine and take funds from the reserve side and help the Minister to provide more money for roads.

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR : Prove it.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : I can prove it.

Then my honourable friend Mr. Karki complained that Kanara is not being given more. But I complain that Belgaum has been robbed in order to give more to districts like Bijapur. (At this stage there was interruption from some honourable members). I challenge. You have been given more. The Commissioner of the Southern Division is here. He has given more for the District Local Board of Bijapur than for the Board of Belgaum.....

Mr. H. L. PAINTER: Sir, on a point of information. I have been round all the districts of the division during the present touring season and the president of every single district local board in the Southern Division has made to me the identical complaint the honourable member is making, that is to say, that his own district has been sacrificed for others. If all the six district local board presidents will meet and come to an unanimous decision as to the manner in which the grant provided for the division should be distributed, I give a guarantee that it will be distributed in the manner they desire.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI: All I can say is that it is robbing Peter to pay Paul. As we want more money we must help the Honourable Minister to get more money: instead of starving the roads, let him fight and give us more money.....

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: From the House.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District): Sir, my chief complaint is that sufficient money has not been provided by Government for improving means of communication in this presidency. There have been complaints from Gujarat, complaints from Sind, complaints from almost every district that they want more money provided for this purpose. The honourable member for Kanara (Mr. Karki) gave at very great length a lucid description of the condition of roads in his district. The condition of the roads in my district—I may say, I have travelled through many of the talukas of Kanara District—is far worse than the roads in Kanara. I think that description will be enough to give you an idea of the condition of the roads in the district of East Khandesh. Now, I find that there is a provision of Rs. 1,86,000 for Poona, Rs. 1,29,000 for Nasik, Rs. 60,600 for Ahmednagar, Rs. 59,400 for West Khandesh. But unfortunately the district of East Khandesh has been provided only with an amount of Rs. 25,500. Now, Sir, in the district of East Khandesh there is a main road which connects this district with the Nizam's Dominions, and that is known as the Outram Ghat Road. Questions were asked in this Council in the July session with regard to the condition of this road, and it was admitted by Government that the road was in a very bad and unsatisfactory condition. The road when it passes into the Nizam's Dominions is, I think, ten times better than when it passes through our presidency. This road is also so narrow at certain places that two carts cannot pass at a time. There is no parapet on the valley side of the road when it passes through the Ghats. All these facts were admitted by Government in the last July session. They stated then that the matter of improving that road was under consideration. Having regard to the importance of the road, I am surprised to find that all this consideration has resulted only in the provision of an amount of Rs. 3,000 for improving this road which consists of 25 miles. I do not know how this amount of Rs. 3,000 is going to improve this road of 25 miles length.

[Mr. H. V. Pataskar]

Then, Sir, there is another important road which runs from Malegaon to Chalisgaon and after that to Bhusaval and connects our presidency with the Berars and the Central Provinces. With regard to that road, I think the Chalisgaon-Malegaon section has been under construction for the past 20 years. On this road as soon as we leave the borders of Nasik and enter East Khandesh, we find there are no bridges; ditches have been left in places where bridges were intended to be constructed. This has been the condition for the last seven years, and no provision has been made yet to make it safe for the public. With regard to that road also it was stated by Government that the matter was under consideration. I find, however, that the provision made for this road is only Rs. 12,000. I do not know how they are going to construct bridges over this road with an amount of Rs. 12,000. Then, on the Outram Ghat Road, they constructed a causeway near Chalisgaon town in about 1918. That causeway was intended to enable people on the station side of the city to go to the other side of the city in the monsoon.

What has been the result? A causeway was constructed in such a manner that there were no sufficient outlets kept and the current of the river was diverted. There has been this diversion of the current of the river towards the old town threatening to cause considerable damage to the property. In that connection I put a question in July session last year calling the attention of Government to this fact but the Government replied "that there is no definite evidence to show that the current of the river was diverted." I say it is a fact that the current is diverted. Any child from Chalisgaon town over sixteen years of age will be able to state that the current has diverted, but the Government say that there is no definite evidence of this diversion. I think Government cannot say so. They say so simply because the officers who were responsible for the construction of the causeway report to them accordingly. The officers must be rather reluctant to admit the mistake which they made in the construction of this causeway.

Then, Sir, in the district of East Khandesh whenever we have to pass from one taluka to another, we have to cross some river or rather whenever we have to pass from Chalisgaon to Dhulia or Chalisgaon to Pachora, we have to do so. There is no causeway anywhere at all.

I was amused at the remarks of some honourable members that more money has been spent for the Central Division. That is not absolutely correct. My district does not come under those districts which are nearer Poona, and, therefore, it has been badly treated in the matter of roads. The former Commissioner, Mr. Hatch, has admitted to me in private conversation that the district of East Khandesh has been badly treated in the matter of roads. Our new Commissioner is new to this Division. If he visits this district he will also find that my district has been neglected in the matter of roads. I, therefore, appeal to the Honourable Minister to pay some more attention to my district.

The THAKOR OF KERWADA (Northern Division): Sir, at the outset I should make a reference to the speech of the honourable member, Mr. Turner, who stated that Government suggestions are carried out by the Commissioner and though it may have been conveyed as a suggestion by the Commissioner, really speaking in certain cases we know how these suggestions are given effect to. Suggestions made by the Commissioner are many a time treated as orders by the local officers.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : On the point of explanation, Sir, I may inform the honourable member that the district local board was invited to make remarks.

The THAKOR OF KERWADA : I would submit, Sir, that in certain respects the district local board has to consult certain officers when a certain work is to be undertaken. Take, for instance, the excavation of a tank, provided from the water grant, the collector does not know anything about this and therefore he has to refer this matter to the mamlatdar. Then the matter goes back to the local board after a very long time with remarks of the mamlatdar and it takes such a long time that sometimes the work cannot be completed in time. Thus it causes great delay. I remember when the Honourable the Revenue Member had visited my district, a complaint was made that a certain correspondence was not forwarded by the collector to the department concerned for a long time, and the Honourable the Revenue Member then told us that in cases of urgency, a copy of the correspondence should be sent direct to the department.

Now, if you look at the budget, what do we find ? You will see that about Rs. 11 lakhs have been provided for the construction and improvement of roads round about Poona alone, whereas Broach and Surat do not get a single farthing for this purpose. The district from which I come pays the highest taxation per head and still what is the condition of the roads there ? It is in a bad condition so far as the roads are concerned. About a few years back, one road was constructed, one provincial road, which leads from Municipal Road to the European Gymkhana, and that road is about two hundred yards. Since then we have got only 56 miles of the road but for many years we did not get any share out of that for our roads. I may inform the Honourable Minister that for want of better roads, my district is suffering a heavy loss. If the Honourable Minister will visit my district in heavy rains, he will see the condition of the roads. I cannot supply him with a camel to take him round, bullock cart cannot move and even walking is impossible and I may have to get an elephant for him to tour in the district. Well, Sir, I say this is a gross injustice to Gujarat. I am sure the Honourable Minister,—I do not know, unless he is well up in the art of jugglery in figures,— has to admit that Gujarat has suffered very badly in this matter and is treated in a way in which any civilised Government cannot treat the taxpayers. I want to suggest, and I am sure many honourable members, I think, would agree with me, that we have come to this stage that I do think that a redistribution of this grant is absolutely necessary. Gujarat districts pay the highest revenue to Government, yet they have no good roads. I think those districts that have got good roads can afford to wait for further improvement. But this House should urge upon the Honourable Minister for a redistribution of the grants, and I hope that the Honourable Minister will adopt that course, which is the only alternative by which this problem can be solved.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD (Poona City): Sir, I confine myself only to two items to draw the attention of the Honourable Minister. The first and foremost item is the drainage scheme of the Poona municipality. The other day, while speaking on that subject, I remarked that drainage water was let into the river. The Honourable Minister replied that I was wrong. .....

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I did not say "wrong".

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD: He said the drainage water was taken to Manjri farm side. That was the statement he made. But before contradicting him here, I tried to make myself sure whether my information was correct or not, and on further enquiry, Sir, and after a personal inspection of the place, I find that my information is correct. The other day I personally saw the place in company with the president of the municipality, and if the Honourable Minister is anxious, I can take him to Poona by the week-end ticket and bring him back on Monday here, and will satisfy you that not only in one place but in three or four places the drainage water is let into the river. The Honourable Minister was under a wrong impression. I tell you the reason. The drainage scheme was first prepared by Sir Visweswarayya in the year 1906. It was undertaken by the Government in 1910. It was entrusted to Mr. Mandy, who committed a series of blunders, and the drainage scheme went on till the year 1916. It was a hopeless failure. It was a waste of money. So, Government appointed one Mr. Watson, who was an expert from Nottingham to go into the whole matter. He pointed out a number of defects, and there was a large correspondence, and it was only in the year 1920, when all these defects were pointed out to the Government by Mr. Watson, that the Government prepared a new scheme, and it was in the year 1922, after you, Sir, became a Minister, that there was a conference between you, twice, I believe, once in December and once in the month of January or February, a conference between you and.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. No direct addressing each other.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD: I beg your pardon. There was a conference between the Honourable Minister and the municipality, etc., and a new scheme was launched; the first scheme cost about 15 lakhs, out of which Government had paid as a grant 4/9ths and the other amount was advanced to the municipality as a loan at 4 per cent. interest. Then, the Honourable Minister wanted a new scheme and that scheme has cost about Rs. 35 lakhs. Of that Rs. 35 lakhs, half the amount is to be given by Government as a grant.....

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: On a point of order. Is this relevant under 41-Civil Works?

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD: In supporting the motion I have to dilate on drainage, because I have no horse like the honourable member to ride. This is a new scheme, a scheme combined with the drainage of the Poona City municipality, the cantonment and the suburban municipality. That scheme was undertaken by Government in 1925, and it is to be completed within three years. I hope it will be complete, it is expected to be complete, by the end of March 1928. At present the arrangement is this, Sir, that the drainage water is brought into the Rasta's Peth. There, they have a central pumping station. Unfortunately.....

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : May I rise to a point of explanation ? I informed the honourable House that under the new scheme the whole thing would be all right.....

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD : But the new scheme is not coming into operation, Sir,.....

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : It will.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD : I am only dilating on the point, Sir, to draw attention to the fact that Poona is supposed to be the pet child of the Honourable Minister and so he should hasten the matter. That is the only reason I have brought it to his attention. I must admit that he has treated Poona very sympathetically. Since he became Minister, he has given every support to Poona. Had it not been for the Honourable Sir Ghulam Hussain, this drainage scheme would not have come into operation at all. I only want to draw attention to the fact that he should try his best to hasten the matter and to see that once for all it is brought into execution. As long as the drainage stands incomplete, it is a source of danger to the city ; the river is full of drainage water, night soil and dirty water, and what not. So, he should hasten the matter.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member is repeating his arguments now.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD : The second item which I want to draw your attention to, Sir, is rather a delicate one. That is about the question of infectious diseases hospital. There is a grant for extension and development of the infectious diseases hospital, a grant of about Rs. 1,15,000. I do not want to raise any racial or communal question here. But unfortunately, our experience is that there is a very invidious distinction made here in the treatment of Europeans and Indians. The Poona municipality is asked to nominate one representative on that body. It was also asked to contribute something towards the upkeep and maintenance of this hospital. I believe the president of the municipality is on the board of management. He refused to contribute a single farthing, simply for the reason that there is individious distinction made in the treatment of Europeans and Indians. I do not know whether this grant is made only for adding to the European ward. But it is simply scandalous ; there is hardly anything to call a hospital room for Indians here.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Where is this ? And is it infectious or contagious hospital ?

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD : Contagious and infectious is the same thing. Before any expenditure is sanctioned, Sir, I only wish the Honourable Minister should make himself sure that no invidious distinction is made in the treatment given in this hospital. With these remarks, I resume my seat.

(After Recess)

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District) : Sir, before the debate on this subject is concluded, I would like to say a word in this connection. During the course of the day we have heard several complaints from honourable members representing various parts of the Presidency and Sind about the condition of roads. The complaints as regards roads in Sind are more genuine and of far greater importance and are far more serious in their character. In the matter of distribution of grants and in the matter of the distribution of roads, we cannot understand the policy of Government. Some—only a few—of the roads are called the P. W. D. roads. The rest are maintained by local boards. When some of the local board roads were handed over to the Public Works Department, people hoped that there would be considerable improvement and that the grievances of the people would be mitigated a good deal. But we have been disappointed sorely in this expectation.

As regards grants made to local boards for upkeep of roads, I must say with considerable regret that they are very meagre, and so the local boards have no funds to maintain their roads with. It is in my view most disgraceful that in the whole of Sind there should be so few pucca roads. With hardly seventy or eighty rupees per mile you cannot expect a district local board to keep its roads in proper repair especially in a hot climate and in sandy parts of Sind. Government always put forward the excuse that the local boards have got their own management, that it is not Government management, that they are authorised to levy taxes and raise funds to maintain their own roads. But when these very local boards take a practical and a bold step in the matter and come forward to tax their people in spite of the height of opposition and submit schemes of taxation to the Commissioner in Sind, that official holds them up in his office for months together under some excuse or other without any reply. Usually it is said that there is opposition from some section of the people and that therefore the tax cannot be sanctioned. Even such a small tax as a toll tax, which is so common in the presidency and levied on almost every road, is not yet sanctioned in Sind. Our efforts to raise money are thus handicapped. On the one hand we do not get funds from Government and on the other, we are not allowed to levy a fresh tax. That being so, it is impossible for local bodies to keep their roads in Sind in a suitable condition. The Honourable the Minister for Public Works himself comes from Sind and knows the condition of roads in Sind. He knows that the climate of Sind is hot and that most of the territory is a sandy tract and that for these two reasons a large amount of money is needed to keep the roads in Sind in proper condition. The only metalled road in Sind is, I believe, the one from Karachi to Malhir. The other roads are katcha roads. There is another length of about 15 to 16 miles from Jungshahi to Tatta. The most important length of all roads, running from Karachi to Quetta usually known as imperial road occasionally used by the military as well is also in wretched condition owing to want of funds. No substantial grant is provided by Government for it and such an important road is handed over to the district local boards without any grant for its maintenance. When the barrage is completed in a few years time the traffic will be far greater than at present. Many more lands will then come under cultivation and therefore there will be a great need for transport of agricultural produce and such other facilities as otherwise marketing of corn will be a very difficult problem for an agriculturist of Sind. Hence there will be no justification for Government to enhance the land assessment when they can't provide facilities in proportion to the needs of people. It is very unfortunate for Sind that although the Honourable Minister belongs to Sind and knows full well the condition of roads in Sind, he has not been able to provide enough money for the maintenance of roads in his own province. We do not know what the state of things will be when he relinquishes that portfolio for something higher. The grievance of Sind is a very genuine one and worth serious consideration. We do hope that substantial grants will be made for the improvement and maintenance of roads in Sind.

[Mr. M. S. Khuhro]

We are thankful to the Honourable Minister for the creation of a Road Board in this presidency, and for his having taken up one honourable member from Sind, the President of the Larkana district local board, as a member of the board, and we hope that he will be able to get sufficient money by way of taxes exclusively for the roads of this province, and we hope that some tax will be set aside exclusively for the roads of the province of Sind.

Sir, at present the fundamental need of the province is roads, and it is very necessary that funds should be provided as early as possible to commence the work on these roads. It cannot be finished soon, because programme is very long and consequently the Government will have to do it piece-meal, and it is essential therefore that no time should be lost over this matter. I would like to repeat the urgency of the taxation proposals being decided soon. I hope the Honourable Minister will take up that question, and ask the Commissioner in Sind to expedite the matter. All the local boards have been complaining bitterly that they do not get that response from Government which they ought to get. With these remarks, I resume my seat.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City): Sir, I do not wish to go into the question of the threat held out by my honourable friend from Kaira that should the Government neglect Gujarat as it has neglected it so far, then there will be a demand on behalf of Gujarat for a separate province for itself. I also know that Sind is already tired of the Bombay Government; so also the Karnatak is talking about its unification, and probably very soon Maharashtra will talk about combining with C. P. Marathi and form themselves into a province, thus reducing Bombay to the status of a city State anologus to that of the city of New York. That question gives one indication to the Government that, so far as these distant provinces constituting the component parts of the Bombay Presidency are concerned, they are not satisfied with the manner in which their affairs are being administered to-day. Those of my honourable friends who come from the different divisions of the presidency have ventilated their grievances, and it is my duty to join my honourable friends who come from Sind in bringing home to the Government of Bombay the utter neglect with which they have treated Sind so far. Sir, I was looking into the figures given in the Civil Works estimates from which I find that out of Rs. 7,80,000 provided out of current revenues for communications, not a single rupee has been allotted for roads in Sind. Then again, Sir, if you look at the capital works sanctioned, for communications you find that as against Rs. 71 lakhs commitment made by the Government, only Rs. 6,20,000 have been sanctioned for one road in Sind. That comes to only 8 per cent. of the total expenditure that is proposed to be incurred for improving communications throughout the presidency. Now, Sir, a most phenomenal contrast between the conditions in the presidency proper and Sind is revealed by the figures that I have been able to get from the honourable the Secretary of the Public Works Department that, as against 6,234 miles of metalled roads in the presidency proper, there is only an insignificant number of 63 miles of metalled roads all throughout Sind. Again, as against 765 miles of provincial unmetalled roads all throughout the presidency, there are 1,517 miles of unmetalled provincial roads in Sind. That shows that Sind has been utterly neglected so far, and if there is any one cause more than another that has contributed towards bitterness in Sind, and which has made them ask for separation from the Bombay presidency, this one of indifference is greatly responsible for it. The people of Sind have all along felt that the Government is looking after only those particular areas in which it is situated. Sir, I do not wish to make a grievance of the improvements that are being carried out round about Bombay, Poona and Mahabaleshwar where the Government stay for a certain time in the year. But what we do claim is that there must be some equity in matters of expenditure like this. As Government are claiming revenues from all parts of the presidency in the same manner as they claim revenues from the areas which are treated very well, I claim that in that very manner the other divisions, and particularly Sind, which has been neglected so far, should be treated and the great leeway should be made up by some extra efforts.

Again, coming to the question of buildings, for which provision has been made in the budget to the extent of Rs. 3,93,000, we find that Rs. 60,000 is devoured merely in making certain constructions in the Government House. That means to say that 15½ per cent. of the total expenditure merely goes for providing some additional comforts in the Government House. That, to my mind, is a very unsatisfactory state of affairs, and if you refer particularly to the budgets of the past years you find that provision of Rs. 1,00,000, Rs. 50,000, Rs. 60,000, and at that rate, has been made indefinitely from year to year. I think that there must be some halt at some stage, and particularly at a time when we are facing deficits, when the Honourable Minister of Education is unable to give any grant for the construction of schools where the school children have to sit in most insanitary places. I think the cause of education and other nation—building departments ought to have a greater claim on the finances than the amenities of one individual, however exalted he may be.

Now, coming to the question of medical relief, you find that a total commitment of Rs. 4,54,000 has been made, mostly for the city of Bombay.

As against that you will see, Sir, that there is no provision made for Sind. In the matter of health Rs. 1,16,000 has been provided and there is not the slightest provision made for Sind. I ask the Honourable Ministers for Local Self-Government and for Education respectively whether they think that everything has been provided in Sind and nothing remains to be done. It appears to me that people round about the seat of Government clamour and as Government see it for themselves get all the things they want, which is a deplorable fact, with the result that only what little money is left is spent in other areas. The city of Karachi is a growing city and during the last 10 years there has not been any increase in the provision for medical aid in the civil hospital with the result that a number of people have to be turned out for want of accommodation. The civil surgeon has been clamouring for provision for additional wards but no relief has been given. I do not say that Karachi alone should get more provision for medical aid but that the conditions of small towns being worse should also receive attention. Therefore I hope that something will be done by means of reappropriation from some other head and money provided for our needs in Sind.

With regard to overhead charge it is mounting up and has now come to nearly 40 per cent. A reference has been made that the salaries of the officers are very high and that something ought to be done to reduce their salaries. Instead of reducing the salaries, you will remember, Sir, that recently on account of the Lee Commission recommendations large increases in their salaries were made, whereas in England after the war they actually reduced the salaries of the civil servants, because conditions that warranted that salary during war time disappeared; and the salaries then fixed could not be justified at the present time. Therefore, if there is any intention on the part of the Government to reduce the topheavy administration they can easily reduce the number of officers as also their salaries. But I know that so long as this kind of artificial conditions exists, so long all this will be a cry in the wilderness. We all feel that our revenues are being frittered away in directions which do not bring us any real return of service. The only way open to us is to become serious and be masters of our own destiny which alone will enable us to spend our revenues in the interest of our welfare and prosperity. I support the cut moved by my honourable friend from Kaira and hope that the Honourable Minister when he rises to reply will explain how he proposes to alleviate the strong feeling existing in Sind. At least he should sanction one provincial road from Karachi to Jacobabad.

Khan Bahadur GHULAM NABI SHAH (Thar Parkar District): (Addressed the House in Urdu): Sir, referring to the question of roads, I would like to point out the condition of Sind roads to the honourable members. We have got very bad roads in this province and no trouble is being taken to improve them. In the whole of Thar Parkar district there is only one provincial road and the condition of this road too is very bad. The road gets spoiled during rain and no pains are taken to improve it.

Looking at the condition of roads in the rest of the presidency, one finds that there are very good roads. For instance the roads in the neighbourhood of Bombay and Poona are in very good condition. Is it not fair that Sind should also be treated as the rest of the presidency? The Honourable the Finance Member, the Honourable the Revenue Member and the Honourable the Minister for Local Self-Government have all been to Sind last year As all of them have seen the bad condition of roads in Sind, I don't think that it is worthwhile to say anything more about this. Sind is at a little distance from the presidency. Many honourable members are unacquainted with the bad condition of roads that prevails there. If they go to Sind, I am sure they will fully realise how far our claims are justifiable. As the rest of the presidency has been benefitting all these years in this direction so much so that nearly all the roads are pacca, I think it is just but right for the Honourable the Minister of Local Self-Government to turn his direction now to Sind, as Sind also forms a part of the presidency. This may be accomplished by stopping the further development and improvement in this direction in the rest of the presidency and taking it to the roads of Sind, until the condition of Sind roads is just the same as that of the presidency roads.

I therefore request, Sir, that a committee be formed to investigate the conditions of roads in Sind and to put the facts before this Council.

Secondly, the Public Works Department roads were to be open to the public also. These roads are now closed to the public and this causes very great inconvenience. So, I request, Sir, that these roads may kindly be opened to the public who I think fully deserve this concession.

Mr. D. R. H. BROWNE: Sir, I was surprised yesterday, and greatly gratified, to hear so many honourable members of this House suggesting as a panacea for all ills to hand over everything to the Public Works Department. I did not think that my Department deserved such high praise. But I notice to-day there has been considerable change in the feeling of many of my honourable friends. I cannot understand it, and I am as much surprised to-day at this change of feeling as I was yesterday at the praise bestowed on the Department to which I have the honour to belong. I would like to place a few facts before the House and remove some misconceptions which have been shown to exist.

In the first place there has been a good deal spoken about our establishment charges amounting to 40 per cent. of the cost of works. I am afraid I am not as familiar with details of this voluminous budget as are some of the honourable members opposite. I do not know where they got those figures from. At any rate I can tell them that they may have proved the facts to their own satisfaction with the figures they got but they are not correct. The facts are very different. The establishment part of 41, Civil Works, is a very complicated thing to understand, and I may confess at once that I cannot fully understand it myself. I will not go into details, but the fact is and I hope the House will take it from me, that the actual percentage of establishment to the total works is about 26 per cent. and not 40 per cent. as some honourable members have argued.

One of the honourable members for Ahmedabad mentioned the subject of a certain road in a Taluka Local Board area (Dandhuka) being maintained at much less cost by the Taluka Board than it was formerly maintained at by the Public Works Department and stated that it would effect great economy if roads were managed by Taluka Local Boards everywhere. I know something about that road. It was a very short length of road, and it is just possible that there may have been, before that road was handed over to the Taluka Board, a little more establishment employed on it than was absolutely necessary. I do not say that was so, because I cannot verify these things at a moment's notice. Probably that establishment was looking after a lot of other things. However, it might be so. All I can say is, that if any honourable member notices that on any particular section the establishment appears excessive and he lets us know, and if we find that it is so, we shall be very glad to economise in any way we can. Several honourable members gave me the impression the other day that they thought that the Public Works Department were carrying out their works very efficiently and as economically as possible. I was greatly gratified at that, as I say. If they will assist us to economise by pointing out any places where it is possible to economise, we shall be only too glad.....

Mr. A. D. SHETH: I suggested a general survey to find out whether percentages spent after repairs and the establishment necessary for it can be reduced and not individual cases of reduction.

Mr. D. R. H. BROWNE: Several honourable members have talked about Sind roads. That is a very important subject. I think the honourable House knows that we have at the present time a special officer (an Executive Engineer) going into the question of roads in Sind. The whole face of Sind will be shortly changed by the Sukkur Barrage project, and the question of transportation is one of extreme importance. That is realised thoroughly by Government, and we have in Sind a Transportation Board which goes into the question of the roads and feeder railways that will be needed. I think that possibly some honourable members who have not had as much occasion to think about the subject of roads as I have, may have the feeling that what they want in Sind is miles and miles of metalled motorable roads. Well, I should like to see the same myself, but we have to look at the practical possibilities of it. We have got to see what is the best way of providing transport for passengers and the produce of the country; what is the most economical. That, Sir, I think, will not be provided by long lengths of motor roads; it will be provided so far as I can see by conveniently spaced feeder lines of Railway. Very shortly a resolution will be brought forward by the Honourable

[Mr. D. R. H. Browne]

Member in charge of the Revenue Department for sanctioning a guarantee for certain such lines. Well, I am sure the Honourable Member will be able to assure the House how extremely important it is and how extremely economical it will be if those feeder lines are provided. I feel certain that the House will before long realise, and I am sure that it will be their conclusion, that conveniently spaced feeder lines of railway will be the best means of providing transportation in Sind both for passengers and for produce. I can assure the House that the needs of Sind have not been forgotton by Government but are engaging their very close attention.

One of the honourable members mentioned the sum of Rs. 50,000 which he said is to be used for Government House works. That honourable member I see is not here. That item should not properly have come into this debate, because the cut under discussion relates to the votable demand and that sum of Rs. 50,000 is non-votable expenditure. So that, I think that point should have been kept out of this discussion.

Well, Sir, I do not think I have anything more to say, but I should like to assure the House that the expenses under 41—Civil Works have been absolutely cut down to the limit. I do not want to trouble the House with all the cuts we have made in the demands made by local officers, but they were very very considerable and if this cut of Rs. 10,000 is made I can only say that it may be the last straw that will break the camel's back, and anybody who has sympathy with the camel would not I feel sure, like that to happen.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Sir, at the outset in reply to the honourable member the General Secretary, I may state that after all Government's communications to the Collectors and the Commissioners show which way the wind blows. Those communications show to the Collectors what the intentions of Government are, and when they receive those communications it is likely that they will always send their replies in conformity with the views contained in them. That has been the usual practice and that is our common knowledge.

The Honourable the Chief Engineer made a confession that he did not know the details of establishment charges of the works connected with his Department. But he made one point, and that was important. He said that Government were carrying on sundry works for the local boards and for those works the establishments have to be maintained, and therefore the establishment charges of Government included the establishment charges for carrying out local board works. Am I right ?

Mr. D. R. H. BROWNE: Sir, I did not hear exactly what the honourable member said.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Will the honourable member proceed ?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Do you mean.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Please do not address each other direct.

Ra Saheb D. P. DESAI: Did the honourable member the Chief Engineer mean that Government Public Works establishment was carrying out works which were owned by the local boards, and therefore some of the expenditure on establishment included charges for establishments which were employed on local board works ?

Mr. D. R. H. BROWNE: I do not know what part of my remarks my honourable friend is referring to.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: That is all right. I am sorry, Sir, that establishment works out over 40 per cent. There is no doubt as to that. It is also a fact that the charges for repairs and maintenance of buildings and roads are on the increase, though the cost of labour and materials has fallen. Perhaps my honourable friend the Minister will say that for the last two years we have increased our expenditure on original works and therefore provision has to be made for repairs and maintenance of those original works also, and therefore the charges for repairs and maintenance are bound to increase. But I may state in reply that during recent years he has made very little addition to original works. I, therefore, do not think that such a large amount of Rs. 29 lakhs is required for the repairs and maintenance charges. I, therefore, request the Honourable Minister to curtail expenditure in this respect. From my own experience I can state that only Rs. 200 to Rs. 400 per mile would be quite sufficient for this purpose. We can carry out the repair and maintenance work with efficiency within this amount. For special repairs to roads a further Rs. 100 or Rs. 200 would be sufficient. I think the sub-divisional officer used to get Rs. 200 and he used to manage in that amount. Now that the prices of material have fallen and labour has become cheaper than before, not being more than 200 rupees should be provided for ordinary repairs. When it was possible to manage within Rs. 200, why should it not be possible now ? But I think there is something wrong with the department. I think that the Public Works Department ought to be more cautious than they are at present.

As regards the posts and salaries of the sub-divisional and other officers, I may state that the Honourable Minister has increased their salaries. Look at the salary of the executive engineer. The senior executive engineer was drawing a salary of Rs. 1,000 but now it is about Rs. 1,500. Then there is the assistant engineer, that is, the old sub-engineer who was getting Rs. 500, but now he gets Rs. 750. as regards Gujarat I again repeat with all seriousness that if Government will not spend a proportionate amount for this purpose out of the revenue realised from each district or each province, I am afraid they will lose that province. By the policy of mishandling the affairs of a province Government have already lost the best of their provinces.....

An Honourable MEMBER: What province has been lost ?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Malabar which was under the Bombay Government has been lost. Coming to the question of revenue, I may submit that we have increased the revenue by Rs. 8 lakhs in the rural areas, but at the same time we have reduced the revenue from the rent of the buildings. In 1921 we used to get about Rs. 21 lakhs when there were no tolls. I think perhaps Government may have made a concession to their officers; but I do not know why Government should throw the burden on the shoulders of poor cultivators? They have removed the revenue derived from the rents of buildings and in that place they are taxing heavily the cultivators. I therefore say that Government should abolish tolls and restore their former practice of deriving revenue from rents.

In conclusion, I would request the Honourable Minister to curtail the expenditure on establishment and grant money to each district and province from the funds available for roads, bridges, etc., in proportion to its revenues. If he does so, I am sure my district will not be starving as at present.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I find that my department has been subjected to considerable criticism. Sir, at the outset I will deal with a letter which was read out yesterday by my honourable friend, the representative of Surat (Rao Bahadur Naik). It was a letter from the Examiner making certain suggestions about the audit of the local boards. That proposal of the Examiner was sent to the Commissioner for his remarks, and the Commissioner in his turn referred the matter to the president of the District Local Board for their opinion. Now, Sir, honourable members will agree with me that it is good policy to consult the local boards concerned before taking any action affecting them. If honourable members will read the letter, they will find that the auditor has remarked that the accounts are not kept properly by the local boards, and he therefore made certain proposals in the matter. I agree that the honourable members on the opposite side are as good trustees of the public revenue, as those honourable members sitting on this side of the House.

Now, Sir, we have made provision in the Local Boards Act with regard to taking steps against a member responsible for misapplication or waste of funds. There is a clause in that Act, which reads as follows:—

"Provided that every member of a local board shall be personally liable for the misapplication of any money or other property of the local board, to which he has been a party or which has been caused or facilitated by his misconduct or gross neglect of his duty as a member and may be sued by the local board concerned, with the sanction of the Government or by the Government for recovery of or compensation for the misapplication of such money or property and any money or property so recovered by the Government shall after satisfaction therefrom of the necessary expenses of such recovery, be delivered to the local board."

Well, that is one of the provisions. If the honourable House is not satisfied with that, and, as it is suggested by my honourable friend Mr. Chikodi opposite to me, that we should give the power of surcharge, well, I should like to have the lead from this honourable House. Government will be prepared to give such power to any district local board the House may like. But, then, honourable members should not turn round and complain. I inform the honourable members that I am prepared, and this side of the Government benches is prepared, to consider any proposal as regards surcharge or as regards any other power which the House considers should be given to the local boards or to the auditor.

[Sir Ghulam Hussain]

I hope this will satisfy the honourable House that Government is ready to consider any such proposal. They only do not want that the public money should be wasted.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : On a point of information from the honourable Minister. Are not the Collectors empowered at present to deal with the district local board in such cases ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : That is so. But my honourable friend opposite to me is not satisfied with that. Now, what is the Minister to do ? On the same bench, I find two honourable members, one of whom orders me to do a thing in a particular way, and the other says not to do it. Therefore, I desire the honourable House to give me a definite indication as to what further provision we should make in the Local Boards Act to safeguard the interests of the ratepayers.

Now, Sir, another complaint that I have heard is that Government has always been very partial to Poona, which is one of the seats of Government. (An Honourable Member : Central Division.) Or C. D. I assure honourable members that that is far from the intentions of Government. The position is this. Before the reforms—if the honourable members refer to the previous records, they will find it,— a very large number of roads were provincialised in the Central Division, and they were metalled roads ; and also in the Southern Division. Now, is it not the duty of the present Government to keep these roads in order ? Well, what have we after the reforms ? We have increased mechanical transport in the country. We have a larger number of motors and heavy lorries. Even though in the Central and the Southern Divisions we have pucca roads, still, owing to the heavy traffic, these roads are deteriorating very much. Is it not the duty of this Government to maintain these roads in good order ? Honourable members will thus see it is on this account that larger grants are made to that division. If we did not make larger grants to those divisions, what would be the result ? All the capital expenditure that we have incurred would be wasted. Therefore, honourable members will see it is not because Poona is one of the seats of Government that a larger amount is spent on it, but because it has the largest mileage of pucca roads, which we have to keep in order and improve from time to time. Now, suppose I accept the proposal that all the money that is provided for communications should be equally distributed in all the divisions, what will be the fate, then, of the Central and Southern Divisions ? They will get much less. Therefore, those roads which we have constructed will fall into disrepair, and the crores of rupees that we have already spent on them will be wasted.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : They had the benefit all these days.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : If the honourable member thinks, if the honourable House thinks, that it is the wisest policy, they may propose that policy to me, and I will carefully consider it. Now, as regards the honourable mover of this cut, all the arguments which I have heard patiently yesterday and to-day were in favour of raising the grant rather than cutting it. Now, I assure this honourable House that I am as anxious as any one here to get as much money as I possibly can for this department.....

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: What about Sind ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I am coming to Sind.

Mr. A. D. SHETH: And what about Gujarat ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I am coming to Gujarat also. Now, Sir, my demand for works in progress for the next year was Rs. 16 lakhs, which was reduced to Rs. 8 lakhs. For new works, we had made a demand of Rs. 47 lakhs, which has been reduced to two lakhs. Then, for repairs we had made a large demand, but we have got merely Rs. 51 lakhs. Now, honourable members will realise that this year is not one of those prosperous years like 1921-22, when we were able to make large provision for expenditure in this department as well as to have large balances. The honourable member himself characterized the budget as a deficit budget. So, the Government, the Honourable the Finance Member, and every one says, " Cut your coat according to your cloth."

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI: But what about the General Administration ? A very large provision is made there ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: We are coming later on to General Administration. Let us deal with this department for the present. Now, Sir, another suggestion of my honourable friend was that we should not provide for 41-Civil Works out of Loan.

Most of the works that are undertaken by this department are of public utility and of a lasting nature. Is it a fair proposition that the works which are useful to the people at large and which will last for a great number of years should be paid for by the present generation.....

An Honourable MEMBER: Why should the future generation pay for them ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Because future generations will derive benefit from those roads, and ought, therefore, to pay for them.....

An Honourable MEMBER: Then, don't finance them out of loan funds.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: It does not lie in the mouth of my honourable friend to say " don't finance them out of loan funds," because it was he who raised a hue and cry in this House and said " have better communications for Gujarat; have better communications for the Deccan, for the Southern Division and so on." On the one hand, he says " don't finance this department out of loan moneys; " and on the other, he says " budget more money for this department " and yet he says that the only legitimate source of revenue of this department, viz., the toll, should be abolished in spite of the fact that this toll is paid by the very people who use these roads. He wants to eat his cake and have it too, which is impossible.

[Sir Ghulam Hussain]

Honourable members will see that we have been getting money out of loan as well as out of revenue. Even this year, the honourable members will see, we have 120 lakhs out of revenue and 54 lakhs out of loan money, but we cannot finance ordinary work out of loan money but only work which costs more than five lakhs of rupees.

I now come to establishments, which some honourable members assert costs about 50 to 60 per cent. The amount of Rs. 29,12,300 has been provided in this budget for establishment. I refer the honourable member to page 4 of the Provincial Civil Works Budget Estimate of this year. The honourable members will see that "this sum of Rs. 29,12,300 includes Rs. 3,27,600 on account of leave allowances, etc. to be paid in England. It does not represent the actual estimated cost of establishment under "41" Civil Works, but represents the residue of the total estimated cost of establishment after its distribution over other heads. Please see abstract at page 41 post." This is what the foot-note says. So, this department covers the sins of omission and commission of several other departments. All the residue, after charging a certain percentage to other departments, such as Irrigation, is debited to my account.....

An Honourable MEMBER: Why do you allow that?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Such are the orders, and I have to carry them out.

I now refer the honourable members to page 37 of the same publication. The Secretariat establishment does not merely attend to work in connection with roads and buildings, but it also does work in connection with Irrigation, Lloyd Barrage, and yet the whole Secretariat establishment is shown here. The Electrical Engineer, similarly, does not carry out any roads and building work and yet that item is debited to my account. Then, the Consulting Architect to Government is also shown here. If you deduct all these items, you will see that I am not spending Rs. 29,12,300 on establishment alone. You will then see that I am spending much less than that.

I will now draw attention to page 40. This establishment carries out some of the works of the district local boards, works of the Central Government, military works and other Contribution works, for which we have to recover yearly the sum of Rs. 4,44,800. We carry out all these works. So the honourable members will see that my department is only the victim of a system which has been dictated to us from above. Otherwise, I am sure they would not have seen this sum of Rs. 29 lakhs and odd there. It is much less than that, as I pointed out to you, because it includes charges on account of various other departments which do not carry out any roads and buildings work.

Coming to roads, my honourable friend Mr Karki is, I am afraid, rather unfair to me, because he seems to be the more dissatisfied the more he is given.

I then come to my dear Sindhi friend, the honourable member from Karachi city. If honourable members from Sind look up the budgets in the pre-Reform days, they will find only thousands provided for Sind communications and Sind buildings. Now, they are getting lakhs for Sind communications and Sind buildings. In fact, I was responsible for provincialising Sind roads and buildings. No one else in this House can claim credit for that. It was I who as a non-official member brought a resolution in this very House in the pre-Reform Council, and that resolution was accepted by Government, under which the few roads that are now provincialised were provincialised for the first time. My honourable friend from Karachi mentioned the names of three roads which have been made pucca roads. We are now taking the Sukkur-Shikarpur road which is within the constituency of my honourable friend opposite (Mr. Pahalajani).....

[Sir Ghulam Hussain]

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: That comes under 60-Capital works, Rs. 2,00,000.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Therefore, it is there, and yet I am told it is not. I was surprised when I heard the honourable member from Karachi.....

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: Six lakhs out of 71 lakhs Capital expenditure.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I have already given an explanation of that. We cannot take up all the roads at once. We take them up one by one.

We have appointed a special officer for the purpose of having a survey of all the Sind roads, and as soon as we get the report of that special officer, we will launch a regular new scheme for Sind roads.

Coming to Gujarat, one honourable member opposite to me (Mr. A. D. Sheth) said that they have in a particular taluka a railway, and that therefore a particular road in that taluka was not necessary, and it was a waste of public money to spend any money to keep that road in order, because there is a railway and it was not an important road.....

Mr. A. D. SHETH: In the present circumstances.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: My honourable friend says " in the present circumstances. " Well, see all the important towns in Gujarat, and you will find that they are all connected by railways. According to the argument of my honourable friend, therefore, no roads are necessary; but on the contrary, I find other honourable members from Gujarat say that they want to have railways as well as roads. You must further consider the fact that you have soft clay in Gujarat. To have metalled roads, you must spend a large amount of money not only on the construction of those metalled roads but also on their upkeep. However, we have a regular programme of roads for Gujarat also. We have now established a Road Board. We have now established a Road Board, on which there are representatives of each division, non-official as well as official.....

An Honourable MEMBER: Is it functioning?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: It is functioning, and it will decide all questions of policy. Gujarat is fully represented there: Sind is represented, similarly the other divisions are represented there.

Mr. A. D. SHETH : There ought to be representatives of local boards on the Board.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : We have put on the Road Board gentlemen who are not only presidents of local boards but who are members of this Council also. So they represent not only the local boards but the Council also.

I may assure honourable members that I will go into the various minor complaints that they have made.

As regards the honourable member from Poona city, I assure him that the delay is on the part of the Poona City Municipality, and not on my part. I have been expediting the municipality, and we are as anxious as he that the drainage scheme should be completed as early as possible.

Question put and lost.

Question that the demand for Rs. 1,42,94,000 under 41-Civil Works (Partly Reserved and partly Transferred) be granted, was put and carried.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I beg to ask for a grant of Rs. 3,27,000 for 41-Civil Works (Reserved).

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 19,000 for 37-Miscellaneous Departments (Transferred)

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Sir, I beg to move for a demand of Rs. 4,23,000 for 37-Miscellaneous (Reserved.)

Question proposed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : The motion standing in my name is as follows :

" Reduce by Rs. 50,000, Total Demand.

I move this cut in order to raise a discussion on unemployment.

Question proposed.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South) : Sir, I will take this opportunity again to revive an important discussion, which was foisted by a technical objection from the Honourable the Leader of the House. I should have thought, Sir, that the opposite benches would not have tried to shelve a question of importance like this by relying upon technical objections. However, we are thankful that another opportunity has been granted to discuss the matter, because I do feel that this is a question which requires to be discussed, and the only place where we can discuss with the official benches a matter of such importance is this House.

As I stated on the last occasion when speaking about the Vagrancy Act,—and I will refer to that subject again and again make my position absolutely clear,—it is not that because this relief is granted to the European vagrants and therefore by way of objection to that grant this discussion is raised. As I stated then,—and I say it again—I do not think any honourable member on this side of the House will object to any relief being granted to any section of the community, provided it is granted to the really needy and deserving. What I wish to ask is this, and I want a definite statement from Government on this occasion with regard to it: when Government are so solicitous about discharging their duties to this particular community, about their needs and about their unemployment, have they not got an equally important duty—I might say a more important duty—towards the other communities that are residents of this presidency? I do admit that, so far as this Vagrancy Act is concerned, it is a legislation which, under other ordinary circumstances, would have been very seriously criticised and objected to, because it is one of those legislations which lays down the law recognising racial distinction, which is, I should say, a very objectionable principle, which would not be tolerated in other circumstances. Simply because this distinction is made in the matter of giving relief to a particular community, we want to take very serious objection to it. We have to point out the principle that prevails. Already we find that there is racial distinction all over the country, so far as railway compartments, hospitals, offices and clubs are concerned; even in jails we find racial distinction; and even in the point of beggars, the European beggars and vagrants are in receipt of better treatment than the Indian beggars and vagrants.

That only shows to what extent this racial discrimination is being carried on. But we base our claim as a matter of right, as Indians, as inhabitants of this country. Now, I may ask whether they have made similar arrangement for Indians as they have made for European vagrants. As soon as a vagrant is produced before a court of law and as a result of magisterial enquiry.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I think the honourable member is again beside the point. On the last occasion he raised a discussion of unemployment under a Head which referred to the European vagrants. The honourable member was told then that any discussion relating to unemployed was out of order under that head. I may now point out to him and draw his attention to page 251 of the Civil Estimate where the labour office expenditure is referred to. Under that head it will be logical to raise a discussion on the problem of unemployment; and the honourable member will be in order. But when I give him the opportunity he now goes back to the discussion of European vagrants and Indian paupers.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: Under the Vagrancy Act, vagrants are defined as those who have no ostensible means of livelihood, that is, no employment. The point I submit is if the State has provided means to give relief to the British unemployed and British community, whether they have devised similar means to give relief to the Indian unemployed. A European vagrant under the definition of the law is a European unemployed. The first question the magistrate asks is where he was born. As soon as the answer shows that he was born in India or in any part of it—he may be a European or Anglo-Indian—he is disqualified for any such relief. It is only when he claims his birth to some European country he is entitled to relief in the work-house or attempts are made to secure employment for him. This is a legislation which not only gives a special privilege to persons outside India but disqualifies those of them who were born in India to get that State aid. This point incidentally arises that a foreigner has got a prior claim than the inhabitants of this country. Even an Anglo-Indian or European born in India is not entitled to that privilege. I do ask honourable members on the other side as this question has been raised from time to time in various forms though this is the first time that this question has been seriously raised in a debate of this Council, which I do consider to be very important, whether they have done anything similar to Indian unemployed. What is the position so far as State aid is concerned ? They have started a labour office which is a department of Government and which under ordinary circumstances is expected to come to the rescue and relief of the unemployed in Bombay. But we find that the functions of the labour office are limited to the issue of a gazette every month ; and in the gazette we find no assistance to the poor unemployed of this presidency or this country. All the information contained in that is statistics about various states as to how many unemployed are there, how many graduates are without work and how many labourers are without work. Then information is given about the price of rice, price of grains and family budgets. What is the use of that information when they have no money to pay ? What is the use of giving family budgets without giving money ? If it shows the means of getting money then I can understand their saying : " You have got a little money and you can spend it in an economical way like this." The object of giving family budget is to give an idea to people with small income how to spend their money economically. What is the use of family budgets when there is no money to spend ?

Mr. G. WILES : The honourable member says : " First provide money and then show how to spend it." Is the honourable member under the impression that the collection of family budgets is meant to provide a model budget, showing how poor families should spend their money ?

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : I am pointing out what is contained in the Labour Gazette ; and the functions of the labour office. My point is that Government should have some department whose duty it should be to organise some sort of scheme in order to come to the rescue of the unemployed. I do not suppose that any honourable member on either side of the House will dispute that there is a great deal of unemployment not only in this presidency but in the whole country. There are many educated hands, graduates, undergraduates, capable of doing work, efficient and willing to do work. For want of an organisation they have not been able to secure employment. Consider the activities of the State in other civilised countries. I do not suggest for one moment that Government should pay these men ; as I do not think that the present financial position will enable them to do so. I do not suggest that Government should feed them and provide them with home. But they can start some sort of scheme as it exists in other countries. In other countries the State department maintains a register of the names of the various unemployed in the country or in a province. They have got a register to show that there are so many graduates willing to work in particular direction, there are so many engineers, so many technical experts and so on. Thereby they create a medium between the unemployed and the employer, because there are many employers who need graduates, undergraduates, professional men, technical experts and the like. Unless there is a medium like this to put the unemployed in communication with the employer we cannot solve the problem. On the one side there is the capitalist employer and on the other there is a large number of unemployed. If some organisation is started by Government which will not entail much expenditure to maintain such statistics of the various employers and unemployed, they can bring about a solution of this question to a considerable extent. In the Labour Gazette I find that they have got a similar organisation in England. And that Labour Minister (as he is called) keeps himself in communication with both the unemployed and the employer camp, and thereby brings about an arrangement by which as soon as a large number of applications are received for employment in any particular branch of work they are sent to the employers. He provides a medium between the employer gang and the unemployed gang. Even the employers welcome the arrangement, because it relieves them from the necessity of having to search for their workers. So that if the Labour Office keeps itself in communication with all parts of the world—it may be even East Africa, South Africa or Zanzibar—and provides a medium between the employers and the unemployed, I think the problem can be solved to some extent. The Labour Office, for which we are asked to grant some amount every year, was in the initial stages intended to collect statistics. We want that institution to be developed in the future years on the lines on which Labour Offices in other parts of the world are being developed. We find, however, that year after year the same monotonous figures are being repeated and we are asked to contribute a certain amount for the Labour Office without relieving the unemployment problem or the labour problem in the slightest degree. Therefore, I say that the time has come when the Labour Office should be placed on the transferred side and some non-official members should be associated with the Honourable Minister whose function will be to look after the Labour Office. If such an organisation is created, it will do much more to solve this very great problem of unemployment in this presidency. I hope, Sir, that some definite statement will be made by honourable members on the other side as to whether they are contemplating any such schemes and whether they intend to develop the Labour Office on the lines adopted in other parts of the world.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Sir, I rise to support the motion moved by my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan. In addition to the discussion of the problem of unemployment I want to speak about the necessity of widening the present functions of the Labour Office and making it more useful, more efficient and more serviceable for those for whom it was started.

[Mr. S. C. Joshi]

Sir, the Labour Office came to be established in the year 1921, when the main function of that office was to collect statistics which will prove of great use to both employers and employees. Sir, after six years of experience we find that the Labour Office has been merely the news-agency not only of this Government but also of the Government of India. It has done nothing during the past six years of its existence except the regular publication of the Labour Gazette and the collection and publication of a few statistics in some matters. The money spent on this department is most usefully spent. In support of this I will quote the following passage from the Press Note that was issued by this Government at the time of establishing this office on the 18th April 1921 :

"While the cost of such a department is not productive in the sense that it earns interest yet, in countries where such an organisation exists it is not usually regarded as a purely unproductive investment for it is pointed out that by helping to secure harmonious relations between employers and employed it saves the parties immediately concerned and the country generally a great deal of money that might otherwise be wasted in industrial disputes."

Sir, in spite of this statement of the utility of spending money on the establishment of this office, what do we find after six years ? We find, Sir, that for the Labour Office, in the budget of 1921-22 a sum of Rs. 1,06,000 was provided, but that year after year the expenditure has been gradually curtailed until it has come to Rs. 66,000 in the present year. There has been a reduction in the expenditure of this office by 38 per cent. What do we find in other presidencies ? I will quote the instance of the Madras Presidency. In the Madras Presidency there is a Labour Commissioner. That office was established in the same year as the Labour Office of Bombay Presidency. We find that in that presidency the provision for the Labour Commissioner in the year 1921-22 was Rs. 1,25,000, but gradually I find—I have got figures for every year—I find that the expenditure of that office has been increasing year after year, until in the year 1927-28 a sum of Rs. 5,85,500 was provided. There is an increase of 468 per cent. in Madras, whereas in the Bombay Presidency we find a reduction of 38 per cent. What does that show ?

Mr. G. WILES : Is the honourable member aware of the duties the Labour Commissioner is performing in Madras ?

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Sir, I am aware of it and I was coming to that. The Labour Commissioner in Madras was appointed with the express idea of helping the labouring classes, and that help is being given by him in addition to the collection of statistics and other things. The duties of the Labour Commissioner in that province, are duties in connection with (1) the emigration of labour, (2) the maintenance of a Labour Bureau (Employment Bureau), (3) the settlement of industrial disputes and (4) also investigation into the condition of the depressed classes. These are all the functions of the Labour Commissioner of Madras. Is it not now necessary to widen the functions of the Labour Office ? As pointed out by my honourable friend Dr. Ambedker the other day, in the Bombay Presidency there has been an enormous increase in expenditure on the reserved side but very little increase in the expenditure on the transferred side. But even on the reserved side, we find that departments which are useful to the community at large have been neglected and crippled. This has become amply clear from the figures I have quoted just now.

The next point I would like to refer to is the question of unemployment. Sir, it is not disputed by anybody that unemployment exists in India as well as in other countries, and that it exists not only among the working classes but also among the socalled educated classes. But while in other countries steps are being taken to solve that problem, in India unfortunately Government are not taking any serious steps to solve it.

Sir, the question of the well being of the industrial and labouring classes is no doubt very important, but equally important perhaps, I may say more important is the question of the unemployment of the educated classes.

We find, Sir, from the statistics that are published by the Labour office in the report of the inquiry of this question that there has been a good deal of unemployment among the middle class people. I am glad that the Bombay Government has thought it desirable to make an investigation into the extent of unemployment of the middle classes. But I must say, Sir, that that enquiry has not been complete. It is defective, disappointing and unsatisfactory. The Government have thought it desirable to make an enquiry into the extent of the unemployment, but they did not suggest ways and means of solving that problem and put them into practical shape. Is it not necessary for this Government to take steps to solve the question of unemployment ? There is an enormous number of educated people who are unemployed. I believe the honourable members of Government know it full well. They must be getting notes from their friends recommending this man or that man for service. There are so many B.A.'s, M.A.'s and LL.B.'s who are unemployed. Not only that but we find unemployed persons who have taken education in a scientific way, who hold degrees of the University, not only Indian but also English. We find such persons vagrant, so to say. They are going from door to door in search of an employment.

I know of a case of a friend of mine, who is a B.A., B.E., of the Bombay University. But he does not succeed in getting an employment, for the last three years. We also know that even medical men do not find employment. They do not get sufficient money to pay their staff in their own dispensary, so they have also to search for an employment. The other day I had an occasion to recommend a young gentleman to the Honourable Minister. That man was serving in the Revenue Department, but in order to better his prospects, he applied to Government for a Government stipend, which he was fortunate or more properly unfortunate to get. He passed the L.C. P.S. Examination. But for the last three years he has not been given an appointment. Since then many other appointments have been made by the Department; but this poor man does not get an employment for the last three years. I have got many instances to quote, but I do not wish to take the time of this House, as these instances are too well-known.

[Mr. S. C. Joshi]

There are various ways to solve this question of unemployment. I suggest that (1) it may be solved by establishment of an Employment Bureau; (2) it can be done by changing the system of education; (3) it can be done by introducing industrial and technical education in schools and colleges; (4) it can be done by opening new avenues of employment; (5) it can be done by giving substantial help to small industries, and cottage industries.

Other Governments have appointed committees to enquire into this question but the Government of Bombay is still lagging behind. I hope the Bombay Government will come forward and give a practical shape to the solution of this problem, which is most important. If the educated youths, who have to go from door to door in search of employment, do not get their food, what would be their position? I would, therefore, ask Government to consider this question very seriously.

As regards the other matters in which the Labour office should take part, I may suggest that they should start a Bureau for the settlement of industrial disputes. We see from the newspapers that every day there is an industrial dispute. Not a single day passes without a fresh dispute. We find that no steps have been taken in this respect. We find, Sir, that it has been mentioned in the press note that Government has started the labour office with a view also to be useful in the settlement of industrial disputes. So far, however, no steps have been taken in this direction. Our experience of five years is that no substantial help is given by Government to settle the industrial disputes which have been enormously increasing. The other day we had to take a deputation to the Honourable the General Member and at that time he was requested to intervene in the settlement of the recent strike. He gave us a very patient hearing, but no substantial help was given to us.

Another thing that is mentioned in the press note is that the Labour office will draft legislations in the interest of labour, but during the last five years we find not a single legislation has been brought forward in this House. What does it show? It shows that proper interest is not being taken in improving the conditions of labour. We are told that that is the subject for the Government of India to consider. I say, Sir, that welfare of labour is a provincial subject and as such, this Government should try to help the labouring class by drafting legislation relating to the Labour matter and introducing them in this honourable House. I hope the Honourable the General Member, before leaving his portfolio, will keep a note for his successor to give substantial help in these directions.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City): Sir, I think this House owes gratitude to the honourable member from Bombay South.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. There is an important thing which I would like to bring to the notice of the House. The House is by now well conversant with the procedure it has to follow. I have been noticing for the last two days that whenever a discussion of a general nature is raised many honourable members who get up to speak, repeat the arguments which have been dealt with by other speakers, or repeat their own argument over and over again. Public time must be saved especially when the guillotine is hanging over-head. I would request honourable members not to repeat arguments. I have very often felt inclined to pull honourable members to order, but I do not like to do it. I desire to see that they themselves followed rules of debate by checking the habit of repetition.

[The President]

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: Sir, I think my honourable friend, representing Bombay South, deserves the gratitude of the people who are unemployed for the opportunity he has taken to raise the discussion of this subject. Sir, before I proceed further in regard to the general question of unemployment, I should like to dispose of one argument that has been brought forward by him, and that is in regard to the European vagrant. Sir, so far as the racial privileges that the Europeans enjoy in India are concerned, I am at one with him entirely in order to resist many privileges that are wrongfully enjoyed by them. But, so far as the question of vagrancy is concerned, I hope he will realise that in this particular case the European enjoys in India nothing more than what he enjoys in his own country. Sir, there is no such thing as vagrancy in England or in most of the European countries (Some European Members: Oh, oh: No, no). Begging is legally prohibited there. If any one goes about begging in the streets, he is at once caught and sent to the Poorhouse and is provided with maintenance and some work. That is exactly the point I was trying to bring to the attention of this House. That is, a vagrant in England who has no means of livelihood is not allowed, as in India, to merely go and beg and to degrade humanity. Therefore, Sir, we should not grudge in the least the small provision that has been made under this head.

But, Sir, coming to the question of the duty of Government towards the unemployed, I am not sure, whether this very big problem and this national problem can be solved by any other than a National Government. Sir, if you will look at the figures that the Government of England is spending in terms of pounds for the purpose of relieving distress, for the purpose of giving pensions to the old aged people, for the purpose of giving pensions to the widows and orphans, for the purpose of relieving distress by means of poor laws, I think, Sir, these figures will look so startling, and more startling to this side of the House than probably to the other side; nevertheless I think that they should be quoted for their own sake. Sir, I find that on old age pensions the Government of England spent in 1925-26 £ 27,86,000; on the pensions to widows and orphans £ 40,00,000 on the unemployment £ 25,71,000; and if you calculate all the services that the Ministry of Health rendered, you will find that they were done at the cost of £1,81,17,048 to the State. Then, again, Sir, the Ministry of Labour spent £1,17,20,135. Now, Sir, I am not sure whether this Government, whose conception, I have often repeated, does not go beyond the stupid notions of law and order in this country, can ever make such stupendous national effort for the purpose of relieving unemployment and poverty. Sir, Bernard Shaw has very rightly said in his very informing book "Major Barbara," that poverty is crime and he describes how poverty is morally degrading humanity while on the other hand there are few people possessing most of the wealth in the country. Now, Sir, that is a problem which faces all countries. But this capitalist Government can never think of anything in these terms. Sir, even a Conservative Government in England is levying death duties in order to meet the growing demand for social service. But the Government, capitalist as it is, carrying on the Government of this country in alliance with the capitalists of this country, would never like to displease them, and would thus never like to do anything that will relieve the poverty of the country. My own feeling is, Sir, that so long as this foreign rule continues, this problem will stare us in the face and we shall never be able to do anything.

Now, Sir, apart from tackling this very big problem of unemployment, I should like to draw the attention of the Honourable the General Member to the scanty manner in which Government is giving help to the poor and infirm people. I find, Sir, that to the Bombay Helpless Beggars Relief Committee the municipality of Bombay is making a contribution of Rs. 1,000 per month for their relief, and as against that, a most magnificent, a most generous, a most liberal grant of Rs. 2,500 per year is made by the Government of Bombay. Now, Sir, is it not a matter of utmost shame to this Government that, when they can find 15 crores of rupees for various items, when they can find lakhs of rupees to spend on Government Houses, they cannot find a few thousand rupees in order to relieve the distress of these poor people? I say, Sir, it is nothing but callousness on the part of the Government, that has not got the slightest care, the slightest solicitude, for the poor people. In England, Sir, if such a thing was to prevail, I am sure the Government would not be able to remain in power for even twelve hours. The labour there demand work or maintenance. Similarly, I ask you, Sir, if all the unemployed workmen here were to go in procession and demand of Government and say, "We are here ready for work; either provide us with work or give us maintenance," what would happen? That is the big problem which the Government has to tackle. But what do the Government do? They recover taxes from the people, and mostly spend them to maintain army and police so that the people may not rise in revolt against their authority. That is the only function that this Government is discharging, and I say the sooner we end this Government, the better it will be for us, the people of this presidency and also of India. Sir, a reference has been made by the honourable member the Deputy Secretary, my honourable friend Mr. Freke, that the question of labour legislation is largely a matter for the Government of India to do. I submit that the Government of India cannot legislate for the Bombay Presidency in matters in which the financial obligations are involved and therefore, Sir, unless and until the Bombay Presidency tries to do something to relieve the distress which is being caused from day to day to the people, nothing will be done by the Government of India. I therefore hope that if Government cannot spend about 20 to 30 per cent. of their revenue on the relief of poor destitute people at least the Honourable the General Member will show some generosity towards the poor destitutes' Home. He can go and see their condition for himself. I hope he will find at least Rs. 50,000 for these poor people and do something for them before he retires from his office.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Before I adjourn the House, I should like to inform honourable members that in pursuance of the request made by the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan from day to day for giving the House the half an hour the House has lost, I propose that the House should sit on Monday from 1 p.m. to 6-30 p.m. and make up that half hour.

The House is adjourned to 10-30 a.m. to-morrow, Saturday, the 10th March 1928.

SHOLAPUR DISTRICT LOCAL BOARD

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how long the Collector of Sholapur and the Commissioner of Central Division knew that the affairs of the Sholapur District Local Board were not being efficiently managed;

(b) whether any steps were taken by either of them under the powers entrusted to them for setting the matters aright;

(c) whether any orders of the Collector or the Commissioner were defied or set at naught by the district local board; and, if so, what those orders were?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) (b) and (c) The replies to (a), (b) and (c) are clearly given in the Collector's report No. L.B.D.S.R. 493, dated the 6th February 1928, which is printed below with its accompaniment.

No. L.B.D.S.R. 493.

H. R. GOULD, Esq., I.C.S.,
Collector of Sholapur;

To
THE UNDER SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT,
General Department, Bombay.

Subject.—Council question regarding Sholapur District Local Board.

Sir,

With reference to your No. L. C. 1075-183-G, dated 20th January 1928, I have the honour to furnish the information as follows:—

(a) Since about a year and a half.

(b) The Board was advised to set the matters aright.

(c) The following can be cited as instances in which the Collector remonstrated the Board—

(1) About the waste of money as regards Madha-Shetphal Road (vide this office no. L.B.D.S.R. 176, dated the 25th May 1926, copy attached).

(2) The village water supply grant of Rs. 26,268 was not utilized though requested to do so before 31st March 1927.

(3) On looking to the audit note for 1925-26, the Collector warned the Board to improve the affairs of the Board (copy of this office no. L.B.D.S.R. 361, dated 15th December 1926, attached).

(4) Representations were constantly made also to the President personally about the bad state of L. B. administration and the scandal that was being caused thereby throughout the District.

No satisfactory action was taken by the Board in any of these cases. There was no case of actual defiance of orders, the Board's method being one of passive rather than active resistance.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient servant,
(Signed) H. R. GOULD,
Collector of Sholapur.

Collector of Sholapur;

The PRESIDENT,

District Local Board, Sholapur.

Subject.—Construction of Madha-Shetphal Road.

Sir,

I have the honour to refer to the correspondence ending with your no. 767 of 29th November 1925 on the subject noted above and to bring to your notice that the progress made in the construction of this very important road appears to be very disappointing. Only those parts of the road where the work is easy have been touched at all and apparently the difficult parts at the Shetphal end and through Uplai Budruk have not even been properly planned yet let alone any work done thereon. At present it appears that nothing is being done at all.

When Rs. 10,000 were given to the Board from the Government grant it was not contemplated that that was sufficient for the construction of the whole road and yet although nearly two years have elapsed since the grant was placed at the Board's disposal even the full amount of the grant has not yet been spent. Obviously if works are to be done in this half-hearted manner any grants made to the Board by Government are sheer waste of money. The road in question is now very little more use to anybody than if no work had been done upon it at all.

I would now venture to suggest that this very important work should be taken up in real earnest. Obviously the first thing that is required is a survey of the road to fix the alignment of the difficult portions by a competent engineer. It would appear to me that a great mistake is being made in slavishly following the alignment of the old cart track at the Shetphal end. Many advantages could be secured by carrying the road along the ridge for the last three miles to run into the Sholapur Poona Road at a point one mile East of Shetphal. This would involve some land acquisition and a slight increase in distance between Madha and Shetphal but it would not add to the length of road to be constructed and would give a good alignment on high ground with practically no cross drainage works required. This however is a point on which competent technical opinion is required, and for the difficult portion near Uplai Budruk obviously a survey by a competent engineer is required. If the Board's own establishment is not considered competent to carry this out I would suggest that the Board provide the funds required and ask the Public Works Department to prepare plans and estimates for the whole work.

If the Board then wish to approach Government for a further reasonable grant the Collector would be prepared to support their representation, but he could hardly do so unless the Board themselves are prepared to contribute at least one-third of the total cost of the work. At any rate it would appear to be a culpable waste of money to drop the work now as the work already done will be useless unless the whole road is completed and moreover will steadily disappear unless suitable measures are taken for upkeep.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

(Signed) H. R. GOULD,

Collector of Sholapur.

No. L.B.D.S.R. 361.

Sholapur, 15th December 1926.

Memorandum.

In forwarding herewith the audit note on the accounts of the District Local Board, Sholapur, for the year 1925-26 the Collector cannot help remarking that he has never before seen such an indictment of the administration of a public body. It reflects the gravest discredit on the District and its capacity for self-Government. It is evident that the year's work of the Board represents a lamentable waste of public money. The Board have shown a deplorable failure of administrative capacity and perhaps the worst feature of all—the auditor has felt himself constrained to comment on the lack of scruple displayed by certain members in differentiating between the public business of the Board and their own private concerns.

2. Unwilling as Government are to interfere in the working of Local Bodies it is quite clear that unless the next year's working of this Board shows evidence of a real effort by the Board to put its house in order the Collector will have seriously to consider the advisability of moving Government to make use of its powers under section 129 of the Local Boards Act.

(Signed) H. R. GOULD,
Collector of Sholapur.

To

The President, District Local Board, Sholapur.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : After how many months the enquiry into the affairs of the district local board, Sholapur, was taken in hand by Government, after the date 15th December 1926, that is the date of the letter from the Collector of Sholapur to the President of the district local board, Sholapur ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I cannot give the exact date unless notice is given.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI : May I know what are the causes of the suspension of the board ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : They are given in the reply to the question.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI : Are there any additional reasons ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : No.

KULKARNI WATANS : DOCUMENTS AND RECORDS

SARDAR G. N. MUJUMDAR on behalf of Mr. N. R. GUNJAL (Poona District) : Will Government be pleased to place on the Council table the following Government Resolutions and other papers regarding commutation of kulkarni watans—

(1) Government Resolution No. 3699 of 1876.
(2) Government Resolution No. 5427 of 1877.
(3) Government Resolution No. 5003 of 1879.
(4) Government Resolution No. 1170 of 1881.
(5) Government Resolution No. 6444 of 1883.
(6) Government Resolution No. 3774 of 1887.
(7) Government Resolution No. 6680 of 1888.
(8) Government Resolution No. 5053 of 1895.
(9) Government Resolution No. 1887 of 1896.
(10) Government Resolution No. 5070 of 1914.
(11) Government Resolution No. 6574 of 1917 ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The substance of these Resolutions is reproduced in Phadnis' Watan Act (3rd Edition), a copy of which is in the library. Government are not prepared to place the Resolutions on the table.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI : May I know what is the reason for Government not placing these Resolutions on the Council table ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Because these Resolutions contain reports from their officers to Government, which Government consider it is undesirable to publish.

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT INSTITUTIONS : NOMINATION

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District): Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that in connection with nominations to the local self-government institutions the Government have adopted the policy of not nominating persons defeated in the elections ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : No, but generally Government would not be inclined to nominate any one who had been defeated in the elections, especially if he failed to secure a reasonable number of votes.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : May I know what the Honourable Minister means by reasonable ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : It cannot be exactly defined.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : Is it one-fourth, or half, or three-fourths ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That can be imagined more than argued or reasoned out.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : I may consider it reasonable if one vote is less ; the Honourable Minister may consider it reasonable if it is five votes less. What is reasonable ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : There is a reasonable standard of considering what is reasonable.

TAXATION IN BOMBAY CITIES : INCIDENCE

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City): Will Government be pleased to state—

(1) the total amount of revenue collected from the principal cities of the Presidency having a population of over a lakh under the following heads :—

(i) Municipal,

(ii) Provincial ;

(2) the population of each such city ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (1) (i) and (2) (Answered on 14th October 1927).

(1) (ii) The amount of provincial revenue collected in the city of Bombay was Rs. 2,92,88,000 during the year 1926-27. The figures of provincial revenue collected in the mofussil cities are not available, as the accounts are compiled by districts and not by cities.

PENAL CODE, SECTION 366B : PROSECUTIONS

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of prosecutions under section 366B of the Indian Penal Code which provides against the importation from Indian States of girls under 21 for the purpose of prostitution ;

(b) the results of such prosecutions ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the section is defective and does not serve the purpose for which it was enacted ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) and (b) No prosecution under section 366B of the Indian Penal Code was undertaken by the Bombay City Police in 1926. One case under this section was put before the Presidency Magistrate, 2nd Court, Bombay, in 1927, in respect of a girl brought from an Indian State of which she was a native to Bombay, but it was held that the section does not apply to cases of that nature. The charge was consequently changed to one under section 366A or 372 of the Indian Penal Code.

(c) The object of the section was to cover cases of girls imported from a foreign country, whether direct or via an Indian State. It was not intended to apply to girls who are natives of any Indian State. Government are now considering whether it is desirable to amend the law further so as to cover cases of this nature.

GOVERNMENT PEONS, NORTHERN DIVISION : PAY AND PENSIONS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have received a memorial from each peon of the Government offices of Northern Division praying for an increase in salary and demanding pension at the rate of half the pay ;

(b) if so, what action they have taken on these memorials ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Such memorials were received from peons in the Revenue offices of the Ahmedabad, Broach, Kaira and Panch Mahals Districts.

(b) Government regret they cannot grant any further increase in their pay. As regards pension, Government propose to provide for the grant of pensions equal to half pay, without any maximum limit, to servants in inferior service who retire after 1st April 1928.

GUJARAT COLLEGE : COMMEMORATION CELEBRATION

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Principal of Gujarat College, Ahmedabad, announced in a meeting of College students held on the 13th January 1928 that commemoration of the College would be celebrated on the 26th and 27th January 1928 ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, whether the said function was held on the said dates ;

(c) if the said function did not take place, what were the reasons for abandoning it ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) At a meeting held in the College Hall on January 13th the students decided by a show of hands to hold a Commemoration Ceremony and by votes of 262 to 164 it was decided to fix the ceremony for the 26th and 27th January.

(b) and (c) The function was not held because about 300 students petitioned the Principal that this would interfere with the Preliminary Examination to be held in the following week and it was suggested that celebration should be deferred until next year when a special function should be arranged to commemorate the 50th year of the affiliation of the College to the University. To this the Principal agreed.

AGRICULTURIST'S INCOME

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are collecting information regarding the present income of the agriculturists through a special officer;

(b) if so, whether he has been instructed to take the help of or consult the present irrigators' associations who are actually working in that direction?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

CROP PROTECTION IN KANARA

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have received any report from the Collector of Kanara in connection with crop protection as suggested in Government Resolution, Revenue Department, dated the 19th July 1927, on the report of the Forest Grievances Enquiry Committee;

(b) what his recommendations are and what action Government are taking on them?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) Yes.

(b) The Collector has made no recommendations, as he found that the orders of Government passed on the recommendations of the Crop Protection Committee were quite sufficient.

Question again proposed:

"Reduce by Rs. 50,000, Total Demand."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The discussion on the motion of the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan, to reduce the demand by Rs. 50,000 will now be resumed.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, this demand includes the item for the Labour Office, and as the question of unemployment has been raised, I should like to say a few words.

The Labour Department, I find, is not a separate department as such. The Director of Information is an officer who partly looks to the Information work, and he is also the Director of Labour Intelligence, and we find from the remarks in the Blue Book that his salary is debited partly to the General Administration and partly to this Labour Office. It seems to me that there should be really one Department of Labour and Industries; that is to say, the Labour Department should be a branch of the Industries Department. I understand that in the Government of India there is a Department of Industries and Labour combined, and the question of unemployment which has been raised by honourable members on this debate would properly fall within the purview of the Department of Industries. At present it seems that the Labour Office collects certain information, and it is properly called the Labour Intelligence Office, that is to say, giving certain information and statistics about Labour operations.

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

It appears to me from the speeches of honourable members who preceded me that the scope of the labour office should be widened; I think it should be amalgamated with the Industries Department. In that case various problems dealing with the unemployment of intellectual labour and manual labour can properly be investigated and remedies suggested to meet this evil of unemployment. (An Honourable Member: One is transferred and the other is reserved.) It may be but there is no reason why the Labour Department should be reserved. It is naturally allied to the industries and there should be no difficulty in making the necessary rules to make labour office a branch of the Industries Department. It may be just as the Educational Department, partly reserved and partly transferred. I find from the white book that the Director of Labour is a highly paid officer; and if that is so why should he be kept for the mere purpose of collecting information? Further I find that his salary is non-voted. If we are going to have a labour department it should be combined with the principal Industries Department and certainly the establishment of the Information Bureau will look after the work of the labour office.

One word about the Information Bureau. In the days of non-co-operation in the year 1921 perhaps it was necessary to have a separate organisation for the purpose of carrying on counter-propaganda. Now every department issues its press notes and Government have other ways of publishing information. The Secretary of each department is able to communicate to the public all necessary information. Therefore I think that there is no necessity at all for the Information Bureau. The work which is at present done by the Director of Information is simply publishing leaflets and pamphlets and generally the information contained in them is known to the public in advance by means of newspapers. Hence I think it is time that Government will be pleased to consider this question of the desirability of continuing this department any further. As the question of unemployment is cognate with Industries, I think the proper time will be when the Industries Department comes up. I hope honourable members on the Government benches will pay attention to my suggestion and give it their favourable consideration.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI (Bijapur District): Mr. President, the question of unemployment is the problem of problems. This question is certainly not confined to this country only but to the other countries also. On this question civilised nations have been breaking their heads. Some Governments have found a solution and others are still trying to find a solution. The problem of unemployment has been solved by the Italian Prime Minister in a more practical way; and the whole world is watching with interest the methods he has adopted. Certainly he has adopted more practical methods and I will mention only a few out of the hundreds of methods he has adopted : the finding of labour for employment in the various departments ; and exchange of skilled hands. I shall explain what is meant by the exchange of skilled hands. Suppose there are 5,000 carpenters in Bombay and Poona has got 5,000 blacksmiths. If Poona is in need of carpenters and Bombay in need of blacksmiths, these hands will be exchanged. That is one thing. He has provided for the expenses of persons to reach places where they can find employment. The other method is by giving vocational and industrial training in schools and abolishing the literary colleges and schools. By this judicial retrenchment he has been able to solve this problem. I think it will be better for this Government to consult about the Italian methods by direct communication with the Italian Prime Minister or by communication with the Italian Consul in Bombay. By this means they will get many suggestions for solving this problem. This problem is not so very difficult as it appears to be because they will find a solution for this if only they refer to the minority report of Sir M. Vishweshwara Ayyah Committee. Though this problem seems to be difficult it can be very nicely solved by the same methods as are followed by the Italian Prime Minister. I may suggest to this Government that instead of continuing good many literary colleges, like the Deccan College, because in Poona there are two other colleges, they may abolish certain colleges and twenty schools like the Bijapur High School. By abolishing these literary institutions, they will save some money which they can profitably spend on technical education. I think that Government should rise to the occasion and examine the whole thing properly and see whether it is necessary for them to maintain so many colleges and high schools which are quite unnecessary and which will not bring bread to the teeming millions of India whose cause I am now advocating. I can suggest to them many practical methods. I think the policy of the Italian Minister must be pursued. With these remarks, I support the cut.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, I am an admirer of the Dictator of Italy, Signor Mussolini, but I would like to worship him from a respectful distance : I would not like his methods to be introduced into the administration of this country, at all events not into the administration of this presidency. Italy may be a land of happiness and good fortune, but we are not going to envy her.

With regard to the question that has now been raised about the unemployment of the middle classes, I should like to say a few words. In the first place, I have to emphasize one thing, namely, that no member of this House should try to introduce communalism into the consideration of this question. The middle classes are not recruited from one community ; to that rank come recruits from all communities. My grandfather, Sir, was a member of the labouring and cultivating classes, but my father and myself are now included in the middle class. So, the remarks that I shall make should be taken as not attacking any particular community but should be considered in the proper light and as applicable to the question of unemployment of the middle classes in general.

[Mr. B. V. Jadhav]

The so-called middle classes are known in common parlance as gentlemen with fine clothes. They do not want to soil their hands and their white clothes by working in the fields, and in this way there has been in this country a distinction between the two classes. One has to bear in mind that these white-clothed classes are parasites : they feed upon the labour of those who work in the fields. Let them be lawyers, doctors, administrators or legislators : they do not produce anything : they are fed by the cultivating classes. (Mr. B. G. Pahalajani : They produce brains). They have brains certainly, but many a time their brains are abused. I think the misery and the abject poverty of the average ryot is due to the working of the splendid brains that are now boasted of. I would point out that there is a good deal of unemployment among the middle classes and that the condition of this unemployment is becoming more and more acute. Government are condemned in season and out of season for not doing anything, and for not raising their little finger to remedy this evil. I think also, Sir, Government are responsible for this condition. They have opened high schools ; they have opened colleges ; and in that way manufactured a commodity for which there is no demand. But what is the condition now ? When they propose the abolition of a high school or the abolition of a college, there a hue and cry is raised and the action of Government is condemned as being very retrograde. And what are our brainy men doing ? They are starting more and more high schools and trying to found more and more colleges—arts colleges, mind you—and in that way they are doing their best to add to the numbers of the unemployed from the middle classes. I do not know how long this process is going to continue. I admire the spirit which my honourable friend from Bijapur has shown here. He has proposed that the high school at Bijapur, the headquarter town of the constituency which he represents, should be abolished and the money and the building thus made available should be employed in founding a technical school at Bijapur. Bijapur, Sir, is a place very much suited for a technical school. Everybody has admitted that claim. The Government have admitted it. His Excellency the Governor on more occasions than one has expressed his desire to found a technical school at Bijapur ; but it has remained a pious wish, because no funds are available. Now, my honourable friend from Bijapur has pointed out the way, and I hope his suggestion will be taken up by the Honourable Minister for Education and that the great want that has been felt by the people of Bijapur so long will be met from the funds which will be saved by abolishing the high school at Bijapur. Sir, I may point out that the machines for turning out men who cannot find employment are on the increase. There was only one Government law college in the past, and yet the output from that college was so very heavy that the pleaders generally were called briefless. But now another college has been started at Poona and two more will soon be working. I do not know where all these law graduates that will be turned out of these colleges will find work. It is said, Sir, that idle fellows form a very serious danger to the society, and I do not know what the condition of the people will be in the districts when so many briefless lawyers go to swell the ranks of the already large numbers of the practitioners at the bar.

My honourable friend the member for Labour has described here the dire condition of some of the medical practitioners and the doctors that have been turned out of the medical colleges. I am told that these doctors are generally known as killers of flies. They will waste their time and opportunities in swarming into the biggest places, but will not turn their attention to the villages where people are dying like flies. In this way, our medical education is not benefitting the people at large. The villagers do not get the medical help they do want and medical intelligence and the medical talent are wasted in the cities and big towns. That is one of the causes of unemployment in the medical profession. A manufacturer who manufactures goods for which he knows there was no demand, would be looked upon as a fool. The society is now acting exactly in the same manner; they are producing abundant material—graduates in law, graduates in medicine, and graduates in arts—for which everybody knows there is neither demand nor prospects of employment. In spite of this more and more graduates are turned out year by year, and every district town is now wishing to have a college for itself. I have come to know that when the Honourable Minister for Education raised the fees in the high schools, many people thought that it was a retrograde step, and I would not be surprised if, when that portion of the budget comes under discussion, he is attacked on that account. I take this opportunity, Sir, of saying that I fully endorse his view and that I am of opinion that he has done well in raising the fees. (Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad: Bold thing?) Certainly this is a bold move, and I am ready to stand by him. It is absurd to say that the burden of secondary and higher education should be wholly borne by the general exchequer.

Government have up to this time spent a lot of money over higher education and also secondary education, but they have not done as much as they ought to have done for primary education. Government have now come to recognise their duty by primary education, and when they found that they have no funds to spend for primary education, and when they found that there is a demand for higher education, it is but right that the Honourable Minister should lay a portion of this burden on those who want to take higher education.

I would, therefore, say that the question of unemployment is mainly in the hands of our leaders. It is for them to solve this question. Our leaders have to find out a way for utilising the intelligence and work of these men. Our graduates and our learned men should not fight shy of going to and working in the fields or in factories. Up to this time the unemployment is solely due to the fact that our white-coated brothers would not soil their hands by working like the labourers. That idea ought to be given up by the educated classes. If this is done, I am sure this question of unemployment will be solved. This question is met with in all the provinces, mostly in Bengal. And I find that the Bengali graduates have gone to the land and are working on the farm as common agriculturists. If our graduates would do some such thing, they will not only add to the prosperity of themselves but to that of the people at large also. Thus agriculture will improve and will be made profitable to all concerned. There are so many tracts where the agricultural population is sparse and I think some of our graduates may try there and remove the pressure of unemployment.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): Sir, we find that the department of the Director of Information and the Labour are both combined. It lies concealed in a very small corner in the budget, and it is with considerable difficulty that one discovers this item in the budget.

On turning to page 91 of the White Book, we find the pay of the Director of Information, under general administration where the amount of Rs. 26,400 has been shown, Rs. 2,000 is shown as the salary of the Director of Information and to it is added a special pay of Rs. 200. This comes to Rs. 26,400, non-voted, against Rs. 24,000 for 1926-27, and Rs. 24,450 being the budget estimate for 1927-28. You will also observe that the same officer, namely the Director of Information, has to do the duty of the Director of Labour. At page 251 of the same book, you will notice that a provision has been made for Rs. 69,000 voted, and Rs. 16,000 non-voted for the next year for the Bombay Labour Office. This amount together with the expenses for other establishment comes to Rs. 1,50,000.

Now, if you look at the Blue Book, it shows that Rs. 16,000 has been debited to the Labour Office as half charges incurred on account of the salary of the Director of Information, who does the work. I do not know how there has been an increase of Rs. 2,400 on this item, over the amount of Rs. 24,000. You will also notice on page 91 of the White Book that there is an item of Travelling allowance Rs. 3,100 and House-rent allowance Rs. 2,400, which comes to the total of including the figure for salary about Rs. 32,000. I now put it to the Honourable the Finance Member and the Honourable Member who is in charge of the Miscellaneous,—whether he is the Honourable the General Member or any other honourable member—I put it to them whether it is not right that this amount should be spent over the department of Industries. It has been admitted that this department has not been developed. It has also been admitted that it will take some time for the development of this department....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Sir, the Director of Industries is not included in this item.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: I know, Sir, it is not included in the item which is at present under discussion. I know that will come under the next demand. I know there is a separate item for the Director of Industries which will be next taken up for consideration and to which I have raised my objection. What I wish to say is this. I want to know from the Honourable the Finance Member whether he thinks that any expenditure should be incurred on the department of the Director of Information.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Sir, the item for the Director of Industries is not included in this item and so, it is irrelevant to refer to that item.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: Sir, on page 97 of the Blue Book you will find:

> The Director of Information also holds the post of Director of Labour Intelligence. The provision on account of the pay of the Director of Information was made under the head "22-General Administration." As the Director also devotes about half his time to his duties in connection with the Labour Office half the provision on account of his pay and allowances has been made under this head. This increase is partly counterbalanced by a decrease under the sub-head "Controller of Rent."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I think both the sides are right. Technically the Director of Industries and the Director of Information is the same person.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Not the Director of Industries, but it is the Director of Information and the Director of Labour Office.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: Sir, I have already observed that Rs. 16,000 are debited to the Labour Office on account of the salary of the Director of Information. What I want to say is this. The Government are going to create a separate appointment of the Director of Industries; I would, therefore, ask Government to consider whether the Director of Industries should not do the duty of a Director of Labour. Why should there be a burden of about Rs. 32,000 which is spent after the Director of Information? I should like to know from the Honourable the Finance Member and the Honourable Minister whether they cannot transfer the duties of the Director of Labour to those of the Director of Industries. We have him; he must continue, and let his work be confined to that. But, so far as the Director of Labour is concerned, let his duties be transferred to a more legitimate person, that is to say, the Director of Industries. Let him come in contact with unemployment. The Director of Information cannot come in contact with unemployment, because he has only to prepare press-notes and nothing more. This is a matter, therefore, which the Honourable Minister concerned and the Honourable the Finance Member might consider.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, here in 37, Miscellaneous Departments Labour Office has been included. As has been pointed out by the honourable members who took part in this discussion, the function of the Labour Office is very much limited at present. It merely collects statistics; but that does not give food to the unemployed. The function of the Labour Office must be like that of the Labour Ministry in England and other European countries. These functions are to find employment for the unemployed, and if they are unable to find employment for them, they have to provide them with food. That is the function which has been recognised by civilised governments in European countries. Here, Labour Office is merely doing a work which does not satisfy the requirements that are necessary if we want to conduct the government on civilised lines. It is the duty of Government to find work for the people, or if they are not able to provide them with work, then they have to provide them with at least the bare necessaries of life. In England also the Labour Ministry provide food, if they are not able to provide work. Similarly, if the Labour Office is to be conducted on the lines on which it is worked in European countries, it is worth while to have the Labour Office; otherwise the amount of money that is spent on Labour Office is merely wasted. It is wasted practically in giving salaries of big officers and in employing persons to collect statistics. You may collect statistics, and you may find that so many people are unemployed. But what would be the result? What would be the benefit to the unemployed? They are there, all the same. They do not get any benefit from this department. The duties of the Labour Office should be wider if they at all want to continue that department. I may at this stage compare the ideals of civilised Governments in Europe with the ideals of Government in ancient India. In ancient India the ideal of Government was, as pointed out by Kalidas in one of his great poems,

प्रजानां विनयाधानाद्रक्षणाद्भरणादपि ।
स पिता पितरस्तासां केवलं जन्महेतवः ॥

That is, the duties of Government are threefold. They have to give the subjects universal education. Then, रक्षणं, i.e., they have to protect them. Then, भरणं, i.e., they have to maintain them. These three were the recognised duties of the Government in ancient times. In fact, the subjects were to be considered the children of the King; the King was a greater parent to these children than the parents who gave them birth. The duty of protecting and maintaining them devolved on the State, and these three principles are recognised in Bolshevik Russia. And lastly, in Europe they have to do this. If they did not do that, I think there would be revolution as there was revolution in France and Russia. Let the Ministers who hold the reins of Government in England allow the unemployed to remain without food even for a single day; I think their offices would at that time be invaded and the people would altogether revolutionise the form of Government. Government have been compelled to recognise this as a primary function. This function was also the ideal in the ancient system of Government in India. Just, on the other hand, here, the Labour Office collect statistics, publish them in a Gazette, and the people starve on an enormous scale. At least in Bombay city you do not find the unemployed actually starving, but in the mofussil there are so many unemployed who do not even get sufficient food once a day. All these people have to be cared for and looked after, and Government have to realise their dûties towards them. That is the real function of the Labour Office, and if the Labour Office is to be widened and put on the lines of civilised governments, it is worth while to keep it; otherwise cut down these Rs. 50,000 and abolish your Labour Office altogether. With that object in view, I move this cut in this budget.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Mr. President, this cut has turned out to be a debate on unemployment, and, therefore, I will confine my attention only to that aspect of the case. My honourable friend Mr. Nariman and my honourable friend Mr. Bechar have made no distinction in unemployment in industrial labour, agricultural labour, or amongst the middle classes. They have lumped them all three together. Sir, in this country I do not think it can be contended that there is any unemployment amongst agricultural labour, and no honourable member has put forward such a contention. I do not know whether it really requires even contradiction. But I would refer honourable members to the General Administration Report, the one last issued, of 1925-26, which gives interesting information. In the Central Division the daily average rate of wages of a field labourer in rural areas rose by 14 per cent.; in urban areas by 7 per cent., over the rates of 1924. Then, it goes on to give us the Southern Division. There was an increase of 25 per cent. in the wages of a field labourer in rural tracts in 1925 as compared with the previous year; in urban tracts the rates remained stationary. Sir, therefore, without taking up further time of the honourable House, let us eliminate agricultural labour. Then, we come to industrial labour. I do not think anybody can seriously contend that there is unemployment in this presidency to anything like the extent that is prevalent in Europe. I will, therefore, dismiss that part of unemployment. Then, we come to the middle classes, and there we are prepared to admit that there is, to a certain extent, unemployment in the big cities. In the middle classes I would include clerks and even some professional men. Sir, the remedy for this unemployment is not, by any means, an easy problem; and let it not be thought that up to now Government have paid no attention to this question. The very fact that Government ordered an enquiry into middle class unemployment is a proof that some attention has been paid to the matter. A report was issued in 1927, and I presume that my honourable friends have studied the report.

Let me first allude to a point made by my honourable friend Mr. Nariman when he stated that the information contained in the Labour Gazette was not of much use because after all what the people wanted was food and money to obtain food and they did not require family budgets. I could not quite understand the exact inference of that statement, but I will remind honourable members that family budgets are collected not to give any idea to the poorer classes as to what they should eat but they are collected to enable Government to get some idea as to the cost of living.

The one remedy that has been suggested is an unemployment bureau. I think that suggestion came from more than one honourable member yesterday; it certainly came from my honourable friend Mr. Nariman. Now, Sir, an unemployment bureau in any part of the world is not going to create employment : and, therefore, I will, with your permission, give you authoritative opinions as to the functions of an unemployment bureau. The introductory chapter of a book published by the Russel Sage Foundation on Public Employment Offices has gone into the question and has described unemployment bureaus very shortly, very concisely and very much to the point so far as our debate is concerned. It says :

" Our discussions with those who have been at work on unemployment bureau questions longest have shown that they recognised from the beginning that public employment exchanges could not in the periods of depression make jobs when or where there were no jobs, nor could they in times of prosperity and labour shortage discover more workers when the supply was limited and no more were to be found."

An employment bureau, therefore, regulates the supply of labour ; it does not create employment. In Bombay and big cities where unemployment in the middle classes is most noticeable, an unemployed, whether he be a clerk or a doctor or a struggling lawyer, does not find difficulty in finding an employer who has got a job to offer but the trouble is that employers have not got jobs to offer. If an employer had got a job to offer suitable for the middle class, he would find no difficulty in getting applicants for that job, nor would an unemployed find it difficult to find out employers who required their services. Therefore, an unemployment bureau would cease to function in this city. If there was great difficulty in bringing the employer and the person to be employed into touch with one another, an unemployment bureau would be a very useful institution, and therefore the suggestion of having an unemployment bureau is not going to help the middle classes in this city or in any other big city in this Presidency.....

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : It will prevent foreign importation.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I do not know how it is going to prevent foreign importation. That can only be prevented by the employer. If the employer ceases to employ foreigners, then only the unemployed in this country will get a job but as long as the employer prefers foreign labour and looks out for foreign labour, the unemployment bureau is not going to be of any use....

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : Government is the largest employer.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Government do not require an unemployment bureau. To have an unemployment bureau with any success, large employers of labour must be prepared to take all the servants they want through the unemployment bureau. Would my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji, representing the Indian Merchants Chamber who are large employers of middle class labour, be prepared to employ only such as would register in an unemployment bureau.....

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : Provided the Government was my own, I would.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : They would in most cases never agree because it is so easy now-a-days to find the man they want.

[Sir Cowasji Jehangir]

Our situation in Bombay having been little more clearly defined, let us see what is the position in Europe and America. In those countries unemployment exists mostly amongst the artisan class and unskilled labourer. State efforts are really exclusively confined to those classes. There is no assistance given, so far as I know, to the middle classes in foreign countries....

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: The middle class in those countries work by the labour of their hands.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I wish that it was really so. What country does the honourable member's remark refer to?

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: England.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Let us not compare such matters, but let us confine our attention to the facts as they exist in those countries. The facts are that in England and America Government aid for unemployment is confined to the unskilled labourer and to the artisan, and, therefore, when our friends ask us to follow the example of Europe, I do not think they are on very firm ground. Let us take the question of unskilled labour and of the artisan. Any State aid must be based on the foundation of doles. If the State tries to find employment for the unskilled labourer and the artisan and if it fails, it must be prepared for doles. Luckily for us at least in this presidency, we have not had to consider the question of doles. I would only say that we can dismiss the question of agricultural and industrial labour and therefore I do not go further into the question of what Europe does for that part of its unemployed.

Now, Sir, looking nearer home, Bengal appointed a committee to go into the question of unemployment, and its report has been before the public for some time. It will be seen that the bulk of its recommendations deal with alterations in the existing educational system, and that very few of its suggestions are designed to relieve the present situation. Therefore, so far as unemployment amongst the middle classes is concerned it becomes a matter of qualifications, and it comes down to education. Again, in Japan, they had an enquiry on the question of unemployment, and the main principle underlying the report was that the problem should be dealt with by an improvement of the present system of education. The report goes on to state as follows:

"Instead of giving undue prominence, as does the present system, to subjects remote from every day life, provision should be made for vocational education and subjects of a practical value with a closer bearing on social life, and their study should be encouraged."

Now, Sir, I am afraid that these reports are poor consolation to the middle class unemployed of to-day. A man wants a job; if you reply to him that we are taking steps to improve the education of the youth of the country, so that, when they grow up, unemployment will not exist, it is truly offering him a stone, when he is asking for bread; and I am fully conscious that the reports on unemployment amongst the middle classes that have been presented to the public up to now make no suggestions as to the immediate relief that can be given. The remedies go much further down and deeper than any mere superficial remedies we can suggest for the unemployed of to-day. A great deal of unemployment amongst the middle classes in this city is due to trade depression. There has been retrenchment everywhere, and you cannot expect large employers of labour to be philanthropists. In times of depression the axe must come down, and hundreds must find themselves without a job. What is the remedy for this state of affairs ? Can you discuss the remedy in a discussion on the Labour Office ? It is a much wider and much more important question. This unemployment amongst the middle classes requires discussion on education, on trade depression, and it depends on other factors. Therefore, when honourable members while addressing this House believed that they were giving us suggestions for the first time, they were not quite correct. These files date back to three or four years, and I am afraid that, on the present occasion, I cannot make any useful contribution to this discussion on unemployment amongst the middle classes, useful in the sense that I can come forward and say that Government are prepared to do something immediately. I have tried to point out the deep roots that this question has got, which have to be investigated and considered by all departments of Government.

Mr. President, the nominated Labour representative for the city of Bombay criticised the activities of the Labour Office and compared them with Madras, and when he was asked to explain the functions of the office in Madras, he said he knew them and he would explain them, and therefore led us to believe that the two offices could be compared. The office in Madras has the following activities under its control ; the management and control of criminal settlements, the education of the depressed classes, Factory Act administration, emigration of labour, and Co-operative societies ; and the budget for all these is about Rs. 5 lakhs. Now, Sir, to compare a department which has all these activities under it with a department like the Labour office is not a fair comparison.

Sir, the honourable member also made an allusion to the mill strikes, and stated that Government, except giving a very patient hearing, gave no further assistance. Since he made that statement, I find it necessary to say only a few words. These representatives of Labour believe that whenever there is a strike in an individual mill in Bombay, Government should immediately interfere. Why ? I do not know. If they are representatives of Labour, it is their duty first to see what they can do with the employers of those who go on strike. If they expect Government to jump in on every occasion, they will find that ultimately the assistance of Government will not be of much avail. After all, Government have no powers. They act as a friendly medium in the mill industry in Bombay between the employer and the employee, and the assistance of that friendly medium should, I believe, be only sought under grave circumstances. I have expressed that opinion to my honourable friends who represent Labour, and I express it openly in this honourable House, and I trust that they will first make efforts themselves and if the situation is really grave, Government have in the past and will in the future put their services at the disposal of both employer and employee.

Mr. President, a complaint was also made that Government are reluctant to go in for legislation. There are some who think that we are going a little faster than we should. I express no opinion on these different schools of thought, but I would point out that when this Government is accused of doing nothing with regard to the Industrial Disputes Bill, those who make the accusation are not conversant with the facts. Honourable members of this House know that a bill was drafted and was to be presented to this honourable House but it was withdrawn, as the Government of India proposed to legislate for all India. (An Honourable Member: It was in 1923 and nothing is heard of till now.) I have no further information to give from the Government of India. I think I have replied to a good deal that has been stated in this honourable House. I have nothing further to state at this stage.

Question put and lost.

Question that the Demand for Rs. 4,23,000 under 37, Miscellaneous Departments be granted was put and carried.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Sir, I move for a grant of Rs. 1,02,000 under 35, Industries.

Question proposed.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): Sir, I move:

"That item No. 62 on page 276 of the Blue Book, 'Appointment of Director of Industries and extra staff in the Department' to be omitted."

Now, the House is aware that the Honourable Minister has made a demand for a magnificent sum of Rs. 1,02,000 for industries in an industrial province like Bombay. It is not necessary to go into the history of the Industries Department beginning with the reformed Council when the present Finance Member who was then the Minister in charge of fisheries purchased a trawler and sold it after two years. Since then the department has taken a downward course. The Director was done away with in 1924. Up to that year we had as Director an I.C.S. man and the cabinet found it necessary to do away with him, because he did not answer the purpose. The only purpose for which the Director was appointed was for the purpose of giving advice. This item is intended for the first time to introduce an expert and a sum of Rs. 29,597 has been provided, while the provision for the whole department is Rs. 1,02,000. My intention in moving this cut is twofold. The first is to draw the attention of the Honourable Minister in charge to the usefulness of this department and to ascertain from him whether he is prepared to increase the activities of this department, if he appoints an expert. If he is prepared to do so whether he is going to press the Honourable the Finance Member who, while in charge of that department, took a great deal of interest in it, to make greater allotment, which is in his power by means of omitting items of questionable utility. What the House emphatically desires is that the Honourable Minister will assert himself and that the Honourable the Finance Member shall allot more money even at the sacrifice of many other things which the Honourable the Finance Member may consider necessary. The next point is to insist that the Director to be appointed must be an Indian conversant with Indian industries. These are the two objects with which I have moved this cut. The House will be prepared to sanction a much larger amount than is provided for here. This cut is moved in order to declare that the department should be encouraged and that an Indian expert should be appointed as Director. If these two conditions are not satisfied, I am sure this House will omit that item unanimously.

Question proposed.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: (Indian Merchants' Chamber): Sir, in supporting the views of the mover of this cut, I have to offer a few remarks on the question of the industries of this presidency which is called an industrial province. Out of the sum of Rs. 1,02,000 which is to be spent on this department, Rs. 29,597 is going to be spent on the appointment of a Director of Industries. Honourable members who preceded me very largely dealt with the question of unemployment but no remedy was suggested either by Government benches or by honourable members on this side of the House. I am tempted to speak on this subject, because the Honourable the General Member stated that he would like to hear from me as one concerned with industries and employers of middle class men whether those in trade and in industries would employ those men who are without employment. The Honourable the General Member seems to be impatient and I will just explain it to him. The real complaint in this country is that the industry has been deliberately not only disregarded but all attempts are being made by Government which is a foreign and industrial Government to keep India as a market only. Government has made no effort to develop the activities of this department. I will simply ask the Honourable the General Member to deny the following statements of mine on behalf of the Government which he represents.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Mr. President, as a matter of personal explanation. I have said nothing of the sort. I do not know what my honourable friend is alluding to. All I asked was whether the honourable member was prepared to take all he wanted through an Unemployment Bureau? I used that as an argument that an Unemployment Bureau will not be of any use. I said that employers of labour could do without such an agency; they did not require it in this city; why should they make use of such an agency? That is all that I said.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: Sir, my remarks have reference to what he was saying when I interrupted him. If this country was self-governing this question would never have arisen. I certainly do not see any chance of our industries being uplifted from the position in which they are lying to-day, so long as the real elected representatives of the people are not on the Executive Council instead of they being responsible to Whitehall they must be made responsible to the people. If the Government were our own, the condition of India would not have been as it is to-day. I shall now refer to the condition of industries in other countries. I am quoting from the Labour Gazette, which has always been giving important news as regards industries :

" According to information published by the Federal Reserve Board of United States, it is estimated that in 26 years from 1899-1925, the volume of production increased by 175 per cent., the number of wage-earners by 60 per cent. and the average production of each wage-earner by 50 per cent. since 1899 and by 33 per cent. since 1921."

I quote these figures and ask if the Government of this country can show any such thing to its credit.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Sir, is the honourable member aware that unemployment is a very serious problem at the present time in the United States of America ?

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : I will point out to the Honourable the Home Member that it is not so. I will show from the same Labour Gazette that the labourers in America are getting not only double, or treble, but four times the wages they were getting in the past. Those labourers who make four times their previous wages can certainly tide over a time of depression, but those who have been depressed since the advent of the British rule in this country cannot. I will show that Government have done nothing to help the industries....(An honourable member : They have increased the salaries of officers). They have increased the salaries of high salaried European officers and that is the reason why there is more poverty in this country ; we have paid high salaried officers not to serve this country by developing industries, but by creating work for the industries of England, and that is another reason why we have no help to industries. I will quote from the Labour Gazette of February 1928 :

" Further evidence of the truth of this principle is given by the conditions in America to-day where prosperity is immense, and trade-unionism on the whole, much weaker than in this country. Wages are very high because the determining fact has been the strength of industry and not the weakness of the trade unions."

It is pointed out there that high wages depend on the strength of the industry. If the Government were our own, I am sure Government would have provided not one lakh, but many lakhs. Other provinces in India are providing several lakhs. What is the reason why Bombay is not providing more ? It is sheer indifference or I may say it is because this subordinate Government is at the dictation of another subordinate Government of Whitehall. That is the only reason, and that can be seen from the report of the Industries Committee. Instead of any support to industries there has been pouring of cold water on the suggestions made to strengthen the position of the Director of Industries. The Department of Industries was started here as a result of the recommendations of the Industrial Commission of Sir Thomas Holland. It was started, I believe, in 1922, and when it was started under an I.C.S. officer nearly fourteen heads of activities were placed by this Government under the Director of Industries. But in 1924 I moved for a reduction in the total grant as a protest against non-Indian I.C.S. occupying the Director's post, and an arrangement was arrived at that time when the honourable member Mr. Jadhav was the Minister, by which the

[Mr. Lalji Naranji]

Department was to be conducted by an Indian. Now, what has been the attitude of Government since an Indian was appointed ? They curtailed all the activities of the Department and deprived the Director of all the activities which the previous occupant of that post had managed, and the Department was turned into an absolute non-entity. Coming to the report of the Industries Committee, what do we find ? Even the recommendations made by Sir Manmohandas and myself have not been accepted by Government, because we differed from the President of that Committee. The recommendation is that the control of the Factory and Boiler Inspection Department should be given over to the Industries Department. Even such a small thing Government were not prepared to accept, because they have no other alternative but to appoint an Indian Director. Now, if the activities of the Department are going to be curtailed because an Indian Director is appointed, how is the department going to be successful ? It will be simply waste of money to spend on such an important department such a small amount of money. This Department ought to be provided much more and not starved as the honourable mover of the cut said. I hope this department will not be deprived of those activities which were given to it when it was started under the recommendations of the Sir Thomas Holland Commission. Now, this department is important not only for the trading and the capitalist interests but also for agriculturists as labourers in their spare time. How will labourers find employment ? As already pointed out by me by the quotation that I read, America is prosperous because her industries are prosperous. Here no attempt is being made by Government to promote even small industries, leave aside big industries. But see what other Governments do. Take for instance Japan, and see how they develop their cottage industries, e.g., match industries ; cigarette industries, soap industries, toy industries. When we talk of cottage industries, we are reminded by Government that they are encouraging handloom weaving. But is it a fact that this foreign Government have encouraged handloom weaving ? Do they not remember that India used to supply cloth to England and that England by prohibitive duties prevented Indian cloth from going to the West, and that they are now our suppliers of cloth ? What have they done to the handloom industry ? If you refer to the minute of dissent by Pandit Malaviya you will find not only that this Government has done nothing to help the handloom industry, but that they made every attempt to kill that industry by cutting the fingers of those workers who were the cause of the prosperity of India. They have deprived us of that handloom industry, and to-day they show that they are spending Rs. 30,000 for helping that industry. Have Government helped to start any new industries which supply certain articles which were luxuries before but have become necessities to-day ? I say that Government have done nothing ; they do not want to see any industry prospering in this country. We know that our weaving industry has existed in India in spite of the adverse efforts of foreign Government in this country owing to the ample supply of raw materials and spot market.

[Mr. Lalji Naranji]

That is the only industry that is left to us. What industry is there to the credit of this Government which they have helped to prosper ? Can they show to this House any industry which they have tried to help ? I do not think so. I may say that the money that will be spent for the development of industries will be repaid in various ways. That money will be repaid by employment of several lakhs of people. Sir, I had no mind at all to speak on this subject, but I only spoke because some remarks were made and a question was asked whether those who represent Industry and Trade will give employment to those on the list of unemployment bureau. I do say that those who represent industry and trade will give employment, if full and complete financial genuine authority were given to one province and if it was not stated that this subject is that of the Central Government. I say, Sir, that the Bombay Government is a branch of that Central Government in this respect and so partially it is responsible for this state of affairs so long as they do not secure complete financial authority to the people of this presidency. Nothing has been done to develop the industry. I have got many quotations to give to this House, but I do not like to take the time of this House. If you look into the Labour Gazettes from December to February you will find very important quotations given therein. If the honourable members will read the Labour Gazette, they will see that the Government are not only not doing anything, but they are shutting their eyes to see any industry developed. Look at the match industry. I do not think that Government will help this industry. Instead of that, they will try to remove that industry. So also the same thing is about the cottage industry. I do hope that the Honourable Minister, who is responsible to this part of the House, will make some efforts to develop these industries.

I had suggested some means in this direction; but the honourable member, Mr. Freke, did not agree with me. He said that the department of the Inspection of Boiler and Factories had to look after the health and safety. What is this health and safety ? This is nothing but the hesitation on the part of those officers connected with this department to come under a department which will be manned and supervised by an Indian. If they could work under the supervision of an I.C.S., I do not see any reason for any officers to complain to work under the same department officered by an Indian. Another thing I wish to bring to the notice of the Honourable Minister is that more money should be spent for the development of the cottage industry as far as possible under the present circumstances. I also expect that if the Director of Industries has not been able to do anything in the direction of the development of industries, owing to the fault of Government, he should not hesitate to come forward and say so boldly. He should not consider that he will be asked to resign by the Government and with that fear he should not suppress facts. The Director of Industries will be an Indian and we expect him to do his duty by the country. If he finds that the Government do not encourage the development of industries, he should say so openly. I am really sorry to find that even the Education Department is not prepared to part with their control on

[Mr. Lalji Naranji]

Industrial Education in favour of Industries Department. I do say that the Director of Industries should be an Indian alone. Indian is required for that purpose, because the industries which are to be developed will be Indian industries. I understand that arrangements are made to appoint an Indian as a Director of Industries and I hope that man will prove to be a proper man and he would put right the present policy of Government.

I would again appeal to those who do not wish that India should be industrialised to read the Labour Gazette for the month of December. There at page 337 they will find.

"Economists and.....have on the whole reserved the judgment on the subject of scientific management."

It further states—

"the whole outlook of economists is coloured by the fear of Europe becoming over-industrialised."

Sir, India is not given even a little share to allow its industries to develop. I submit, Sir, that if our industry prospers, then the people of this country will depend on the machinery imported from Europe and from other advanced countries. That should be their consolation and they should allow India to develop their industries. With these remarks, I support the views put forth by the honourable mover of this motion.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE (Bombay City): Sir, I have often criticised the Development Department not because the Honourable the General Member has been careless or is not competent but because the Development Department has involved us in a loss so great that we are unable to bear and we want a very strict supervision over it and we want to get out of, as best as we can, this serious position. But when I rise to make some remarks over this department, I do so not only with a regret, but also with a feeling of shame which cannot only be felt by any businessman or a man connected with industry and trade but also by every Indian who understands how helpless and poor we are owing to the state of our industries and owing to the lack of any attempt to build up even small industries for our every day's necessity of life. Sir, it is the only Department that we have got, which can give much assistance in the matter of the development of industry. But nothing has been done so far. In season and out of season we are told by the Honourable the Finance Member that there are no funds available. In and out of season we are told by the Honourable Ministers "There are no funds for the nation-building departments and unless this House agree to further taxation, we cannot do much." Sir, we have got this industries department to which I submit this Government and the Honourable Ministers should give their serious and very careful consideration. We have got a department which, if well and honestly looked after is the only department which can help us to meet to some little extent the burden of our heavy taxation. At present we are unable to meet any taxation, and why? Because the earning capacity of the people has not increased and unemployment is increasing.

[Mr. Hooseinbhoy Abdullabhoy Lalljee]

We have been forced to spend our large sums of money over the development department, for which so much has already been said. I do not say that the Honourable the General Member is responsible for that. But it is certainly due to facts beyond our control and therefore we are unable to meet our proper demands. As regards the question of unemployment. I think every effort is being made to solve this problem all over the world. It is only the Bombay Government that has not yet seen their way to solve this problem. If you look at other countries, you will find that Rs. 7 lakhs are spent over the department of the Director of Industries, to help the people in every respect, but here we find that hardly one lakh is provided for such an important department, and that is also not spent. I ask what do you think of a Government's earnest to help the people who are so heavily taxed when this is the condition of such an important Department.

A lakh of rupees provided by the Government for development of Industries in an important industrial centre, a Government comprising of businessmen in it, thinking this much amount sufficient is a very undesirable thing. It is only provided for the sake of misleading the public. And, above all, when they say that for a whole year we have not been able to get a Director of Industries I say this Government has never been serious about it. We are told "You don't pay sufficient taxes we can't give you the required medical relief, we can't give you sufficient education; we will tax you if you want medical relief or more educational grant and we shall not do anything unless you agree to pay more taxation but how are we to pay more." Is Government doing anything to improve our condition? I was sorry to find that when my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji was addressing and was pointing all these things out to this House the honourable members on the opposite side were laughing. They do not realise what a grave mistake they have done, what blunders they have committed. If they put us on our legs or even help us to be on our legs we may be able to pay the heavy taxation and even for their blunders. But here we are forced to pay although we are on the verge of starvation without any help. Sir, while different provinces have been voting more and more for helping the industries every year what has our Government done? For the last three years we have been speaking loudly in this honourable House for help and describing the pitiable condition in which this department is lying, but it is regrettable that our Government does not realise the position and does not help it. Well, Sir, if this is the way they have adopted for helping industries, then, I must say that it is a misfortune and it is a shame that we have not yet realised the importance of the subject as all the world over it is realised. I may give one or two instances. In Bengal they were having a demonstration on last 20th February, and I saw this communique was issued. In collaboration with the Industries, Public Health, Veterinary, Co-operative and Agricultural Departments of the Government of Bengal, a demonstration train will leave Sealdah Station on 21st February on a month's tour. This is the second train of this kind organised. The object with which these trains are arranged is to give publicity to the activities of the various nation-building departments of the Government and as such the train is a matter of considerable public interest. Now, Sir, what do we find ? A province where industries are at a low ebb is doing such things and what is the condition in our own presidency ? Nothing whatsoever is done. In our budget speeches we have drawn pointed attention to this state of things, and I am afraid the Honourable Minister has not read those speeches. If he had read, then he would not have condenscended to allow the Finance Member to give only a lakh of rupees and come to this House with his proposal of appointing a Director of Industries hereafter.

Well, Sir, we have often learnt, and I should consider it with pride, that every time that industrial trouble has arisen in England His Majesty the King Emperor has always encouraged local industries. Not only that, but for the last two years we have been having exhibitions there, and above all, I read a letter dated the 5th January from the Prime Minister to his party, in which he says :

" In my view both our Liberal and Socialist opponents are apt to lose sight of the basic fact that we are before all things a trading nation. The Conservative Party recognises the vital fact that the first great essential to industrial success on which the country depends is peace in industry, etc., etc."

Well, Sir, this is what we find even in the case of our Government in England. And what are we doing ? I do feel, Sir, that our Ministers will seriously look into this department. If they don't want to do that, they must say : " We won't look into this department and will go on taxing people. " Say that plainly, " We won't try to help you. " But, Sir, so long as they make a show, and especially in a city like Bombay, of having an Industries Department with one lakh of rupees, while all other provinces even the United Provinces and the Central Provinces have five and six lakhs of rupees and a Director of Industries, I am ashamed of this, Sir, and I do hope that Government will realise that it is no use putting before the people a mere show, that they are having an Industries Department. They should realise that and should honestly and sincerely help, or say plainly that they intend doing away with it. Once more I say, Sir, that it is only this department that can help people to bear taxes, it is the only Department that can help people to look after themselves better and therefore look less to Government for more medical relief and more Educational help and that unless you help this department you will be creating more and more unemployment and more starvation. Lastly I hope the Honourable Members will feel that it is their primary duty to help the people and it is no use telling us " give us more money anyhow and then ask for more medical and educational relief." I say help people to be on their own legs and then you have done your duty or tell us plainly what you really wish to do.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Sir, I rise to support the motion made by the honourable member from Sukkur. In speaking on this motion I feel a certain disability due to the fact that, probably because the Industries Department has not those controversial aspects which the Development Department has, members probably on both sides of the House do not take an adequate interest in the department and its activities. I do not know whether it has been realised that the events of the last 20 years have tended to decrease the number of actual workers in this presidency and increase substantially the number of dependents on those workers. It may be that many other departments and activities of life have engaged the attention of Government and the people, and this fact may not have been noticed. It is said that the Government of Bombay acts on the policy of drift, and probably it is that consideration which has led to adequate attention not being paid to the development of industries. I find from the census figures of the last 20 years that, while in 1901 out of every 1,000 persons 527 were actual workers, 473 were dependents. These figures assumed a worse appearance in 1911. The number of actual workers diminished to 469, that is, below half, and the number of dependents on those actual workers increased to 531. Events took a still worse course in the subsequent ten years, and the number of actual workers dwindled to 439 and the number of dependents on those workers increased to 561. That is, in the course of 20 years the number of dependents have increased by almost 20 per cent. I have no reason to dispute the accuracy of these figures, and if the census figures are correct, I think this is a matter which deserves some consideration. If the state of our presidency is such that the number of actual workers is diminishing and the number of dependents is substantially increasing, then, I think it is our duty, the duty of both sides of the House, to give adequate attention to the question of development of cottage industries in the presidency.

Sir, it has been said that the Bombay Presidency is an industrial province and yet a contrast of the state of things in Bombay with the state of things which prevails in other provinces may probably be considered invidious. I will not venture to compare the state of things in the Bombay Presidency with that in some of the Indian States because the people of this presidency will have to hang down their heads in shame if I contrast what has been done by the Mysore Government with what has been done by our Government here. I do not want that we should import any heat into this discussion. I really want that both sides of the House should address themselves to a careful consideration of the situation.

When the Indian Industrial Commission reported in 1918, it made important recommendations for the development of industries in this presidency, and wanted that the Government of Bombay should spend as small an amount as only sixteen lakhs of rupees per year, which forms only one per cent. of the total expenditure of the presidency, and yet the Government of Bombay have this year earmarked the remarkable figure of Rs. 1,02,000. When we analyse this remarkable figure of Rs. 1,02,000 we shall realise that the figure is even more ridiculous than it appears. I find that this figure of Rs.1,02,000 includes Rs.44,000 to be spent on Direction, that is, the salary of the Director of Industries and his establishment and their allowances, and the only figures which are kept here for the purpose of development of industries of this presidency are the figure of Rs. 2,000 for experimental work and the large sum of Rs. 960 for a survey of the handloom weaving industry and the ridiculous figure of Rs. 560 for a survey of village tanning industry! Sir, I really want to know whether Government are serious—when I say "Government" I mean the entire Government, not a particular Member of Government—in trying to employ a high-salaried officer and giving him these petty sums for the work of survey and experiment. I do not know whether the Government of Bombay will be able to get the proper type of man for this post if he knows that this is the limit of opportunity for his abilities. A highly paid officer, who is to draw Rs. 2,000, is given a small figure of Rs. 1,520 for survey and experiment. I want to know what are the real intentions of the Government of Bombay. I want to know what is behind this budget for the next year and what is behind it for the year to follow. Do Government propose to earmark a substantial amount for experimental work, for the work of survey and for the development of industries? Is the total amount that is going to be earmarked for the Industries Department this year, the coming year and the year after, to be the small figure of a few thousands? If so, I would certainly say "let us not waste Rs. 2,000 a month or Rs. 25,000 a year in having a Director of Industries".

In 1921, I know, an earnest attempt was made to try to put the house in order and the Honourable the Minister of Agriculture, who to-day is our Finance Member, brought this question before the Board of Agriculture and certain experiments were made such as an experiment in reviving the weaving industry in or near Sholapur. The two difficulties that faced the co-operative department were (1) that those weavers were in the hands of sowcars and (2) that the village salesmen competed with their sales and therefore the co-operative agency which was at that time taken advantage of for reviving those industries failed in its efforts. These two difficulties faced not only the weaving industry in Sholapur but they faced the activities of the Co-operative Department in every detail, and if the Co-operative Department has been able to overcome the competition of sowcars and the village salesmen, I do not see why it should not be possible for the co-operative agency to succeed in this matter also, but, whether it is co-operative agency or any other agency, I think that the question of the revival of the cottage industries in this Presidency ought to be taken seriously in hand.

Sir, I will quote one or two illustrations of some other provincial Governments and show what has been done and what can be done in other provinces. The United Provinces Government had a worse financial situation to face than the Bombay Government, and the Auditor General had made probably worse remarks against the United Provinces Government's finances than ours, and yet the United Provinces Government spent 11½ lakhs of rupees last year in trying to revive the activities of the Industries Department.....

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER: May I ask what does that 11½ lakhs include? Does it include the amount spent on industrial and technical education? I think it includes about eight lakhs for industrial and technical education.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: According to the figures given by the honourable member, the General Secretary, we are at least 30 per cent. worse in donating only one lakh, but the United Provinces Government, whatever the amount it may have spent, has shown substantial progress in a single year. I find from the proceedings of its debates for the year before last, that the Member in charge of the Department says:—

"More than a year ago, the Department maintained only 12 large educational institutions and 21 small institutions which received a grant of a recurring nature."

In one year these 33 institutions grew to 90 institutions and the United Provinces Government was able to show 300 per cent. increase in one year so far as educational institutions were concerned. They were then trying to open new government industrial schools the following year and also schools teaching various handicrafts. He further states:—

"Owing to the remission of the provincial contribution by the Government of India we hope to ask at the beginning of the next month for funds to open three more industrial schools."

I would welcome a similar demand from the Honourable Minister in charge of this department, namely, that a substantial portion of the net surplus of this year should be earmarked for the development of industries. The U. P. Minister of Industries proceeds:—

"One of the aims that has been constantly kept in view is that facilities for industrial education should be provided in every district. Only a limited number of districts so far provide such facilities. According to the budget before the Council every district except seven will have a school of handicrafts and with regard to these seven also as soon as the local bodies concerned agree to bear half the expenditure, similar facilities will be provided in those districts too."

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Will the honourable member kindly say what was the U. P. Government's income, its expenditure and its provincial contribution?

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: Whatever the provincial contribution of the U. P. Government was, the Bombay Government has to-day a surplus of about 2½ lakhs. Can't they increase the first year's allotment for the new Director from Rs. 1,520 to at least Rs. 2,00,000? I have just given a few extracts from the U. P. Government debates to show what attempts are being made there to have in every district a nucleus of industrial activities and I believe that unless our Government makes a similar attempt, we will not be able to make much headway. I am prepared to accept the invitation which was given by the Honourable the Minister of Agriculture in 1921 and try to help the department's activities by co-operation outside. Probably the worst district in this Presidency is Thar and Parkar. We have in this district four talukas which have to face conditions of scarcity and sometimes famine practically every year. At the same time there is a dying industry there which can be resuscitated. We have got plenty of sheep there and the agriculturists, when faced with bad times, use the wool for weaving warm woollen clothing. This industry has to face competition with foreign woollen clothes but has been able to meet that competition fairly successfully, but unless an attempt is made to assist these agriculturists to eke out a living during bad times and add to their resources, probably the industry will die from the effects of competition. I believe there are in every district some home industries, some cottage industries which can be helped, and I believe that, unless the Director of Industries is given sufficient funds to push forward at a greater pace the industrial regeneration of the presidency, the Industries Department will make no progress.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI (Belgaum District): Sir, I support the cut that has been moved. I should like to say, what is the good of hurling criticism and harsh words at the Honourable Minister ? He is a poor helpless creature ; he is hopelessly helpless. If any one is to be blamed in this matter, it is the Government as a whole. We, the elected representatives of the people, have to hang down our heads in shame, if we look to what Government have done for the development of industries in this presidency. The Department of Industries is a transferred department. We were told that, under the Reforms, a measure of self-government was given to us ; we were told that we could remove the Minister, we could control the Minister and so forth ; and now, what is the result ? We can remove the Minister, no doubt, but are we able to increase the money that is allotted to him by a single pie for developing industries or extending industrial education ? No. Therefore, unless and until we are able to send home all the Members of the Government, we will not be able to do anything. The Honourable Minister himself is not the Government ; he is simply the victim of a very bad system of government ; I must say so. When proposals for fresh taxation are placed before the House, all sorts of arguments are advanced as to why we should pay extra taxes, but not a single word has been uttered in this House as to the means to be adopted to increase the capacity of the people to bear extra taxation. If the people have not got the capacity to bear taxation, how should they pay the taxes at all? Increase the capacity for bearing taxation, and we shall cheerfully bear all the taxes. We are told that in England a very high percentage of taxation is levied. Well and good. But what has the English Government been doing for its own people ? Will any honourable member on the opposite side be able to say ? Is this Government helping us in the same way as the English Government is helping their own people, or the Japanese Government helping the Japanese people, or the German Government helping the German people ? No. On the contrary, what do we find ? Since the introduction of the Reforms, every year, to our shame, to our disappointment, to our humiliation, we find the provision for the Industries Department being cut down, to such an extent that last year nothing was done ; and simply because very severe criticism was levelled against the present Minister, Rs. 1,01,000 have been budgetted, and out of this the major portion goes for the pay and the establishment of the Director. Out of Rs. 15 crores of our expenditure, Rs. 1,00,000 have been budgetted for the Industries Department, of which only Rs. 43,000 have been provided for industrial development and industrial education. An amount of Rs. 57,000 goes to the establishment. While last year there was no Director, this year we find that a Director on a big salary is proposed, and, as if this is not sufficient, there is one Assistant Director given to him, who was not to be found last year or the year before. When the Government of India raised the complaint that the scale of salaries in this presidency was higher, what was the reply given by this Government ? I know the predecessor of the present Finance Member, Sir Henry Lawrence, stated that this was an industrial province, and that argument is used not because we have industrial development on a large scale, not because industrial education has been extended, but to increase the salaries of the Imperial Service officers and the members of the Provincial Services. We are moving in a vicious circle. When we ask for industrial education and industrial development, we are told that there is no money, and when we give the money everything is eaten up by the salaries of the officers. The Famine grant has been reduced, and last year, when I raised a debate by moving a vote of censure with regard to the Famine Insurance grant, we were told that the amount of Rs. 30 lakhs which was reduced would be utilised for the needs of what are called the nation-building departments. The Famine grant has been now practically reduced, the balances have been wiped away, and the amount realised by fresh taxation has also gone away either for the payment of interest, or in making up the losses sustained in the Development Department, or in giving increased salaries, and nothing is left. I warn Government that they are killing the goose that lays the golden eggs. Develop industries and you will increase the capacity of the people for taxation ; and unless you do that, rest assured we will be bankrupt ; the people will refuse in future to give you anything. If the trend of opinion in the country and in this presidency is against the present Government, or is showing signs of distrust, it is for these reasons. It is no use asking the Minister to go begging before Government for more money. He may or he may not ask for it. But I am sure, even if he asks for it, he will not get it. If the Police Department, the Department of Justice, the Revenue or General Departments ask for anything, it is readily given.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Never.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : But the figures show that you give it. But funds to help the poor or to remove unemployment, if asked for, are not forthcoming. Only sums of Rs. 500, Rs. 400 and Rs. 900 have been budgetted for surveys and other kinds of industrial development. And all this simply to point out in broad relief our own helplessness and the miserable condition in which we are living. If Government are in earnest, if they want to help the people, if they want to have the revenues increased to enable future Governments to meet larger demands, then they must see to it that this department is liberally provided for, even to the extent of stopping other activities. With these words I support the cut.

Mr. J. B. PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association): Sir, I was a member of the first Indigenous Industries Committee which was appointed for the purpose of making recommendations as to the lines on which indigenous industries may be established in this presidency. I also happened to be a member of the Industries Committee which was subsequently brought into existence after the Industrial Commission's report was out. I accordingly rise to speak on this subject with some internal knowledge of the working of both these committees.

Sir, my own impression is that this Committee and the Industries Department have been created by the Government, because they had to be. They both seem to have been created practically under compulsion; and they are certainly not being managed in the spirit in which, and the enthusiasm and earnestness with which they ought to be carried on and conducted. The members composing the committee from time to time, not only in their individual but also in their corporate capacity, repeatedly pointed out this fact, in more than one way, to the different officers who have presided over it and been in charge of it in succession; but all these efforts, I am sorry to say, have upto now proved absolutely futile and useless. The original indigenous industries committee, to which I have just alluded, after an exceedingly patient, thorough and exhaustive examination of the entire subject, submitted a very comprehensive and elaborate report, recommending among other things, the manner in which this presidency and the country at large could be industrialised, the manner in which facilities could be given to the public for establishing new industries, and the manner in which industries already in existence which for want of finance or technical advice or other reasons, could not prosper, could be supported and made efficient and self-supporting. That report, I am proud to say, carried very great weight with the Industries Commission and was highly appreciated by them. But, when it was placed before our own Industries Department, it was practically scrapped. No effect was given to any of the numerous valuable recommendations made therein, even though pointed reference was made and attention drawn to the matter both in and outside the committee, with the result that a report which was very carefully and elaborately prepared by a competent committee at very considerable cost and trouble, practically remains a sealed book to this day. So far as the industries committee is concerned, as far as my memory goes, I may say that it confined its activities mainly to the consideration of small and inconsequential applications for grants for supporting existing industries or tiny factories which happened to be there and which suffered for want of finance. The committee used to be repeatedly asked whether such grants, should be of Rs. 10,000 or Rs. 15,000 or Rs. 20,000, or some other sum. The committee was also now-and-again asked to suggest subjects for monographs. I may say at once, that so far as monographs are concerned, several good and useful essays on important industries were published by the Department. But even there, the field was very limited and I feel bound to add that in this respect also, much activity was not displayed. On the whole, the cooperation and assistance of the committee was hardly ever invited in any other direction. In a word, I have not the slightest hesitation in declaring that the manner in which the department was and has always been worked, is absolutely wooden and soulless. The real spirit, in which such a department should be managed and worked, was never kept before itself by this department. In fact, it was conspicuous by its absence. I admit that all the usual technical formalities were gone through with clock-like regularity. But the spirit which ought to be the guiding principle of a truly national Industries Department, was totally, and absolutely absent from the mind of those who were in charge of it. Meetings were called regularly every month ; minutes were kept and circulated ; our views were invited on inconsequential applications for small financial grants and the selection of subjects for monographs ; and other formalities of a trifling character were scrupulously gone through with great care and precision. But, so far as the larger questions of policy and principle were concerned, they were almost totally and wholly ignored, even though the attention of the Director in charge of the department, was repeatedly drawn to the desirability of the discussion of such subjects by the Committee and of inviting the opinions of the members thereon. If properly worked and managed in the right spirit, a department like this, in an industrial province of the importance and size of Bombay, should have been humming with work. The reverse is however the case ; and there is hardly any work of any importance or consequence ever done by the Director and his department : In brief, this department is absolutely ineffective, impotent and hopeless in the discharge of its legitimate functions. Under these circumstances, I honestly believe that it is no good continuing to support this department any longer in its present ineffective form. If this department is at all to be continued, it must be overhauled thoroughly and placed on a sure footing, properly equipped and financed, and presided over by an official who would know his work and the purpose of his department, viz., the introduction of new industries in this presidency and the support of those that are already in existence. Until these conditions are fulfilled, this department cannot and will not show any result ; and the mere voting of grants, large or small, is a pure waste of money.

Let us now pause for a moment and consider what this department is capable of doing, what it should have done and what it has actually done. I should like to know from the gentleman who now presides over it, what facilities and technical advice were given, for instance, to the industries already existing in this presidency. It is well known that the staple industry of this presidency is the textile industry. We are also aware of the severe crisis through which this industry has been passing during the last few years. I should like to know what technical advice and facilities, or facilities of any other character, which might have been useful to this industry in its grave crisis, were offered or given.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : May I know from the honourable member whether any advice or facilities were asked for by the Millowners' Association ?

Mr. J. B. PETIT : I do not know whether any application was made. I am arguing the present position of this department in the abstract. One of the principal functions of the Industries Department is to be always on the look out for opportunities of helping the industries that are in existance, of seeing that they are properly, efficiently and economically managed, and of suggesting ways and means of doing so, if they are found to be otherwise. Whenever existing industries are not able to work on the economic and paying basis owing to various reasons, it is up to the industries department to trace and examine the reasons why a particular industry is faced with such difficulties and to find out in the light of their facilities and experience, methods of management by which they can be put on a paying basis. Have they done that ? There is another question. (Interruption.) You know what articles are required for the textile industry : to speak of only a few, such as magnesia, sizing materials, pickers, leather belting, lubricating oils, and so forth. I would like to know if this department ever interested itself in any of these articles, if it ever cared to inquire if they could be produced or made in the country, if it ever considered the possibility of reducing their cost or of improving their quality ; and questions and problems of a cognate character. Similar questions relating to other industries should also have been tackled by the department, which should have issued press-notes on them from time to time. They should have been made available not only to those engaged in the industries but also to others, in order to induce them to go in for these industries. But not one of these courses was ever adopted, thought of, or ever dreamt of, by the Industries Department.

Let us now look at the other industries which are in existence in the country and also in our presidency, in one form or another. It must be remembered that there is no industry which is not in existence in this country in one form or another. To name only a few, we have the tanning and fruit-canning industries, the match and glass industries ; and many others. Were questions relating to these industries, in any form and in any shape, ever considered by the committee or by the department ? If so, were their conclusions ever put before the public ; and if yes, what steps did they take to see that the public took advantage of them ? These are all questions which would be generally handled by the Industries Department of any country ; but the Industries Department of our presidency, I submit, is wholly and blissfully ignorant of these questions. We have a plentiful supply of hide in this country even in this presidency. How many factories are there for making shoes and boots in this presidency ? If there are not, I would like to know if the desirability and possibility of opening such factories was ever studied or examined, and placed before the public ? There is no raw material which we cannot get in this country ; we have got climates which are suitable for all industries, with very few exceptions ; we have a plentiful supply of human labour; and given the requisite energy, technical knowledge, and financial backing, there is no industry in the world which cannot be established in India and very few industries which cannot be successfully established and managed in our presidency. I would also like to know what this department has done to popularise the introduction of new cottage industries in this presidency and what it has done to help industries which are already in existence. Personally, Sir, I know that it has done nothing. And to my mind the one reason why nothing has been done, is because the department is being carried on because it has to be carried on, as though under compulsion. The Director in charge, however clever he may be, never puts his heart into the business. I have said it in the past and I repeat it to-day, that if this department is to be made a success, and is to be managed in the spirit in which it should be managed, it should be manned wholly by Indians and it should be put under the direction of a competent Indian. I do not desire to cast any reflection on any one; but I do say this most emphatically and without fear of contradiction, that a department of this importance and magnitude which has for its object the introduction of new and the maintenance of existing industries in the presidency, will not and cannot succeed so long as it is presided over by an English gentleman who, consciously, or unconsciously, almost always takes a view and adopts an attitude on industrial questions, which are opposed to Indian interests. I will even go a step further and say that it has not seldom become apparent to many members of the committee, and to me particularly, that when important questions of the introduction of new industries were discussed in the committee, instead of finding out solutions to difficulties and of helping the committee in its efforts to find some way out of them, with a view to their ultimate establishment, all sorts of imaginary and technical difficulties were always created and placed in the way of the committee, in order that they might be dissuaded from pursuing the matter further. I say this in all earnestness and sincerity, because it has been so and because this has been my experience. And I shall never be tired of repeating that if the Industries Departments throughout the country are to succeed and fulfill the purpose for which they are created, they must be placed under Indians, because an Indian alone will realise the necessity of a well-managed and properly worked department of this kind and an Indian alone can and will feel and work for his country in the manner that he ought to.

For all these reasons, Mr. President, I think it is a mistake to continue to support this department in its present form, with its present scanty resources. If it is to be an effective department and if it is really to attain the purpose which we have all in view, it should be properly financed, it should be placed under an efficient Indian Director, and it should be worked in the spirit in which a department of its kind should be worked, on the lines I have already indicated. I accordingly support the cut not only for the purpose of raising a discussion, but also, at least so far as I am concerned, for the purpose of abolishing the department, because I honestly believe that the continuance of this department in its present form with its present mental attitude is next to useless and a pure waste of money.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM (Bombay Chamber of Commerce): Mr. President, I should like, first of all, to apologise to the honourable House for not being present when this debate was initiated, because this is a subject in which I am interested as having been a member of the committee presided over by the honourable member Mr. Freke. But I have done my best to acquaint myself with the debate which has preceded, and I have had the opportunity of listening to the honourable member who represents the Millowners' Association. And I should like to say that I am in absolute and entire agreement with his conclusions. I would not say that I am in agreement with many of his other remarks, but with his general conclusions about the abolition of this department unless and until there are proper finances to put at its disposal to make its operations useful, I am absolutely and entirely in agreement. Honourable members will find that I minuted in my minute of dissent to that effect in the report of the Freke Committee. And during the discussions in the committee I more than once said that it was my opinion that the answer to the Government's reference and the whole report could be condensed into one sentence, that the department should be abolished. I was able to get no support at all for that view, but I understand that the honourable member who represents the Indian Merchants' Chamber has now come round to that view and has spoken in support of this cut and is in favour of the abolition of the department unless and until adequate funds are available to put at its disposal. Now, Sir, the most important recommendation of the Freke Committee, to my mind, was that an industrial survey should be carried out. It seems to me to be starting at the wrong end to appoint a Director of Industries and not to provide the necessary funds. I am perfectly prepared to admit that Government's financial position is not such that it can give the necessary funds at present. But I do not think that it is necessary to delay the industrial survey,—this is only a matter of personal opinion—until you get a newly appointed Director of Industries. I am of opinion that that industrial survey can be done by some other agency. But if honourable members will examine the total budget demand for the Department of Industries and if they again read the report of the Freke Committee, they will find that the one useful function that the Department of Industries carries out is the encouragement and direction of the handloom industry.

There is absolutely nothing which this department now does which cannot be done by the Co-operative Department. This has been clearly proved and there is evidence on record to show to this effect. I suggest that this House would be well-advised to support this cut, for there is no reason, in my opinion, for continuing the department without the necessary funds to run it successfully. It is doing useful work in one direction, but that work can be done by another department with equal efficiency, and that department is the co-operative department. There is nothing retrograde in refusing to appoint the Director of Industries till you get funds to make this department successful.

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER : Sir, I have heard the remarks of the honourable members on the Department of Industries. But I should like to bring to their notice one fact which they seem to have forgotten and it is this. It was this honourable House which in 1924, I think, refused to pass the vote for the establishment of the Director's Office. This was a shattering blow to the Department—which had to be wound up in the space of about three months, and then reorganised on a far smaller scale. Just about this time the financial position began to be difficult, and the transferred Departments were warned that they must restrict their activities. It was carried on for about a year and a half under Mr. Bharucha until his superannuation last year, when it was decided to hand over the office to the Collector of Bombay temporarily till funds could be found to reorganise it, and this is now being attempted.

Turning to the second point that this presidency is doing far less than other presidencies in respect of the development of industries, I think honourable members, who made those remarks, should more carefully look at the activities of the departments in those provinces. If they do so, they would find that their departments include under their control branches such as technical education which in this presidency are under the control of the Department of Education. An amount of about Rs. 12 to 15 lakhs is included under the head of "education" in this presidency for technical schools and colleges. In view of these facts, it is most surprising that honourable members should come forward and say that Government are doing nothing to improve the industries of this presidency.

My honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham has recommended that an industrial survey should be carried out. I submit, Sir, that unless there is some machinery at the disposal of Government for carrying out this survey, it would not be possible to do it. It is in order to supply this machinery that Government have proposed to make the new appointment of the Director of Industries.

Then, my honourable friend, Mr. Lalji Naranji, accused Government of crippling the hand-loom industry. I would ask the honourable member, who is unfortunately not present now, whether in England it was the Government that destroyed the hand-loom industry, or the power-loom ? Surely it was the latter and I maintain that it is due to the efforts of Government that the hand-loom industry in India has survived as it has done. He also referred to the match industry. I may inform this House that the competition with the Indian industry comes mainly from the Swedish countries, and it is absurd to say that Government favour them in preference to the Indian industry. Honourable members know that Government have gone into the questions connected with the match industry and the Government of India have appointed a Tariff Board to hold an enquiry. Is it, therefore, fair to say that Government are doing nothing in this direction ?

[Mr. C. W. A. Turner]

My honourable friend, Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee, I think it was, said, as far as I could make out, that Government were doing nothing, have done nothing, for the industries. Well, I would ask him: what is the greatest industry in this country? Is it not agriculture? Does not agriculture come before anything, and has the British Government not done anything for agriculture?

(An Honourable Member: Oh, oh,). I think it has done a very considerable amount.

My honourable friend Mr. Jairamdas also gave some interesting figures from the census reports. I would say that his figures are, as a matter of fact, not a correct basis to go upon. For instance, owing to strict legislation about juvenile employment, far fewer children are now being employed in industries than were employed in 1901, and I think all my honourable friends who have got anything to do with industries will bear me out in that. I would also say that owing to improvement in public health infant mortality is far lower than in 1901. I think that is quite a probable explanation of the figures quoted by him.

Then, my honourable friend Mr. Jairamdas also made a very invidious comparison between this Government and the Government of Mysore. So far as my knowledge goes, the Government of Mysore's industries are mainly concerned with the gold mining industry and water power. Well, now, the gold mining industry is a matter of luck. They have gold mines in Mysore, and they have to be controlled by the Government of Mysore. The Government of Bombay has no gold mine.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: What about the silk industry?

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER: The main industries of Mysore, which are known to every one, I think, are gold mining and water power. Gold mining is, I think, purely a matter of luck. As regards water power in Mysore, I do not think Bombay Presidency need have any fear of comparison with Mysore.

Then, my honourable friend Mr. J. B. Petit urged that one of the main activities of the department of industries should be to have technical advisers specially for the textile industry, I gathered. Does he really seriously mean that the great textile industry in Bombay is in such a parlous condition that it requires Government to maintain an expensive body of experts at the cost of all other industries in order to provide technical or expert advice on the textile industry? If he means that no technical advice is given to small industries, I may mention that the Director of Industries, when he existed, did give very considerable amount of advice to all who applied for it; and, so far as I know, he dealt with many applications.....

Mr. J. B. PETIT: Had he any expert advisers?

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER: He had expert advisers.

An Honourable MEMBER: What were their names?

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER: I can't give you the names at the moment. I do not think, Sir, that I have any other points to make. But I would urge on this honourable House very seriously, that, if they deal another blow at this proposal by refusing their vote I can see no prospect of this department being revived.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE (Bombay City): I rise to a point of personal explanation, Sir. My honourable friend the Secretary of the department said that I said something about foreign Government. I never said a word about foreign Government. I said our Government is not doing anything. Then, Sir, he said the Government had done something about the appointment of Tariff Board. It was not this Government, Sir, that did anything about it; but it was the Government of India. As regards the foreign match syndicate, to which also reference was made, I think Government has given them concessions.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, the object of the honourable mover of this cut is not, I think, that the appointment of the Director of Industries, which is sought to be merely revived by the Honourable Minister for industries, should go. It seems to me that he has moved it in order to raise a general discussion, so that it may be helpful to the Honourable Minister in the policy which he might lay down for following in the ensuing year. The Director of Industries was appointed, I think, first in 1919, and then, so far as I remember, he did make some kind of survey. It was the late Mr. Mead, I think, who was the first Director of Industries, and then came Mr. Bell. I was connected with this Director of Industries as a member of the advisory committee in the year 1919. So, if I remember aright, Mr. Mead had made a sort of survey of existing industries. His successor, Mr. Bell, I must say, did not do anything beyond collecting a good library for materials. The office had useful materials. But beyond that, I do not think that any further efforts were made, and it was on that account that this Council expressed dissatisfaction at the way in which this department was working, and the result was that the Director of Industries' post had to be abolished. Now, when an attempt is made to revive that post, I do not think any honourable member of this House will seriously resist such an attempt, and I do not think the honourable member, the mover of the cut, really intends that we should take this cut to the vote and try to deprive the Honourable Minister of the post a proposal to revive which he has brought forward. (An Honourable Member: He does intend it). If he does it, I entirely differ from him and I would ask honourable members of this House not to take the view which he has advanced. No doubt it is true that the finances put at the disposal of this Director of Industries are certainly far from being satisfactory. One lakh of rupees is an utterly inadequate provision, and I would agree with the honourable members who have levelled the criticism at the very meagre provision which has been made for this department. But, as has been pointed out by the honourable member, the Secretary of the department, this provision for industries is rather not quite clear. I mean, if you say more money is apportioned to this industrial education, under 'Education,' why include some portion under this head as under

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

'industrial education' in the budget? If you look at the White Book, you find industrial education is also provided for. Only scholarships are shown, but technical and other portion of industrial education is not shown here, but is shown in the budget under education. However, I quite agree that, so far as we are aware, sufficient efforts have not been made in this presidency, and I am not relying upon the opinions expressed by the honourable members here, but if a reference is made to the Industries Commission's report or the report of the Sir Visveswaraya Committee of the year 1921, you will find in chapter I, - which contains a majority report and the same chapter, but of the minority report,—that there is considerable justification for the complaint that has been made by member after member, as to what has been done by the Bombay Government so far as industrial and technical education is concerned. The historical survey of the situation that is disclosed here shows that although policies were laid down even so far back as 1854 about the necessity of industrial and technical education, and again by the Education Commission of 1884, nothing practically had been done to give effect to those policies and Sir Visveswaraya Committee's report pointed out that the great difficulty in the way was the need of primary education because the artisan and other classes were utterly illiterate and uneducated, and also the fact that education had proceeded purely on literary lines and a literary bias was responsible for the way in which technical and industrial education was left behind. That is disclosed in these reports. Unless and until the great problem of compulsory primary education was solved, not much progress could be made. I could see that the technical and industrial questions could not be satisfactorily handled unless and until the question of primary education was satisfactorily solved. However, so far as this presidency is concerned, a beginning was made in that direction, but simultaneously and side by side with it an attempt should have been made to inaugurate a policy of vocational or technical training, and if it was not done ere this, I think it is now high time to do so. It is no use crying over spilt milk. Let us appeal to the Honourable the Minister for Education to take these questions in hand and let us help him and cooperate with him and even assist him to organise and solve this question of technical and industrial education, which really will provide the solution of the hundred and one problems, including the problem of unemployment of middle classes. No doubt at present there will be no immediate effect on the present extent of unemployment, but we must make a beginning and the seed must be sown which will fructify in time and will solve the various problems of unemployment and so on. It is for this reason, Sir, that while agreeing with the honourable members in their criticisms of the very meagre provision that has been made in this budget, I would certainly ask that this cut should not be carried to a vote but sufficient opportunity no doubt should be afforded to Honourable Minister to see what he can do. I would suggest by way of constructive suggestions that even in the course of this year (the ensuing year) if a supplementary demand is made for a grant after the Director of Industries has been appointed,

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

this House will be in a position to sanction the demand if and when a case is made out. For instance, the first question that requires attention is the need of State aid to industries. When the Director of Industries is appointed, he will find sufficient material on record and he can then see for himself what are the existing industries in this presidency and which of them are really deserving. There are three or four matters which are required for the encouragement of existing industries. First of all, State aid in some form should be given. The new Director of Industries can examine the existing factories or industries that are here in this presidency, and if he finds that there are certain struggling industries which for want of financial aid or capital are dying, then it will be up to him to suggest and up to the Honourable Minister to come to this House with proposals to pass a State Aid to Industries Act just as an Act of this kind has been passed in Bihar and Orissa and for this purpose he should raise funds even by way of loan. Unless and until such kind of aid is afforded after due investigation, nothing much is possible. I know there are industries which may not be capable of being helped, but in this report several industries are mentioned such as fruit-canning industry and other industries which are local industries which can be helped. For instance, you find at page 141 of the Industrial Commission's Report provincial industries relating to the province of Bombay which are existing and which may be helped forward. They are, glass, oil-milling, matches, tanning, fruit-canning, brass work, lamp-making, pottery, wood distillation etc. etc. There are these industries which private and public companies have been making every effort to achieve success in, but there are the difficulties of capital and difficulties of another kind. I would ask the Bombay Government to exert itself to procure for private industries facilities in the way of railway freights. I know the matter does not lie with the Bombay Government, but if the Bombay Government were to exert itself, whenever an application is made to it, to support that application, to fight for it in the same way as if it were its own concern, then certainly something can be done in the way of low railway freights. I have known cases with which I have been connected in my district, in which attempts were made in that direction, but the Department of Industries merely referred us to the Government of India and in some cases when we insisted, they merely forwarded the petition to the Government of India or to the Railway Board and the reply received was sent on to us. That is not the way in which this Government ought to treat its own industries. They must really investigate the problem ; if they are satisfied with the reasonableness of the problem, they should attempt to secure the concession to that industry. I have quoted one instance of railway freight. The second instance is of the tariff rates. I know even these are not in the power of this Government but even there Government can, I submit, make out a very strong case and fight, whenever an application is received by them. For instance, I may cite the instance of iron crushers. Iron crushers, when they are imported from a foreign country, are exempted on the ground that they are agricultural implements. Iron crushers are prepared in this country and if exemption is claimed on the ground that they are also agricultural implements, the reply is given that they are not subject to exemption. That is the simple reply that is received. I am placing before this House concrete instances in order to show what kind of step-motherly treatment is accorded to indigenous industries. For this reason this question must be looked into from the Indian point of view.

Again, take the case of store purchases. No doubt there are rules made from time to time and resolutions are passed saying that the purchases should be made in India, but, whenever an attempt is made, it does not succeed. No doubt, when there is no foreign article available, then the country-made article may be and is purchased, but every effort should be made to use country-made articles even if they be a little dearer. I mean it is the duty of the Bombay Government to encourage indigenous industries especially in cases where the article is of course as good as any foreign article, even at the cost of a little sacrifice to the revenue. If encouragement is given in the beginning of these industries, you will find that in course of time they will be in a position to stand on their own legs.

I do not wish to take more time of the House but would suggest to the Honourable Minister that the Director whom he may appoint hereafter, as well as his assistant, should be Indians, who would look into all these matters from the Indian standpoint, and that is the reason why, I submit, honourable members after honourable members have urged that the appointment should be made of an Indian only. Consciously or unconsciously, in the case of a foreigner, there is bound to be a conflict of interests. Sometimes the angle of vision is naturally different and this difference in the angle of vision is due to circumstances that prevail in this country. Therefore, only an Indian can take the proper angle of vision because he knows the needs of the people far better than a foreigner. I will cite an instance of a match factory at Karad. I was then on the advisory committee of the Industries Department. It was lying in a helpless condition. I approached the Director of Industries with a proposal that he might investigate this problem and see whether wood fit for making matches was available in the Patan and Karad talukas. The Director of Industries gave an offhand reply stating that the match industry is not likely to prosper at all in this country. If the honourable member (Mr. Bell) were here, I would have asked him to explain this because he was the Director of Industries when I asked him for the information and it was he who gave me this discouraging reply that the wood in this country will never be suitable for match-making industry. I mean to say I am only quoting an instance in order to show the way in which discouragement, rather than encouragement, is given by Government officers who take charge as the Directors and Controllers of this department of industries. I therefore submit that the House will be well advised in really not carrying this motion to a division. They have expressed their opinion, and I would ask the Honourable Minister to declare his policy, and give us an assurance that this officer is not going to be appointed merely for the sake of having an officer with a few clerks to do merely writing work. If he were to ask for a Director of Industries for that purpose, then I think the House would be justified in saying 'no'.

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

Then, Sir, one word about the remarks of the honourable member the Secretary of the General Department about my suggestion to combine the Labour Office with the Industries Department. He suggested that there is a conflict of interest between Capital and Labour. There may be such a conflict, but why should the Director of Industries identify himself with Capital? I am not in a position to say. The Director of Industries will look to the interests of the capitalists as well as to the interests of the labourers. So far as he can control industries, before helping any industrial concern, he can exact a condition that the industry would treat its employees in a particular way, that it will admit them to apprenticeship, and so on, and that it will give them training. I think it will be in his power to so arrange matters that the interests of Labour and Capital will not disagree: he will provide the check. At present the Labour Department is really a Department of Labour Intelligence, as it is called, only giving us some news about Labour. What I suggest, therefore, is that, in order to safeguard the interests of Labour, to make suggestions and to carry out improvements in their condition, the Labour Department should be really speaking associated with the Department of Industries; and this business of Labour Information may be left, if at all it is necessary, to some small officer who can do work, or else it can be dispensed with. That was the idea with which I suggested that, instead of maintaining an officer on Rs. 2,200 for Labour Intelligence and Information, the Assistant Director of Industries or some other assistant to the Director could do the work, and the whole department may be so organised that it will look to the interests of Industry as well as Labour. If that is done, I think there will be nothing inconsistent in the attitude of the Director of Industries which the honourable members representing Labour may be apprehensive of. With these words, I do not support the cut in the sense that I ask this House to cut away the grant, but I do expect the Honourable Minister to make a statement and give an assurance, and then the honourable mover will be well advised in withdrawing his motion.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Sir, I rise to support this cut, and not in the manner in which my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale desires it, viz., for debate. Sir, two honourable members who have spoken before me have impressed me very deeply. Both of them have been the members of the committee appointed by Government for Industries, I mean the honourable member for the Bombay Millowners' Association and the honourable member for the Chamber of Commerce. If there are two persons whose opinion in this matter is worth having, these are the two persons, and from what has fallen from the lips of the honourable member for the Indian Merchants Chamber also, I think the same conclusion logically follows it. What the Honourable the Leader of the House has to explain is whether the honourable member Mr. Lalji Naranji is right in saying that these industries suffer because of a foreign government. Are there any restrictions deliberately placed by the Government of India upon our industries and is it a fact that owing to these restrictions, industries cannot flourish in this country ? I do not want to take the view that the department should be allowed to keep its pot boiling. What is the use of having an officer on such high salary merely for the sake of finding out whether there are industries which require protection ? We know from the report that there are so many industries which require protection, which require encouragement, which require patronage. We can do nothing for them because there is no money. I do not understand why we should have such an officer, whether Indian or European. Why should we be burdened with an officer of this kind, unless we are given sufficient funds for the development of industries. I do not think the House would be justified in voting for this demand. There are industries which require to be encouraged, we all know. We had an European officer, but this House abolished him, because he was a white elephant. I do not entertain any racial prejudice in this matter. If the Honourable Minister is not capable of controlling and utilising an officer, whether European or Indian, he is not fit for his work and providing this money is useless. Whether he is an Indian or whether he is a European, the Honourable Minister in charge should be able to control him. I do not believe that because an Indian officer is appointed he will do all that is necessary. The Honourable Minister is not an expert, an expert can therefore be supplied to him. But the Minister must be a man of business, a man of common-sense, a man of capacity.....

[Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad]

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : And a patriot.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Yes, and a patriot. I do not doubt his patriotism, and I believe that the Leader of the Congress Party will give credit to the Honourable Ministers that they are patriots also in their own way. Sir, I do not doubt the Honourable Minister's patriotism ; I only doubt his wisdom.

Sir, this is a very important matter. We have two Indian Members on the Reserved side. Both of them, I am happy to say, are experts in this respect, that is, industrial matters. I do not care whether this department is reserved or transferred, as long as there are able Indian Ministers and Indian Members who can take care of the department. I am sure if there is any man who is thoroughly a master of this subject and who can do much good in regard to it, it is the Honourable the Leader of the House. As the honourable member Mr. Lalji Naranji said, he has to return back to this side, and to industrialism again. About his independence, patriotism, ability and capacity there cannot be two opinions. Therefore, I want him to plainly explain why this department should be maintained in its present shape. I do not belong to those who say that because the Honourable Minister in charge proposes this item therefore it should be sanctioned by the House or else it would be a censure against him. To whatever party the Honourable Minister may belong, he is responsible to the House, and if a cut is proposed, it should be discussed only on its merits, without any consideration of the fact that if the motion is carried it would be a vote of censure against him or his party. I do not believe in it. I therefore request that this demand should be justified, and there is no better person to throw light upon the subject than the Honourable the Leader of the House, and unless he satisfies me, I shall certainly vote for the motion.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, I did not wish at all to take part in this debate, certainly not at the fag end of the debate, but it has been, I am afraid, my misfortune to be dragged into a controversy on the Industries Department on various occasions. In the first place, I must correct the impression that was attempted to be given by the honourable member from Sukkur, when he said that I was in charge of the Industries Department in 1921. Only one very small portion of the Industries Department was then handed over, and is, I believe, still in the hands of the Minister of Agriculture and Forests, and that is Fisheries.

I dealt with that portion only and with none other. But I have had the good fortune, shall I say, of having tabled a resolution recommending the creation of the department of industries in the pre-Reform Council. It will therefore be recognised that I can speak with some knowledge and certainly with some regard for the creation and preservation of this department. Then again, when the honourable member for the Indian Merchants' Chamber moved in 1924 a cut in this House omitting the whole provision for this department, I could not agree with him. I think that it was due to my persuasion that the honourable member consented to amend the motion from a total abolition to a mere reduction of Rs. 23,000. I mention this fact in order only to show that in the year 1924 the sum placed at the disposal of this department was Rs. 2,11,000. As a result of the speeches that have been made and the reduction that has been carried out, we find that the Industries Department is getting now a provision of Rs. 1,02,000, while three years ago it got Rs. 2,11,000. I ask this honourable House to consider what will be the fate of this department if it is to crumble in this manner. I am entirely at one with honourable members that the Industries Department, to do its work satisfactorily, must be a department worked on a big scale indeed. That was what I wanted when I tabled the resolution in the pre-Reform Council. At that time I had great hopes that the financial condition of the presidency, such as it was, would enable Government to place at the disposal of the Industries Department large sums of money. These hopes have not been realised. (Honourable Members: Why?) Because presumably members like my honourable friend Rao Saheb Desai are wanting in season and out of season to carry out retrenchment whether it is good for the country or not. When the honourable member for Hyderabad was addressing this House about the United Provinces Government's grants to the Industries Department and when he talked so glibly about the generosity of that Government,—he was reading from the budget speech—I asked him to let me know the revenue and expenditure of that province in the year he was referring to, and the remission of provincial contribution that province was expecting. I got no answer. If those figures had been given, it would have been perfectly clear that that province is in a particularly happy position and that no province in the financial condition in which we are placed can afford to spend large recurring amounts even on so important a department as the Industries Department on a big scale. That is our misfortune. I want to ask honourable members opposite whether they really want the destruction of the Industries Department. The honourable member for the Millowners' Association, for whom I have the greatest respect, I could see, spoke with the greatest sincerity. He suggested that this department has done nothing for the major industry—the textile industry—in this presidency. I do not know whether he is aware of the latest reports of the department which have been supplied to this House. He will find in the report for 1925-26, the amount of attention that has been given by the Industries Department, weak and attenuated as it is, to the various matters that he mentioned. He talked of magnesium chloride, and other stores. Magnesium chloride was attempted to be encouraged in the North Gujarat. The manufacture of pickers also was encouraged by this department. To my knowledge I can say that about a year and a half ago, the Forest Engineer approached me to put him in communication with the leading manufacturers in this city for the trial, experiment and consumption of picking sticks which can be made out of the timber in our forests. Then a great deal is stated in this book about sizing, warping and weaving machine. There are various other articles contained in this administration report to which I need not refer. I think that the honourable member is perfectly right that there ought to be attached to the Department of Industries an advisory committee composed of men like himself, who are sincerely desirous of pushing on the industrial progress of this presidency. My hope is that after a capable Director of Industries has been selected by the Honourable Minister a capable advisory committee will be attached to him so that it may be able to give him practical assistance and general guidance where necessary. But so long as our financial position continues weak the department will I am afraid remain on that small scale in which it is at present; and it will scarcely be the function of the Industries Department to deal with an organised and long standing industry like the textile industry of this presidency. I have before me the report of the Industries Committee of 1926-27. I find there recommendations made by such members as Sir N. N. Wadia, who resigned early, Mr. Lalji Naranji, Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee, Sir Manmohandas Ramji, Mr. Addyman and Mr. G. L. Winterbotham. Those recommendations were unanimously made.

"In the first place we have to consider the classes of industries to which the Director of Industries should devote his main attention. Following the lines of the Indian Industrial Commission in Chapter XIV of its report we may sub-divide industries under three main heads—

(a) Cottage industries,

(b) Small organised industries which may be local or provincial in scope, such as sugar factories, tanneries, breweries, etc., and

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

(c) Large organised industries which may be national or international in scope, such as steel works or cotton mills.

The Committee are unanimously of the opinion that the Department of Industries should devote most of its attention to class (a) and that class (c) should not ordinarily be included within the scope of its enquiries."

Sir, this is the advice that has been given by very responsible members of this House and distinguished industrialists. And I hope that with the small sums, which only unfortunately we shall be able to place at the disposal of the Industries Department, the Director of Industries will make it his first duty to look after what are known as cottage industries but what I would rather regard as rural industries which will affect the agricultural and the depressed classes population mostly. (Mr. K. F. Nariman: Who will be the Director?). I do not know who the final selection will be, but I will tell the honourable member that I have myself interviewed two very capable Indians who have already had considerable amount of experience in industrial work. I gave them an idea of the condition of our finances; I gave them all the reports of the past four or five years; so that they may be aware of the situation. I hope it will be possible for the Honourable Minister to select a capable Indian to be in charge of the Industries Department. Sir, I was saying that I hoped that it would be the function of the Director of Industries to deal with such rural industries as affect the rural population and especially the depressed classes. It was at my instance, if I may say so without any presumption, that not only the encouragement and teaching of weaving have been taken in hand, but also the investigation has been begun into the tanning industry in which the depressed classes are particularly interested on the countryside. An officer is at present working to examine the conditions of tanning as it is carried on now. Honourable members are well aware that the methods used are crude; the officer will examine them and see if Government by any assistance they can give, either technical or otherwise, improve the lot of these unfortunate workers in this somewhat noisome trade. I was surprised when the honourable member for the Indian Merchants' Chamber—who is not here now—told us that the weaving industry did not require any teaching or attention or any advice from Government. I may tell him with great respect that he is mistaken. Great as is my respect for his knowledge of industries and industrial development both in the city of Bombay and in the presidency, I am in a position to tell him that the action that Government have taken during the last five or six years has been of the utmost benefit to the agriculturists and to that large class of hand-loom weavers who are strewn almost all over the presidency. Everywhere I went I received demands from the people for the benefit of the weaving schools. I was in Khandesh, when the Mahomedans besieged me with requests for opening a school at Dhulia, where the Mahomedan population of weavers is large. To say, Sir, that because we were able to weave very fine cloth some centuries ago, we should not now take any advantage of improvements in looms, seems to me to be the negation of industrial development. It is because of the introduction of the fly-shuttle loom that the wages and the production of the handloom weavers have so largely increased, and it is because of this that the handloom industry is now able to hold its own against even the power loom, in spite of the drawbacks under which any other industry of less vitality would have easily succumbed. Sir, is it within the knowledge of this House that about one-fourth of the total consumption of cloth in India is made on handlooms in India, in spite of the very heavy handicaps under which that industry is labouring? I may briefly refer to those handicaps. I will ask my honourable friend Mr. Jairamdas to help us, as he, I think, has promised to do, to get rid of those handicaps. The first and foremost handicap is that the handloom weaver disregards the very first elements of good trade. He buys in the dearest market and sells in the cheapest. There is no organisation through which he can buy his raw material at the cheapest possible rate.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (made some interruption which was inaudible).

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: I have only two or three minutes; the honourable member has got the whole of Monday. The honourable member will find all that information written out and more fully explained to him in the reports of the Co-operative Department for the years 1922-23 and 1923-24, I believe.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM: Why not hand it over to the Co-operative Department?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Now, I will answer my honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham. I am not one of those who agree with him that the Director of Industries should be abolished. I want the Director to continue, and I want the Department to continue in order that it may grow into a much bigger department later on. I am not going to kill that department now by destroying the Director of Industries, because only a small amount of money can be placed at his disposal now. Destroy that department now, and you will not be able to revive it again for many years to come.

Well, Sir, I was saying that the handloom weaver buys his raw material through the sowcar and he sells his finished product to the sowcar. From him he buys the yarn and to him he sells the cloth. One thing more: The handloom weaver works in very unhealthy conditions; he works in dark houses in a pit; and he is also given to drink. Has it occurred to honourable members of this House that in that community, the Salis and Koshtis (handloom weavers) the incidence of drink is specially large? Why is it? They do the hardest possible work under the most difficult conditions and they want something to cheer them up. Sir, in spite of these heavy handicaps, the handloom industry survives to-day and I am sure it recognizes the assistance we are giving. I am sure that the offer that the honourable member from Hyderabad made with regard to non-official help will be received gratefully by the Honourable Ministers in charge of Industries and Agriculture. I may tell him that there is a proposal before Government now—if I am not mistaken, I think it has reached a stage when money can be spent on it—a proposal for the improvement of the breed of sheep and for better wool. The honourable member spoke of spinning and weaving of wool.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

I think there is great scope for both spinning and weaving of wool and any assistance that can be given to that industry ought to be given by Government.

Sir, I hope the House will see that it is not due to any lack of desire on the part of Government that more money has not been made available. I do not see the prospect of very much more being made available in the near future, but I trust that the House will give the Honourable Minister the grant that he asks for, so that a capable Indian Director of Industries may be appointed and he may put before Government and before the House a programme within the means of the amount that Government will be able to provide.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. Before we adjourn, I have to bring to the notice of this House a request placed in my hand by the honourable member, Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee, and signed by about ten other honourable members. It is stated :

" That Wednesday, the 14th instant, being the 21st day of Ramzan, is a Moslem holiday being the anniversary of the death of Hazrat Ali. We shall therefore, be obliged if you will arrange not to hold the Council on that day. "

It is signed by a section of the Muhammadan members of this House. I do not know whether the other honourable members, I mean Moslem members, agree to it or not. But even if they do, it is my duty to take the sense of the House whether the 14th should be taken as a holiday for the House.

Khan Bahadur S. N. BHUTTO (Larkana District) : Sir, so far as other Moslem members of this House are concerned, I may say that we have no objection to the 14th being given as a holiday. We have to come from such a long distance and it will not be possible for us to extend our stay here much longer.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I think that this request has been made for the purpose of religious function and I am of opinion that the religion should be observed at home and not in the Council.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, in the first place I may submit that the request is not unanimous from the Muhammadan members, but even if it were, I do not think that I can take a different attitude from the one I took in the case of Holi holiday. There are good many sectional holidays amongst Hindus and Muhammadans and if we adopted the principle of not sitting on each sectional holiday, I am afraid our work will be greatly hampered.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District) : Sir, I wish to clear one point. I may be permitted to inform the House that this request has been supported by all of us, namely, the Muhammadan members, and this request is a unanimous one. It does not come from one section of the Mussalman members of the House. It may be taken from the Muhammadan section of this House as a whole, and it cannot rightly be said that it is not a unanimous one, so far as we Mussalman members are concerned.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Well, I understand that even the other Muhammadan members whose signatures do not appear on the request, favour this proposal. But I find that the general sense of the House is against this proposal. I, therefore, do not think that the House should observe the 14th as a holiday.

The House is adjourned till 1 p.m. on Monday, the 11th March 1928.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Questions.

SUKKUR BARRAGE LANDS: SALE OF WASTE AREA

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the total area of the lands under the Sukkur Barrage for sale;

(b) how much of it was sold in the current and previous years;

(c) the price per acre at which it is sold;

(d) if the sales have not begun yet, when they will begin;

(e) whether it is a fact that according to the original estimates the sale of the waste area under the Barrage was to commence from the year 1925-26;

(f) if the reply to (e) above be in the negative, from which year the sales were to commence;

(g) whether it is a fact that the sales of lands under the Barrage have not been begun;

(h) if so, the reasons for delaying the sales;

(i) the loss in interest on account of this delay and the consequent rise in the cost of the Barrage Project?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Approximately 15,00,000 acres.

(b) and (g) Practically no sales have taken place. A few adjustments have been made in cases where occupied land has been acquired for the purposes of the Barrage.

(c) Does not arise.

(d) The Revenue Officer is prepared to restore fallow forfeited lands at once where no objection on the score of water supply is raised by the irrigational authorities. For other lands the Revenue Officer is prepared to consider offers.

(e) Yes, but the so called estimates were merely an indication of the financial possibilities of the project and did not purport to fix a regular programme of land sales.

(f) Does not arise.

(h) The principal reasons are—

(1) It is not advisable to sell land a considerable time in advance of water being ready, as good prices could not be expected.

(2) Much of the land has first to be rectangulated.

(i) This does not arise, as the losses that would accrue from attempts to sell large areas of land several years in advance of water being available for their cultivation would probably be much greater than any saving of interest charges through premature sales.

SUKKUR BARRAGE: ASSISTANT STORES OFFICER

MUSSALMAN WAKF ACT, 1923

DAWOODI BOHRAS TO BE EXCLUDED

In August 1923 there came into force an Act passed by the Central Legislature to make provision for the better management of Wakf properties and to ensure the keeping and publication of proper accounts in respect of such properties. This measure is known as the Mussalman Wakf Act of 1923. Under the Act it is the duty of the Mutavallis (Trustees) to render certain statements to a Court showing the gross income of the Wakf, the amount required to pay for the remuneration of the trustees, how much will be required for charitable purposes, or religious purposes, etc. It was left to the Local Governments to extend all or any of the provisions of the Act to the whole Province or any part of it and to exempt from the operation of the Act, or any specified provision in it, any Wakf or Wakfs created or administered for the benefit of any specified section of the Mussalman community.

Government have accordingly decided to apply the Act to this Presidency including Sind. There remains the question whether or not exemption should be allowed to any community, as provided in the Act. Mussalman opinion generally appears to be entirely favourable to the provisions contained in the Act, but among the Dawoodi Borah Community opinion is strongly divided. Many petitions have been received by Government for and against the exclusion of the Dawoodi Borah Community. The Minister of Education has received deputations from both sides. After long and careful consideration of the question, Government has decided that the Dawoodi Borah Community should be excluded for a period of three years or pending further orders, and a notification to that effect is published in the Bombay Government Gazette.

In arriving at this decision Government have borne in mind the fact that, as a result of a ruling of the High Court, it has been laid down that the Mulaji Saheb is a trustee in law of the Wakf properties vested in and managed by him, and is accountable like any other trustees or Muttawallis, and is subject to the Shia Mahomedan Law. They are advised that the exclusion of the Dawoodi Borah Community from the provisions of the Mussalman Wakf Act of 1923, does not affect the liability of the Mulaji Saheb in this respect. The existing rights of the members of the Community are not therefore affected, and Government consider that the solution of this difficult question lies in the maintenance of the status quo which entails the exclusion of the Dawoodi Borahs from the Act. Government, however, desire it to be understood that this decision is subject to re-consideration at the end of three years, or at an earlier date if the community unanimously so desires.

The Act will be applied with effect from 1st of June 1925.*

* This date has since been altered to 19th August 1926 by Government Notification No. 214/24 dated 13th August 1926.

LAND REVENUE ASSESSMENT COMMITTEE : SUPPLEMENTARY REPORT

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE on behalf of Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District) : Will Government be pleased—

(a) to state whether a supplementary report has been made by the Land Revenue Assessment Committee appointed in June 1924 as suggested in paragraph 36 of the report of that Committee as regards non-agricultural assessments ;

(b) if so, to place the report on the Council Table ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) The Honourable Member's attention is invited to paragraph 17 of Government Resolution No. 1790-24, dated 13th May 1927, a copy of which is placed on the Council Table.

(b) Does not arise.

Land Revenue Assessment Committee.
Report of the —, Bombay.

GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY

REVENUE DEPARTMENT

Resolution No. 1790/24

Bombay Castle, 13th May 1927

Letter from the Secretary, Land Revenue Assessment Committee, Bombay, No. 1790-B/24 dated 6th October 1926—Submitting the report of the Committee.

RESOLUTION.—The thanks of Government are due to the members of the Committee for their report, and in particular to Sir Lalubhai Samaldas, C.I.E., who at great personal inconvenience officiated as Chairman for some time and gave both his time and his energies unsparingly to the work.

2. The report is not unanimous. Of the twenty-two members only seven have signed it without qualification. The seven official members have appended a joint minute of dissent, and the Commissioner of Settlements, Mr. Anderson, a separate one. Six non-official members have appended joint or separate minutes of dissent, whilst two non-officials, Mr. R. G. Soman and Rao Saheb D. P. Desai, have expressed their inability to sign the report, although they have explained their views at great length in separate notes. The report proper is divided into six chapters, the first five of which are either preliminary or historical, and do not invite comment. The various recommendations of the Committee follow in Chapter 6, and the decisions of Government thereon are contained in the following paragraphs.

3. Basis of assessment: Paragraph 33 of the Report.—In the opinion of the official members of the Committee the amendment of section 107 of the Land Revenue Code, as proposed in the main body of the report, will not make the principles of assessment any clearer or more definite than they are at present. They hold that the only way to obtain a satisfactory definition of these principles is to affirm that rental value must be adopted as the basis for fixing the assessment. The bulk of the non-official witnesses and several members of the Committee are of the opinion that the assessment ought to be based on the net profits of cultivation. The members of the Committee were very evenly divided on the subject of how to calculate these profits, and various suggestions were made. It was agreed by a majority of one that it was not possible to define net profits, and that the terms "value of the land" and "profits of agriculture" used in section 107 of the Land Revenue Code were vague. In spite, however, of the decision that net profits could not be defined, it was then resolved that section 107 be amended as follows:—

> "In revising the assessments of land revenue regard shall be had to the profits of cultivation. The Settlement Officer shall take into account the following factors:—
>
> (i) the state of communications during the previous settlements,
> (ii) the proximity of markets,
> (iii) the trend of prices,
> (iv) the general economic conditions and history of the tract, > (v) the results of crop experiments, and > (vi) rental value.
>
> In order to ascertain the rental value, the real rents paid in open competition by tenants to landlords during five years immediately preceding the revision settlement, excluding years of abnormal prices, shall be taken into consideration."

Government are constrained to remark that this proposal is in fact hardly less vague than the existing section of the Code which it is sought to improve, and that therefore it does little to remove the defect pointed out by the Joint Parliamentary Committee.

After the fullest deliberation Government accept the view of the official members of the Committee, which has since received the weighty support of the Indian Taxation Enquiry Committee's report, that rental value, where it can be ascertained, must be adopted as the sole basis for fixing the assessment, all other considerations being regarded as merely subordinate factors, useful only as explanatory or confirmatory of, or supplementary to, the foregoing factor. Government wish to emphasize that this decision will merely give legal effect to the existing principle upon which Bombay settlements are already based. They accordingly approve the amendment of section 107 of the Code, as proposed by the official members, subject to the modifications that for the words "the rental statistics" in the second sentence of the amended section the words "the data relating to rents" should be substituted, that the words "measured by" in the third sentence should be omitted, and that, in the proviso, for the words "the portion of the rental value due to the said improvement shall be excluded from the assessable rental value" the words "the increase in the rental value of such land due to the said improvement shall not be taken into account in fixing the revised assessment thereof" should be substituted.

4. Cultivating and non-cultivating landlords: Paragraph 37 of the Report.—Government agree with the view of the Committee that no distinction should be made between cultivating and non-cultivating landlords in fixing the assessment, in order to prevent land passing out of the hands of bona fide agriculturists.

5. Paragraphs 38 and 39 of the Report.—The Committee were unable to make any recommendation on the question of fixing a maximum percentage of the rental value as the assessment which the State is entitled to take, opinions on the subject varying from 10 to 75 per cent. It was recognized that settlement officers had usually regarded 50 per cent. as the maximum, but that in practice they had rarely, if ever, worked up to it. The Committee however decided by a majority that the assessment should not exceed 25 per cent. of the profits of cultivation, i.e., the gross profits less all the expenses incurred in deriving those profits. Government consider that the views of the Committee on this question are inconsistent with one another. In the case of rental value, which is, generally speaking, a factor which can be determined with a high degree of certainty and accuracy, the report makes no recommendation as to the proportion to be reserved to the State, while in the case of the profits of cultivation, on the other hand, which, as is indicated in the report of the Indian Taxation Enquiry Committee and as is indeed evident, is a factor the determination of which is a difficult, if not impossible, task, the report recommends that the State demand should be limited to a maximum of 25 per cent. The Indian Taxation Enquiry Committee in their discussion on the subject of the rate of assessment, i.e., the percentage of the annual value to be reserved by the State, made no definite recommendation. They appear to have been of opinion, however, that what they refer to as the "standard rate" should approximate in the first instance to the existing percentage. For the ascertainment of the latter, however, they had no sufficient information. But such information as they had pointed to a standard rate of 25 per cent. In so far, however, as their observations can be interpreted as a recommendation in favour of the adoption of this percentage, it should be recollected, first, that the rate which they were discussing was not apparently an absolute maximum, such as is proposed (as applied to "profits of cultivation") in the present Committee's majority report, but a standard, i.e., an average rate, and secondly, that their general attitude of predisposition towards a lowering of the standard rate appears to have been largely influenced by the assumption that in future a considerably larger share of the annual value than is at present the case would be taken in the shape of rates for expenditure on local objects. Finally, there is the general consideration that the object of the legislation now proposed, as was indicated by the Joint Parliamentary Committee, is to give legislative sanction to the existing principles and practice of land revenue assessment, and there was no suggestion on the part of that body that the passing of such legislation should be made the occasion for any radical departure from such principles and practice. For these reasons the Governor in Council considers that he may appropriately adhere to the present practice of regarding 50 per cent. of the rental value as the maximum limit of the proportion which the State is entitled to take, and that this as a principle should be embodied in the law on the subject. Section 100 of the Land Revenue Code should be amended accordingly.

6. Paragraph 40 of the Report.—Government agree with the view of the Committee that Mr. Shivdasani's scheme for fixing a permanent assessment in kind, but recoverable in cash, is unworkable.

7. Limits of enhancement of assessment: Paragraph 41 of the Report.—Government note with approval and endorse the views of the Committee contained in this paragraph on the right of the State—

(1) to an increased revenue from the land to meet the growing demands of the country and to maintain the administration on an efficient scale, and

(2) to take its share in the unearned increment derived from land. They recommend that the limit of enhancement should be reduced from the present limits of 33 per cent. for a taluka or a group of villages, 66 per cent. for a single village and 100 per cent. for an individual holding to a general limit of 25 per cent. in the case of all talukas that have already undergone a second revision. The Governor in Council accepts this recommendation, and section 107 of the Code should be amended accordingly.

8. Periods of settlement: Paragraph 42 of the Report.—The Committee propose to leave the existing orders unchanged. Government concur in their opinion as regards the Presidency proper. In view, however, of the economic and other changes that the Lloyd Barrage may bring about in Sind, Government desire to retain a free hand in the matter so far as that Province is concerned.

9. Exemption of improvements: Paragraph 43 of the Report.—The report is emphatically of the opinion that the law on this subject should remain as it is. The Governor in Council accepts the Committee's recommendation.

10. Standing Advisory Committee: Paragraphs 44 and 45 of the Report.—The non-official members of the Committee strongly recommend that a standing Advisory Committee of the Legislative Council be set up to examine all revision settlement proposals and that, if the recommendations of the Committee on any such proposals are not accepted by Government, the proposals shall not be put into force, unless and until the sanction of the Legislative Council is obtained. The arguments of the official members against this recommendation have been fully set forth in the report, and they have the approval of Government. The Governor in Council regrets that he is unable to recommend to the Government of India the insertion of a clause in the Land Revenue Code to give effect to this suggestion.

11. Subsoil water rate : Paragraph 47 of the Report.—The non-official members of the Committee are of opinion that subsoil water shall not be made the subject of assessment and recommend that the practice be discontinued, and that the rates hitherto charged on such water shall be remitted. Government do not consider that the arguments of the official members opposing the abolition of this rate have been successfully met, and they are unable to accept the recommendation.

12. Himayat assessment : Paragraph 48 of the Report.—This proposal is entirely outside the Committee's terms of reference, and Government see no valid ground for making any such general enquiry as is proposed.

13. Paragraph 49 of the report.—The point referred to in this paragraph has engaged the attention of the Fallow Rules Committee.

14. Paragraph 50 of the Report.—Government accept the Committee's proposal that section 214 of the Land Revenue Code be amended so as to include suspensions and remissions of land revenue and the process of valuation of crops in order to determine suspensions and remissions as matters the regulations of which may be made by the Governor in Council. The section should be amended accordingly.

15. Paragraph 51 of the Report.—In this paragraph the non-official members of the Committee propose that the Settlement Officer shall have the assistance of two representatives of the cultivators elected by the Taluka Local Board in preparing his settlement. Government agree with the arguments of the official members against this proposal, and regret that they cannot see their way to accept it.

16. Settlement of villages in Sind : Paragraph 52 of the Report.—Government recently caused a special enquiry to be made with a view to ascertaining the practicability of this proposal. The result of the enquiry was to show that it would be unworkable. Government are not prepared to re-open the question now.

17. In paragraph 36 of the report it is stated that non-agricultural assessments were not referred to in the questionnaire, but that the Committee propose to deal with this question in a supplementary report. Although the Committee were furnished with certain information regarding the law and existing practice in respect to non-agricultural assessments, Government, as at present advised, do not consider that the subject of such assessments can appropriately be dealt with by that body. It is indeed questionable whether, when it made its recommendation in favour of the statutory regulation of land revenue assessments, the Joint Parliamentary Committee had in view assessments other than those on lands held for agricultural purposes. The contrary view would be inconsistent with the reference to the due representation of rural interests, those of the tenantry as well as of the landlords, which appears in that part of the Committee's report in which this recommendation is advanced. In the course of the debate, which preceded the passing of Mr. R. G. Pradhan's resolution, practically no allusions were made to the question of non-agricultural assessments, and it is apparent that the ordinary land revenue settlements of agricultural land were then contemplated as the subject of the proposed enquiry. The question of the principles by which non-agricultural assessments should be governed has recently been the subject of close study at the hands of a number of officers who are specially competent to deal with this technical matter, and Government now have before them ample materials on which to arrive at a decision as to the changes which it is desirable to introduce into the existing law and practice regulating these assessments. In these circumstances Government do not propose to ask the Committee to reassemble for the purpose of dealing with this subject.

18. The Remembrancer of Legal Affairs should be requested to draft the requisite amendments to sections 100, 107 and 214 of the Land Revenue Code in accordance with the orders conveyed in paragraphs 3, 5, 7 and 14 of this Resolution. If the sanction of the Government of India is given to them, it is the intention of Government to introduce a bill in the Legislative Council to give effect to them at as early a date as possible.

By order of the Governor in Council,

J. W. SMYTH,
Secretary to Government.

(e) whether the present incumbent was regarded as unfit to administer his estate ;

(f) if the answer to (e) is in the affirmative, which authority of Government declared him unfit and what were the reasons which induced that authority to do so ;

(g) if the answer to (e) is in the negative, why the said Thakor has not yet been entrusted with the administration of his estate though it is very long since he has attained majority ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) In the year 1915.

(b) The District Court of Ahmedabad declared the Thakor of Mehlol, Raisinhji Naharsinhji, to be incapable of managing his affairs.

(c) He attained his majority before the estate was taken under management.

(d) For the reasons mentioned in (b).

(e) Yes.

EXHIBIT 18

IN THE COURT OF THE DISTRICT JUDGE AT AHMEDABAD

Mis. Application No. 252 of 1913

Collector of Panch Mahals.....Petitioners ; Pleader—Mr. Dadiba C. Mehta, Government Pleader, Panch Mahals; against

Thakor Raisingji Naharsingji.....Opponent.

Pleader—Mr. Velchand Umedchand Mehta.

Counsel—Mr. Valavbhai J. Patel.

This is an application under section 5 (1) C of the Court of Wards Act I of 1905 asking that the Thakor Raisingji of Mehlol should be declared incapable of managing his own affairs.

It appears from the evidence recorded in the case that all officers brought in contract with this man have formed a very unfavourable estimate of his capacity. Owing to the unfortunate circumstances in which he succeeded to the Thakorate he was much neglected and left to his undesirable acquaintance in his youth. He also contracted the idea that his rival was favoured by the executive officers.

The estate is a large and rather complicated one and the Thakor is the representative of a very high family. He has made no friends of his own rank and is utterly unacquainted with the estate or its management. He is no doubt a man of very weak will who is liable to be guided by the person who from time may have access to him. At present he seems under good guidance but no one can say that this will last.

He made an attempt to destroy the reputation of his own wife and to bastardise his sons. He says here that he did so at the request of his rival. He has brought other accusations against his other wife. His various marriages and their uniformly unsuccessful results seem to show a sad lack of dignity which might make one think he is not quite sane. Whether or no the lease to Kashibhai was profitable to the estate or the grant of the wanta to Dalpatsing was proper the opponent has displayed great vicillation about the affair.

I think then that I ought to make the declaration payed for with costs.

It is no doubt not necessary to point to the applicants that while there are circumstances on which the opponent relies to show that there has been much favour shown to Dalpatsing in the past but in the future particular care should be taken that the estate is managed in the interests of the estate and that no undue favour is shown to Dalpatsing either in the litigation now pending or in other ways.

It would seem perhaps if the condition of the estate permits it that more liberal treatment might be conceded to the Thakor and less tutelage exercised.

District Court, Ahmedabad. (Signed) B. C. KENNCOY, 17th August 1914. District Judge.

GAMBLING AT KAPADVANJ

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that there exists in Kapadvanj a gang of gamblers who keep on hovering round public motor cars and motor lorries plying for hire between Kapadvanj and Modasa, between Kapadvanj and Dakor and between Kapadvanj and Nadiad and entice the passengers into gambling and rob them;

(b) if so, what steps Government have taken to bring the said gang of gamblers to book?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: (a) Government are not aware of the existence of the gang of gamblers mentioned by the Honourable Member. Steps will, however, be taken if a specific complaint is made to the District Magistrate or Superintendent of Police concerned.

(b) Does not arise.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT, SATARA DISTRICT: CLERKS

Mr. B. V. JADHAV on behelf of Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the sanctioned strength of clerks in the Judicial Department, Satara District;

(b) how many of them are advanced and how many backward as per Government Resolution, Finance Department, No. 2610, dated 5th February 1925;

(c) how many clerks from advanced classes are (1) Brahmins, (2) Prabhus, (3) Parsis, (4) Marwadees, (5) Banias and (6) Christians;

(d) whether Government are aware that the percentage of Brahmins alone in the above Department is over 50 per cent.;

(e) if so, whether they propose to stop the further recruitment of Brahmins in order to have fair representation of Prabhus, Parsis, Marwadees, Banias and Christians as well as the backward communities?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: (a) 118.

(b) 91 advanced. 27 backward.

(c) (1) 89.
(2) 2.
(3) }
(4) } Nil.
(5) }
(6) }

(d) Yes.

(e) Government are satisfied that due effect is being given, as vacancies arise, to the orders contained in Government Resolution, Finance Department, No. 2610, dated 5th February 1925, and therefore do not propose to issue any further orders restricting the employment of any class of the community at present.

Question again proposed :

That item No. 62 on page 276 of the Blue Book,—"Appointment of Director of Industries and extra staff in the Department "—be omitted.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Sir, while opposing this motion, I would express my agreement with the general criticism that has been offered by honourable members on the policy of Government in regard to this department. While discussing the question of unemployment the other day, I suggested several ways of solving the problem and at that time I stated that the over-hauling of the present system of education, as also the introduction of industrial and technical education, and the granting of substantial help to small and cottage industries, were directions in which Government could help to relieve the distress caused by the present state of unemployment. Government have so far neglected the Industries Department also.

The necessity of helping the industries of the country was felt by Government so long ago as the year 1921. The Government in that year appointed a Technical and Industrial Education Committee. Not only that, but we find that Government were very keen then and had asked the committee to submit an ad interim report before the final report could become ready and the said committee submitted an ad interim report in October 1921. They suggested several recommendations therein but we find that none of those recommendations have been given effect to up to now.

The other day the Honourable the Leader of the House, while speaking on this discussion, stated that he agreed with the criticism made and the views expressed about this question, but, he said that the difficulty in the way of Government was the financial stringency. We have been hearing of this financial stringency of Government for so many days and we find that our position is becoming more and more acute. Last year we thought that this year we would be in a better position. Last year when we discussed and passed the budget, we did not expect that there would be any remission in the provincial contribution. It is most surprising that we find our balances have been further reduced to a great extent this year also in spite of the remission of the provincial contribution and still we find that in the matters of technical and industrial education and the help to be given to smaller industries, no progress has been made.

[Mr. S. C. Joshi]

We say that it is the duty of Government to remove this distress. We accuse Government as a whole, not individual members of Government. The other day the Honourable the General Member said in replying to the debate on the Miscellaneous Departments, that he was not at all liable, and that there were other modes of relieving the distress. We say that Government as a whole should do everything possible to relieve this distress. If necessary, Government should find out ways and means whereby they need not have to brush aside the most important and vital question on the ground of financial improvement. I am afraid, Sir, we have no hopes that the finances of this presidency will recover in the near future. Perhaps during the next sixty years we may have to continue in the same state. It is, therefore, necessary that Government should consider the matter very seriously.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: What matter?

Mr. S. C. JOSHI: The matter of helping our industries and of introducing technical and industrial education, as also the matter of changing the present system of education, and all the other things which are necessary to relieve the distress of the masses.

It has been suggested by some of the honourable members that this department should be abolished and should be amalgamated with the Labour Office. I submit that it is necessary to widen the Labour Office itself and if this department were to be amalgamated with the Labour Office, then the difficulty will be that the Labour Office will not be able to do as much work as it has been doing now. These two departments should always be separate departments and larger funds should be provided for both these departments.

We have been told by the Honourable the General Member that the Labour Commissioner in Madras.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: On a point of order, Sir. Can the honourable member reply to a debate which took place on another demand?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I do not know whether the honourable member is attempting to reply to a debate on another demand which has been granted and concluded?

Mr. S. C. JOSHI: I am not attempting to give any such reply but I am merely suggesting that this department also has been equally neglected. If more funds had been assigned for this department, then I would have accepted the reply given by the Honourable the General Member, but I find that this department and the other departments of public utility also have been shelved aside. I think the time is now come to help these two departments of Labour and Industries which are departments of public utility. With these remarks, I oppose the motion before the House.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South): Mr. President, the Honourable the General Member is very anxious to preserve his privileged right of reply and does not want an honourable member on the non-official side to make any attempt to give a reply to his last debate. I might state at the outset that the debate on this question of industries is very closely allied to the other questions which the honourable House discussed on the last occasion which incidentally brought in a debate on the question of unemployment. As one honourable member in the course of that debate remarked, these are the two departments, two problems, which I do not think can be or will be solved till the larger problem of self-determination is solved. One of the honourable members remarked that the question of unemployment would be solved if we got national government. I say, with greater emphasis, in regard to this question of industries which I do consider to be a very very important subject, that if it is properly tackled, it will be the subject which will solve all the difficulties of the presidency including the financial difficulty, the economic difficulty, the difficulties of Government as well as of the people, but the point is whether this question will be ever tackled in the spirit in which it ought to be tackled by the present Government. The honourable member representing the Millowners' Association put it very guardedly when he stated that this department is not conducted in the spirit in which it ought to be conducted. I say I was rather surprised that the honourable member representing the Millowners' Association, with his commercial acumen and knowing what human nature is, should have passed that remark and should have expressed any surprise at the spirit in which this department is being worked which is just what we expected and expect in a foreign domination of this country. This is a department in which the interests of the two countries and the two communities are likely to clash. It is only because they cannot go further than they are doing because of public opinion and because of public agitation that this little show here and there is bound to be made to show that some attention is paid to the Industries Department or to other amenities of the country. I confess, Sir, that this department of industries will not be developed because it will not be allowed to be developed in the manner in which we would like it to be developed till this foreign domination is removed, and I am going to assert with all my responsibility, because I have devoted some considerable time to this question, and assert—not only insinuate but assert—that efforts are being made not to develop indigenous industries in the proper manner but efforts are being made to kill them. I will point out instances after instances in this very presidency, if not beyond this presidency, as to how the natural hidden mineral wealth that God has given to this country remains undeveloped and unattended to, which if developed may be converted into so much wealth for the benefit of the people. I can show how the hidden natural wealth has been neglected, sometimes left to die, sometimes left to remain undeveloped because of the fear that such discoveries may be detrimental to the interests of their own country. And when such discoveries are made, there is the other side of the question to look to as to how the discovery is going to affect British or foreign trade and British imports and British exports. It is from that standpoint that this department is looked at, and I do maintain that that is so, and I have instances in my possession to prove it.

[Mr. K. F. Nariman]

One remedy that the House thought would meet the situation—and they insisted that Government should carry it out—was that this department ought to be in the hands of an Indian Director. By that they meant nothing less than stating what I am now stating that, unless there is an Indian Director—a patriotic Indian Director who, for the sake of his country, will not even mind having a little clash with his associates and friends on the other side—unless we have a man of that description no good would come out of this department, and with that object I know that this House passed a resolution at the instance of my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji. But did we succeed in our object? I say, no. Why did we not succeed? Simply because, so far as we can see, even after the resolution was passed, even after the Indian Director was appointed, all sorts of obstacles were sought to be put in his way, so that the industries may not be developed in the manner in which they ought to be developed. Sir, in considering this question, we must first of all go back, as the honourable member before me stated, to the Industrial Commission's Report of 1918 or 1919. After great labour and trouble, after two or three years' sitting, they came to certain conclusions and they made certain suggestions. What were the suggestions? The suggestions were—those who have studied the report will see—as to the functions of the Industries Department, and those functions were very well defined in the report. It was intended that the Industries Department should be started with the functions assigned to it in the Industrial Commission's report, and that the department should start functioning with those activities which are assigned to it. What were the activities that were supposed to be connected with the Industries Department? I will mention a few. Mines and Minerals, Administration of the Electricity Act, and most important of all, Industrial research, the grant of loans to cottage industries, technical advice and assistance to all industries, purchasing of stores for Government, organisation of markets for local products, and industrial survey of the presidency, opening of commercial and industrial intelligence. Out of these recommendations of the Industrial Commission, I will only touch two very important ones, which go to the root of the whole question—industrial research and industrial survey of the presidency. If only these two were sincerely and honestly put through, I am sure the situation might have been different. But has there been an industrial survey? What has been the difficulty in the way of an industrial survey? Has there been any industrial research? I will point out how some research has taken place and its result. I will point out instances which go to show that when any research is made and some products are discovered, or commodities are discovered which are likely, from a commercial or other point of view, to affect the industries of other countries, efforts are being made to see that that product is not developed in the proper manner, and that research is not carried to its legitimate conclusion. I say, and I say with confidence and with responsibility that the position would have been the same with any other foreign government. It is human nature. Self-aggrandisement, self-preservation and self-interest is human nature. Probably any other foreign government German, French or Japanese, might have done the same thing. I am simply pointing out that when Government pretend that for the present they are not able to do much for want of funds, or for this reason or that reason, the real difficulty is want of will, and not want of funds. I will point out from the book itself, that, so far as the Industries Department is concerned, that is also worked on commercial lines. Government have provided a lakh of rupees for this department, and they are not spending even as much as they get from the department. If you refer to the budget, you will find that every year the receipts are much more than the expenditure. Even for next year when, owing to financial difficulty Government say they cannot give more than a lakh of rupees, you will find that the receipts are Rs. 2 lakhs.

[Mr. K. F. Nariman]

An Honourable MEMBER : No, no. It is Rs. 2,000.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : Anyhow, that ought to be made clear. What I say is that Rs. 1,02,000 are provided and out of that Rs. 44,000 are to be spent on the department. How are the industries of this presidency, which is one of the most important industrial provinces in the country, going to develop and prosper on a pittance of a few thousand rupees ? To be spent on how many subjects ? Industrial research, industrial development, purchasing of stores, giving of grants, industrial survey and all sorts of other activities which have been recommended by the Industrial Commission. So long as this department was in the hands of a Civilian it was considered to be a monopoly of the Civilians- all these activities were allowed to remain in the department, but since the department is placed under the charge of an Indian Director, according to the recommendation of this House, all these activities are curtailed. Not only that, but you will find that the grants were also curtailed more than 20 per cent. and not only that but the staff was curtailed. Formerly, there used to be a Director, an Assistant Director and a Deputy Director, but as soon as an Indian Director was appointed, all that was done away with, and the Indian Director was asked to work with only one or two clerks. In every way his progress was sought to be hampered in every direction, so that the Indian Director may not be able to develop the industries of the presidency in a proper manner. But we are glad that, in spite of all these difficulties, the first Indian Director proved equal to the task, and I would only ask honourable members to read the report of the department for the year 1925-26 and compare it with the reports for previous years when the department was in the hands of a white Civilian. The report will show what labour he has bestowed upon it, and I will point out a few instances to show the difficulties under which he was labouring. On page 8 of the report he points out what was the amount spent on the department before he took over charge and what was the amount spent after he took over charge. In 1922-23 the amount was Rs. 2,29,000 ; in 1923-24 Rs. 1,37,000 ; in 1924-25 Rs. 65,000 and in 1925-26 Rs. 65,000. It will be seen that, first of all the sinews of war are cut off from him, so that he cannot progress. In another place he complains that his establishment was reduced to one clerk and one typist; there was no Assistant Director, no Deputy Director, and it was only when he made an application that his establishment was increased to three clerks.

But, as I stated, the most important point is this. Has this department, since the Report of the Industrial Commission, really developed the industries that are indigenous in this presidency? I will point out some instances of discoveries made by their own officers, and I would ask Government what they have done with regard to those discoveries. I do not know whether the Honourable Minister who took over charge very recently can give the information, but I will point out a few instances in which remarkable discoveries were made, which were likely to contribute to financial prosperity, which might have gone to the relief of the population of the country, and which might have gone to solve the problem of unemployment in the presidency. I would like to ask Government what happened to those researches and discoveries which were made. I will ask the Honourable Minister to let the House know as to what happened with the discovery about the groundnut oil pulp? I will remind him that some time back, one of their own Chemical Advisors Dr. Mackenzie Wallace discovered, in the course of his tour, in one of the oil mills that this groundnut pulp was a very useful commodity out of which many useful things could be made; he discovered that it could be used, for instance, in making biscuits and bread, instead of being thrown away. Government saw through it and they admitted the importance of the discovery in so far as they actually issued a press note in which they dealt with this important commodity of groundnut, its oil and the bye-products of the groundnut oil industry. What is the result of that? The result is, considering the importance of the product, considering that it is useful both for oil and as pulp, they view with satisfaction the increase in the export of this commodity to their own country. They viewed it, in the press note, with satisfaction that the export had increased from so many lakhs of pounds to so many lakhs of pounds. Supposing we had a national Government, would we have allowed a thing like that to proceed? As soon as we discovered a product like this —which I consider to be a divine blessing for the poor inhabitants of this presidency—we would at once have stopped all export of groundnut. But as soon as this Government discovered that, they at once arranged for its export to other countries so that those countries might get the benefit of it at the price they give. I have given this instance of groundnut oil and its bye-products. I could understand if it were such a complicated matter that we could not manage it in this country and that therefore it should go to other countries and be brought back to this presidency in the proper form. But it is not. If that industry is developed in this presidency and its usefulness made available to this country, what is to become of their other countries abroad, either England, France, etc., that need groundnut very badly. They remark that since the loss of portions of East Africa, which grew groundnut, the importance of the growth of groundnut in India has increased—important not from our point of view, but from their point of view.....

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER: Sir, I rise to a point of information.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: Sir, the Honourable Minister has the last word on the subject. I do not wish to be interrupted. Government have always the last word: it is an arrangement which is very unfair so far as the rules of debate are concerned. (Mr. C. W. A. Turner interrupted.)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member does not yield.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: I am not going to yield.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Sir, the honourable member has referred to a press note: I want to know what that press note is.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: Then, Sir, I refer to cashewnut oil. My honourable friend sitting by my side will deal with the importance of this oil. Even German missionaries have advised their Government that it is one of the most useful commodities that could be found on the face of the earth. Other countries have not had this commodity; they have been trying every means to grow trees in their countries, but they cannot. But here Nature is helping us to grow it, but others are interfering to deprive us of the benefits which Nature has given us. This Government will not develop it, although all along the Western coast we have ample facilities to grow this nut. Most of this nut is now going to waste; only people in the villages try to make use of it for the preparation of some oils. Now, look at the way they deal with it in Goa which is not luckily under British administration. Look at the development of cashewnut industry in Goa. It is treated as one of the most important commodities. They will not allow it to be carried here; they will not allow us to import it. I ask in all earnestness why such a useful commodity with which Nature provides us be allowed to go to waste, without being used for the benefit of human beings as intended by God. The only answer is that they will do nothing that will clash with their mercantile interests. Self-interest first and foremost, whatever happens to others. "Our" imports, "our" exports, "our" revenues must be preserved above all other things, no matter what happens. Similarly with regard to the sugar industry. The sugar industry is not prospering because they will not allow the sugar companies to manufacture its alcoholic by-products. They have given in other parts of the country monopoly to two European firms, one of which is in Cawnpore, to manufacture these products, and they manufacture rum. Sharanpur Rum is known all over the country and even in other countries. They have given that monopoly because they are European firms. When other persons here in India apply for permission to manufacture alcoholic by-products of sugar, they are not given permission because it interferes with their excise revenue! Is that the way the country is going to grow? Is there any wonder that we are labouring under great economic depression, want of employment and lack of industries? Everything is sure to improve if only one thing is removed.

[Mr. K. F. Nariman]

Then, I come to the match industry. The honourable member the Secretary even ridiculed the suggestion that the British Government was trying to help a foreign industry. He said it was ridiculous to suggest that Government was helping the Swedish Trust. He tried to make out that it was not true. It is not only a foreign trust, if the honourable member the Secretary does not know he can make an enquiry and he will find that a large amount of British capital also is sunk in that trust. It is a trust which was started with a view to cripple the match industry of the whole world, not only of this country but of the whole world. Crores of rupees have been sunk in that trust and a large amount of British capital is also sunk in it. I do maintain again that the British Government of this country has shown favouritism to the match factories which have been started by that trust with the object of killing the indigenous factories of this presidency, which have been started since 1922 when the import duty was raised. This industry has prospered in India as a cottage industry. As soon as the import duties are raised, this trust turns its attention to India, comes here and starts its factories all over the country, not, as I said, to make a profit but to kill the indigenous factories that have been started even by selling their own products at a loss. They made every effort in Japan with a similar object in view, but they were removed from there unceremoniously in order to help the home industry. I repeat that this trust was shown some favouritism, and it was put down only on account of the agitation in the presidency. First and foremost they were given match-wood from our forests without tenders at the low rate of one rupee per cart. Public agitation was aroused and questions were put in this Council. Even the Indian Merchants' Chamber sent in a letter of protest, dated September 1923. So, there was a great agitation over this question. After this agitation they had to call for tenders and the result of the tenders was that the original rate of Re. 1 was raised to Rs 2 or sometimes Rs. 2-8-0. So, you will find that there was at times a difference of 150 per cent. As admitted before the Tariff Board, railway facilities were given to them and therefore they were able to develop their industry. They gave more facilities in Ambernath, and that was because Government wanted that land to be occupied by any person, no matter who they may be. Here are the instances, Sir, that a foreign industry or foreign Trust comes into this land after the import duty has been levied ; it comes into this land with the deliberate object of killing the indigenous industry. There are instances that these people are selling their goods at a loss. They are not selling this at a loss in a foreign place where foreign matches are available. They are selling at a place where there is an indigenous industry. So, it is quite obvious that their object is to kill the Indian industry. But what do the Government do in this respect ? They have treated us in a step-fatherly and step-motherly way and have tried to give special monopoly to the foreign Trust to kill the indigenous industry. That is the way in which Government are doing these things. I would ask honourable members : "Do you expect our industries, whether indigenous or otherwise, to prosper when this country is given less opportunities?" Are we not entitled to ask Government plainly and frankly what they intend doing about the development of industries? If they feel inclined to act in a manner which is detrimental to this country, I appeal to them to let us know the position. Instead of keeping the department of industry as a show and spending thousands of rupees over that department, why should not Government tell us openly and frankly their decision in this respect? In the same report we also find that State aid was asked by some six persons, but that aid was not given to them. I would, therefore, say: "How is it that the development of our industries would prosper?"

I know my honourable friend, Mr. Winterbotham—he is not present here today—is anxious that this department should be abolished. This side of the House is for abolition of this department, but from a different standpoint. I agree with the Honourable the Leader of the House when he said that he does not want to see this department abolished. The honourable member, Mr. Winterbotham, demands the abolition of this department from a different point of view. But those honourable members who have asked Government to abolish this department, have done so as a matter of protest against Government and not according to the point of view of Mr. Winterbotham. The honourable member, the Secretary, reminded this House that Government were refused the full grant which was intended for the development of industries. I may submit, Sir, that this House refused the grant as a matter of protest against the expenditure incurred by that department over the item of Fishing trawler. We did so in order that Government should take a lesson and not spend the amount after some such items which are not necessary. We wanted that Government should improve, but we find that it is not possible for this Government to improve, unless this department is made absolutely independent of the executive government and unless our Ministers are actuated with wisdom and patriotism, this department will not get a success. I want our Ministers to realise this fact. They should speak to themselves: "Well, my country wants this thing to be done and that thing to be done; and I must try to meet their wishes." If he keeps that principle before him, he is sure to exert in that direction. It is not a question of wisdom or patriotism as some honourable members suggested but it is a question of back-bone, ability to assert their right and position. If the Minister finds some obstacles in his way, he should at once tender his resignation. We expect our Ministers to do this much and now that they should be there—I won't call them figure-heads—the Ministers are there merely to inspire confidence on the side of the House. The real power is with the Secretaries. They belong to a class that is untouchable; even the Minister cannot touch them because they belong to a divine service. So long as this change does not take place, we should not expect Government to run this department successfully.

As regards the publication of the report to which I just referred, honourable members will find that it was not published till after six months and although it was published after this long delay, we cannot get more copies of that report. I understand that only 30 to 40 copies were ordered to be printed, so that this report should not be available for public use at large and the recommendations contained in this report widely spread. The honourable member representing the Millowners' Association says that this is the department which can only develop industry. I would, therefore, ask the Honourable Minister to take this side of the House into his confidence. He should come forward and say openly whether he wants to develop our industries or not. Let us know whether we cannot expect the development of our industries till God grants us liberty and freedom. The Honourable Minister should not make show about this department. But if they really want to develop our industries, I, for one, should be the first man to help Ministers in their efforts.

I do not want to support the cut moved by my honourable friend, Mr. Pahalajani, if the Honourable Minister gets up and makes a statement that every effort will be made to develop the industries. We want such a department for making an industrial survey. Industrial survey is primarily necessary and after the survey is held, Government should start the research of the industrial development. Unless the Honourable Minister is prepared to give such an assurance, I do not think this House will be justified in sanctioning the grant. I may assure the Honourable Minister that if he makes honest efforts for the development of our industries, and if he finds any difficulties and comes to this House, this House will be ever ready to give him all assistance. Unless he is prepared to make this statement, that he is going to make honest efforts in that direction, I, for one, really do not see the continuance or justification of this department. But, in order that the Honourable Minister may have a chance to make that statement and assurance in this House, I do not wish to support this motion at this stage, and the attitude of the House will certainly depend upon the reply the Honourable Minister is going to make.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Sir, I wish to make a few observations as regards the remarks which were made by the last speaker about the match industry. I may tell this honourable House that on enquiries being made, I did not notice that any special concessions were shown to any Swedish factory. But I may tell the honourable member Mr. Nariman that I actually postponed the sale of wood which was fit for match industry, and all the mango trees and savar trees are now given to a syndicate of the Indian match industry to which reference was made. (Mr. K. F. Nariman: This year). Yes, this year. They sent me telegrams asking me to put off the auction of these trees, and also telling me that some of the conditions were too harsh. So, I removed all those conditions, and I issued orders whereby all the mango trees and savar trees are given to Messrs. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee & Co., who represent this match manufacturing industry. Then, I may tell this honourable House that I asked the Chief Conservator of Forests to find out a suitable plot of land between Andheri and Borivli, because there are many match factories in the Bombay Suburban District, for planting mango and savar trees, because these factories have come to stay here, and if they have to stay here, they must have suitable wood at their door. Therefore, the Chief Conservator of Forests has been asked to have a plantation of mango and savar trees between Andheri and Borivli.

Then, as regards kaju nut, I think the honourable member meant kaju fruit juice. Now, kaju fruit juice is a base for preparing kaju liquor. Now, kaju liquor is not allowed to be imported into British India. So, the only use which we can make of kaju fruit juice is to convert it into vinegar. So, our expert is asked to make a report whether kaju juice can be converted into vinegar with profit.

Then, as regards the sugar industry, as a matter of fact, Government are making an enquiry as regards this industry. They find that too much money is spent on sugarcane growing, and that is why it probably does not pay to have a sugar factory. Prices of gul are at rock bottom now, and according to the prices which have to be paid for sugarcane, it does not pay to have a sugar factory. But I may tell the honourable members that molasses which are available are being purchased by the Nasik distillery. But then, we do not even get sufficient molasses for our own purposes. We are not able to secure sufficient mhowra flowers for use in the Nasik factory. The Belapur factory is not able to give us sufficient molasses, so we have to purchase molasses from Java. So, if there is any factory able to supply molasses, I may state there is a purchaser, we are ready to purchase it. At present we are oblige to purchase it from Java. These are the only three points about which he made a reference for the department with which I am concerned.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: On a point of information. I am informed that in the Nasik distillery they successfully prepare methylated spirit out of mhowra flowers. Was it developed subsequently at any time?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: As a matter of fact, we made experiments as regards denatured spirit, methylated spirit, etc. But, though there is a heavy duty upon spirit which is imported from foreign countries, yet we are not able to compete with the prices of spirit which comes from abroad. But we are preparing rectified spirit there in Nasik, and as regards that, we are getting some profit. The Nasik distillery is also ordered to prepare Indian made foreign liquor because that was a suggestion made by one honourable member, I think it was Mr. Swaminarayan. (An Honourable Member: Did he make such a suggestion?),—Yes, sometimes he does make such suggestions,—that foreign liquor should be prepared in Nasik. So, these experiments are also being tried.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu): Sir, I also wish to say a few words on this motion in connection with the department of industries. The provision of one lakh of rupees, which is proposed to be made for this department is not, I must say, even two annas in the rupee. Several honourable members have given facts and figures to show what provision is made for industries both here as well as in other provinces. But, Sir, I have to point out that the Government of Bombay is not India's Government but England's Government. That being the case, how can you expect that the English Government would be prepared or would desire to see our industries here thrive and let their own people, their own children, in England starve as a consequence ? It is natural that they should desire to help their own industries in England in every way and not care what happens to our industries here. It is useless shedding tears before the blind.

To-day we have the Honourable Mr. Pradhan as a Minister in charge of this department. There have been other Ministers before, and two years hence another Minister will come after him. It is the practice to have new Ministers every three years, and every new Minister who comes will be telling us, " This has been done, that has been done, that is proposed to be done, I am not responsible for this, my predecessors are responsible for this, and so on, and so on. " What satisfaction is it to us, unless our industries actually prosper ? In the old days, India had attained such a high position in commerce that practically every article was supplied by her to all the countries in the world ; India was the world's supplier. Now, ever since this country has come under British rule, the downfall of India in her industrial position has commenced and she is going down and down in the matter of her trade and commerce. Why ? Because if the industries of India were encouraged and allowed to prosper, then the people of Manchester and other places in England would be starving. So long as England continues her present self-seeking, selfish commercial policy in this country, they will not care for India's industries and we cannot expect that our industrial condition will improve. Now, look at Japan and America. What a vast and wonderful progress they have made in their commerce in such a short space of time ! They have attained a very high position in the world's commerce. And what is all that due to ? That is because in Japan and America they have a national Government, not a foreign Government. Here we have a foreign Government. And how can you expect a foreign Government to do what only a national Government, one's own Government, can do ?

The honourable member, the Secretary of the department, tells us that since power looms have come into existence naturally hand-looms have gone, hand-looms have been replaced by power looms. May I ask him where was the power loom in England 150 years ago ? And did not England's commerce prosper even when there was no power loom ? Why cannot India do what England could do in the way of commercial prosperity before the advent of the power loom ? Look at Bengal to-day. What is her state ? There was a time when the Dacca muslins, the superfine Dacca muslins, had attained a worldwide fame and had become the object of admiration all over the world. And with a view to put down this fine muslin trade of Dacca, the fingers of those weavers of muslins were actually cut off by this foreign Government.....

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : That is an absolute lie, Sir. It has been contradicted times without number. This is the second time that it has been repeated in this debate, and it is absolutely false.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Has the honourable member any historical data to make an assertion like that or any reliable authority to depend upon for it ? The Honourable the Home Member takes objection to the honourable member's assertion and points out that there is no authority to make that allegation, viz., that the fingers of indigenous weavers were cut off by the British in order to kill the weaving industry.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH : I can point out to the Honourable the Home Member my historical authority or other evidence for that assertion if only he will give me an opportunity of doing so.

Why have not local industries been developed during these 150 years of British rule ? The Honourable the Finance Member says that Government do not wish to kill the industries, that Government have every sympathy and that they want to give more money for their advancement and development but that for some reason or other they cannot find the necessary funds. The Honourable the Leader of the House complained that the honourable member Rao Saheb Dadubhai Desai and others like him look to nothing but cutting down grants. We can cut down grants only in small items. By the Reforms we cannot touch the bigger items they being non-votable, in the present constitution of the Council. We can cut demands which are for nation-building departments which I don't wish. How long will Government go on saying " Oh, my son, you grow up and then I will get you married." Such seems to be the Government's attitude towards the industries of this country. The honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale advised the Government to spend more money on industries. We are now quite tired of begging with folded hands. I do not think that this is the time for doing so. If our claim is a rightful one and there is no doubt that it is a perfectly rightful claim, we should not go to Government with folded hands for more money to be spent on our industries. We shall wait and when our time comes, we shall see what we can do.

In other countries Governments help their industries to the best of their power, as has been already pointed out by my honourable friends Messrs. Petit and Nariman. Finally, I shall remind this Government of the saying " विनाश काले विपरीत बुद्धी " meaning thereby that when the time of destruction comes, reason becomes fouled.....

Mr. S. K. BOLE : I move the closure, Sir.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN : I move the closure, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I accept the closure.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind) : Sir, I am very thankful to both sides of the House, except to the honourable member the General Secretary, for having enlightened us in a considerable degree on the subject of the Industries Department. I decline to thank the honourable member the General Secretary because he has charged the House with a conduct which the House has not adopted, namely, the reduction in the grant of the Industries Department in 1924. So far as this House is concerned, there seems to be an anxiety on the part of every elected member including the Europeans, that the Industries Department is one that ought to be very considerably encouraged and enlarged. Even the Honourable the Leader of the House is of opinion and is as strongly and as enthusiastically of opinion, as ourselves that this department ought to be greatly encouraged and enhanced. This is a department which was started in 1918. In 1924, when the honourable member from Satara, Mr. Jadhav, was in charge of this department, and when this department came up for discussion before this House, my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji moved for a cut of the whole amount of Rs. 2,11,000, mainly resting his case upon the very small and meagre amount that had been provided in the budget for it. That the department was an important department was admitted at that time both by Government and non-official members in this House. Now, Sir, discussion went on with every elected member asserting that the department had been shabbily treated and advancing exactly the same arguments as have been advanced here to-day and the day before yesterday, that it was unnecessary to keep a department with such small funds. It is not that this House thinks that a Director is not wanted. This House was and even now is in that ironic mood which refuses to have a Director with a provision of Rs. 1,02,000 only or in other words with a provision of Rs. 58,000 only for running his department apart from the cost of his establishment. This House is at present in an absolutely sullen and peevish mood, sullen and peevish with the Honourable the Finance Member for not allowing the Honourable the Minister more money and for not looking after the finances required for the development of this department. This House is not in a mood to-day to do away with the department. This House is not in a mood to-day to do away with the Director of Industries. This House at present is in a mood to express that this department shall be one of those departments that the Honourable the Finance Member shall encourage in the highest possible degree. The whole of this discussion, including the statement of my honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham, was directed only to one point, i.e., the conduct of Government in starving, the conduct of Government in allotting the meagre sum of Rs. 58,000 for the department. It was a protest against the conduct of Government in giving only Rs. 58,000 to this department. With that, Sir, was coupled another desire that the Director should be an Indian. The reason why I declined to thank the General Secretary was that it was not the House, but the Government itself—the honourable member Mr. Jadhav, was then the Minister and therefore the Government—that removed the Director of Labour. He said :

"The question of the efficiency or otherwise of the Department of Industries has been discussed here, and I am very much obliged to my honourable friends for reading some portions of my speeches on this very question during the years 1922-23. I say for myself that the criticisms that were pertinent in those days continue to be so. I myself am not satisfied with the working of this department. I understand from the discussion here that the chief objection that lurks in the minds of honourable members is that a Director drawing Rs. 35,000 a year is not necessary. We too think the same. But at his salary is a non-votable item, we cannot withdraw that item without the sanction of His Excellency. We are willing to represent this to His Excellency and we are sure that His Excellency will think it proper to give his consent to the abolition of that post."

[Mr. B. G. Pahalajani]

Again, he said :

"The majority of the speakers have agreed that the greatest need of the country is to develop the industries, and we have to try our best to develop them, and without such a department we cannot hope to develop any of the industries."

He said further :

"I think the maintenance of this department is necessary for the advance of industries in this presidency, and when the expensive head of that department is taken away, the department may be expected to work satisfactorily during the next few years for the sum that will be expended by it. Of course I need not remind the House that they will have an opportunity of passing its judgment on the working of this department twelve months hence."

Now, Sir, on this statement of the Honourable Minister in 1924, this House agreed to the proposal of the Government itself, not that the House did away with the item. It agreed to the proposal of the Government itself to do away with the post of the Director, who was not an expert. The distinct position then taken up by my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji and by the whole House at the time was chiefly that the Director shall be an expert. We did not want a non-expert man, and we did not want the department to be run on the lines on which it was being run at the time, when the Honourable Minister actually gave up Rs. 35,000, and saved unnecessary expenditure. Now three years have passed, and yet the promise of the Government made through its accredited agent, the Minister, that in the following year Government will give a larger grant for the department, has not been fulfilled. In 1925-26 and 1926-27 Government had at its command huge balances, namely, Rs. 459 lakhs and Rs. 492 lakhs. The Honourable the Finance Member is not correct in saying that Government has not been able to afford any encouragement, because it had no money. A huge balance of over Rs. 4 crores and a half was available, excluding the Famine Fund.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Recurring ?

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : They were recurring ; for three years they recurred. The balance was Rs. 459 lakhs and Rs. 492 lakhs in 1925-26 and 1927 respectively, and there were savings of Rs. 53 lakhs in one year and Rs. 99 lakhs in the next year. With all this, nothing was done for the Industries Department, and we find to-day the Honourable Minister coming forward to ask this House to grant him Rs. 44,000 for the establishment and Rs. 58,000 for the encouragement of the Industries Department. That is exactly what has produced the felling on this side of the House. What is intended by the House is this : the Director is an absolute necessity ; the Director must be there ; the Director must be an Indian. But the position of the Honourable Minister must be strengthened by this side of the House by insisting that he shall demand more money from the Government—if he does not make that demand he will not be doing his duty by this side of the House—and that the Government shall give him more money for this department, if it has any respect for public opinion. That is the position, and that is the undertaking the Honourable Minister must give, before this demand can be passed.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Sir, from the beginning I was under the impression, when my honourable friend moved his motion, that he did so in order to raise a general debate and not for the purpose of having the department abolished. I have noticed also that several other honourable members who took part in the debate also shared the same desire.

A year ago, when I took charge of this department, I found that a committee was appointed by Government in 1926 to enquire into the working of the department, and to give advice on its future working: that committee was sitting and considering the matter, and I also found that the Director in charge of the department was a gentleman who was on the superannuation list. Under these circumstances, I waited for the report. The report came up in July last, and soon after Government took steps to obtain the necessary sanction for the purpose of creating the post, and advertised inviting applications to the post. The applications have been received, and they have been put up only two or three days ago to me, and the matter will be duly considered. I may, however, assure the House that Government are solicitous, a suitable candidate forthcoming, to appoint an Indian Director, and I trust that the assurance that the Honourable the Leader of the House gave will also go to assure the House that every effort will be made to select a suitable Indian Director to be in charge of this department.

Mr F. J. GINWALLA (Made an observation which was inaudible).

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: My honourable friend murmurs and asks why an extension was not given to the Director who was on the superannuation list.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: He says, why not reappoint him.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: If he is one of the applicants and if his age allows it, that also will be a matter which will be considered.

The committee consisted of 8 members, about 5 of whom were Indian gentlemen, and 6 members of the committee were Members of this Council. They have threshed out the subject, and, looking to the present condition of things, they have made recommendations in paragraph 16 of their report, and, as soon as the Director is appointed, the activities as recommended by the committee will be undertaken. The recommendation is that the department should concern itself at present with answering enquiries as well as giving advice, to have an industrial survey, and also to encourage cottage industries and supplementary industries. I may inform the House that during the current year we have received a report of the survey of arts and crafts from the officer (Mr. Fernandes) who was appointed to make a report thereon; it has been lately received, and is being considered. Secondly, a gentleman by name Mr. Telang has been appointed to report on the question of handloom weaving industry. Again, as the Honourable the Leader of the House stated, Mr. Gaitonde has been appointed to report on the tanning industry in the villages and towns. A reference having come up from a certain gentleman with reference to the encouragement of the industry of manufacture of chemicals, putting forth the difficulties of that industry on account of freights and tariffs, this Government has approached the Government of India on the subject, for having that matter considered and solved. So that, Sir, during the current year this much has been done, and as soon as the Director is appointed the first thing that he will be doing will be to tour round the presidency to examine the conditions, and also to undertake an industrial survey. By that time he will also have the reports from the gentlemen appointed to report on the handloom weaving industry and the tanning industry.

I have every hope that for the budget of 1929-30 I will be in a position to demand more money, and I have no doubt that with the help of the insistence which honourable members of this House have shown to have more and more funds, I will have no difficulty in getting adequate funds for the purpose required.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: From whom will the funds be got?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: From the Government.

It has been stated that this Government have been spending very little on this department as compared with Bengal and the United Provinces. I had a visit from an officer serving in the Industries Department of one of the Indian Provinces, and I took occasion to ask him what were the activities of the department in that province. He stated that the expenses on technical and professional schools maintained by that province were included in the budget for Industries. If we look to that question here, we are spending at present on technical and special schools and professional schools about 12 lakhs of rupees a year, and if that were taken into account I may urge on the attention of the honourable House that this Government are not spending less. However, there is need for spending more for the encouragement of cottage and supplementary industries, and I have every hope that there will be no difficulty in getting the money required on the proper occasion.

Sir, there was a reference to the match industry. I know that that industry supports a large number of people in various ways in this presidency. We have every sympathy for the match industry in this presidency, and I may inform the House that my honourable colleague has made arrangements to supply as much match wood as is available in the forests.

[Dewan Bahadur Harilal D. Desai]

As regards State aid, the question is very difficult. During my tenure, I had an application for State aid to the extent of two lakhs of rupees from a rice factory in Sind which has been existing there for the last ten years. On an examination of the situation I found that when they could not find any accommodation in Banks and in spite of its ten years' existence it was not able to make headway, it was not a proper proposition which could be entertained. The question of State aid will be a question depending mainly upon the financial circumstances of Government. But that apart, the activities of the department, I hope, will not be allowed to suffer on account of want of funds when they are required. I therefore hope that with the assurance that I have given, the honourable member for Sukkur will withdraw his motion.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI: May I know how many applications have been received for the post of Director ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: About 55 applications.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI: How many Indians and how many non-Indians ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: About 50 Indians and 3 or 4 non-Indians. I have given this information off hand.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): Sir, in view of the undertaking given by the Honourable Minister to ask for more money from Government and to give more money to this department, I beg permission to withdraw my motion.

Question put and leave granted.

Question that the demand for Rs. 1,02,000, for 35, Industries (Transferred) be granted, put and carried.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Sir, I ask for a demand of Rs. 26,38,000 for 34, Agriculture.

Question proposed.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District): Sir, I beg to move :

Omit item No. 60 (Creation of an appointment of Deputy Registrar and an additional appointment of Assistant Registrar of Co-operative Societies and their establishments involving the recurring expenditure of Rs. 14,382.

Sir, in the note placed before us at page 273 of the Blue Book, it is stated :—

"The Co-operative movement in the Bombay Presidency has always claimed that it has been and should be as unofficial in character as possible and that in this respect it compares favourably with other provinces."

But asking for this amount for creating more posts appears to be quite contrary to the policy mentioned in the above note. It is again stated that :

"This deputy can tour in about six or seven districts in a year, excercising the Registrar's powers, and the Registrar can tour in the same districts in the following year.....The appointment of a Deputy Registrar is also necessary for the exercise of proper supervision and control over the increasing number of ordinary societies."

[Mr. M. S. Khuhro]

Sir, at one and the same time we are told that the co-operative movement should be as unofficial in character as possible and that the appointment of a deputy registrar is necessary for proper supervision and control of societies. Sir, Sind is a division that has figured most prominently in the matter of the co-operative movement: co-operation has been very successful in the Province of Sind. That has been admitted in the report presented by the Registrar of Co-operative Societies for the year ending 31st March 1927. I will here quote a few paragraphs from it to illustrate and support all what I wish to say about the prominence of Sind in this matter:

"The Societies in Sind are without doubt excellent institutions, and have conferred much increased prosperity on their members. The Sindhi cultivators are simple in character, and when once convinced of the advantages of co-operation and co-operative finance, they have eagerly accepted the help and advice which the Department has to offer. There is more genuine belief in co-operation and more gratitude for the benefits obtained than is found anywhere in the Presidency."

Then it goes on to say:—

"It is a common thing in a society of five years' standing for a small zamindar to hold Rs. 150 to Rs. 300 and for a hari to hold Rs. 100 to Rs. 150 in shares. There is thus a volume of real savings, and it is easy to see that members of societies will be in a position to purchase a substantial amount of Barrage land when the opportunity arises."

Then at the end of this passage he says:

"The Assistant Registrar and his deputy are more closely in touch with the people of that province and the societies, hence the percentage of arrears has been kept very low. This is unheard of in the Presidency."

If you see the figures for this item as compared with the other divisions, except the District of West Khandesh, you will find that Sind stands at the lowest figure in the whole of the presidency in the matter of arrears. The number of agriculturists' co-operative credit societies in Sind in the year 1927 was quite a large number, that is 773. In quite a short period of eight to ten years since the movement has been started to reach that number is indeed meritorious. There are 23,444 members of these societies which have advanced no less than Rs. 36 lakhs for the purchase of bullocks and other agricultural implements, and seed and other necessities, thus bettering the prospects of the agriculturists. This movement has done wonderful work in Sind, and it is, therefore, just and proper that Sind should get her adequate or at least proportionate share in a matter like this.

Sir, Sind is a division which is far more distant than any other division, from the headquarters of the Registrar, which is at Poona, and the correspondences take a very long time for disposal, resulting in matters of urgent nature even being detained for months together. That is the main reason why this movement has not progressed much more than it has done so far. If every chance is given to Sind in this respect, I am sure this movement will be more successful in Sind than anywhere else.

In Sind there are many important problems which require immediate and urgent consideration. I may submit that after the completion of the Barrage and Canals construction, the lands will be sold in Sind.

[Mr. M. S. Khuhro]

There is very great apprehension in the minds of the people in our province and more particularly in the minds of the small landholders, that they will not be in a position to purchase the land, thus not possessing adequate funds for the purpose. Therefore, it was suggested that co-operative agriculturists' societies should be organised who should join them together in groups to purchase the lands and these Societies be financed by the land mortgage Banks wherever necessary. If no such endeavour is made, I have every reason to be pessimistic about it that the agriculturists of Sind will miserably lag behind in getting their share in Barrage lands. I would, therefore, request Government to help this movement so that the agriculturist cultivators and the small landholders may get the opportunity of taking their legitimate share of the land. At the same time it is necessary that Land Mortgage Banks should be started in Sind. It is high time that such banks should be created in all the districts. There are at present two Zamindary Co-operative Banks in Sind which are doing wonderful progress in financing the people possessing large holdings. They are the only right sort of institutions for the big zamindars, to save them against the moneylenders. Such Banks should as a matter of fact be created in all the Districts of Sind, for the benefit of the landed aristocracy of that province.

There are moreover six District Co-operative Banks that have been financing all the societies in Sind, and the report shows that they are doing very useful work. There are urban banks, housing societies and many such other institutions. I would here make a mention of the Co-operative Grain Sale Societies and the taluka agricultural development associations. In view of the Barrage scheme these two kinds of institutions must be fully encouraged. There will be far more land coming under cultivation after this new irrigational system, and hence there will naturally be more produce which should be marketed through these co-operative societies for the benefit of "haris". At present middlemen that purchase from haris and zamindars simply swindle them and get rich at their cost. The businesslike habits should be inculcated in them, in order to improve their economic position.

As regards Taluka Agricultural Associations, there are at present eleven such institutions organised through the indefatiguable efforts of the same Assistant Registrar. It is very necessary that such associations should be formed in every Taluka in Sind, to do the propaganda and to make a "Sindhi hari" know what is the scientific knowledge of agriculture and thus make him learn all such benefits of western methods of agriculture and such results that have been achieved after considerable research of different crops. They should know which kind of crops will be more useful and more paying for them to grow in different kinds of soil in Sind. These are the points that require careful consideration. They require to be handled by an extraordinarily genuine and capable man like the present Assistant Registrar in Sind. I therefore submit that there is very great and genuine need of creating this post for Sind alone. The present Assistant Registrar for Sind, belongs to the Bombay

[Mr. M. S. Khuhro]

Provincial Service, Revenue department, and he therefore draws his personal pay plus some allowance. So in raising him to the status of the Deputy Registrar no extra expenditure will be involved. I would therefore suggest that he may be made the Deputy Registrar for Sind and be given extra powers namely all the powers of credit, etc., that are intended for the Deputy Registrar for the presidency and any others that are found necessary to be transferred to him to handle the problems that I have already enumerated and which need his immediate attention. He may as far as possible be given free hand in working out his schemes and proposals. This will also save much time that is at present lost in his corresponding with the Registrar over every small thing. With regard to the ability of this gentleman (K. B. Azimkhan) the ex-registrar Mr. Collins who knew his department very well, has made some remarks in his report that has been supplied to us, which I wish to quote here :—

"It has been previously brought to the notice that the success of co-operation in Sind is due chiefly to the efforts and personality of the Assistant Registrar, Khan Bahadur Azimkhan. His good work cannot be exaggerated."

From this it will obviously be seen that he well deserves this designation along with the powers mentioned by me. I wanted to impress all this upon the mind of the Honourable Minister, hence I have brought this motion and I do hope that he will see his way to accept my suggestions.

Question proposed.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Sir, I see that the reason for the increase in the establishment is that the Registrar should be relieved of a portion of the work that has been put on his shoulders. It is, no doubt, a fact that with the increase in the number of societies, there will be a volume of work. But I submit, Sir, that the policy of not popularising the movement is certainly contrary to the original intentions of the framers of the Co-operative Act. When that Act was passed, it was stated in the Government Resolution :

"Gradually as the experience is gained and the societies are able to stand alone, the fostering care of the Registrar will be less required until his duties will become purely official."

My submission, therefore, is that the reason given for the work of the Registrar is sound. I admit that with the increase of societies there is a great necessity for efficient audit. I know that is the work which requires close scrutiny and official control. I remember that in the Finance Committee, when this proposition was under discussion, it was proposed that more money should be spent on audit, if the number of societies is increased. I therefore think that it is really advisable for the Honourable Minister to utilise some money that he may have on increasing the staff of auditors instead of having one more deputy registrar and one assistant registrar.

There are already 6 assistant registrars and also one additional assistant registrar, and I think it will not be necessary to have this appointment of deputy registrar jointly. I think Mr. Collins, who was the Registrar lately, in his evidence before the Agricultural Commission said he did not want to enlarge the department, but he wanted more field workers and auditors. It seems the experiment of having a deputy registrar was tried in the Central Provinces but it has failed. For all these reasons, without taking more time on the subject, it seems to me that if the Honourable Minister gives an undertaking that he will not create a new post of a deputy registrar but will utilise the money placed at his disposal for the purpose of increasing the audit, I think the honourable mover of this motion would be well advised to withdraw it.

Khan Bahadur S. N. BHUTTO (Larkana District): Sir, while supporting the motion of my honourable friend for this cut, I must express my surprise that there should be such a proposal of creating a post of deputy registrar brought before this Council. There has been for some time past a tendency of the heads of departments to have duplicate officials and deputies to relieve themselves of their duties and afford them an easy time. Sir, I do not think there is any necessity of a deputy registrar at all. If at all there is any necessity, it should be in a province of Sind, which is situated so far away from the seat of Government and where the head of co-operation, K. B. Azimkhan has proved himself most deserving to earn this promotion. With these remarks, Sir, I support the cut.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District): Sir, on a subject like this I speak with a little hesitation, because, I fear, the discussion of the subject and the speech of the honourable member for Larkana are likely to involve some other persons in a misunderstanding. But I do assure the official benches, if at all an assurance is necessary, that this is a matter which has been discussed by all the responsible co-operators in Sind. We had recently in Hyderabad Sind, under the chairmanship of the Honourable Minister of Co-operative Societies, a Co-operative Conference; and Mr. Jamshed N. R. Mehta, who is a leading and a foremost co-operator in Sind, very strongly asked that Sind should have now a supervising officer for co-operative societies of the grade of the deputy registrar. This question of deputy registrarship has not arisen simply on account of the fact that a post of that nature is being created in the Bombay Presidency (Presidency proper). Long before such a provision was made in the budget or was in contemplation, leading co-operators have been thinking of asking for a deputy registrarship in view of the tremendous co-operation work in Sind and the possibilities of its extension, owing to the opening of the Barrage areas. I entirely agree with my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale that a deputy registrarship is not at all necessary for the presidency proper. If at all anything is needed for the presidency proper, and if the remarks of Mr. Collins, the late Registrar are correct, I feel Government would be well advised to appoint more auditors and sub-auditors. Mr. Collins was, as "co-operators" well know, one of the most brilliant Registrars of the co-operative societies in this presidency. He had a clear insight into the subject: and had very clear judgment, which enabled him to put his finger on the weakest points of any Co-operative Society or Bank that he inspected. I can bear that out from my own personal experience. In his last annual report, he does not say anything very pleasant about the co-operative movement in the presidency proper. He is certainly displeased with the co-operative work carried on in the presidency proper. If what Mr. Collins has said is correct, we require very efficient auditors and greater number of them to improve the existing societies, in the presidency proper, where things appear to be pretty bad. The remedy suggested by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale is certainly right and correct, that we should not have the deputy registrar proposed by Government or more auditors and sub-auditors. But, Sir, what do the Government want? The personal assistant to the Registrar is to be made a deputy registrar. and somebody else, who is a senior auditor, is being made an assistant registrar, and so on. This affair has, to say the least, an unpleasant appearance. Conditions in Sind are very different. The material for moulding there is quite different; and Sind requires and needs quite a different treatment from other divisions. If any one were to ask me "What is the secret of success of co-operation in Sind?" I would say that Sind was given a free hand to mould itself on its own lines and therefore the success. I do not know which Minister was responsible for taking this decision, but whoever he was,—my honourable friend on my right informs me that the Honourable the Leader of the House was responsible for this decision,—if he be the author of that decision I think he had a clear idea of our requirements and therefore gave the assistant registrar for Sind a perfectly free hand in Sind; and was given all the powers of the registrar except the registration, and disaffiliation of Societies. Now, Sir, having that power of taking the initiative, the Sind assistant registrar has certainly moulded the societies on the right lines, and to-day the progress of co-operation in the province of Sind is praised in all quarters. Now, Sir, permit me to inform you that the subject of the appointment of a deputy registrar has been discussed very carefully in Sind. If an appointment of that nature is created, it should, in all fairness go to Sind, which is so far away from Sind and needs the supervision of an officer, possessing most of the powers of the registrar. So popular has the movement become in Sind that almost every work in Sind is started with the aid of the co-operative societies in Sind. Recently the honourable member, Mr. Dow, the Revenue Commissioner for the Lloyd Barrage, thought of starting the rectangulation of the present revenue survey number; and with a foresight, which is a peculiar quality in him, he started the rectangulation work through the co-operative movement and the assistant registrar. Personally I do not like the rectangulation of the survey numbers in Sind, as that would ultimately end in what is known, in this House, as the "consolidation of small holdings." This consolidation, I am afraid, is coming on Sind; but I mention this fact merely to show that the honourable member, Mr. Dow, has been enabled to begin such a controversial work in Sind solely because of the co-operative movement in Sind; and we see to-day that it has begun without criticism or comment, and with the consent of the people concerned.

[Mr. Noor Mahomed]

That speaks volumes for the popularity of the co-operative movement in Sind.

Sir, with the increased number of credi' societies, banks and zamindari banks, time has come when Sind should have an officer of the grade of deputy registrar. The Co-operative Institute of Sind has already written to Government through the Registrar, that the movement in Sind has already reached such proportions, that a deputy registrar for Sind is a great necessity. That necessity is bound to be still greater when one thinks of the co-operative work that is almost at once to be created owing to the construction of the Sukkur Barrage. I have already said that the co-operative movement in Sind has succeeded in such a remarkable degree, because it is controlled and guided by an assistant registrar stationed in Sind itself. If the province is given a deputy registrar, I am sure it will do much better than ever before. As regards the Presidency proper, I agree with all that Rao Bahadur Kale has urged. Presidency needs more auditors and not a deputy registrar. The demand of a deputy registrar for Sind is so universal that I hope the Honourable Minister will be pleased to accede to what we have urged.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Mr. President, I understand that this cut is moved only for a statement from me whether Government was prepared to abolish the post, for the present at any rate, of the deputy registrar and to have auditors and sub-auditors in the place of that post, and whether they are prepared to style the assistant registrar in Sind as a deputy registrar. I do admit that in the Finance Committee at the first meeting I stated to the members of the committee that though this amount has been put down for a deputy registrar and his establishment and other posts,the first thing which I would do would be to appoint auditors and sub-auditors. I do not for a moment admit that there is no necessity for the post of a deputy registrar. From the comprehensive note given in the Blue Book the House will see that the number of societies has increased 150 per cent. from the year 1919, but I do accede to the wishes of my honourable friends on every side that there shall not be a deputy registrar for the present. I shall however meet the wishes of the House to appoint auditors and sub-auditors. This will, I suppose, satisfy my honourable friend.

As regards the suggestion thrown out by honourable members from Sind, I am very glad to hear that Khan Bahadur Azimkhan is doing excellent work there. My honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed also gave very great compliment to the honourable member Mr. Dow. I may tell the honourable members from Sind that Khan Bahadur Azimkhan will shortly be converted into a deputy registrar. Of course, for the present he is exercising almost all the powers of the registrar as admitted by the honourable members from Sind. There are only three powers reserved to the registrar, namely, the power to register societies, the power to disaffiliate societies and the power to amend or alter rules and bye-laws.

An Honourable MEMBER: Will it raise his status ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: It will certainly raise his status, and Government will be very glad to appoint Khan Bahadur Azimkhan to be the deputy registrar for Sind.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I should like to understand from the Honourable Minister one thing. I have before me item (60) which is specifically for the creation of a deputy registrar and his establishment, and the Honourable Minister states that he would not appoint the deputy registrar, but that he would utilise the money for the appointment of auditors and sub-auditors. How would that be consistent with the demand made, which if sanctioned cannot possibly be a sanction for some other purpose?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: I submit, Sir, that there is a cut in the name of the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kalé, in which he specifically wishes that the sum of Rs. 7,700 should be deleted. So, in order that that cut need not be discussed, I said that I would accept this cut of Rs. 7,700 and that amount would be utilised for the purpose of appointing auditors and sub-auditors.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Where is the cut of Rs. 7,700 proposed?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: No. 83. So I give an assurance to this House, which assurance I also gave in the Finance Committee and I repeat it here in this House, that if this amount is sanctioned, the amount of Rs. 7,700 will not be spent for the post of deputy registrar but that amount will be utilised for appointing auditors and sub-auditors.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO: I wish to withdraw my motion.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I do not know whether that will be technically right. The Honourable the Finance Member may enlighten us on that.....

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: The honourable member Mr. Khuhro is asking for leave to withdraw his motion. The leave may be allowed and then I shall formally move my motion and, in view of the assurance that has been given by the Honourable Minister, I shall withdraw it.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I do not know whether I should put the question to withdraw to the House until the effect of it is made perfectly and technically clear to this House. If he withdraws, the result would defeat his real object. I should like the Honourable the Finance Member to explain the situation.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: Before the Honourable the Finance Member gets up, I should like to say a few words. As I understand the Honourable Minister and his second explanation, the amount of Rs. 7,700 no doubt is the amount specifically laid down for the post of deputy registrar. What I suggest is that if he is in need of money, really speaking it will be necessary for auditors and sub-auditors, etc. This amount may not be used for the deputy registrar. The House may give him the amount for the auditors and sub-auditors and not for the deputy registrar on the assurance given by him that he will not appoint a deputy registrar and that he will not spend this amount over such a post. I shall then be in a position to consider whether I should withdraw my motion.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I would not confuse the House with so many hypotheses. I wonder if the Honourable Minister is agreeable to accept the motion of the honourable member from Larkana if his motion was understood by the Honourable Minister to be a motion for the omission of the post of Deputy Registrar. Is the Honourable Minister willing to accept the motion in that sense ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : The honourable member Mr. Khuhro withdraws it and the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale moves his motion to omit that special item of Rs. 7,700.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : The honourable member Mr. Khuhro proposes a cut of Rs. 14,382. The honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale proposes a cut of Rs. 7,700. His motion comes after the honourable member Mr. Khuhro's motion.....

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : May I submit, Sir, that the whole item Rs. 14,382 consists of a deputy registrar and an assistant registrar and their staff, etc. Out of this whole sum, the sum of Rs. 7,700 is the pay of the deputy registrar. The House objects to the appointment of a deputy registrar but they give us a free hand, even out of Rs. 7,700, to appoint auditors and sub-auditors, etc. We may be able to find out funds for auditors and sub-auditors separately. So they merely want an assurance from me that even if the whole grant is made (that is how I understand it), Rs. 7,700 will not be spent on the salary of deputy registrar only. The balance of Rs. 14,000 is already shown as to be utilised for assistant registrar and additional clerks, etc. Rs. 7,700 is the specific pay of the deputy registrar. The House wants that this amount of Rs. 7,700 should not be spent for that salary of Deputy Registrar but that it should be utilised for appointing auditors and sub-auditors and to that wish I accede. The whole item therefore will have to be sanctioned by the House and I shall give an assurance that I shall utilise Rs. 7,700 not for the salary of deputy registrar but for auditors, etc. There is no cut that they want. They want to sanction the whole sum but they want that Rs. 7,700 should be utilised for auditors and sub-auditors and not for the salary of the deputy registrar. That is the only thing which they want.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : I think, Sir, that although the intentions of the Honourable Minister of appointing auditors and sub-auditors out of Rs. 7,700 that will be saved are very good intentions, still I am afraid those intentions cannot be taken advantage of because these posts of auditors and sub-auditors will be new appointments and this House must sanction them. I do not think that special appointments can be made by the Honourable Minister.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, the point of order that you have raised yourself is very correct. The position now is that the honourable member Mr. Khuhro has moved a specific cut with regard to a particular item. That particular item consists of a deputy registrar and other establishment, etc., the whole costing about Rs. 14,000. The rest of the establishment is required and is desired by the House. What they want is that the deputy registrar should not be appointed, to which course the Honourable Minister is agreeable.

Further, it has been suggested that the sum that will be saved by the non-appointment of the deputy registrar may be used for appointing certain auditors. That I think is not quite in order, as you, Sir, pointed out and the Honourable Minister, if later on he wants that sum for the appointment of auditors, as no doubt he will, will come before the Council with a supplementary demand. Your procedure would be perfectly in order if the honourable member Mr. Khuhro withdraws his proposition, namely, that the total sum be reduced by so much money; and when the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale's motion comes on—it is No. 83, relating only to the Deputy Registrar and asks for a reduction of Rs. 7,700—the Honourable Minister will accept it, so that there will be a reduction in the total demand of Rs. 7,700, but on the understanding—which of course is only an understanding—on the understanding just now that the Honourable Minister will get a supplementary grant later on for the additional auditors. That, Sir, I think will be a procedure that will be perfectly in order, and that will, I think, carry out what you desire. You are perfectly justified in saying that Government is not entitled to use for other purposes an amount of money which may be sanctioned for a particular purpose.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I hope the whole situation is clear to honourable members.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO: Sir, I am thankful to the Honourable Minister for acceding to my request, and in view of that I withdraw my motion.

Question put and leave granted.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, I move.

"That the total demand should be reduced by Rs. 7,700, being the provision made for the Deputy Registrar."

I need not make any speech, because the matter has already been discussed.

Question proposed.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Sir, I accept this motion. Of course as the Honourable the Leader of the House told the House, I shall have to come to the House for a supplementary grant for the pay of the auditors later on.

Question put and caried.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 26,30,300, under 34, Agriculture.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I make a demand for a grant of Rs. 27,70,000 under 33-Public Health (Transferred).

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I make a demand for a grant of Rs. 49,05,000 under 32-Medical .

Quetion proposed.

Mr. S. T. KAMBLI (Dharwar Ditrict) : Sir, I beg to move :

" Omit item No. 42 (page 266 of the Blue Book)—Improvements in the B. J. Medical School, Poona, in order to obtain better results in the L. C. P. S. examinations."

In moving this motion, I have in mind the question of the proposed appointment of a part-time lecturer in Midwifery and Gynæcology on a salary of Rs. 400 per mensem at the B. J. Medical School, Poona. In this connection I desire to bring to the notice of the House the state of things that prevails in the other sister institutions in this presidency. The other sister institutions in this presidency spend far less money in teaching these subjects than is proposed to be spent in the Poona Medical School. I am told that in the Ahmedabad Medical School an honorarium of Rs. 50 a month is paid to an Assistant Surgeon for teaching this subject, that an honorarium of Rs. 250 a month is paid at the Hyderabad Medical school and at the Grant Medical College an Associate Professor is paid Rs. 300 a month for a similar purpose. I do not see why Rs. 400 a month should be paid to the lecturer who is going to be appointed at the medical school, Poona. I am emphatically of opinion that the present staff at Poona can well be trusted to do this work without any further expenditure.

I have no objection to the non-recurring grant, but I object to the recurring grant which shall have to be incurred in case a new professor or lecturer is to be appointed to teach these subjects. With these words, I beg to move my motion.

Question proposed.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, in this item No. 42, on page 266 of the Blue Book, there are two sub-items. One is for hygienic equipment, Rs. 2,390, and the other refers to the salary of the lecturer in midwifery and gynæcology required at the B. J. Medical School, Poona. It was suggested that the post has to be created at the B. J. Medical School, Poona, because there was great want of a lecturer in that subject. Subsequently, the Civil Surgeon of Poona, who is the Superintendent of the school, has agreed to lecture in midwifery and gynæcology, and consequently the amount of Rs. 4,400 I am prepared to omit. But as regards the other amount. the non-recurring charge of Rs. 2,390 which is required for hygienic equipment at the various medical schools in the presidency, it cannot be accepted, and I trust that the honourable member will modify his motion to that extent. I am prepared to accept a reduction to the extent of Rs. 4,400, so that only the non-recurring amount of Rs. 2,390 will be left.

Rao Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI : Sir, I am willing to modify the motion as suggested by the Honourable Minister of Education. I wish to amend it thus :

"Reduce item No. 42 by Rs. 4,400."

And I beg leave to so amend my motion.

Question put and leave granted.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The motion now amended reads : "Reduce item No. 42 by Rs. 4,400."

Question put and carried.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind) : Sir, I beg to move :

Omit item No. 56 (compensation to medical officers for losses entailed by the new hospital fee rules).

Sir, this is a matter in which the Honourable Minister must accept the cut. Three years ago I brought in a motion that fees should not be charged to patients treated in hospitals. A committee was appointed, and according to the recommendations of that committee the fees were considerably reduced and modified. This is a special item to give compensation to those doctors who have been affected by the new rules. I cannot understand why compensation should be given to them ; they draw pay from Government, and when they go out of the hospital they are paid their fees, and there is no reason why Government should compensate them as if there is any hardship caused by the new rules. I hope the Honourable Minister will see his way to accept this.

Question proposed.

The Honourable DEWAN BAHADUR HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, after this item was put into the budget, the question came up before Government, and they have decided not to give compensation on that basis. Consequently, I am prepared to accept the omission of this item on that ground.

Question put and carried.

Dr. M. D. GILDER (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I beg to move :

That the total demand of Rs. 53,92,000 be reduced by a sum of Rs. 10,000.

Sir, at this time of the year when budgets are discussed in all the legislatures in India, the Medical side of the budget was being discussed in the Assembly the other day, and one of the members of the Assembly, Col. Gidney, who is himself a retired member of the Indian Medical Services, is reported to have thus criticised this department where he said :

"Colour prejudice prevailed. Money was wasted by employing high British officers whereas trained Indians and Anglo-Indians with higher medical efficiency could be found at smaller remuneration.....Untrained British officers were given better salaries and pensions and enjoyed liberal leave rules. I. M. D. officers were regarded as inferior by those who on account of mere colour qualification commanded better salaries."

Sir, this is the statement of Col. Gidney in the Assembly. The policy of the Indian Medical Service, which is the service to which posts of experts and officers who control the Department are attached, has been altogether to exclude Indians from having anything to do with the higher posts in the department. When the Islington Commission was in India, the Medical officers of the Indian Medical Service belonging to the city of Bombay put in a statement before that Commission, in the course of which they stated :

"We submit that in deciding what appointments should be allocated to members of the indigenous profession care should be exercised that they should in no way be those which might ultimately be regarded as stepping stones to higher appointments. If this precaution be not taken, it will be found in a few years that when senior officers are going on leave or retiring, the (Bombay Medical) Union will bring forward the claims of its protègès for these appointments."

There you have, Sir, the policy of the service clearly stated—that the indigenous medical profession consisting of Indians, sons of the soil, should be given not only no higher appointments but no appointments which would ultimately lead to higher appointments. The indigenous profession was to be hewers of wood and drawers of water : beyond that they need not look for anything. And this is the policy which still prevails in this department. The results of this policy have ultimately come on the heads of the Indian Medical Service itself. Sir, failing to get even appointments which would lead to higher appointments, our young men began to go to Europe to get their medical degrees and their medical training in the country from which the members of the I.M.S. come and came back with higher qualifications, with the result to-day that Bombay City has become very unpopular with the I.M.S. It is difficult to find officers of the I.M.S. who are willing to serve in Bombay City, for the simple reason that the lucrative private practice which they looked upon as their preserve and which was really the reason why they wanted to exclude the indigenous medical profession from higher appointments, has been completely lost to them. Then came the Lee Commission, and when they found that they could not resist the claims of the indigenous profession they brought in the question of attendance on European servants of Government. And the Lee Commission introduced the very bad principle of dichotomy, distinction between European and Indian members of the service. Sir, we had two days' discussion on this matter in this honourable House in the year 1926 when the honourable member for Bombay, South, Mr. Nariman, moved a token cut on this demand on the subject. What has been the result of that discussion ? A question was asked of the Honourable Minister in the Poona session of the Council, and all that he was able to state was that the Government of India was informed that a token cut of one rupee was proposed in this House in order to draw attention to this anomaly. He was not able to state whether the Government of India ever replied to him and no further action has been taken by the Bombay Government in the matter. We were told that the consideration of this distinction between the European and Indian members of the service is in the hands of the Secretary of State, but at that time we were not told whether the Honourable Minister agrees with the views which had been then expressed by the Government of Bombay. Now, Sir, we shall see how this distinction between the Europeans and Indians works out. A year ago the post of Professor for Midwifery in the Grant Medical College fell temporarily vacant, and let us see how that post was filled up. I put a question to the Honourable Minister about the qualifications of the man selected, in the Poona session of the Council, and I was given the reply that that gentleman holds the diplomas of M.R.C.S. and L.R.C.P. These are the lowest diplomas granted by the Royal Colleges in England. I also asked as to what special study he has made on the subject, and I was told that the man seems to have made no special study of the subject. That is the way in which things go on. This is all due to the distinction between the European and Indian members of the service.

This is not the first time that similar charges have been brought against the Medical Department. The first Chirurgeon General—not of the British Government but of the East India Company was appointed in 1612.

In the year 1615 this was written about him :

"Mr. Woodall's great abuses in the chirurgeon's chest, putting diverse boxes of one sample, whereas we writeth in their superscription to be diverse; drugs wrotten, unguents made of kitchen stuff. Boys that have no skill, thrust into the place of chirurgeons. He is to be accounted guilty of the death of so many men as perished through his fault."

Sir, this was written in 1615 and now we are in 1928. To-day also we find we have boys without experience thrust into the place of responsible surgeons in the same way as was done in 1615 ; and may we not hold the Surgeon General and the Honourable Minister's Department responsible for the suffering and death of the men !

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Women.

Dr. M. D. GILDER : Yes, Sir, in this case women.

Again at the same hospital on another occasion another European I.M.S. Officer was appointed in the Midwifery Department and what were his qualifications ? The Honourable Minister says that he was an M.B.B.S. (Lond.) and had taken a post-graduate course in Gynoccology somewhere in Europe. The Honourable Minister was not able to say definitely, where and how long. In what way is he superior to the student who has taken a post-graduate course in the Motlibai Hospital ?

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER : May I know the names of officers to whom the honourable member is referring ?

Dr. M. D. GILDER : The M.R.C.S. L.R.C.P. gentleman is Major Plumptre and the other is Major Spackman.

Another thing which the I.M.S. Officers did when they were forced to leave some of the posts was to appoint in their place their own nominee without calling for applications—nominees who are Indians of course and whom they recommended for high rates of pay and who still carry out their original policy. What, Sir, have we gained by such a policy ? Nothing but a substitution of a brown for a white bureaucracy.

[Dr. M. D. Gilder]

The other services in this Department are, Sir, the Civil Assistant Surgeon, Military Assistant Surgeon and Sub-Assistant Surgeon. The Civil Assistant Surgeons are University graduates and the Military Assistant Surgeons and Sub-Assistant Surgeons have a lower qualification. These are educated at Government expense for four years and are taken in Government. The Military Assistant Surgeon and the Sub-Assistant Surgeon have been made to appear recently for the L.C.P.S. Examination of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and I will just tell the House what the difference between the Civil and Military Assistant Surgeons is in the words of Sir Pardy Lukis. He says :

"With regard to the qualification of the Civil and Military Assistant Surgeon, they were not comparable. The Civil Assistant Surgeon was a University student, examined by the University and he obtained a University degree of the L.M. & S., both of which were registrable qualifications. The Military Assistant Surgeon under the present arrangement which he hope would be altered, was trained by Government for certain specific purposes. He had a shorter course, was examined by the Teacher who trained him and was given a college certificate, which was not a registrable qualification. No certificate given by a teaching body would be recognised in England. He did not agree that the examinations of the Civil and Military Assistant Surgeons differed only in name or that it was correct to say that the same teacher examined in both cases.....There was a difference in the course.....both took up the same subjects but the Military Assistant Surgeon dealt with them in a much more elementary way in a shorter course, which was one year less than the full five years' curriculum. There was no insistence on the Military Assistant Surgeon having a certificate of general education which would allow him to be registered in England as a Medical Student, whereas the Civil Assistant Surgeon had to have such a certificate."

So much has been said about the training of these persons. Now coming to the question of prospects, what do we find ? To-day you will find in the civil list there is a cadre of 63 Civil Assistant Surgeons, 9 such officers are in temporary posts and there are 3 women assistant surgeons, making a total of 75. Out of these 75, only 17 men are drawing more than Rs. 500 per month. In the Military Assistant Surgeons' cadre there are 26 posts, out of which as many as 23 men are drawing a pay of more than Rs. 500. These are the prospects. If Colonel Gidney complains that there is a difference between Europeans and Anglo-Indians kept in the department, how much greater, more bitter, and more heartrending must be the complaint of the Indians ?

Coming to the appointments of nurses in hospital, the same state of affairs prevails. I asked a question in this Council to the Honourable the Minister enquiring how many Indian nurses are in the administrative grade, and he gave us statistics. Those statistics work out at this. In the presidency hospitals, excluding the Cama and the Allbless hospitals, there are 46 nurses in this grade, out of which 42 are European and Anglo-Indian nurses and only 4 are Indians. Sir, we pay a lot of money to the Nursing Associations in various hospitals, and still we find this difference in service.

Then, Sir, see what this department does from the point of view of the orders that it places. I have not got the statistics of the recent date. The most recent report of the medical department that I could get was of 1923-25 triennial report. In that, Sir, it is stated that Rs. 6,90,000 worth of medicines are bought in Europe and only Rs. 16,000 worth of medicines are bought in India. There are plenty of Indian firms that are now manufacturing medicines in India of the necessary strength and in accordance with the requirements of the British pharmacœpal standard, and yet so many orders go to Europe, in addition to the orders for instruments and other things. Then, Sir, there are orders for cots for mental patients and cots for maternity hospitals. May I ask the Honourable Minister,—he has, I believe the experience of a maternity hospital in Ahmedabad,—where he got the cots for that hospital from, and if he got them from this country itself, why is he getting the cots, for Government hospitals from foreign countries costing Rs. 50 each plus freight, etc.? I hope I shall not be considered to be too personal if I ask how many honourable members of this Council on this side of the House are sleeping on cots worth Rs. 50 and more ? (An Honourable Member : Cots for mental hospitals.) And mental hospitals do not require cots with good finish and delicate springs. They require strong and sturdy cots, and strong and sturdy cots are made in India. At the King Edward Memorial Hospital we have not thought fit to order more than 6 cots from other places.

Now, Sir, I am touching another difference that is being kept in this department, namely, the difference in the treatment of patients of different nationalities. I trust, Sir, that I shall not be misunderstood. I have not the least objection, I cannot be a party to object, to the amount that is being spent for the saving of life and for the relief of suffering in whatever community it may be. When I draw attention to this subject, I would only repeat the words of the honourable member for Thar Parkar which he made during the discussion on roads, namely "sub bhai kom ek ankhse dekho.".....(that is, look upon all brothers with the same eye ; don't look differently in the case of different people ; treat all equally). Sir, at the St. George's Hospital you will find the total expenses come to Rs. 7,19,000 for the year for which this report gives the statistics, that is, 1925. Out of that, Rs. 70,000 was for repairs. We deduct that. Out of the amount, Rs. 1,25,000 are collected by contributions, most probably they are the fees from the nursing home part of the hospital. That leaves a balance of Rs. 5,24,000. At the G. T. Hospital in the same year the amount spent was Rs. 4,41,000. Out of this, Rs. 2,39,000 was for building operations. That gives you a remainder of Rs. 2,02,000. Now, look at the number of patients treated. The total number of patients treated for the Rs. 5,24,000 at the St. George's Hospital was 5,443. The total number of patients treated at the G. T. Hospital for Rs. 2,02,000 was 17,708. So, for 17,000 patients you spend a sum of Rs. 2 lakhs, while for 5,000 patients you spend a sum of Rs. 5,24,000, in addition to the Rs. 1,25,000 which comes from their own contributions. I have given you the total number of patients. It may be said that I am not fair to the institutions, because the great majority of patients treated at the G. T. Hospital were out-patients. That is perfectly true. But the daily average of inpatients in the two hospitals for the year I am talking of was 147·7 in both. The number of inpatients were the same in the two hospitals. Then, compare the total number of deaths in the two hospitals. I am only putting this before you to show where the worst cases were. There were 155 deaths in the St. George's Hospital, and there were 634 deaths at the G.T. Hospital, thus showing that the cases treated in the G.T. Hospital were much more serious. Both the number of patients treated and the seriousness of their complaints were far larger in the case of the G.T. Hospital, and yet the G.T. Hospital gets only Rs. 2,02,000 and the St. George's Hospital spent Rs. 6,49,000! Once again I wish to emphasize that I am not saying this with a view to diminishing the comforts or the expenses on any sick people. I am only putting this forward with a view to advancing the claims of Indian patients to be treated in a similar manner.

Then, Sir, I would like to have information as to how admissions are regulated in the St. George's Hospital. We find there not only Europeans; we find there Anglo-Indians; we find there Indian Christians; we find there Arabs; we find there Iraquis; we find there Japanese; and we find there Chinese. And if so much money is spent on these people, I do not see why the Honourable Minister should not spend a similar amount of money on our own helpless people.

Then, Sir, look at the staffs that the two hospitals have. There is a resident surgeon—an I.M.S. officer—in the St. George's Hospital and five officers of the Indian Medical Department. At the Goculdas Tejpal Hospital there is one officer of the I.M.D. and four to six sub-assistant surgeons. Then, Sir, the state of the hospitals from the point of view of medical education is congested. The G.T. has been thrown open for teaching purposes. When may we expect St George's Hospital to be thrown open for medical education? Is there any reason why the St. George's Hospital should not be thrown open for the purpose?

Leaving hospitals in the presidency, let us come to the Poona hospital. One thing has been revealed in that cut which the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kambli moved. That was brought to my notice as a member of the Council of the College of Physicians and Surgeons when the inspecting committee reported that the superintendent of that school (Poona Medical School) does no teaching work at all, that he is not in contact with the students at all. I am very glad to say that that has now been remedied. Sir, another thing that I would put here is that it has come to my notice that both in Poona and Ahmedabad hospitals there are certain wards which are closed to medical students. I will not specify them any further. But these are teaching institutions, and I do not see any reason why these wards should be closed to students.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: May I ask if there is any racial ward?

Dr. M. D. GILDER: There are some wards reserved for certain communities. Once again coming back to some of the hospitals in the presidency town, let us look at their resident staff. Sir, if any honourable member of this House has the misfortune to meet with a motor accident and be run over, he would be taken to one of these hospitals. And who, do you think, would give him first aid? Either a military assistant surgeon or a sub-assistant surgeon. May I ask if we are in Bombay city or in a rural area ? We all know how much depends upon the aid that is given immediately after the accident, that the wounds may get septic, various troubles may ultimately follow and may cause danger to life and limb. And in Bombay city it is the military assistant surgeon or the sub-assistant surgeon who first attends to the casualty ; and these sub-assistant surgeons are paid amounts which I have got out from the Honourable Minister in one of the questions I put in this Council, namely, amounts from 100 to 210 at the Goculdas and from 140 to 180 at the Cowasji Jehangir Ophthalmic Hospital. Accidents will be first attended to by sub-assistant surgeons in the city of Bombay ! Just imagine that. And these sub-assistant surgeons are paid the amounts I have just stated. May I suggest to the Honourable Minister that he should make such arrangements as are made in any of the hospitals in Europe where fully qualified medical men are available on comparatively low salaries provided they are not taken into permanent Government service at the moment, just because these men want to have the experience that these posts give ? When I was a House Surgeon and House Physician in a London hospital, I attended on these casualties myself ; and yet when I first qualified in this country, I was not thought fit to attend on them.

Now, let us come to the mental hospital. I won't touch the subject of cots. But just look at the staff of the mental hospitals. There are 300 patients at Nowpada mental hospital on an average and 600 at Yeravda. What is the staff at Nowpada ? The Superintendent and a sub-assistant surgeon to look after 300 patients. At Yeravda, there are a superintendent, an assistant surgeon and two sub-assistant surgeons to look after 600 patients. Now, look at what are called minor mental hospitals at Ratnagiri and other places. There the number of patients is about 150 to 200, and the Civil Surgeon gets an allowance, I think, of Rs. 150 for just looking in for a little while and the permanent men in charge are two sub-assistant surgeons who have to look after 200 mental patients. Can we say that our mental patients are properly looked after ? Then look at what happens. When we wanted a superintendent for Nowpada, we had to go to the Isle of Man to fetch him ! We have got the patients, we have got the material, we have got the men who would like to have experience of treating mental diseases and for that experience they would accept very little remuneration, and yet nothing is being done. Neither are our patients well looked after nor are our medical men given any chance to study mental diseases. Is not this a further instance of the same policy to which I drew attention at the beginning of my speech when I referred to the statement by the Indian Medical Service officers in Bombay put before the Islington Commission?

Now, let me turn to another aspect of the difference kept in the medical department. It is a difference of sex. We have got medical students, both men and women. They both want the experience that is to be gained by post-graduate work in the medical colleges in the posts of house physicians and house surgeons. When I asked the Honourable Minister a question in this session of the Council whether it is fair that lady students should not be allowed to have residential posts even in the midwifery hospital, the answer was that there is no accommodation. Just imagine the Honourable Minister, with all the powers and prestige of the Government of Bombay behind him, cannot find one or two rooms anywhere near the hospital for accommodating these lady students and giving them the training that they so sorely need!

Sir, we are passing through a transitional stage. We shall soon have a good many new hospitals opened under the Sir Leslie Wilson Hospital Fund and our hospital expenditure will go up enormously. It therefore behoves the Honourable Minister to be careful when he creates new posts. Surgeon-General Hooton stated before the Lee Commission that the post of superintendent of the Goculdas Tejpal Hospital, after the retirement of the then incumbent, would be thrown open to the indigenous medical profession. That post now is vacant, and I trust that the Honourable Minister will see his way to advertise and get the best man possible at the lowest salary possible because this will be a post similar to those which we shall have to create in connection with our other hospitals. I have been on the staff of that hospital and I can say from experience that apart from new building operations the work of the surgeon superintendent does not require more than an hour or an hour and a half. I trust therefore that the Honourable Minister will be careful in regulating the matter on that basis. With these words, I propose the cut of Rs. 10,000 and trust the House will accept it.

Question proposed.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI (Bijapur District): Sir, I rise to support this cut for raising a general discussion, as my honourable friend Dr. Gilder has dealt with the need of medical help of urban area. As a part of the mutual arrangement between Dr. Gilder and myself, I have to bring to the notice of the House the grievances, not of big cities like Bombay but, of rural areas in so far as medical arrangements are concerned.

Now, Sir, if we give only a little thought to the medical examinations held in India, what do we find? We do not find any material changes. Perhaps Government are merely interested in changing the names of the various degrees. For instance, the degree examination now called the M.B.B.S. was formerly called the L.M. & S. examination.

This House once protested against the reservation of many Indian Medical Service posts for Europeans. It is quite true that the Lee Commission has done a great injustice in this matter. Of course, that is not within the province of the Bombay Government and therefore I leave it aside.

As regards district medical officers, everything from top to bottom is not in proper order Although the district civil surgeons are highly paid men when sent to the district places are not at all competent and are not influential enough in those areas, simply because their methods are not quite up to date and they themselves are not successful either in surgery or in administering medicine and their other methods also are not quite satisfactory. For instance, I only quote one case. In a civil dispensary like that at Bijapur, poor persons are not charged any fee but only the rich are charged a nominal fee. What do we get from these rich persons as a monthly fee? About Rs. 4. Government incur this odium simply for the sake of Rs. 4 only. On my suggestion to the Civil Surgeon as to why the rich and the poor should not be treated free, he admitted that the present arrangement of charging fees to the rich is in existence and when the rules are changed that is possible.

As the civil surgeons posted to district places are high-salaried men, Government should be careful in future to see that only proper persons are sent to district places. Those who may be influential in a city like Bombay may not perhaps be influential in a small place like Bijapur, Dharwar or Belgaum. From this an inference should not be drawn that I am speaking against the Civil Surgeon of my district. On the contrary, the Civil Surgeon of my district Major Williams is a very good man, very influential, and he can act up to any suggestions that I make, provided they are reasonable.

In the dispensaries in taluka and other places what happens is this. Nothing is knownabout the opening and closing hours of the dispensary. When one visits the dispensary, one does not find any board to show that the opening hours are so and so and the closing hours are so and so. According to medical rules, these doctors are allowed to visit their private patients, and in this way when they are found absent and when anybody questions them as to why they were not present in the hospital, they simply say that they are allowed by the medical rules to visit their private patients, and that is all. In taluka places there are a good many disorders, and the sub-assistant surgeons appointed in some of the places are highly unpopular. They never care for the requirements of the patients visiting the hospital, and if I can give the House some instances, I think it would not be out of place. For instance, in Bijapur district there is a dispensary at Ilkal. It is a town of considerable importance on account of its handloom weaving industry; it is famous for its saris. Although the doctor there, Mr. Kanvekar, is a qualified sub-assistant surgeon, still the number of patients in the dispensary is not as high as the number of patients treated by private doctors. These doctors are not popular with the people; they do not care for the patients, and for this reason only they are not popular. I think even the superior officers do not care to give them private instructions to become popular with the people.

As regards nurses and midwives, there is not an adequate number of nurses and midwives. Only there are some nurses in big towns like Bijapur and Bagalkot. In other hospitals there are no nurses and midwives. Nurses and midwives are very necessary, as all honourable members will admit. Nurses and midwives must be posted to even small hospitals; they should be appointed not only in taluka places, but wherever there are hospitals in villages.

While medical aid is given to such a large extent in cities like Bombay and Poona, the district and taluka places are totally neglected. In many of the villages the people have to come at a distance of 20 to 30 miles to find a doctor. In emergent cases, their fate is doomed, simply because they cannot find immediate medical aid. To remedy this, the Bombay Government have sanctioned a scheme for village aid posts, and there are village aid posts so injudiciously distributed in Bijapur district that even a child will laugh at the distribution. In that district, all the 7 or 8 village aid posts are posted near Bijapur. I think there is no necessity for posting them there, except in the case of Honvad and some other places, which are at a distance of 20 to 25 miles. All these village aid posts are posted in Bijapur district in this way, notwithstanding the fact that a protest was raised by the chairman of the school board. I myself had a talk with the Civil Surgeon about it. Of course, the Civil Surgeon agreed with me privately, but officially he may not agree. A requisition was sent to the Surgeon General recommending several places in the district where these village aid posts can be judiciously distributed. But the Surgeon General—perhaps he wanted to maintain the prestige and dignity of his office—sent a refusal. He totally refused to distribute the village aid posts in the district as suggested by us. Sir, I proposed one village aid post for every taluka, and I gave assurances to the Civil Surgeon that even the cost of taking the furniture (the cupboard, etc., for placing the medicines, etc.) will be borne by the villagers, and yet the Surgeon General lent a deaf ear to this proposal.

As regards the manufacture of medicines and surgical instruments, this is a very important matter. The manufacture of medicines can be undertaken by Indians themselves. There are some firms like Gajjar's, N. Powell & Co., and other firms, and there are persons of European and American qualifications who can manufacture medicines and other surgical instruments, but these people are not able to do anything for want of State aid and also for want of funds. Government will do well to finance these people, or place some practical proposals, or point out some solution. Far from financing and encouraging such people, Government are discouraging surgical instruments manufactured by N. Powell & Co. and some others.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: What about Ayurvedic medicine ?

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI: I am coming to that.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Is the honourable member likely to take much longer time than five minutes ?

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI: Yes, about ten minutes.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I would then ask him to resume his remarks after tea.

In the meanwhile, before adjourning the House for tea, I would like to bring to the notice of the House that there are two committees to be elected by this House after the guillotine is applied; which as honourable members know, comes on to-morrow. I do not know what the order of Government business is going to be on the 14th or the 15th. I hope the Honourable the Leader of the House would make a statement to that effect. As to nominations for election of members to the two committees, the Finance Committee and the Railway Advisory

[The President]

Committee honourable members may submit them by 5 o'clock to-morrow to the Secretary.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : May I say a word in connection with the order in which Government propose to take their business ? On the 14th there is an unfinished supplementary demand which will have to be taken up. These supplementary demands and certain other urgent Government business such as you mention and a resolution by my honourable colleague Mr. Rieu have to be got through in this session, and Government propose that, if the business of Government is not finished on the 14th, they will go on with it on the 15th, and the duration of the session will be extended by one more day, and the 16th and 17th will be left for private business. I hope it will be perhaps to the convenience of the House if, immediately after the supplementary demand on the Sukkur Barrage, which is unfinished, is disposed of, the House goes on at once to the supplementary demand in which they take great interest, namely the demand about the Harvey-Nariman case. I think that will suit the convenience of honourable members as it will suit the convenience of Government ; so that, after we finish with the supplementary demands, we can deal with the smaller items on the 14th and 15th.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Sir, 17th is a Saturday, and I am afraid the time for the transaction of non-official business may be curtailed. Only two days are allotted for non-official business, and as 17th is a Saturday, we may not get the full time.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : On Saturday it will be from 10-30 to 2.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I understand that the point of the honourable member is that if non-official business has to be gone through on Saturday, they will not get a full working day to which they are entitled. That point can be considered tomorrow, and I hope the Honourable the Leader of the House will be agreeable to agree to any suggestions.

After Recess

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Swearing in of new members.

Mr. J. P. Brander then made the prescribed oath of allegiance to His Majesty the King-Emperor and took his seat.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI (Bijapur District) : Sir, I was just talking about the village aid posts in Bijapur district. That scheme is not new to many of the honourable members. Government have sanctioned the scheme, and I have not much to complain as regards my district, because the scheme of imparting medical education to primary teachers has been in practice in Bijapur district and the prathamopacharkas who received first aid training have been working in Bijapur district. But, I think, Sir, that village aid posts should be opened in all the districts of the Bombay Presidency. These village aid posts are wanted particularly in the Kanara district, where there is no railway from one end to the other end. Between Sirsi, Siddapur, Karwar and Bhatkal there is absolutely no railway communication, although there has been a motor communication recently opened. Therefore, people living in Kanara district find it very difficult to go to hospitals which are situated at distances of 30 and 40 miles apart. Therefore, if there is any district in need of such village aid posts or of prathamopacharkas it is the Kanara District. As for my own district of Bijapur, I have already stated that these village aid posts should be judiciously distributed throughout the whole of the district. But as Government are now feeling financial stringency, I would only propose that each taluka in Bijapur should have a village aid post.

As regards mental hospitals I wanted to make a few remarks. No modern methods of treatment is given to mad people in our mental hospitals. There is a medicine called potassium iodide. Whether a man is suffering from madness, or a man is suffering from impure blood or venereal disease, or eye diseases, the same potassium iodide is given. Even for epilepsy the same medicine is administered. Looking at the medical journals of Europe and America, we find that there are a good many modern remedies for madness, and even drugless remedies. But this Government has an orthodox mind and is not trying any of the modern methods for the sake of human beings in this country.

Government are so backward that they have not opened many venereal diseases hospitals and this, Sir, is a very great grievance of this presidency. Many years back when Government wanted to have a venereal diseases hospital, all the missionaries were deadly against it and represented to Government that if such hospitals were opened they would encourage immorality among the people. I think the missionaries were entirely wrong in this respect. If they were right, in America, Germany and England no venereal diseases hospitals would have been allowed to be instituted. I would strongly urge on Government that they should make a beginning in this presidency by opening many venereal diseases hospitals in cities like Bombay, Poona, Ahmedabad, Sholapur and Karachi, etc., etc.

As there are no adequate female doctors, many of the zenana ladies, especially zenana ladies of Mahommedan families, do not go to attend hospitals. That is a great drawback. In Madras, even in a small district like Chittur there are, I think, nearly three or four zenana hospitals. One of them is the Mary Lott Lyles Zenana Hospital in Madanapalle. There, there is a lady doctor from America, Dr. Miss Hart who is a highly qualified doctor. As regards the equipment of her hospital I was simply wonder-struck to see microscopes and blood examining apparatus. I saw her library where she had books on many subjects. These subjects cannot be described in the limited time at my disposal.

Sir, these primary teachers are to be trained by the civil surgeons for knowing prathamopchar. This system is in force in Bijapur District, and I think it should be introduced in each district. I hope Government will sanction more money for this scheme.

Sir, I submit that all the divisions in this presidency have one medical school except the southern division. Government have sanctioned the opening of such a school in the southern division, that is in Belgaum in 1922 but owing to the financial stringency they have not been able to open the school. To this fact the attention of His Excellency the Governor was invited, and he has promised that Government would establish one school in the southern division. Sir, I further want to bring to the notice of this honourable House one ridiculous matter and that is this. There are several doctors in every district of this presidency, who are nothing better than quacks. Those persons who know very little of medicines have been given certificates and thus there are many such persons who pose as doctors. I can give many names to this House, but as I think no purpose would be served by doing so, I do not wish to take the time of this House. There are unqualified doctors in charge of certain hospitals. Sir, these are modern times and it is high time that qualified doctors may be kept. I can here quote one instance. In the Poona Sassoon hospital training is given in the course of L.C.P.S. examination. Those persons who want to get themselves qualified need not go to universities to pass examinations. They are examined by a board of two or three men ; they put them some questions and thus the doctors are turned out of this examination. This examination is something like Prant officers' examining the village officers. Prant officers put two or three questions and when they get their replies they pass them. I am sorry that Government do not introduce some modern methods for the qualified doctors' examination.

I would also bring to the notice of this House that even the cities are not receiving at present the medical aid that they ought to receive. Even His Excellency the Governor, as soon as he came to Bombay, had expressed that the medical aid is badly wanted for this presidency. I will of course admit that some of the cities have been blessed with some medical aid, but the rural area has not yet been given that blessing. In the rural area, what happens is this. The young doctors, as soon as they pass their examination, find that they could not maintain themselves in the villages and other districts and they, therefore, go for practice to big cities. In this way they not only deprive the senior men in the profession of their practice but at the same time they themselves remain unemployed. For this reason these junior doctors, as soon as they pass their examinations, should be given some subsidy to pull on till they get sufficient experience. In this way there is every possiblity of their staying in the rural area.

I would now bring to the notice of this House one sentimental thing, which has been discussed many times on the floor of this House. It is the ayurvedic and unani system. Sir, we have had the misfortune to read the Surgeon General's remarks that the ayurvedic and unani medicines are quite useless and if Government were to establish the ayurvedic and unani schools, they would be encouraging quackery. In this respect I do not blame the Surgeon General, because I know that he is quite ignorant of Indian medicines. I would say that India in bygone times stood on the pinnacle of perfection in the matter of these medicines. If we cast a glance on the medical books about 3,000 years old, it will be found there that the Aryans were known as the greatest men as regards the knowledge of medicines and other medical things. Sir, what are the present-day Englishmen ? I say they are nobody else except Aryans. You will find that fact from the Indian history. The Aryans who were living in Caucasus mountain gradually went to Europe, Asia, Africa, Russia and other parts of the world and there they settled. On account of that fact, these Englishmen are not in touch with our medical books and that is the reason why they are belittling the ayurvedic and unani medicines. I think the Government of Bombay should follow the same example as that followed by the Madras Government. In Madras there is one ayurvedic college which has been attached to the Madras University. I would suggest that the Bombay Government should follow the suit of Madras Government and try to open one ayurvedic college in a convenient place in the Bombay presidency.

Many honourable members on the floor of this House, including my honourable friend, Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad, stated that if people are to be trained in surgery and some other scientific subjects, it would be desirable for Government to open such schools and colleges. I quite admit that people should receive training in these subjects. They have already done so in Madras. In Madras we find that they have not engaged laymen for giving training to others. They have engaged those men who possess highest degrees. When I say that the ayurvedic and unani systems should be introduced, I would also point out that these systems are very economic. What is the expense for a patient who takes ayurvedic medicines ? If he has to spend annas 8 daily for the English medicine, he has only to spend a quarter anna or a half anna for the ayurvedic medicine. Several of these country medicines I personally know, and I can say that they are very effective. There are some ayurvedic medicines which are very effective; for serpent bite I know of one medicine which is very useful. I understand that Government are trying to manufacture medicines similar to which I have stated, in their Parel laboratory, but it is not as successful as the medicine I have taken a note of, from a specialist who has cured many patients from the snake bite during the last 45 years. So, I would again repeat that the ayurvedic medicines are more economic and less costly and more efficient. Government are so very orthodox, Sir, from the point of view of medical aid that they only consider the allopathic treatment. I will not condemn this allopathic treatment. But along with that, Government should try several other modern remedies which are tried in America, Germany and elsewhere. And I hear that there is one mesmeric hospital in Calcutta. I cannot say whether it is true or not, but I am told that there is one mesmeric hospital there. Even Dr. Kunhe, who is a drugless healer and whose baths are well-known all over the world, says such psychic hospitals are necessary for curing diseases. Only the point is that he regrets very much that only 40 per cent. of the patients are amenable to the hypnotic or mesmeric influence, and for at least such people it is desirable to open such psychic hospitals (mesmeric and hypnotic hospitals), just as they have done in America and in England. If Government will institute at least one travelling dispensary in every district they will relieve the distress of rural areas to a great extent. It would be more economical to do so.

I think, Sir, I have dealt with all the subjects that I had to deal, and I earnestly wish that henceforward Government will use all these modern methods and introduce in Bombay presidency those advanced methods which are the boons of Germany and America, and will give proper medical aid to the villagers who are in bad need of medicines. Sir, since two or three years I think more medical aid is given to the cities like Bombay and Poona, but Government have absolutely done nothing for the districts in the mofussil, and I hope in future Government will extend their helping hand to these suffering villagers. With these renarks I support the motion.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT (Surat City) : Sir, I wish to offer a few observations on the motion moved by my honourable colleague Dr. Gilder. This is a cut which has been moved for raising a debate in the House and bringing to the notice of the Honourable Minister certain points which deserve to be attended to carefully as far as his future policy is concerned. I entirely agree with what has been quoted by my honourable friend Dr. Gilder from the speech of Colonel Gidney regarding the disabilities of medical men particularly on account of colour, and I would endorse every word that has fallen from him in his speech. Therefore, I would not repeat what he said, but just a few points will be touched by me, and thus I believe time of the House will be saved. In this country though there are a number of highly qualified medical men possessing university degrees and diplomas from various universities and Royal Colleges of very high repute ; still the old tradition of appointing Indian Medical Service men to the civil appointments continues. This point has been referred to since the year 1924-25, and every time we are repeating the same argument that it is high time that Indian Medical Service men need not be now put in civil medical appointments because we have got a sufficient number of hands who could adequately deal with the responsibilities of the appointments to which these Indian Medical Service people are posted. But this policy continues and I do not know how long it will continue. In 1926 we read of a certain circular, that a certain number of civil surgeoncies had been reserved for the I.M. S., and we had a huge controversy in this very House. And, if I remember well, the Honourable Minister then promised to make a representation in this connection. I do not know what has been the result of that representation if at all made by him. This was the case in regard to the I.M.S. people ; and further in that circular distinction of colour was made even amongst the I.M.S. men themselves, viz., that a certain number of posts should be reserved for the Indian members of the Indian Medical Service and certain number of posts should be reserved for the European members of the Indian Medical Service. That was a point of which this House made a great grievance, and a reference or a representation was promised. I hope, if the same thing continues, that the Honourable Minister in charge of the department will put before the Government of India and the Secretary of State the views which the honourable members express here, that all along in future the civil medical appointments should be placed in charge of qualified men who do not belong to the Indian Medical Service. Their place is in the military department, not in the civil appointments. Now, with regard to the present system that is going on, in making even civil medical appointments, I think there is plenty of room for retrenchment, plenty of scope for saving money, which could well be utilised in a more useful way as far as medical relief in other directions, i.e., rural area is concerned. The system of appointing medical officers in higher medical posts in civil hospitals in the United Kingdom is the policy of appointing honorary medical officers, and thus create an honorary medical service. For the last few years—seven or eight years—I think the Bombay Government had made a small beginning of making honorary appointments to these responsible posts. But that policy somehow or other is not kept up when new appointments are being made or filled up. In this connection, I would just mention that in the G. T. Hospital an honorary medical man could easily have been appointed. A gentleman, however, has been placed in charge of this hospital who is drawing a very high salary of Rs. 1,000 as we can see from the White Book that is placed in our hands. Now, this post could easily have been filled by an honorary medical man only on a small honorarium of Rs. 150 and, if some extra allowance was to be given for the superintendence work, a further sum of Rs. 150 could have been paid to him. That means we could have got a highly qualified man for Rs. 300 instead of spending Rs. 1,000 regarding this post. When this appointment was made, a big salary of Rs. 1,000 was given to this gentleman, though he is allowed plenty of opportunities for private practice. This could have been done with Rs. 300, as I said before. Several years before this gentleman was appointed on Rs. 1,000 in this hospital, two medical men were appointed in the Grant Medical College to look after not only teaching, but even hospital work, and they were given each Rs. 600 per month. I know these two gentlemen are far, far senior to the gentleman who is occupying the post of the medical superintendent of the G. T. Hospital and who is paid Rs. 1,000; while some time back these two professors—I believe one of them was a teacher of the present medical officer at the G. T. Hospital—received Rs. 600 each only, but because the medical officer in charge of the Goculdas Tejpal Hospital is paid Rs. 1,000, I think the pay of these two gentlemen has also had to be raised from Rs. 600 to Rs. 1,000. Thus by deviating from the policy adopted of appointing honorary medical men to the various responsible posts in these hospitals, we are spending more and more money in these appointments when we can easily effect a good saving. If we refer to the Civil List we find an anomaly. The superintendent of the Goculdas Hospital gets Rs. 1,000. It is easy to guess why he had to be paid Rs. 1,000. We find that the House surgeon in charge of the Goculdas hospital who is supposed to be subordinate to the medical superintendent, is already getting Rs. 900 and it is quite natural therefore the superior officer should get a little higher pay than that of his subordinate. Perhaps this was the reason which weighed with Government in offering him Rs. 1,000.

Then we come to another anomaly in this department as to why these assistant surgeons are so highly paid. If we refer to the Civil List which contains these appointments, we find that the house surgeon who is appointed to this Goculdas hospital is being paid Rs. 900. So far as I know, assistant surgeons in the Bombay Medical Service will never rise so high even if placed in charge of such hospitals, but because this gentleman happens to be a military assistant surgeon, he seems to have been given this high pay. We find the same thing when we turn to pages of the White Book regarding the J. J. hospital. We find that the military assistant surgeon there is being paid Rs. 900, which is altogether out of proportion when we compare the pay of the civil assistant surgeons. When they reach the fag end of their medical service they are entitled only to Rs. 400 or Rs. 500, and nothing more. I have nothing to say against these gentlemen personally. But I say that in future whenever there is an opportunity of appointing new men as assistant surgeons in civil hospitals like the J.J. hospital or the Goculdas Tejpal hospital Government should take into consideration efficient men from the civil branch of the service and they should not go in for military assistant surgeons who have to be paid far more than civil assistant surgeons.

We come across a further anomaly when we glance through the list of professors at the Grant Medical College. There are professors and professors there. One gets Rs. 1,850, another gets Rs. 1,800, a third gets Rs. 1,750, a fourth draws Rs. 1,200, two are paid Rs. 1,000 each, one is in receipt of Rs. 500 and the salary of eight is only Rs. 200. In my opinion all professors should rank the same. One should not get more than the other. Last year or the year before last, I think, one professor was to be appointed on Rs. 500 and it was then that we brought it to the notice of the Honourable Minister that his pay should not be so high as Rs. 500 but that he should be placed on the same footing and paid according to the same scale of pay as the other eight professors drawing Rs. 200. I hope the Honourable Minister will take note of this also. I do not say anything personally against this professor as an individual but when future appointments are to be made, this point may be kept in view.

Now, Sir, there are three classes of medical officers—the Indian Medical Service Officers, the Military Assistant Surgeons and the Military Sub-Assistant Surgeons—who are dumped on to the civil department and which has to bear a much heavier expenditure for a class of service which can be employed on much cheaper terms. This adds to the civil expenditure on this side, and when in the Assembly the military budget is shown, they usually show it at 54 crores ; but if the cost of these medical officers is added to that budget, it will in all probability add a crore more to the military budget. The military budget, therefore, as now presented to the Assembly shows an under-estimate.

My honourable friend Dr. Gilder has referred to the colour bar in teaching and I will not dilate upon it. The J. J. hospital has been for a long time a teaching hospital. The G. T. hospital has been made a teaching hospital recently. I do not see why the European General Hospital should not be thrown open as a teaching hospital also. This colour bar should now disappear.

Then I come to the question of rural medical relief. This is a point which has been altogether neglected by our Government. Only recently a few days ago, when there was a prize distribution gathering at the Grant Medical College, I happened to read the speech which His Excellency the Governor delivered in which he laid great stress on the young medical graduates settling down in rural areas in order to give medical aid to the villagers residing there. In this connection I may mention that in Madras there is an arrangement under which Government give a subsidy to medical graduates settling down in rural areas. If that system is adopted in this presidency, much good will result.

One more point and I have done. My honourable friend Mr. Sardesai referred to the examinations held in Bombay and he said that the L.C.P.S. examination is a ridiculous farce. He in fact compared it with the examination held by a District Magistrate or a Collector of talatis and other subordinates of the Revenue Department. I do not at all agree with him there. I know the L.C.P.S. examination is a pretty stiff examination. My honourable friend Dr. Gilder is one of the examiners and he will bear me out when I say that that examination is not at all a farce but that it is a pretty hard examination. With these words, I resume my seat.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, the honourable mover of this cut has complained of the grievances of the indigenous medical profession, and I would like to just refer to one grievance with regard to the indigenous system of Ayurvedic medicine itself. On page 205 of the White Book we find a large expenditure by way of grants-in-aid to hospitals and dispensaries. In that you find that the grant of Rs. 511 to the Ayurvedic dispensary at Vaduj in the Satara district has been cut out from the budget for the ensuing year. The history of this Ayurvedic dispensary briefly is this. In the first instance we had been drawing the attention of Government to the necessity of encouraging Ayurvedic medicine. The resolution that was passed in the first Council promised that Government would do something in the matter. Then they waited because the Madras Government had appointed a committee and the result was not out and their report was awaited. Their report was out and a college was established and now the report on the working of that College is awaited. So far as Satara is concerned, we have an institution called the Anglo-Ayurvedic Institution in existence for the last thirteen years. It has a course of four years and teaches both the English and the Ayurvedic systems of medicine. It employs medical graduates holding the M.B.B.S. degree and also people well-versed in Ayurved. The institution has been turning out pupils who, after a four years' course, get a fairly good knowledge of English and Ayurvedic systems of medicine,

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

The Satara district local board made a beginning in the way of establishing some three dispensaries in the district, and it is maintaining them in places where there is no other medical assistance whatsoever. There are a few allopathic dispensaries in the district, but the area of the district being vast, it was felt that the rural population would not be able to get any remedy whatever, and for that reason these were established. Now, what happened is that Government used to give grants, and have been giving grants up to now, but for this particular dispensary it has been found necessary to cut off the grant, and the reasons given so far by the Collector, on whose report Governmet have passed a resolution cutting off the grant, are three or four. First of all, there is the recent condemnation of the Ayurvedic system of medicine by the Surgeon General in the triennial Report for 1923-25 on Civil Hospitals and Dispensaries. That is one of the principal reasons. With regard to that, I might say from my personal experience, that when the late Surgeon General, Colonel Hooton came to Satara, as president of the institution I invited him to come and visit the dispensary. He came there, but he had not the courtesy to go and inspect the institution. He said "I do not want to see the classes going on. Because you invited me, I have come." In the course of five or ten minutes, he had some talk with the managers and then went away, because, he said "I have made up my mind ; I have no faith in these Ayurvedic institutions, and it is no good now, at the end of my career, my examining the institution, because I shall not change my mind." I only mention this to show that a man with such pre-conceived views can never be expected to look favourably upon any Ayurvedic institution. Therefore, this report of the Surgeon General should not have been one of the reasons for cutting off the grant. I should say that was the principal reason for the Collector to make his recommendation. Another reason given is that most of these Ayurvedic dispensaries were started when the head of the Ayurvedic school was president of the district local board, no doubt to give employment to some of the men turned out by the school. But is that a grievance ? Supposing there was a school in existence for 15 years, the pupils turned out by that school are employed, because they are known to him.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. An honourable member is reading a newspaper.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : I submit that instead of this being really a reason against the employment of these people, it should be a reason for employing them, because it shows that the people in charge of the Ayurvedic dispensary started by the local board are not half-penny tupenny people or quacks, but people who have received regular training, and I challenge my honourable friends here to see if....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Which ?

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Whoever they may be. The Honourable Minister himself, when he paid a visit to this institution, had read the reports and the remarks in the Visitors' Book, and I only appeal to him—

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

I need not go to any other person at all—to consider whether that institution is not doing some regular work, and if any students who have come from such institutions are therefore simply to be condemned. It is wrong to say that the president of the district local board was the head of the local Ayurvedic school. He is not a medical man at all. The late president no doubt is connected with the governing body ; as I myself am the president of the governing body, he is a member of it. He is not the head, nor has he taken any part in the management, except as a member of the advisory board, and I submit that this is an insinuation to which I must take very strong exception. The third reason given is that the dispensary is of no use to Government servants, who have to keep useful medicines in stock for their own use. There may be Government servants and also others who may be habituated to the use of allopathic drugs. I for instance, would do the same. Those Government servants may be habituated to take allopathic medicines which perhaps they think are more useful. They are quite welcome to do so. On that account, the rural population, the villagers, if they get their usual stock of medicines from this dispensary, should not be deprived of that advantage, simply because this dispensary does not keep these costly medicines, which may be within the reach of very few people indeed. For that reason, to refuse to continue the payment of the grant is not right. Then, Sir, there are the reports of the mamlatdar and the deputy collector. I know that the dispensary is doing good work, and the local board also is of the same opinion. The decision of Government must have been taken upon the reports of its officers. That district local board is a responsible body, and the Honourable Minister for Local Self-government, I think, will be in a position to bear me out when I say that the Satara district local board is one of those boards which has been conducting its affairs without any exception being taken to their management or administration. In spite of the Collector's recommendation, the district local board says that the institution should be kept up. Simply because the revenue officers choose to make a report against the dispensary, the grant is discontinued. Is this encouraging the Ayurvedic system of medicine, or is it directly discouraging it ? What does it mean ? The honourable mover described the state of a dispensary started in the early periods of the East India Company ; is there any comparison between that dispensary and a present-day allopathic dispensary? It will always be the case that when an institution is in its infancy, it will not be up to date ; it could not compete with every thing modern.

Another reason given is that there is no provision for surgery. You cannot expect an Ayurvedic dispensary to equip itself with surgical instruments for operations being performed. I submit that this resolution is a document which cannot be supported by reasoning, which will not appeal to anybody, and I am sure it will not appeal to the Honourable Minister who is in charge of this department. Government itself has not done anything for the institution. It is a medical school carried on by private agency, by funds to which Government does not contribute a single pie ; it depends on public subscriptions and charity. That institution turns out students, and some employment is afforded to them in the way of meeting the needs of the local area. The local board maintains the dispensary, and Government was giving it a small grant. Now, to come down upon that institution and to cut away that small grant, I think, is nothing but a travesty of justice and fairness. I am not here going into the merits or demerits of the Ayurvedic system. The efficacy of the system has been proved time and again. Sir Pardey Lukis, the great authority quoted by the honourable mover, has himself borne ample testimony to the virtues of the Ayurvedic system.

It may be, Sir, that the particular man in charge of the dispensary may have been incompetent ; Government in that case, might have asked the local board to change that particular man. There may be competent and incompetent doctors, just as there are competent and incompetent servants in other departments. Why did not Government give an opportunity to change the man ? This is not the only Ayurvedic dispensary ; there are, I know, two other dispensaries which were started some five years later than this dispensary. They are doing good work. The particular individual in charge of the dispensary may be incompetent. The report of the officer is that there is no great improvement. That is the wording used, that there has been no great improvement in the management of the Ayurvedic dispensary at Vaduj ; I am quoting from the Government Resolution on the subject, by which the grant has been discontinued.

So, I submit, that these reasons are anything but satisfactory. After all, the Resolution itself clearly says " Finally, the report of the Collector of Satara indicates that the management of the local board Ayurvedic dispensary at Vaduj is unsatisfactory." The whole of the condemnation rests upon this statement that it is unsatisfactory. Now, has it been examined in order to find out whether it is unsatisfactory owing to the particular individual in charge of it being incompetent, or whether it is due to the merits of the dispensary itself ? Other dispensaries in that district are working satisfactorily. If there was something wrong with the man in charge, Government might have told the local board about it, and asked them to change the man, and thus given the local board a chance. If in the course of such second experiment or trial it was found that the man was still not up to date, then perhaps it might have been wiser to ask the local board itself to discontinue the dispensary. But if Government discontinue the grant, it will amount to a condemnation of the district local board. When the district local board allows the dispensary to go on, it is not for Government to refuse the grant. This is a document which calls into question the efficiency of the district local board and the Ayurvedic system. I think no further condemnation of Government's policy is required than this document. I hope the Honourable Minister will see his way to remedy the evil.

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER : Sir, I propose to give certain figures of the actual strength of the I.M.S. and of the I.M.D. at present, and I think if my honourable friends Dr. Gilder and Dr. Dixit have those figures put before them, they may perhaps modify their remarks as to the unfair competition of the I.M.S. with the private medical profession....

[Mr. C. W. A. Turner]

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: Will the honourable member speak out?

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER: The actual strength of the I.M.S. at the present day is 43. But under the proposals before the Government of India, which I understand are actually approved (though we have not received the orders), those figures are reduced to 29, which includes 6 leave reserve at the usual percentage. That is as regards the total strength of the I.M.S. Now, in Bombay itself there are at the present moment only four I.M.S. officers, one of whom is Chemical Analyser. I do not think that Dr. Gilder can maintain that in a large city like Bombay it is an unfair proportion. That is so far as the I.M.S. is concerned.

Next as to the I.M.D. I think my honourable friend Dr. Gilder is perhaps unaware that Government have already agreed to reduce the cadre of the I.M.D. from 26 to 12. Of course those officers who are in the I.M.D. already must be allowed to continue till they retire, but in future that department will be restricted to 12 appointments alone. I think perhaps these figures may reassure my honourable friends that Government are quite ready to eliminate unfair competition. At the same time, I must point out to my honourable friend that the Indian Medical Service is not a civil cadre; it is a military cadre part of which is kept on the civil side for a war reserve of the Government of India. It is the cheapest way that Government can maintain their reserve, and if that reserve is not supplied by giving civil appointments the whole strength of the I.M.S. will have to be thrown on the Army estimates.

My honourable friend Dr. Gilder then criticised the action of the Government in making appointments in Bombay. I do not know to which appointments he was referring, but before making these appointments Government have always, as far as possible, advertised. The appointment to which he was referring just now which was filled without inviting applications was the one at the G. T. Hospital. But the present occupant was appointed in a leave vacancy when the late Superintendent went on leave. The Superintendent has now retired and the question of filling up his appointment is under the consideration of Government at present.

He also referred to nurses and criticised the fact that there are so few Indian nurses. I am not an expert on this subject, but I would ask my honourable friend Dr. Gilder to say if it is possible at the present moment to get such a large number of Indian nurses who are properly fit and trained for superior posts. Government will be only too glad to get Indian nurses, and we have to provide 130 nurses for the extension of the J. J. Hospital scheme, and I know that the Surgeon General is very worried as to how he is to find them.

As regards the question of medicines, the present system is to obtain our medicines from the Medical Stores. The Medical Stores are under the direction of the Director General of the Indian Medical Service, and so far as we know he obtains his supplies at the cheapest rate.....

Dr. M. D. GILDER: Where do they come from ?

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER: From the Stores Department.

Dr. M. D. GILDER: Are they manufactured in India or in Europe ?

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER: It is presumed from the cheapest market.

Then as regards cots in the Mental Hospital I would tell my honourable friends that these cots were not imported from England but from America, because they are specially strong. The Superintendent said that they must be the strongest available, and I think he is right as he is dealing with persons in a Lunatic Asylum.

Then he referred to St. George's Hospital and criticised the difference between the cost of treating Europeans and Indians. It is my experience in India that Indians of all classes can live at about half the cost of the Europeans. It is a regrettable thing, but it is true and the same difference is to be found in cost of running this Hospital and the G. T. Hospital.

I admit that I was surprised to hear that Chinese and Japanese patients are found there. I am, however, given to understand that in the non-paying wards any person who goes more or less in European dress and follows European manners is admitted.

Dr. M. D. GILDER: Including Indians ?

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER: It is quite possible.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: What is the fact ?

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER: I cannot say as I have no personal knowledge.

Then, as regards St. George's Hospital being thrown open to students I would point out to the honourable member that after all, with the exception of two wards, patients in the St. George's are paying patients. I do not think that you can expect paying patients to allow themselves to be used for educational purposes, and I do not think it is the custom anywhere.

I would now refer to the observations made by my honourable friend, Dr. Dixit. He suggests that a Superintendent can be found for the G. T. Hospital for Rs. 150 per month. I can only say that if we want to maintain efficiency, we must pay well for such an appointment. It is our experience in life that the best man can only be had on the best pay.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City): Sir, I move for a closure.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I accept the closure.

Dr. M. D. GILDER (Bombay City, North): Sir, before I start giving replies to what has been said by my honourable friend, the Secretary, I shall just clear one point with regard to the L.C.P.S. examination to which my honourable friend from Bijapur (Mr. Sardesai) referred.

At the outset I must say that he is partly right and partly wrong in his remarks on this point. I have myself the privilege of examining the students appearing for this examination and I have also been a member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, a body which draws up their curricula, regulates their courses and examines them. I submit, Sir, that the students appearing for this examination are trained though not to the same extent as the university graduates. These men formerly had to study up to the sixth standard, now up to the matriculation examination and then to study medicine for four years. University graduates have to study up to the Inter Science and then take a five years medical course making in all seven years. The College of Physicians and Surgeons is trying to raise the course of studies for the L.C.P.S. examination from four years to five years, but the Surgeon-General and the department concerned are only delaying the matter.

Turning to the remarks of the honourable member, the Secretary, I think he has committed a mistake in his calculations. I know that there are three professors in the Grant Medical college belonging to I.M.S. And there are in all five or six men in Bombay belonging to this service. I find he has brought the old old argument that this I.M.S. is as a war reserve. I know that argument has been advanced by the Government for over a century. But, Sir, I ask where the service would have been if Indians had not come forward during the war to join it. Look at the number of temporary Indian I.M.S. officers employed ; I believe it exceeded the permanent cadre of the service. Since this subject has been touched upon by the Secretary, I would just inform this House about a sore grievance that the temporary officers complain of. Many persons are appointed as temporary I.M.S. officers and as soon as they complete about five to ten years service, they are asked to go and new temporary officers are engaged in their place. I wonder if the reason is that if these officers are allowed to remain in service for a longer period, Government is afraid that they would be enabled to put in a strong claim for permanency or pension.

We are told that the number of I.M.S. men in Bombay has diminished considerably. May I ask whether it is due to the action of the Government, that the strength of the service officers in this city has diminished ? I believe, Sir, that Government find it very difficult to get these men to come to Bombay because the lucrative private practice which they formerly enjoyed is no longer there. They have been driven away from the city by economic pressure.

With regard to the remarks about the I.M.D. I might draw the Honourable the Minister's attention to the fact that it is some time since we have stopped training these men in Bombay and we have now to import them from Madras or Calcutta. Under the circumstances is it necessary to do so ?

The honourable member, the Secretary, has told us that posts have always been advertised. I think he has made a mistake. Were the posts of Surgeon to the J. J. Hospital and Ophthalmic Surgeon to the C. J. Hospital advertised ?

Turning to the question of nurses, the Secretary asked if it is possible to get properly trained nurses. What special qualifications does he require Indian nurses to possess ? Do they not pass the same examination ? Do they not undergo the same course of training ? Does he not know that the standard of education and of examination is the same for Indian and Anglo-Indian nurses ? When I was attached to the Golculdas Tejpal Hospital, the sister in-charge of my ward was an Anglo-Indian and at various times fully qualified Indian nurses worked under her. The sister was often so unaware of what was happening in the ward, that if I asked her a question about a patient, she had always to refer to her Indian assistant before replying. For instance, if I asked if the patient had slept during the night, she would turn round and ask the nurse, " rat ku dardi soyata. " If I asked her how many motions the patient had, she would turn round and ask " dardi ku kitna jara hoyata ? " She thus depended for all her work upon her Indian assistants, most of whom carried on their work to my complete satisfaction. But the wonder of it is that when this Anglo-Indian nurse left to get married, how was the post filled up ? Although there were three or four fully qualified and competent Indian girls who had worked at the hospital for a length of time, the vacant post was given to an Anglo-Indian girl who had just passed her examination two or three months before her appointment. Then my honourable friend replied to the remarks made by the honourable member Dr. Dixit. I think there is a little confusion in his mind on this point. What he was talking about was the administrative work of the superintendent of the G. T. Hospital. As a matter of fact I know that a great many patients in the hospitals—a great many patients in the J. J. Hospital, in the Goculdas Tejpal Hospital, and all patients in the King Edward Memorial Hospital, are attended to by the doctors who receive an honorarium of Rs. 150 to Rs. 200 per month. We were not talking at all about the doctors who give treatment to the patients. One point was about the administrative duties of the Surgeon Superintendent as an administrative officer and not as a treating medical officer. That is the point which was touched upon by Dr. Dixit. I trust that the Honourable Minister will keep these two things quite apart. I should not say more on the subject of honorarium paid to the honorary doctors, as I am myself included in that class. But I do say that Rs. 150 to Rs. 200 paid to these doctors, are hardly sufficient for them to meet the petrol charges and other motor car expenses incurred by them for visiting the hospitals. Therefore this amount is not to be considered as a recompense. Really speaking, these honorary doctors render honorary services in looking after the patients and teaching the students.

However, the question of the administrative work is entirely separate. The present superintendent of the J. J. Hospital gets an allowance of Rs. 150 a month for managing the big J. J. Hospital, and it was on the question of the administrative duties that my honourable friend Dr. Dixit raised the point.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Mr. President, we have had rather an interesting discussion on the subject and some original ideas from my honourable friend Mr. Sardesai. Such of them as are capable of being suitably considered, I may assure him that I will consider them. One important point which he made was that rural areas were being neglected with reference to medical aid as compared to towns and cities and particularly Bombay city. That is a complaint which I am fully aware of, and I have been pressing the claims of the rural areas on the attention of Government. But in view of the commitments of Government to the hospital scheme in Bombay, it has not been possible this year to do more in that line. However, that matter will be duly attended to, as I fully believe that the rural areas deserve equal consideration,—equal, I say, as much as Bombay or even more. (Rao Saheb D. P. Desai: What is the action ?)

My honourable friend Dr. Gilder referred to several matters, to some of which the honourable the Secretary has replied. Since the last two or three years the system at the hospitals in Bombay has been changed, and instead of whole-time I.M.S. officers, we have now honorary physicians and honorary surgeons at the J. J. as well as the G. T. hospitals, and with the development of that system I believe that the complaint about the colour bar, which my honourable friend Dr. Gilder has made, will disappear as time goes on. Another point which he raised was with reference to the I.M.D. officers who are doing service in the hospitals in Bombay. As regards these officers, their cadre is now going to be reduced, as the honourable the Secretary told the House, to 50 per cent., and as vacancies occur, officers from the Bombay Medical Service, men with M.B.B.S. qualifications, will be taken up for the jobs as residential medical officers. Then, the complaint of high salaries to these officers will also disappear. Of course, at the G. T. and J. J. hospitals this would happen as vacancies occur. But at the St. George's Hospital, I am told, in view of the patients who go there, it is necessary to retain the I.M.D officers.....

Dr. M. D. GILDER: Some or all ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: As regards these officers, looking to the European patients who generally go to the St. George's Hospital, they require to be dealt with by a medical officer of their own class. That is a sentiment which they have not got over, and for some time certainly that sentiment will have to be respected. But I may assure the honourable House that, as vacancies occur in the I.M.D. cadre, suitable men of the M.B.B.S. qualification will be taken up as already stated by me.

The next point he touched was with reference to the S.M.S. (Subordinate Medical Service) officers who are at present working in the G. T. and the J. J. hospitals. He urged that they should be replaced by M.B.B.S. men because they are better qualified men. I would draw the attention of the honourable member Dr. Gilder to the fact that these S.M.S. officers belong to the S.M.S. cadre and they are wholetime men, and if we could get M.B.B.S. men for an emolument smaller than that which these officers get for a wholetime job, there will be no difficulty, and there should be none in attracting such people for such places..... (Dr. Gilder: There are).....But my own doubts are that perhaps as a wholetime job they may not accept an appointment on a salary of Rs. 75 or Rs. 100.....

Dr. M. D. GILDER : On a point of information. May I ask the Honourable Minister whether he is aware that a gentleman called Dr. Thakore applied for this post at the G. T. Hospital, when he was told that he was unfit for that post and six months afterwards or four months afterwards he was appointed honorary director of the Medical Unit and he is now acting as honorary surgeon at the G. T. Hospital, though he was thought unfit at the time to take up a sub-assistant surgeon's place ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I do not know that he was refused an appointment on a former occasion on the ground that he was not considered fit. However, I know that that gentleman is working at the G. T. Hospital at present. If men of the qualification of M.B.B.S. will be forthcoming to accept wholetime jobs at these hospitals on Rs. 75 or Rs. 100 a month, there should be, I say, no difficulty in taking them up in preference to the S.M.S. officers who are now working.

As regards the nurses, the real difficulty is the small number of Indian nurses that are available. My own impression is that you cannot get Indian nurses with sufficient qualifications in as large a number as they are required. However,.....

Dr. M. D. GILDER : Why not make a beginning ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : However, the point which is made that there should be no colour bar in the selection of Indian nurses to the administrative posts is one which I am prepared to consider and I hope the department will consider. There is one point which I ought to bring to the notice of the House, and it is that it is the Nursing Association of the hospital concerned which makes the appointments and I believe the Superintendent of the hospital concerned is the person who makes the selection. Now, both at the J. J. as well as the G. T. hospitals there are Indian Medical Officers as Superintendents and I am not prepared to assume that they have any prejudice against Indian nurses.....

Dr. M. D. GILDER : Who are the matrons of these hospitals ? They are not Indians, and their recommendation is generally confirmed by the Superintendent, whoever he may be.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I think the Superintendent generally exercises his own judgment in the matter and I am not prepared to assume that he is led by the nose by the matron in charge. However, I do concede that the claims of suitable Indian nurses whenever available ought to be taken into consideration for administrative posts, and I hope that that factor will be borne in mind by the Department hereafter.

The question of the purchase of stores and medicines has been dealt with by the honourable the General Secretary.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Do these appointments come up to Government or are they made by the Surgeon-General ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I cannot say offhand, but it is very likely that it is the Surgeon-General who makes these appointments and that they do not come up to Government.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Will the Honourable Minister see that they do come up to Government ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: The policy which I am prepared to accept of giving favourable consideration to the claims of suitable Indian nurses is one which I am sure, whoever the authority is to carry out that policy, will take into his consideration when making such appointments. There are certain delegated authorities and I believe that in the matter of the appointment of matrons, the matter does not come up further than the Surgeon-General. However on the question of policy, whatever has been discussed here will be duly considered by the Department.

Then as regards the purchase of stores and medicines, the honourable member the General Secretary has told the Council how the matter stands. The orders are that whatever suitable materials and medicines are available in India cheaper than those available from foreign countries have to be purchased in India and I do not think that whenever such stores or medicines are available here in proper quantity and quality, the matter is disregarded by the officers concerned.

There was a reference made by the honourable member Dr. Dixit to the high salaries paid at certain hospitals and to the differences between the salaries of the various appointments. I find that two appointments—one of Dr. Dalal and another of Dr. Duggan—had to be made in the War time on salaries which would attract them because other people of their attainments were not forthcoming. However, when these appointments and similar others become vacant, there will always be an attempt made to revise the salaries and to remove the differences which exist at present, consistently with the fact that suitable men are available for the work they are expected to do.

My honourable friend from Satara Rao Bahadur Kale referred to the subject of the grant of Vaduj dispensary. For that dispensary a grant was sanctioned for two years. The grant was sanctioned for the years 1926-27 and 1927-28 and a report was demanded at the end of the term to decide whether to continue the grant or not. From the report it was found that the average daily attendance there in August 1926 was 27 but it dwindled down in January 1927 to 18. Then there were reports from the district deputy collector as well as the Collector on the working of the dispensary, and I also find from the report that the mamlatdar and his staff were unanimous in testifying to the uselessness of the dispensary and its incumbent. The mamlatdar was an Indian, the district deputy collector was an Indian and consequently they could not have any bias against the dispensary. There was the objection against the way the dispensary was conducted and the objection was not directed against the dispensary being an Ayurvedic dispensary. I may inform the House that I have personally great sympathy for Ayurvedic and Unani systems of medicines. Nearly 80 per cent. of the population have faith in those systems. I do not share the views of Surgeon-General Hooton as stated in his report and I see the necessity of Government taking early steps to give encouragement to such dispensaries and even to found a school and a hospital for the purpose. There was a proposal from Surgeon-General Dr. Kukday two years back to have a hospital where Father Cais and Dr. Mhaskar, who have been investigating into certain Ayurvedic and Unani drugs at the Haffkine Institute, could try their experiments. On account of financial stringency, however, it has not been possible to accede to that request and they have been assigned certain beds at the J. J. Hospital for the purpose of their operations. As soon as the results of the working of the college at Madras are ascertained and funds are forthcoming, I believe there will be no difficulty in inducing Government to have an Ayurvedic and Unani school for teaching those systems. In my private capacity, I have always encouraged students to go to the Tibi College at Delhi to learn the indigenous systems of medicine and I believe there would be no difficulty, on sufficient funds being found, to go further in the matter. I may inform the House that the Honourable the Leader of the House also has been taking great interest in these two systems of medicine used, but for the difficulty of finance, we should have been in a position to do something in the matter.

As regards the Vaduj dispensary, I am sorry that my hands were forced on account of the reports that came up from the district officers, but if such a dispensary is put on a proper basis, and if the medical man in charge is the right sort of man and if people are found to take advantage of it, there would be no difficulty in considering the claims of any such Ayurvedic dispensary whether in the Satara district or elsewhere which apply for grants from Government.....

Mr. H. J. AMIN: On a point of information. If the Honourable Minister is in favour of Ayurvedic and Unani systems, will he be good enough to issue a statement on behalf of Government in contravention of Surgeon-General Hooton's remarks that the Ayurvedic and Unani systems of medicine are useless and cannot be recommended?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: An honourable member had asked me a question as to how far Government shared the views of Surgeon-General Hooton in this matter and I think I replied that Government have as yet had no special investigation made into the matter and that therefore Government, as such, were not in a position to express an opinion on the point.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: A committee was appointed about two years back under the chairmanship of the Honourable the Minister in charge of Local Self-Government. May I know what happened to the report of that committee?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I am glad that my honourable friend has referred to that matter. That committee sat about two years ago and I was also a member of it.

[Dewan Bahadur Harilal D. Desai]

The committee has reported that, with reference to medical, veterinary and public health staff, Government should contribute two-thirds of the cost which the district local boards incur, but on account of financial difficulty the department of my honourable friend Sir Ghulam Hussain has not been able to issue any orders on the subject. That is what I know. I was particularly keen with reference to the district health staff being employed by every district local board, and, on one or two occasions, I also reminded my honourable friend about it, but we were faced with the difficulty of funds, and consequently nothing has as yet been done.

Dr. M. D. GILDER (Bombay City, North): Sir, my object in moving the cut was not to actually cut down the allowance to the hospitals and dispensaries which, I submit, is not even one-third of what it ought to be. My object was to raise a discussion on the question, and I trust that the Honourable Minister will prove an exception to the rule by doing more than he has already promised us. I therefore ask for leave of the House to withdraw my motion.

Question put and leave granted.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Sir, I have already accepted a cut of Rs. 9,400 under this head, and therefore the demand will be for Rs. 48,95,600.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Sir, I ask for a demand of Rs. 6,000 for Medical Services (Reserved). It is a yearly grant to the Medical Council.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Sir, I make a demand for a grant of Rs. 1,95,82,000 for 31-Education (Transferred).

Question proposed.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Sir, I beg to move:

"Omit item No. 36, establishment of an Anglo-Urdu Middle School at Sholapur, Rs. 5,510."

Sir, this is a provision for the establishment of a new Anglo-Urdu middle school at Sholapur, and the ultimate annual recurring expenditure from next year is stated to come to Rs. 7,800. Sir, last year there was a demand made for an Inter Science class for the Deccan College. But these institutions,—high schools and colleges—are now being managed by non-official bodies, and it is far better to leave all such new institutions in the hands of these new bodies, and Government themselves should not share the whole of the burden on secondary and higher education. In this case, Government want to open a new Anglo-Urdu middle school at Sholapur. The reason given is that the students who learn through the Urdu primary schools cannot satisfactorily follow the instructions in the lower classes of the ordinary Government high schools. Sir, it is certain that when once a middle school is started, after a couple of years or after five years it is likely to be a full-fledged high school, and consequently the expenditure on it will naturally increase. For want of funds

[Mr. L. M. Deshpande]

Government have not fulfilled the assurances they have given to the already existing institutions, and yet they are spending on new items, and the more so on sectarian items. In this connection, I may point out the extra expenditure incurred by Government on such schools. There is one Anglo-Urdu high school at Poona, and the cost to Government per pupil is Rs. 116 there. There is another Anglo-Urdu high school at Hubli and the cost to Government is Rs. 138 per pupil. The average cost to Government in the case of all Government schools is only Rs. 63 per pupil, while the cost incurred on these Anglo-Urdu schools is more than double the cost on other Government high schools. I point this out only to bring to the notice of the House that there is not a sufficient number of boys taking instructions in these institutions. It is more on account of sentiment that they want these separate institutions. If a sufficient number of students is coming forth, I think there should be no objection to giving them separate schools if Government so desire. But when Government go on incurring such kind of expenditure, I think they should see that it is not at all out of proportion. I may tell the House that the total cost of educating each pupil even in the Elphinstone High School, Bombay, is Rs. 105. Look at the enormous expenditure which Government have had to incur, simply because a sufficient number of Mahomedan students are not coming forward to take their education in these special institutions. I cannot say exactly, but I think a good many of the Mahomedan students take their instruction in other high schools, and that may be one of the reasons for the fall in the number of students in these special schools.

Another point is that we now see that the claims of Mahomedans for appointments of clerks, subordinate officers and higher officers in the districts are always pressed and Government have acceded to the request. Supposing the students get their primary and secondary education in Urdu, how can they work as officers in the districts? I am sure the language of the districts is nowhere Urdu so far as Gujarat and the rest of the presidency proper are concerned. There will therefore be great difficulty for these persons to work as officers in the districts. So, considering the question from all points of view, I think the starting of these special institutions will not be to the benefit of the Mahomedans themselves, nor will it be to the benefit of the public at large or the Government. I will point out how the claims of other institutions are kept aside and new institutions like these brought forward. At page 84 of the Supplement to the Report on Public Instruction for 1925-26 you will find, Sir, that the Parsi High School, Panchgani, and Darul-ul-Islam High School, Panchgani, have been newly started and Government have given them grants from the provincial revenues. There is another high school, the Tilak High School at Karad, which has been on the aided list for a good many years. It applied for a grant, and the Educational Inspector, so far as my knowledge goes, recommended the grant, and still the claims of that school remain overlooked. I may say by the bye that the municipality of Karad had promised a certain amount to be paid as grant to this institution, but refused it. When the matter was referred to the Collector, he said that these were private matters and therefore he would not interfere. So, that institution has to suffer both ways. Government say that they have no funds and give no grants, and the Collector says he cannot interfere although legitimately he can interfere as the municipality cannot discontinue the grant without the sanction of the Commissioner. This is only by way of example. What I urge is that any extra expenditure that Government incur on secondary, middle or high schools should not take the shape of expenditure on Government schools, but by way of aid to private institutions.

Question proposed.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Mr. President, I have never heard, Sir, in this House a more illogical speech and a more ridiculous statement, than the one that has come from the lips of the honourable gentleman sitting behind me (Mr. L. M. Deshpande). Sir, it seems to me that he has never read any literature about the education of the Mahomedan community. Let me enlighten him a little. In the year 1923, Government appointed a special committee to investigate into the difficulties of Mahomedans in English Education. I had the honour to serve upon that committee. The report of that committee is on record in the department. That committee recommended that in every division of the presidency, there should be established an Anglo-Urdu high school, and in every district an Anglo-Urdu middle school for Mahomedans to learn English through their language. Only two high schools have been established and the third school has yet to be established. No middle schools are established at all. It is the policy of Government to give educational facilities to every community through its own mother-tongue. The more a community is educated and advanced the better it is for the general progress of the presidency. Taking this into consideration, it is really painful to see that a short-sighted man like my honourable friend behind has come forward to make an exhibition of his jealousy of an Urdu school.....(Mr. L. M. Deshpande: No jealousy).....To what other motive could his oration be attributed? Surely he knows that the school is necessary for the Mahomedans of Sholapur. Some people have yet to learn that sectional jealousies ought not to be shown in this Council in the form in which my honourable friend has thought fit to show.....

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: Not in any form.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Thank you, Mr. Nariman.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, the House knows that it itself has passed many resolutions about the establishment of Anglo-Urdu schools for the benefit of Mahomedans in recent years. Almost all of these resolutions have not yet been carried out. Out of 12 or 13 demands which were placed before the Honourable Minister by Mahomedans, I think only one item has been adopted.....

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Two.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Well, two items have been adopted. I hope no member of this House will come forward to support the honourable member in this cut. Let him remember that it is not the policy which the House approves. With these words I oppose the motion.

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL AZIZ ABDUL LATIF (Central Division) : Sir, if the Mahomedans have made progress in elementary education, it is simply because they have got separate institutions. It is through separate schools that they have made remarkable progress since 1915. Now, if you look to secondary education you will find that the progress of the Mahomedans is less than what it ought to have been. The reason is that there are not Anglo-Urdu high schools in sufficient numbers. If there had been Anglo-Urdu high schools, the progress in secondary education also would have been quite satisfactory. Government have opened two Anglo-Urdu high schools, one at Poona and the other at Hubli, and now the Honourable Minister has been kind enough to make provision for two more. But my honourable friend Mr. Deshpande comes forward and says that there is no necessity of such schools as there are not enough number of Mahomedan students. The fact is that there are sufficient number of Mahomedan students in each district but they are unable to prosecute their studies further as there are no Anglo-Urdu schools in the district and they cannot attend any other high school where medium of instruction is not Urdu. And I maintain, Sir, that if Anglo-Urdu high schools are established, more and more Mahomedans will come to the schools and the progress of Mahomedans in secondary education will advance. He also stated that the persons who learn Urdu are of no use in Government-offices and other offices. I think my honourable friend is not correct. It is not correct to say that the persons educated in Anglo-Urdu schools are quite ignorant of other languages. They know something of other languages also which they are taught in primary schools. In fact, in the Government departments it is not necessary that one should know the language perfectly well. I know, Sir, that the subordinate judges who come from Gujarat are not able to speak Marathi properly, and yet they come and do their work satisfactorily. It is not necessary that one should know the language perfectly well. All the Mahomedan students in primary schools are taught the court language of the locality, that is Marathi. Now, Sir, the grant for Sholapur and Nasik was put in the budget five or six times, but for one reason or another, it was thrown out. In the Central Division the mother-tongue of the Mahomedan is Urdu, and therefore there is necessity of establishing Anglo-Urdu schools. The Honourable Minister has been kind enough to make provision for two such schools, but an effort is being made to cut down the provision by my honourable friend Mr. Deshpande, who is supposed to belong to the Responsive Party which poses to be free from all kinds of communal prejudice. I suggest that my honourable friend should not oppose a provision made for the education of a backward class like the Mahomedans. With these words I oppose the motion.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District) : Sir, I am rather surprised to see my honourable friend Mr. Deshpande, bringing a motion for a cut of Rs. 5,510 which are to be given for opening an Anglo-Urdu Middle School at Sholapur. We find that the Honourable Minister has been good enough to make two demands for opening of two schools for the Mohamedans in Sholapur and Nasik Districts. This House knows that my honourable friend Moulvi Sahib and Mr. Abdul Aziz have been repeatedly emphasing the need for these schools for the sake of Urdu speaking boys who are generally Muslims. It is, therefore, most surprising that my honourable friend should feel inclined to say that Government should not establish these schools. The honourable mover stated that no such facilities should be given to Mahomedans, whose mother-tongue, I submit, is Urdu. He states that they should take their education either in Kanarese or Marathi language. The honourable mover Mr. Deshpande thinks, as everyone else here does, that he will see that no public money is wasted, but I can assure him that he has entirely misjudged the whole situation. I think, Sir, that the honourable mover has wasted his energy in bringing forward a motion of this character. The Honourable Minister has after all considered the request made by the residents of Sholapur district in this respect. This House knows that many questions were put in this Council, about the necessity of such a school. It is after much exertion that the Honourable Minister has come forward to make a demand for grant for this purpose. And in view of these facts it is not at all fair that the honourable member should bring forward a motion for cut of this item. I hope the honourable member will be well advised to withdraw his motion, before it is put to vote.

Mr. D. A. JANVEKAR (Southern Division): Sir, I am really astonished to see a motion of a cut on this subject and also on a paltry sum of Rs. 5,510, which has been demanded for opening an Anglo-Urdu school at Sholapur.

Sir, as far as the Hubli school is concerned, my honourable friend, Mr. Deshpande, has made too much of it; he has stated about the high expenditure incurred on account of that school and the number of boys attending it. I do not know much about the Poona school, but I being from Karnatak, I know the condition of the school at Hubli. Before I deal with the condition of the school at Hubli, may I ask my honourable friend, Mr. Deshpande, what is the expenditure of the European schools? What is the percentage in primary schools of depressed classes? He is not very particular about that, but he is particular about the school for Muhammadans who are very backward in education. Government have realised this fact and therefore they have come forward with this demand for grant. There has been no Anglo-Urdu school in Sholapur and therefore the Muhammadan boys had to attend the Government high schools for prosecuting their secondary education, and it is on account of this fact that they were lagging behind. This fact will be seen from the result of the high school examinations.

My honourable friend, Mr. Deshpande, has also referred to the service and the claims made by Muhammadans for service. He says "the Muhammadan boys who will attend this school will be compelled to learn the language of the district." But may I tell him that the second language even in the primary school is the language of the district which is taught in every school as compulsory and in this way the Muhammadans will not be handicapped in this respect. There are Urdu schools, as this is a necessity for Muhammadans and the Muhammadan boys, Urdu being their mother-tongue. If there is an Urdu primary school, it naturally follows that there should be an Anglo-Urdu schools at least for the lower standard, that is up to the fourth standard in English. My honourable friend also remarks that the demand for this school is being made on the sentimental grounds. I would ask him to question this to his conscience and then decide for himself whether it is a necessity or whether this is demanded on the sentimental grounds.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I rise to oppose the cut that has been moved by my honourable friend, Mr. Deshpande. Instead of thanking the Honourable Minister for bringing such a motion before this House, my honourable friend has decided to oppose the grant asked by him. While discussing the budget, it was stated by honourable members that the transferred departments have been handicapped on account of funds, and now when the Honourable Minister comes forward with a demand to help the backward community, it is really shameful that my honourable friend should move for a cut and do something which will really injure the feelings of the other communities. We should, of course, help each other and we should not bring communal matters in this House.....

An Honourable MEMBER : Questions concerning Non-Brahmins should be brought.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : I make no distinction between the questions for the Brahmins and for the non-Brahmins. When any question of public interest is considered in this House, I am many a time even for Brahmins when justice is on their side. I have never opposed any motion which is in the interests of both the Brahmins as well as the non-Brahmins, etc. This can be seen from the record of my one year's work in this Council. I would never oppose any motion which is for spreading more education in the country. The Honourable Minister has provided in the budget an item for education and I have told him in my budget speech that this House would be prepared to give him even Rs. 2 crores, if he wants to expand more education. Unless the people of this presidency are educated, especially the backward communities, they will not help the British Government and also the Government of Bombay. It is only the education which would improve the status of the people in this presidency.

Sir, with these few words I would again state that I oppose vehemently the cut that has been moved by my honourable friend, Mr. Deshpande who should withdraw it immediately.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN (Poona and Sholapur cities) : Sir, I should like to speak on the motion.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, I move for a closure.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. I see that several honourable members want yet to speak on this cut. And I think the Muhammadan members are entitled to express their views on this subject, if the honourable mover still wishes to push forward his motion.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Sir, as I find that the time is short at our disposal and as some of the honourable members want to pass on to some other more important motions, I beg leave of the House to withdraw my motion.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Sir, the honourable mover of this motion should withdraw it unconditionally.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I will not put the question and discussion will be resumed to-morrow.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: May I ask whether the reason given for the withdrawal of the motion is very material?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I do not think I should say anything in the matter of the noble compromise that some honourable members wish to bring about. Let that come into existence to-morrow, if it does. At present I do not think the honourable mover of the motion is quite decided and clear about it. However, before we adjourn the House, I have to bring to the notice of the House one thing.....

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: Sir, I withdraw the motion.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I am sure he will be readily granted leave to withdraw his motion.

Question put and leave granted.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The next point that I have got to bring to the notice of the House is this. As I said this morning to-morrow is the last day for the demand for grants and the guillotine will be applied at 5 o'clock. The House should therefore meet at 12 noon to-morrow. I propose to adjourn for tea at 3-30 p.m.

The Council is adjourned to 12 noon to-morrow, Tuesday the 13th March 1928.

BOMBAY: PRINTED AT THE GOVERNMENT CENTRAL PRESS.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Questions.

LIQUOR SHOP, MEDHA

Mr. S. K. BOLE: Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Excise Advisory Committee has requested Government to remove the liquor shop at the village Medha in the Roha Taluka of the Kolaba District;

(b) if so, what steps Government have taken in the matter?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) The request was made to the Commissioner of Excise.

(b) The Commissioner of Excise has orderd the shop to be closed from 1st April 1928.

DEVELOPMENT DEPARTMENT: HARVEY-NARIMAN CASE DISCLOSURES

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Will Government be pleased to state what action they propose to take against officers of the Development Department for gross negligence and mismanagement in the discharge of their duties and reasonable grounds for suspicion of corruption against them as disclosed in the Harvey-Nariman case?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: The question is under the consideration of Government.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Will Government be pleased to say how long it will take for Government to consider the question?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I am afraid I cannot give any definite reply to that. It will depend upon the material that has to be considered.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: Can we approximately know the time?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: This matter has been discussed for the last six or seven years, and still Government say the question is still under consideration.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I am not in agreement with the honourable member's inferences in his question.

FLOODS : TAKAVI AND OTHER HELP BY GOVERNMENT

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the total population in each of the talukas of Sind affected by the recent floods of (i) Mussalmans, (ii) Non-Mussalmans ;

(b) the total number of Zamindars and others who received Takavi and other help in each Taluka, (i) Mussalmans, (ii) Non-Mussalmars ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the Sind Government has issued orders to stop giving Takavi to distressed zamindars and others :

(d) if the reply to (c) be in affirmative, the reasons for such orders ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) and (b) A statement containing the information is placed on the Council Table.

(c) and (d) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the replies given to these clauses at the last session. They are printed at page 1102 of Part XV, Volume XXI, of the Legislative Council Debates.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH : As regards (c) and (d), in the reply given there is mention of the relief fund, but not takavi. I want to know how much takavi was given.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : "The total number of zamindars and others who received takavi and other help in each taluka," that was the question asked, and the answer to that is given in the last two columns of the statement.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH : I want to know how much takavi was given.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am unable to say. The honourable member put no such question.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: No; in my question (d) I ask, if the reply to (c) be in the affirmative, the reasons for such orders. The reply which the honourable member has referred me to, does not, I think, deal with the question of takavi.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Questions (c) and (d) have already been replied to, and in any case, I am able to inform the honourable member that no such orders were ever issued.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: In the statement which was given to us in the Poona session it was stated that takavi was not stopped. I am asking now how much takavi was given. If no orders have been issued to stop takavi, I want to know how many zamindars have received it and how much.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: It is quite impossible to give that information now. If the honourable member will give notice of such a question, I shall give a reply in due course.

FOREST SERVICE: PROVINCIALIZATION

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Lee Commission emphasised that it regarded its main proposals as vitally inter-dependent and that unless all were given effect to, violence would be done to the whole body of its recommendations;

(b) whether it is a fact that the Lee Commission Report recommended that effect should be given to its recommendations from the financial year 1924-25;

(c) whether it is a fact that the Lee Commission Report recommended the Provincialization of the Forest Service in Bombay Presidency;

(d) whether the Secretary of State for India has empowered the Bombay Government to provincialise the Forest Service from the year 1924-25 as per paragraphs 15, 39, 4 of the Lee Commission Report;

(e) if the Secretary of State for India has empowered the Bombay Government, what are the exact terms in which the Bombay Government is so empowered;

(f) whether they are aware that more than three years have elapsed and yet nothing has been done uptil now to provincialise the Forest Service;

(g) the details of the provincialization that they propose to carry out in the Forest Department;

(h) whether they now recognise the necessity of maintaining the new provincialized service on a par with the India recruited branch of the Indian Forest Service;

(i) whether they are aware that the present Bombay Forest Service officers have strong claims for admission into the new provincialized service?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a), (b) and (c) Yes.

(d) The Civil Services (Governors' Provinces) Delegation Rules, 1926, passed by the Secretary of State on 9th March 1926 empower the Local Government to make rules regulating the method of recruitment to provincial services, subordinate services and special posts.

(e) The Honourable Member is referred to Resolution II published in the notification of the Government of India in the Home Department No. F.-178-9-II/24, dated 1st April 1926, a copy of which is placed on the Council table.

(f) Government are not so aware.

(g) The question is under consideration.

(h) and (i) The provincialized service will be constituted in accordance with the instructions of the Secretary of State and the claims of the present officers in the Provincial Service will be duly considered.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: As to (g), may I know whether Government have done anything up to now to Indianise the Forest Department?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: As a matter of fact, the Indian officers who are in the Forest Department are being promoted. As the reply shows, as regards the Indianisation of the service, the matter is being considered.

FLOODS, GUJARAT: RELIEF IN TALUKDARI AND INAMDARI VILLAGES

Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan on behalf of Mr. G. I. PATEL (Ahmedabad Millowners' Association): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether any relief has been so far afforded to the distressed tenants and other afflicted people in their villages by the Talukdars and Inamdars of Gujarat after the recent floods and unprecedented rains in Gujarat. If so, to obtain and place a statement of the general details of the same on the Council Table.

(b) whether they have received any representation from the Ahmedabad Flood Relief Committee requesting them to persuade the Talukdars and Inamdars to afford relief to their tenants and also to so assist the workers of the Committee as would enable them (the committee) to give relief with due securities as may be available by joint co-operation. If so, to say if any action has so far been taken in the matter and with what result.

(c) whether it is a fact that the tenants of such villages have received very scanty relief as compared with that afforded by outside agencies or relief committees so far ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes. A statement showing details of the relief afforded by the Talukdars and Inamdars in the affected parts of the Ahmedabad, Kaira, the Panch Mahals and Broach districts is placed on the Council Table.

(b) No.

(c) There have been no complaints from tenants of their having received inadequate relief from Talukdars and Inamdars.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Are not Government aware that the talukdars are coming in the way of relief committees giving assistance to the benefit of the talukdari villagers for building their houses, etc. ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Government have no reason whatever to suppose that that is the case.

BOMBAY SMALL HOLDINGS BILL: OPINIONS

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to lay on the Council Table the opinions received by them from their officers, public bodies and others on the Bombay Small Holdings Bill ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Government are not prepared to publish the opinions received from their officers or from the non-official gentlemen whom they consulted. The only self-contained report on the subject received by Government from a public body came from the District Local Board, Surat: a copy of it is placed on the Council Table.

No. 4147 of 1925-26.

DISTRICT LOCAL BOARD OFFICE:
Surat, 17th February 1926.

To

THE COLLECTOR OF SURAT.

Reference.—Your No. S.R.V.—48, dated 4th February 1926, regarding prevention of fragmentation and consolidation of Holdings Act.

Sir,

With reference to your above cited letter, I have the honour to state that the subject of the Act is really in the interest and to the benefit of the cultivation and relates primarily to the rural areas. I had no time left to take the sense of the member of the Board in the matter. The reply being urgently and immediately called for, I submit my opinion and remarks on the enactments of the Act and its effect on holdings concerned, from my experience and knowledge of the condition of the agriculture and the habits of agriculturists in the District.

2. Before however dealing with the subject in hand in its detail, it may be mentioned that in a majority of cases the operation of the Act is likely to result in depreciation of the value of the fragmented holdings as also realisation in form of rent, but this cannot be helped if the subject is considered from the economic point of view. Fragmentations are growing numerous and it is desirable that they should be checked in the interest of profitable cultivation.

3. The first query in your above-cited reference, viz., whether there is fragmentation of holdings to any considerable extent in the District may be replied in affirmative. In the four talukas of the southern sub-division of the District especially in the coast villages which are inhabited by illiterate and backward classes, they are growing numerous. Minute fragments of a size of a quarter Guntha are also known to exist in village like Malwan in Bulsar. These fragments are principally due to partitioning between the heirs and successors of the original holder under the Hindu law of inheritance and succession. It is in short in the interest of profitable cultivation that fragmentation needs be checked even by drastic provisions and that facilities of cultivation be accelerated thereby without detriment to the interest of persons concerned in the holdings.

A close perusal of the draft reflects the desirability of removing ambiguity of incongruity in certain sections and clauses. The law is intended to affect the cultivating classes and as such should be as simple and succinct in its operation. Certain sections of the Act are in need of substitution or modification and they are given herein below in order mentioning the grounds for the same.

(1) Section 4, after the words " of the District Local Board " add the " Elected by that body from among its members " and delete the sentence " The members..... this Act."

With the policy of self-Government in view it would not be unfair to say that the three members of the District Local Board should be returned by the Board itself, rather than appointed by Government. No further rules on the subject will be required with the above procedure. Collector of the District and the Deputy Director of Agriculture are the ex-officio members and vacancies if any in the three remaining seats will, of course, be filled up by the Board.

(2) Section 8 deleted the words " or with such modifications as he thinks fit " as the recommendation of the Committee constituted as above are primarily based on local knowledge and conditions of the district, the powers intended to be conferred on the Commissioner to make modifications in them do not seem to be fair.

Section 11. The section be substituted by the following " Any person desiring to transfer otherwise than by lease or by mortgage without possession, to any person other than a neighbour, any fragmented holding, shall give notice by a register post to all the neighbours stating his terms and conditions of the transfer."

The neighbour or neighbours so served with a notice shall, within 15 days of receipt of such a notice, be bound to accept or reject the terms and conditions offered.

This section as originally drafted gives Government Officials the powers of interference in any transaction and causes unnecessary delay and hardships in the early disposal of the holding. A holder may be in need of money immediately, this section and section 13 are sure to keep the transfer in wait for a long period when a matter can be easily settled by the parties concerned. The neighbours are given the right of pre-emption under section 12 and recourse to Civil suit in cases arising out of breach of section 11 is open to them. The Record of Rights will show entries of fragmented holdings soon after the transaction is completed between the transferer and his neighbour which will come to the knowledge of the village Accountant through a notice by the parties concerned.

(4) Section 12. The words " to his best advantage " wherever occurring seem to have no meaning. The terms and conditions offered to the neighbours are the same and not different. The transferer should rather have the option of selecting a neighbour. This section is subjected to the restrictions laid in the proviso to clause 2.

The proviso gives priority to the neighbour whose original holding is less than the standard unit. This is all good from the point of view of better cultivation but cannot be justified in equity.

There are sub-divisions in individual survey numbers and Co-sharers in the survey number. They should invariably get priority over all other claimants. This should be the case even in spite of contiguous holding in another survey number being less than the standard unit.

The proviso to clause 2 may be proposed as under: " provided that when more than one neighbour desire to exercise their right of pre-emption, priority should be given to the neighbour or neighbours of shares in the same survey No. and failing that to the neighbour or neighbours whose original holding being less than the standard unit shall when combined within the fragmented holding, equal or exceed the standard unit."

(5) Section 13. The words " within 30 days.....Mamlatdar " should be deleted in view of the proposed amendment of section 11.

(6) Section 14. While section 11 enjoins a duty on the holder desiring to transfer his fragmented holding, section 12 confers a right of pre-emption.

The transfer is governed by section 12 and therefore the words " and section 12 " should be added after the words " Section 11 " in clause " (1) and (3) " with a view to cover the cases of the breach of the provisions enacted in section 12.

Litigations are expected to a rise in the operation of the Act as now drafted, but the number admits of considerable reduction by preciseness of law under which suits are likely, if section 12 as proposed is substituted in place of the enactment in the original draft.

(7) Section 15. This section may operate to the disadvantage of the occupants of the fragmented holdings or to the neighbours. There is no course open to the holder but to lease to the neighbour whether rent offered may or may not be, according to the market value of the rent prevailing in the locality.

It is desirable that the same procedure which is laid down in connection with their transfer should also hold good in cases of leases. The section should therefore be amended by the addition of the following words:

"Provided that procedure laid down in sections 11 and 12 in connection with the transfer of such holdings be observed in cases of leases."

Section 16. The main object of the Act is to prevent new fragmentation of holdings below a standard unit while this section as drafted aims at recognising them in the Record of Rights and in actual occupation. Reading section 17 with section 16 both the sections depart from the principle aimed at by this Act. Section 17 is overlapping inasmuch as it is a repetition of section 10 (1). Old fragmented holdings are recognised by section 9 and new ones come under section 19. The provisions of sections 16 and 17 appear to be inconsistent with those in section 21 inasmuch as section 21 prohibits the creation of new fragmented holdings below the standard unit.

It is therefore anamolus to recognise them by section 16.

It may however be that the holders in common might mutually and in concert make new fragments. When the village Accountant comes to know of such a case he should make an entry in the Record of Rights and initiate the enforcement of the provisions of sections 11 and 12. The law in this connection should be clear and the occupants of the new fragmented holdings should be called upon to dispose of the property under sections 11 and 12. Sections 16 and 17 may be substituted by the following if it is intended to check new fragments:—

"Section 16. If after the standard units have been prescribed in any local area, any plot below the standard unit is known to have come into existence. Such a plot shall be entered in the Record of Rights as a new fragmented holding and written notice thereof shall be given by the village Accountant to the occupant of such a holding and any person interested within seven days of making such an entry."

"17. The occupant of the new fragmented holding shall on receipt of the notice under section 16 proceed to transfer it as provided by this Act in sections 11 and 12."

(9) "Section 22 insert '12' between '11' and ' or 17' with a view to penalise breach of provisions relating to transfer."

So far about the details.

The alternative to check litigation consists in re-enacting sections 11 and 12 as proposed herein above. Sections 16 and 17 also should be re-enacted to prevent fragmentation. It is improper to recognise them when the Act itself aims at preventing them. Attempt is made to remedy the defects which in my opinion would involve hardships on the occupants. The provisions relating to leases of the old fragmented holdings should be not absolute but restricted on the lines parallel to those relating to transfers.

All cases of disputes are under the Act referred to the Civil Court for decision. This is not desirable inasmuch as the agriculturists in exercise of their rights under the Act will be obliged to undergo heavy expenses of litigation in a Civil Court. The proper Civil Court should be the Mamlatdar's Court where relief can easily be sought under the Mamlatdars' Court Act. Of course there should be one appeal to the Civil Court against the decree passed by the Mamlatdars.

I have, etc.,

(Signed) B. R. Naik,

President,

District Local Board, Surat.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: May I understand that only one public body was consulted?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: No, several public bodies were consulted, but their reports have not all been forwarded to Government by the Commissioners.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: Why have not the opinions of non-official gentlemen been published?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Presumably they were given under the impression that they were communications to Government only and not intended for publication, and without their permission it would not be fair to them to publish these opinions.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Is it not rather an unusual course not to publish opinions received from non-officials ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I don't think so.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I should like to inform the honourable House in connection with these supplementary questions that I have received a number of resolutions and opinions from various non-official bodies or gentlemen and they have been placed on the Council table for the information of the honourable members and also sent to the department concerned.

DENATURED SPIRIT

Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the consumption of denatured spirit in the Bombay Presidency for each of the past three years ;

(b) how much out of this was—

(i) manufactured in the Bombay Presidency,

(ii) imported from the other provinces,

(iii) imported from foreign countries ;

(c) what are the special reasons why only such a small quantity is manufactured in this Presidency ;

(d) whether it is a fact that the manufacture of denatured spirit is a simple process not requiring much technical skill or the investment of a large capital ;

(e) whether it is a fact that in Great Britain the denatured spirit industry is receiving protection against foreign competition ;

(f) whether Government have considered the advisability of giving protection to this Industry in the Bombay Presidency ;

(g) if so, what decision they have arrived and what steps do they intend to take in this matter and when ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) The Honourable Member is referred to column 13 of Imperial Return IV appended to the Excise Administration Reports for the years in question.

(b) The information required is given in Appendix E to the Excise Administration Reports.

(c) It appears that Indian-made spirit cannot compete with imported spirit.

(d) It is so understood.

(e) In the eighteenth Report of the Commissioners of His Majesty's Customs and Excise for the year ending 31st March 1927 it is stated that spirits of certain descriptions and strengths are allowed to be received free of the ordinary spirit duties but subject in the case of certain imported spirits to small differential duties for certain specified purposes.

(f) and (g) Imported denatured spirit pays an ad valorem customs duty of 7½ per cent. while no excise duty is leviable on the locally made product.

The latter enjoys protection to this extent. As this is considered inadequate the question of levying on imported denatured spirit a duty which would be sufficiently protective was considered, but the proposal was abandoned as it did not fall within the scope of the conditions laid down in paragraphs 97 and 98 of the Report of the Indian Fiscal Commission.

GRAZING LAND, RONWELL

Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there are 1,083 cattle and other animals in the village of Ronwell, taluka Bulsar, district Surat;

(b) whether an area of 36 acres only has been kept for the grazing of these cattle and other animals;

(c) whether they are aware that this area of 36 acres is quite insufficient for providing grazing for 1,083 heads of cattle and other animals;

(d) whether there is an area of 46 acres and 36 gunthas in this village of forest land;

(e) whether the village people have applied for this land being kept for the grazing of their cattle;

(f) whether there is any objection to their request being granted;

(g) if so, what is the objection;

(h) whether it is the policy of Government to encourage the keeping of cattle by village people;

(i) if so, what steps do they intend to take to provide facilities for the grazing of the cattle in this village?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) This area by itself is insufficient, but it is not the sole source of grazing available.

(d) The area which is annually auctioned is 46 acres 30 gunthas.

(e) Yes.

(f) None, if they comply with the terms offered; and they have so complied.

(g) Does not arise.

(h) Government are prepared to afford such facilities as may be possible for the maintenance of cattle necessary for cultivation.

(i) No special measures are necessary.

GUJARAT COLLEGE : PEONS AND HAMALS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Principal of the Gujarat College utilizes 2 out of the 3 college peons for his own personal, private and official use, and asks them to attend from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. by turns in his bungalow and office ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, the reasons why their legitimate work of attending the principal's office and sweeping the college halls is done by 2 hamals who are paid Rs. 14 (Rupees fourteen) per month ;

(c) from what provision of the budget, the salaries of those 2 hamals are paid ;

(d) if there is no provision in the budget for the salaries of those hamals, the source from which their salaries are paid ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) and (b) Two peons are on duty by turns at the Principal's office at his bungalow and the college office from 8 a.m to 2-30 p.m. and from 2-30 p.m. to 7 or 8 p.m. As it is not possible for the remaining 2 peons and 1 hamal to do the work of sweeping and cleaning the four hostels, Arts College and College Hall as well as taking papers for delivery, letters for the post, etc., two hamals each on Rs. 14 per mensem are engaged during term time only.

(c) and (d) The salaries of the two hamals are paid from the Domus Fund.

GUJARAT COLLEGE : ELECTRIC TELEPHONES AND BELLS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether a large expenditure has been incurred by the Gujarat College authorities for supplying electric telephones and bells in the College offices ;

(b) from what portion of the budget grant the said expenditure has been incurred ;

(c) if the expenditure has not been incurred from budget grant, from what source the expenditure has been incurred and with whose sanction ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) The expenditure in question amounted to Rs. 531.

(b) and (c) The expenditure was met by the Principal from the Domus Fund at his own discretion.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Yesterday there was a reply as regards the Domus Fund and in that it was stated that Domus Fund was a fund of hostel students who contributed to it at the rate of Rs. 5 per term and that " Instructions have however since been issued to the officers concerned that they should confine expenditure from this fund to purposes which are directly for the benefit of the hostel students." Is the present answer consistent with that ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : With reference to the Domus Fund, orders have been issued that it should be applied only to the bona fide purposes of the hostel students.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : What have Government done with regard to this expenditure which has not been legitimately incurred ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The Principal has under the authority vested in him incurred the expenditure.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is authority vested in the Principal to use any fund of the college for any purpose whatever ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : That is how he interpreted it but now orders have been issued in the matter.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Are Government prepared to issue orders to the Principal to refund the money which he has illegitimately expended ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: No protest was made in respect of this expenditure and therefore no orders have been passed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Have not the students repeatedly protested about this expenditure ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: They have not protested to Government. They may have protested to the honourable member.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT: Sir, will the Honourable Minister take this as a protest from the House ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: No.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: If the students submit a regular petition to Government, will Government consider it and issue the necessary orders in the matter ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I cannot give a reply to a hypothetical question.

CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY, KANAD-MOKAL: DEALINGS WITH RATANPUR-RELIA

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state--

(a) whether the co-operative society of the village Kanad-Mokal in Kalol Taluka of the Panch Mahals District was lending money to the cultivators of Ratanpur-Relia, a village in Mehlol estate of Godhra Taluka in the same district on the security of the holdings of those cultivators ;

(b) whether the said co-operative society of Kanad-Mokal has been recently ordered by the Collector of the Panch Mahals not to lend any more money to the cultivators of Ratanpur-Relia ;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the affirmative, what are the reasons for stopping further dealings with the cultivators of Ratanpur-Relia by the issue of an executive order by the Collector of the Panch Mahals District ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) No.
(b) and (c) Do not arise.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state the quantity in gallons of liquor sold in the foreign liquor " off " license shop of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons situated near Saher Kotda Police Chowky, Ahmedabad, during each of the 6 months from August 1927 to January 1928 ?

GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Resolution No. 9226.

Bombay Castle, 21st November 1927.

Government memorandum No. B. dated 30th August 1927.

Letter from the Collector of Ahmedabad No. S. R. V.-28 dated 21st September 1927 :—

" With reference to your No. S.R.V.-90 dated 2nd September 1927 and No. S. R. V.-90 dated 12th September 1927, I have the honour to return the resolutions passed by the cultivators of Viramgam Taluka and to state as under :—

" 2. The following table shows the extent of the suspensions granted during the last five years in this taluka :—

Year	Number of villages for
	Full suspensions	One half suspensions	Full collection of the year	1½ collection
1922-23	....	....	1	166
1923-24	115	41	11	....
1924-25	....	....	....	167
1925-26	16	65	75	11
1926-27	....	26	91	50

It will be seen from the above statement that out of the past five years, only the years of 1922-23 and 1924-25 were good, but the year of 1923-24 and the last two years 1925-26 and 1926-27 were lean years. Consequently the financial condition of the agriculturists has been reduced to some extent. The depression in trade has also affected their economic condition. The recent floods caused a heavy loss to the agriculturists by damaging their houses and destroying their crops. They had to re-sow the kharif crops which were swept away and they could do this only with the help of tagai for seeds granted to them.

" 3. The revision settlement was introduced in the year 1926-27 and the enhanced rates are to be levied from the current year.

" 4. The table given below shows the comparative figures of the old and revised dry crop rates in the different groups of villages of the Viramgam Taluka.

Rate of dry crops according to First Revision Settlement			Rate of dry-crop according to Second Revision Settlement
Group	No. of villages	Rate of dry crop land	Group	No. of villages	Rate of dry crop land
		Rs. a. p.			Rs. a. p.
I	13	2 8 0	I	15	3 4 0
I	35(T)*	2 0 0
II	44	2 2 0	II	74	2 12 0
II	39(T)	1 12 0	III	11	2 8 0
III	10	1 14 0	IV	39	2 4 0
III	4(T)	1 8 0
IV	2	1 4 0	V	8	1 8 0
IV	2(T)	1 4 0

* T=Talukdari.

I am of opinion that Viramgam has suffered very heavily on account of floods but I am not in favour of postponing the introduction of the new Revenue Assessment. I think it would be a most dangerous precedent. If it once comes to be popularly believed that the introduction of a new settlement is affected by any calamity, then an invasion of locusts or any other large and sudden misfortune will be quoted as a reason for such a postponement. Relief is being given or to be given to the people in the form of tagai for re-sowing, food, clothes, corrugated iron, cheap timber and housing loans. If they get good crops, I see no reason why they should not be asked to pay the proper increase. If they do not get good crops, the increase is foregone in the form of suspensions. The Collector has wide discretion in the matter of granting suspensions.

I know that there will be a very strong demand for the postponement of the new settlement. But then there would have been a strong demand if there had been no floods at all. I do not think therefore that it is advisable to give way to the demand. I would give the same opinion, whatever the state of Viramgam might be. Either, settlements should be introduced punctually or it will be increasingly difficult in the future to introduce them at all."

Memorandum from the Commissioner, N. D., No. S.R.V-90 dated 24th September 1927 :—

"Submitted to Government with reference to their memoranda No. B. dated 30th August 1927 and No. O.-B. dated 5th September 1927 and in continuation of the office No. S.R.V.-90 dated 22nd September 1927.

"2. The Commissioner thinks that though the settlements has already been introduced the old assessments which are less than the new should be levied during the year 1927-28 and the difference between the old and the new assessments in such cases be ordered to be shown as remission and the new assessments with the usual Igatpuri concessions (Government Resolutions No. 3541 dated 4th May 1885, No. 2981 dated 20th April 1886 and No. 2579 dated 30th March 1895) be ordered to take effect from 1928-29. The rise in the rates is considerable and the floods were a very exceptional calamity."

RESOLUTION.—Government approve the Commissioner's proposal that the old assessments which are less than the new should be levied during the year 1927-28 and that the difference between the old and new assessments in such cases should be shown as remissions. They also approve his proposal that the new assessments with the usual Igatpuri concessions should take effect from the year 1928-29.

By order of the Governor in Council,

A. E. SERVAI,
Acting Under Secretary to Government.

DIRECTOR OF AGRICULTURE : VACANCIES IN OFFICE

Mr. B. V. JADHAV on behalf of Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of vacancies in the clerical establishment of the Director of Agriculture's office from the year 1925 to 1927 ;

(b) how many of these were given to backward and intermediate communities ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : A statement containing the information required by the Honourable Member for the backward communities is placed on the Council table. 'Intermediate' castes are not recognised for the purpose of employment in Government service.

Statement showing (1) the total number of permanent and temporary vacancies which occurred in the clerical establishment of the Director of Agriculture from 1st January 1925 to 31st December 1927 and (2) the total number of permanent and temporary vacancies given to backward communities

Number of vacancies which occurred in the clerical establishment of the Director of Agriculture from 1st January 1925 to 31st December 1927		Number of vacancies given to backward communities out of those mentioned in columns (1) and (2) respectively		Remarks
Permanent (1)	Temporary (2)	Permanent (3)	Temporary (4)
7	31 (a)	3	23 (b)	(a) Exclusive of 11 temporary leave vacancies in which no substitutes were appointed. (b) Temporary vacancies were filled in by more than one person consecutively in some cases. Thus the number of persons from backward classes appointed in the 23 vacancies mentioned in column 4 was 28.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: What does the Honourable Minister mean by the reply " Intermediate castes are not recognised for the purpose of employment in Government service ? "

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: There is no such classification as " Intermediate " so far as Government service is concerned. There are only two classes, " advanced " and " backward."

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Under what category are Marathas and allied communities included ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: I think they come in the category of " Backward " communities.

LAND RENTS, IGATPURI

Mr. B. V. JADHAV on behalf of Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the attention of Government has been drawn to the report in the paper Kesari of 7th December 1926 about the grievances of Igatpuri people regarding heavy rents of Rs. 50-6-0 per acre assessed on open lands in that station under the Government Resolution of 1921 ;

(b) if so, whether they intend to reconsider the matter ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Government have now seen the article.

(b) As the question of the non-agricultural rates at Igatpuri was fully examined by Government so late as 1925, they do not now propose to reconsider it.

CROP ASSESSMENT

Mr. B. V. JADHAV on behalf of Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state whether they have received complaints from the irrigators against the present system of levying assessment on the irrigation crops ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Certain complaints from irrigators regarding the operation of those rules of the Bombay Canal Rules, 1922, under which crops are assessed have been received. Any such complaint when received is carefully looked into and decided on its merits.

BUNDING OFFICERS

Mr. B. V. JADHAV on behalf of Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of bunding officers appointed by them for the improvement of lands in all Agricultural Divisions of the Presidency;

(b) where they are posted;

(c) whether any and, if so, which of the Divisions are not yet provided with such bunding officers and the reasons therefor ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) Two.

(b) and (c) Owing to the financial stringency it is not possible to employ any more bunding officers; but the services of the two officers are utilised in whatever division they may be required. They are now working in the Southern and South Central Divisions.

CASUARINA PLANTATIONS

Mr. B. V. JADHAV on behalf of Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Conservator of Forests, S. C., has been asked by them to enquire into the question of abolishing casuarina plantations near village or town sites;

(b) what action they have taken in that connection so far ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) Yes.

(b) A Copy of Government Resolution No. 10277-24, dated 13th February 1928, is placed on the Council table.

GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY

REVENUE DEPARTMENT

Resolution No. 10277-24

Bombay Castle, 13th February 1928

Letter from the Conservator of Forests, S. C., No. 4642 dated 17th November 1927:—

"I have the honour to invite reference to the proposal noted below * of the non-official members of the Forest Grievances Enquiry Committee, and the orders of Government issued under paragraph 5 (XXIV) of Government Resolution, Revenue Department, No. 7324-24 dated 19th July 1927.

*That Casuarina plantations within a quarter of a mile from a village be abolished.

According to the reports† obtained from the Divisional Forest Officers of the Kanara, Western Division and the Kanara Southern Division, the area and the average annual revenue and expenditure of each of the seven casuarina plantations in the Kanara District are as under :—

Division	Name of casuarina plantation	Area	Average annual revenue of past 3 years	Average annual expenditure of past 3 years	Average annual net revenue of past 3 years
		Acres	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
W. D. Kanara ..	Kodibag ..	47·9	566	693	—127‡
	Chitakula ..	165·9	5,580	692	4,888
	Arghe ..	133·0	1,991	720	1,271
	Binge ..	33·8	17	570	—553‡
S. D. Kanara ..	Kasarkod ..	433·10	4,578	868	3,710
	Haldipur ..	151·10	956	246	710
	Harwada ..	105	..	..	..

†Printed as accompaniments to this Resolution.

‡As there were no operations carried out during the last three years in Kodibag and Binge plantations, revenue is not realised.

" 2. For the reasons detailed in the Divisional Forest Officers' reports it is highly undesirable to accept the suggestion of the non-official members to abolish the casuarina plantations. These plantations, particularly in such villages as Baad, Kodibag, Arghe, and Kasarkod, are of positive benefit to the extremely indigent class of people who live in their immediate vicinity, and the nearer they are to the village the greater the benefit. I request that you will be good enough to obtain orders of Government, if necessary, to continue the planting operations in all the seven plantations in future in accordance with the Casuarina Working Plans sanctioned by Government."

Memorandum from the Collector of Kanara No. 2306, dated 23rd November 1927 :—

" Forwarded with compliments."

Memorandum from the Commissioner, S. D., No. F.O.R.—259 dated 5th December 1927 :—

" Passed on with compliments.

" 2. The Commissioner entirely agrees. "

Memorandum from the Chief Conservator of Forests No. 4412 dated 16th December 1927 :—

" Submitted to the Government of Bombay in the Revenue Department, with reference to paragraph 5 (XXIV) of the Government Resolution, Revenue Department, No. 7324/24 dated 19th July 1927, for final orders, which may be issued before the end of March next, so that the arrangements for planting additional areas can be made in time.

Undersigned after seeing the areas and discussing matters with the Divisional Forest Officer, W. D. Kanara (vide his letter C.-457 of 18th October 1927 ; also Divisional Forest Officer) S. D. Kanara's C.-376 of 29th October 1927), entirely concurs with the remarks of the Conservator of Forests, Southern Circle (please vide his No. 4642 dated 17th November 1927). Nothing but harm to Karwar, etc., can result from abolishing these useful and beautiful plantations."

RESOLUTION.—For the reasons given by the Forest Officers Government are pleased to sanction the retention of the seven casuarina plantations in the Kanara District mentioned in the Conservator's letter.

Accompaniments to Government Resolution, Revenue Department, No. 10277/24 dated the 13th February 1928.

Letter from the Divisional Forest Officer, W. D. Kanara, No. C.-457 dated 18th October 1927 to the Conservator of Forests, S.C.

In continuation of this office No. C.-402 dated 15th September 1927, I have the honour to report that according to the proposal put forward by the non-official members of the Kanara Grievance Committee (copy of extract attached), all the four casuarina plantation areas of this Division (viz., Kodibag, Chitakula, Binge and Arghe) become the subject of discussion, as they are all situated within a quarter of a mile from the respective village sites.

2. Before it is possible to arrive at any definite decision in this matter, the whole question will have to be seriously considered from every point of view. With this in mind, I beg to submit the following points which, in my opinion, constitute sufficiently important grounds for indicating that the abolition of these plantations cannot possibly be considered in any favourable light, by Government :—

(a) The annual revenue derived from these plantations is approximately Rs. 8,000 and this is increasing each year on account of the large demand for this kind of fuel. Casuarina grows exceedingly quickly and brings in a handsome return in a short rotation—it therefore constitutes one of the principal sources of revenue of this Division, and if this means of revenue were stopped it would be a very serious matter.

(b) These plantations, being confined entirely to the long narrow tracts of pure deep sand along the sea coast, are a successful means of preventing erosion from abnormally high tides.

(c) During the monsoon, these plantations, serve as an effective screen against the exceptionally heavy wind and rains. In addition, by reason of the protection afforded by these narrow shelter belts, the villagers in the immediate vicinity are able to extend their areas of cultivation to a greater distance seawards than they would otherwise be able to do in the event of such protection not being so afforded.

(d) The existing belt of casuarina along the sea coast is a valuable asset from the point of view of landscape amenity.

3. In regard to the question as to whether the retention of these plantations would be in any way detrimental to the interests of the village communities, the following points suggest that the answer may be considered as being in the negative :—

(a) Since the areas upon which these plantations have been raised were originally large barren sandy wastes in the absence of any tree-growth, they would quickly revert to their former state, and be totally unfit for any purpose since they could not be cultivated or used as grazing areas.

(b) Owing to the protection afforded by these plantations in the Chitakula area a certain amount of grass has been induced to grow. The villagers being really in need of extra grazing facilities recently petitioned for permission to graze their cattle in this plantation. I have therefore allowed this concession under certain conditions (sanctioned by you in your No. 2486 dated 10th August 1927).

(c) In the areas where these plantations now exist there does not appear to be any need felt by the public for extension of the village sites. As stated in my No. C./401 dated 15th September 1927, during the past three years only one complaint was received from villagers regarding any grazing hardships due to the existence of these casuarina plantations in the vicinity of habitation. This grievance was settled recently, as stated in the preceding sub-paragraph.

4. In view of the above points which I beg to submit are, in themselves, sufficiently important grounds to show that Government must decide to exempt these casuarina plantations from the proposals put forward by the non-official members of the Kanara Grievance Committee, I beg to request that a definite ruling may be obtained in respect of this subject in order that the necessary plantation work may be carried out next year as in the past.

Letter from the Divisional Forest Officer, S. D., Kanara, No. C./376 dated 28th October 1927 to the Conservator of Forests, S. C.

With reference to your No. 4132 of 22nd October 1927 I have the honour to report that there are casuarina plantations at (1) Kasarkod, (2) Haldipur and (3) Harwada in this Division. The plantations in all these places, so far from being sources of inconvenience to the villagers concerned, are actually a source of great profit to them, as in addition to providing large amounts in wages in connection with planting and felling operations for the villagers, they provide also cheap and in many cases free fuel for the poorer inhabitants who collect the leaves and cones and twigs. No complaints about these have therefore been ever received from the villagers concerned.

As regards their abolition, there is no case at all on the alleged ground of inconvenience to the villagers; though some officers are of opinion that we should concentrate on teak plantations and leave the casuarina alone. Where the raising of casuarina has been financially justified (as at Kasarkod) it appears to me, however, that the only valid reason for scrapping the plantations would be a strong demand for the land now covered by them, for some form of cultivation which will benefit both Government and the community as a whole, more than the casuarina plantations do at present. There is only one such form of cultivation suitable for the areas, namely, cocoanut cultivation; and the demand for this does not at present appear to be sufficiently strong. If and when does become strong, the area covered by the casuarina plantations could be gradually given up for cocoanut plantation.

FOREST LANDS, SHAHADA TALUKA : GRANTS TO MAHOMEDANS

Mr. G. A. D. WASIF (Central Division): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware of the address presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bombay by the Mahomedans of West Khandesh when His Excellency visited Dhulia last ;

(b) whether in their address the Mahomedans made a request to Government to grant them some portion of the forest land of the taluka of Shahada for agricultural purposes ;

(c) whether they were promised sympathetic consideration of their request ;

(d) how many acres have been allotted to the Mahomedans ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a), (b) and (c) Yes.

(d) It was proposed to establish a small Mahomedan colony at Ganor and 600 acres of forest land were selected for the purpose and divided into 60 plots of 10 acres each. The Mahomedans, however, wanted a settlement for 150 khatedars at least with an allotment of 30 to 50 acres for each khatedar. This was impossible, as no more land was available in this locality. It was also found that no water could be made available.

There is a large area of revenue waste in the Navapur Taluka, and the Collector will make fresh inquiries as to whether any Mahomedans will be willing to settle there.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Is the original offer.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : What offer ?

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Is the original offer made as regards Navapur taluka still available ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I cannot say definitely but I should think it is.

LIMITED COMPANIES : LIQUIDATION

Mr G. A. D. WASIF (Central Division): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many limited companies have been registered in Bombay under the Indian Companies Act during the last 20 years ;

(b) how many of these have been liquidated or are under liquidation ;

(c) what was the loss that had to be sustained by the shareholders as a result of such liquidation ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) and (b) A statement showing the required information is placed on the Council Table.

(c) Companies are liquidated not merely because they are unable to meet their obligations but for other reasons also, e.g. for the purposes of realising capital profit, of reconstruction and of amalgamation. Even in cases where a company is liquidated on account of losses, it cannot be stated what the losses to individual shareholders are. Except in the case of companies liquidated by the Court or by private liquidators, where some material might be obtained by searching the liquidators' accounts, accounts are usually not available. In the circumstances it is not possible for Government to furnish any useful figures in reply to this part of the question.

DEMANDS FOR GRANTS

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Sir, I beg to move the motion of which I have given notice, namely :

"Reduce by Rs. 100 the amount of Rs. 13 lakhs for the University."

My object in moving this motion is to enter a strong protest against the proposal of Government to increase the fees in Government schools and colleges. Sir, I know the feeling of the honourable members of this House ; they want to go to an important question arising out of the present situation at Bardoli ; but I submit that this is an equally important matter and stands on its merits. With a view therefore to enable the House to reach the Bardoli question, which Honourable Members are so very desirous to discuss before the guillotine is applied, I shall be very brief in moving my motion !

Sir, the proposal of the Government is not merely to raise the fees in Arts colleges but in professional colleges and technical colleges also ; they also want to increase the fees in secondary schools. Sir, it is also proposed to increase the fees of the architectural section of the Sir J. J. School of Art. The object of the Government in making this increase in the fees, is stated on page 81 of the Blue Book ; it is stated there :

"The increase of 1,07 next year under this head as compared with the current year's budget is due to the proposed increase in the rates of fees in Government Arts and Professional Colleges which Government propose to levy in order to reduce the net cost to the State of educating students in these institutions which has been found to be abnormally high as compared with the similar cost to Government in the case of aided institutions."

The same reason has been given for increasing the fees in secondary schools and in the architectural section of the Sir J. J. School of Art, as appears from paragraphs 151 and 153 of the Blue Book.

Sir, the increased cost to Government as regards these institutions is not a new thing. The increased cost has been in existence for so many years. If Government want to make greater provision for primary education, it must not be done at the cost of higher or secondary education because secondary and higher education is the most important factor in the present state of education. On examining the result of the present system and policy of education we find that of the students attending the Primary schools only 10 per cent. are able to take advantage of secondary education, and 90 per cent. of the pupils who go to primary schools turn out to be illiterate. This is a fact admitted by Government and in the annual report of the Director of Public Instruction for the year 1924-25, on page 80 it is stated as follows :

"The chief problem which to-day confronts educationalists and statesmen alike is the removal of illiteracy. As shown elsewhere, only some ten per cent. of the boys who enter a Primary school become literate, and it is generally believed of those who become literate by far the greater number, anyhow in the villages relapse into illiteracy. The problem thus is not only to make the people literate, but to keep them literate."

[Mr. S. C. Joshi]

If this is the state of affairs as admitted by the department, then certainly Government should take also as much care of secondary and higher education as they do of primary education.

The effect of increasing the fees will be not only on the Government colleges and schools and the students attending Government institutions but also on private colleges and schools and the students attending these private institutions. It is one of the rules of the department, I understand, that the fees in private institutions recognised by Government must not be less than two-thirds of the fees prescribed by Government in their own institutions. That is also stated in the annual report from which I just quoted. On page 17 of the report it is stated :

" All recognised schools are required to charge not less than two-thirds of the fees charged in Government schools. "

The result of the proposal of Government will be that middle class parents will be unable to educate their children in secondary schools and colleges. So, it is not desirable that such an increase in the fees should be made. If they want to run Government institutions on commercial lines, let them do so ; or, if they do not want to run them at all, then they may close some of the institutions. I might welcome that. But to increase the fees in Government colleges and schools, and thereby to allow to be made a proportionate increase in the fees of the private institutions is certainly a measure which ought to be condemned by everybody here. So far as middle class people are concerned, this is a measure against which a strong protest will be raised. Sir, the effect of this increase in fees will be to prevent middle class youths getting secondary and higher education. Another serious consequence of the proposal will be to make higher education a monopoly of the rich. We find to-day what difficulties poor students, who have the brains and intellect, experience in getting education, and how difficult it is for them to find out ways and means to pay their fees. We know, Sir, how every now and then poor students of the middle class have to go from place to place in order to ask money for their fees, and how they are treated by the men whom they approach.

It is not clear to what extent Government intend to increase the fees. It appears, however from the figures published at page 81 of the Blue Book that, so far as the colleges are concerned, the increase in the revenue on account of increased fees will be about a lakh of rupees over the total collection of Rs. 3,85,000 of the last year ; so the average increase over the present scale of fees will be not less than 30 per cent. In the case of schools also it appears from the Blue Book that the average increase in the present scale of fees will be about 46 per cent. There has been an enormous increase in the fees during the past few years. It would have been proper if any proposals for increasing the fees had been placed before the House. We would then have been in a position to know what the increase would have amounted to. As appears from the Blue Book, the increase proposed by Government is too high an increase, and therefore I hope that all the non-official honourable members will support me and oppose this proposal of the Government.

[Mr. S. C. Joshi]

This question is of utmost importance and stands on its own merits. And therefore in deference to the wishes of my honourable friends for reaching the Bardoli questions, I do not wish to say anything more and take up the time of the House. I merely say that I must emphatically protest against the proposed scheme of Government.

Question proposed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, Government have fleeced the University in two ways. Not only have they cut down Rs. 2,10,000 from the University budget—the University budget last year was Rs. 19,34,000; they have cut it down and put it at Rs. 17,24,000—but they want to get an additional income by raising the fees in colleges to the tune of Rs. 1,07,000. That is to say, Government are cutting down expenditure on the University and at the same time want to take more money from the students. Thus Government are cutting both ways like a double edged knife. I cannot make out how, when the expenses have been cut down, they can complain of increasing cost to Government in Government institutions. If the cost of maintaining Government institutions is high, I think they have themselves to blame for it. Why do they retain the white elephant like the principal foisted on the Gujarat College and pay exorbitant salaries to persons like him? They raise the cost of education by giving high salaries to European professors and they want to fleece students by increasing the fees. They are cutting both ways: that is my complaint. Just now Indians are available in every department of the educational sphere. The Honourable Minister can obtain at a much less salary Indians who would be willing to do the work much more efficiently than the European professors to whom he is paying high salaries, and in that way he can reduce the cost of maintenance. Instead of proceeding on the right path, he is going to put additional taxation on the students. I think this was the last thing that this House expected from an Indian Minister. I hope he will withdraw the proposal for increasing the fees of the students.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD (Poona City): Sir, I support my honourable friend Mr. Joshi. I will be very brief. I do not know, Sir, on whose recommendation or at whose instance the Honourable Minister for Education has increased the fees in high schools and colleges. The ostensible reason given is that the expenses in Government schools and institutions are higher than in aided schools and colleges. Personally I do not think, Sir, that that is the real reason. The real reason to my mind is that Government want to bring in the economic law of supply and demand into operation, namely, when the supply is greater than the demand we have to curtail the supply. So, they want possibly to make higher education more expensive. The scale of fees in secondary schools and high schools in the Bombay Presidency per boy, according to the latest report, is Rs. 44 for Government in Government schools. I am told it is much less in aided schools. This cost of Rs. 44 per boy is higher than the scale of fees in any other province in India; it is higher than the scale of fees in the Central Provinces, Bengal and Madras. As regards colleges, according to the latest report, the total expenditure on arts colleges is Rs. 16,65,909, and out of that about Rs. 9,10,000 are raised by fees. So, as a matter of fact, already the college students are contributing to the Government by way of fees more than 50 per cent. In England, I am told, that the cost of education at Oxford raised from fees is only 15 per cent. Even in a rich country like England the cost borne by the students forms only 15 per cent. and 85 per cent. is borne by the State.....

Mr. C. W. A. TURNER : Sir, I think my honourable friend is wrong. It may be that 15 per cent. only is paid by fees, but the rest is paid from endowments.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD : That may be, but I am correct so far that the fees only contribute 15 per cent. But in a poor country like India, fees contribute 50 per cent. Now, that is only as regards arts colleges. In the law college, the fees raised are more than the expenses. The total amount of fees raised in law college amounted to Rs. 62,670, and the expenditure was Rs. 52,369. So that, the law college is more than paying itself. The cost of medical colleges is not available. The only college where Government bear a high percentage of the expenditure is the Engineering College, but that is the only college which gives the largest number of recruits to Government for employment in Government service. For these reasons, I think there is no reason for increasing the fees in the arts colleges especially taking into consideration the poverty of India, I believe we will not be justified in increasing the fees in high schools and colleges.

I am not one of those who think that Government high schools and colleges should be abolished altogether. I think it is necessary that both Government high schools and Government colleges should be maintained to serve as model schools and colleges for private and aided schools and colleges.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : You think they are more efficient than the private ones.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD : There was at one time a proposal—I think it was in the year 1885 in the time of Lord Reay, a popular Governor and a most distinguished educationist—to abolish the Deccan College and hand it over to the Deccan Education Society, but that proposal was vetoed and it was ultimately decided that the Deccan College should be maintained as a model college to serve as a model to the other aided institutions and colleges. Now, the reasons given by the Honourable Minister is that persons who are getting an income of Rs. 60 per month and above are not poor. Now, I ask him how many persons there are in the Bombay Presidency whose income is more than Rs. 60 per month. I doubt whether the number is more than 2,00,000. I doubt whether it would be even that. Now, it is all right for those who draw large and fat salaries to spend about Rs. 10 or Rs. 15 per boy, but for those who draw a salary of Rs. 60 or Rs. 70, to maintain one or two boys in a school or a college at that cost is very hard indeed. I know the hardships of the poor. If you increase the fees in the high schools that will indirectly be discouraging collegiate education also. Unless you complete your high school education you cannot get admission in the colleges. And if the fees in colleges are also raised, then that means putting a handicap on poverty. The poor students have to struggle very hard already. Poverty has already many disadvantages, and if you increase fees you will be adding to those disadvantages. So, I submit that no case has been made out for raising the fees in schools and colleges. Now, what is the amount the Honourable Minister wants to raise ? He wants to raise Rs. 2,00,000, Rs. 1,00,000 by raising fees in high schools and Rs. 1,00,000 by raising fees in colleges. I believe that in a budget totalling two crores, he can certainly manage to dispense with Rs. 2,00,000, especially if he can adopt the procedure suggested by my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan. Why do you want to maintain professors with fat salaries, when a man like Dr. Paranjpye was willing to work in the Fergusson College on a salary of Rs. 150 per month ? Can we not get persons who are prepared to make some self-sacrifice in the cause of education ? I think the raising of fees is not at all proper. If the cost is higher for maintaining the schools and colleges, I would ask Government why they should not curtail the expenses instead of increasing the fees.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Sir, I move for a closure. (At this stage both Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad and the Honourable Dewan Bahadur Harilal D. Desai stood up.)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member, Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad, has stood up to speak on this question. So, may I know if the Honourable the Minister for Education wants to speak before him in order to clear some points ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Yes, Sir. In the first instance, I would submit that it cannot be denied by anyone in this honourable House that the tone of education both in secondary schools and colleges has been going down and down. It was with a view to raising the efficiency of the aided institutions, to effect improvement in teaching and also in equipment, that this question of raising fees has been considered by Government. Along with that the other question was about the commitment of Government—the statutory commitment of Government with regard to the primary education. After that commitment, Government cannot afford to find as much money as may be required for the aided collegiate institutions as well as aided secondary institutions and the resources of these aided institutions are very limited and I know personally from the managers of certain aided collegiate institutions as well as the secondary institutions that they cannot take a lead in the matter of raising fees, unless Government give them the lead in this respect.

The position with reference to the tone of education is quite noticeable from a report of examiners in English in the second half year of 1926. The purport of that report is that out of 570 candidates, who appeared for the B.A. examination, half the number was quite unfit to stand the test and the other half were quite unfit to be in B.A. They said :

"There are many mistakes in grammar and spelling and many have left the university without grasping the nature and use of articles, the distinction between the articles, active and passive and proper use of synonym."

Many take to English without any aptitude. They also stated that they found such specimens in the English voluntary subject which some of the students had taken. That being so, it is necessary to raise the tone of education, to help aided institutions and also to give a lead to them, so that they may be able to raise their fees. The cost to Government per pupil in the Elphinstone College comes to 60 per cent. and in the Deccan College it is 83 per cent., whereas in the Government secondary schools the cost comes to Government to about 61·4 per cent.

Under these circumstances it is essential that we should raise the fees in Government institutions that we may be able to spare something for the aided institutions. What we find at present is that there are so many claims for grants from the aided secondary and collegiate institutions that we are unable to meet all their claims or to the extent to which the rules allow on account of want of funds. We cannot make sufficient provision for grants in the budget owing to financial circumstances. Therefore, I would submit that Government considered this question on the ground that no improvement in the efficiency of teaching in secondary and collegiate institutions, which are aided, would be possible unless their resources were increased, and that could only be done by raising the fees, whereby Government will have to devote a less percentage of cost per pupil for Government institutions. They will thus be released of some burden and the savings therefrom will be available for aided institutions. Besides, the collegiate institutions by raising the fees will be able to pay their professors better, to have better equipment, to improve the standard of teaching and also to increase their resources, so that even for grants they will have to rely on us less than to the extent to which they have to rely at present. I, therefore, say, Sir, that in view of the references that I have made just now to the opinion of the examiners in English papers, who were all Indian gentlemen, the lowering of the standard of teaching in schools and colleges is really a menace to the true education and if we want to raise the standard of teaching, we should increase the fees and allow only those who can afford to take to secondary and college education. Then only we can keep up the proper standard of teaching. In England the class of people who would never think of taking to secondary or college education, have taken to that in India.

Under these circumstances this Council has a choice whether to raise the standard by raising fees or whether to allow the standard to go low and low. I for one am in favour of improving the standard of teaching and improving the standard of examination.

My honourable friend has told us that if we raise the fees, the poor students will suffer. At present we have got a system of freeships and also of scholarships. It may be that in view of the raising of fees, the

[Dewan Bahadur Harilal D. Desai]

Government may have to raise the number of freeships, half-freeships and scholarships available for the poor on account of merit and merit alone. I submit, Sir, that this would be a better way of approaching the matter rather than allowing the matter to drift as at present.

I am of course unable to see my way to give any assurance to my honourable friend on this question, but as the debate has disclosed the views of some honourable members of this Council, before passing final orders Government will take them into consideration.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Sir, I cannot help remarking that I see the shade of Sir Pherozeshah Mehta hovering round in this Housea nd casting a fierce glance at the Minister; I remember a debate about college fees raised some 15 years ago in this Council. At that time the late Sir Pherozeshah Mehta and almost all the non-official members were up in arms against the policy of Government in raising fees in colleges. But to-day I am surprised to see that we do not find many supporters from the non-official members for the cut moved by my honourable friend Mr. Joshi, as a protest against the policy of the Minister in raising such fees, except the professor from Ahmedabad, who is always ready to take up the cause of the poor, being himself a poor man with a lakh of rupees in his pocket.

I, Sir, am very much surprised and pained to hear that an increase in fees has been resolved upon by the Minister. Sir, before deciding this question an opportunity ought to have been given to this House by the Minister to criticise the same. It is a very important matter and I think it is the duty of every honourable member sitting upon this side of the House to carefully examine and not easily to pass or allow it to be passed. Sir, if there is a financial stringency, if the Government wants more money, it is not the poor students who should be fleeced by it; Government ought to find money from other sources than these poor creatures. Sir, how will the poor and deserving students ever get a chance to go to the colleges if the policy of Government be to make education dearer and dearer every day? Sir, this policy will press more heavily upon the backward classes than upon the advanced classes. I remember a time when students from the Brahmin and other advanced communities were educated free. They took full advantage of it. Now the backward classes are being awakened only to find the doors of colleges shut against them. Sir, not merely the backward classes, but even the advanced classes will suffer, by the policy, because I understand the principal means of subsistence of the advanced classes like the Brahmins is education, English education, and, therefore, Sir, that class will particularly suffer. You are going to increase the fees in your institutions, and also you declare you are indirectly compelling the aided institutions to do the same. You leave no loop-hole for the poor to escape. I maintain, Sir, that higher education on the whole will suffer, as the result of the policy of the Minister and I believe there are other honourable members who are ready to echo my voice. I assert, Sir, that, there is no country where higher education is more costly than in India. Take Japan. Where education is very cheap. Japan is the country we should follow. Take

[Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad]

Germany. Higher education there is dirt cheap. Even in England, as the honourable member the Secretary himself admitted, the fees do not amount to more than 15 per cent. in Cambridge. But in colleges, like Birmingham and Manchester, the fees are lower still. So that, I do not understand the policy of Government in coming upon the poor students. And, mind you, in this time of unemployment, in this time of stringency, general falling off in the trade, the poor students will be very hard hit. The university has increased its fees already. You should not be in a hurry to increase fees in your colleges and high schools. I think, Sir, it is a very bad policy and the House should turn it down. The traditional attitude of this House has been always to oppose Government in raising more fees from the students of colleges. I do not know whether the Honourable Minister has read the report of the Education Commission of 1884. There he will find professors like Wordsworth and Bhandarkar, all opposing the policy of Government in raising fees. Sir, I was perfectly astonished to find among the chief reasons for raising fees the students' deficiency in English. The Minister says he was very much impressed by the argument that students are deficient in English grammar and accent. Why, Sir, does not the Honourable Minister remember that we are shortly going to have linguistic universities ? Does he not remember that the policy of Government is to make vernaculars more and more studied in colleges and schools ? There is no wonder, that our students are sometimes deficient in English, the wonder is that so many of them are so proficient in that subject. We must not make a fetish of English language. English is not the only thing which matters. We have got many other things to consider. Therefore, if there is a little falling off in accent and grammar among our boys we must not conclude that the world is coming to an end. That certainly could be remedied in many ways. I do say that the policy of employing highly paid officers is not very satisfactory. If Indians of high qualifications can be had, I do not see why Indians should not be employed in preference to Englishmen. I think it was a very reasonable suggestion that came forward from the honourable professor Swaminarayan. I do not mean to say that those English professors who are already in the service should be dismissed. We shall require them for some time yet. But I do say that the policy of Government should be to utilise more and more Indian agency and thus cheapen the educational system. My object, Sir, in rising is again to make a strong protest against this policy of Government to raise fees. I say in the first place that the Educational Department is the last department to which Government should come for revenue. Secondly, as regards universities and colleges, poor students are the last persons from whom more fees should be levied. With these words I strongly protest against the policy of Government and I say it should be turned down by passing this cut.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Sir, I rise to oppose this cut. On a former occasion, Sir, I have stated my reasons why I support the policy of the Honourable Minister in raising the fees for the higher and secondary education. It has been a very popular cry, Sir, to lower the fees and thus show that one cares for the poor students. It has been a very general cry all round and the shades of Sir Pherozeshah and other worthis are invoked on such occasions. But the honourable Mahomedan member from Poona, Moulvi Saheb, is always fond of quoting the University Commission's report, the Sadler Commission's report.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Not the Sadler Commission's report; I referred to the Education Commission's report of 1884.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: I know that. But the honourable member has always been fond of quoting the Sadler Commission's report. On this occasion the honourable member has very conveniently forgotten it. There, Sir, in that report the woeful plight of Bengal has been described. It shows what large number of graduates are turned out every year out of all proportion to the demand in the province, and also the heavy product from the high schools. This is the result in Bengal. Is this a healthy condition of the education system where the head is swollen and the feet and legs are very weak and emaciated ?

The situation in India is like this. A very few communities have been educated at the cost of the British Government with the result that the development of the people is not even, but is very uneven. This has led to the deterioration rather than to the progress of the country at large. I am not at all surprised to find that the University examiners complain that the majority of the students that go to the colleges are not capable of taking full advantage of university education. We find that a boy, who has completed his vernacular education, automatically slips into the middle school, then into the high school and anyhow he scrapes through the matriculation examination. After that he goes to the Arts College because education there is generally rather cheap and he comes out a finished graduate. I find that nearly 60 per cent. of these graduates are not sound and I would go so far as to say that the money spent on them is merely wasted. Very great sympathy has been shown for poor students, and I know from experience that it is the poor students only who derive most benefit from college education. But there are limits to this sympathy. The poor students are generally very hard-working and do credit for the education they get. But in these days of severe competition it is the poor students who suffer most by going to the colleges. They work there for a couple of years and on account of stress of circumstances, they have to give it up or take up some private tuitions. They have to work hard in order to make both ends meet and as the fees are rather light, they succeed in managing somehow; but the heavy strain certainly tells upon their health. It is very rarely you find that they are able to finish their course. The remedy suggested by the Honourable the Minister for Education is certainly acceptable namely, the granting of a larger number of free-ships and half-freeships in colleges and high schools, by which means the meritorious and the intelligent poor people will be greatly benefitted. It is not necessary that the grandson of the Maharaja Gaekwad should pay the same fees as the son of the poor citizen. In the Deccan College, of which much has been said here, you find mostly the sons of rich people. To lower the fees there would be absurd. We find that the Deccan College is intended mainly for residential students and it is taken advantage of by the sons of aristocratic families because the college expenses are too high for poor students. If Government will continue their policy of providing a large number of scholarships for poor people as they have been doing, the money spent in this direction will be utilised to good purpose and much of the hardships of the poor class of students in colleges and high schools will be mitigated to a great extent. I therefore have great pleasure in opposing the cut.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO.(Larkana District): Sir, I must say that I am surprised at the argument of my honourable friend, the leader of the Non-Brahmin Party, who opposes this cut. He is in a way supporting the present attitude of Government in increasing fees whereas every section of the public has been opposing that policy on the ground of the economic condition of the people. In particular the backward classes and Mahomedans will be the people who will be most adversely affected. I therefore support the motion.

Mr. N. R. GUNJAL (Poona District): Sir, I am surprised to hear the speech of my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav. Far from supporting a policy of high fees, he should have, both as a lover of education for the masses and as a leader of the Non-Brahmin Party which he is supposed to represent, said that the policy of increasing fees in the Deccan College is or appears to be the right policy. Formerly Rs. 10 used to be the fee in the Deccan College. In Lord Reay's time it appears to have been reduced. The present tendency of the people is to ask for more and more of English education at a reduced cost. It is therefore all the more regrettable that the ex-Minister of Education should have opposed the cut. The intention with which my honourable friend Mr. Joshi has moved this cut is very good. Therefore I support his motion.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI: Sir, I have very little to say in reply. The information supplied in the Blue Book is very scanty, and I was not at all satisfied with the propriety or reasonableness of the proposal. I had come here with a quite open mind and although I have listened with great attention to the explanation given by the Honourable the Minister for Education and also by the Honourable the Ex-Minister for Education (Mr. Jadhav), I must confess that I have been sorely disappointed. I do not think it necessary to discuss the points raised by the Honourable Minister. In short I may say that those explanations go a long way in supporting my contention. One object of the Government as appears from the speech of the Honourable Minister, is that only the sons of rich people should be able to receive the education imparted in the colleges and secondary schools. Another object of Government as it appears to me is to have indirect taxation on the people with a view to get more funds for the primary education. Indirect taxation is certainly the worst way of taxing the people and has been condemned on more than one occasion. The present proposals amount to nothing but to impose indirect taxation on the people, who want education. The tax will mostly fall on the very people who can ill afford to pay it. Every one knows full well how the ill-paid middle class people have to pay a very large proportion of their monthly income for the education of their children. On this ground alone, if for nothing else, the motion I have moved deserves the support of the House and the fees should be reduced. You say that you want to make primary education free and compulsory. In the same breath you make the higher education more costly than it is now. I do not see the consistency of it. I hope therefore the House will support my motion and that the motion for the cut will be passed.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Sir, I may at once inform my honourable friend the mover of the motion that it has never been the intention of Government to close the doors of schools and colleges to any one. On what grounds this question has been considered, I have stated before. If the fees in colleges and secondary schools are not raised, the result will be that many of the aided institutions will have to close down. Many managers of these institutions have been coming up to me for grants which, on account of limited provision in the budget, I am unable to give. The only way to meet this situation is to raise the fees, whereby the expenses of Government colleges and schools will be less to Government, and all that money which will be saved in that way will be capable of being devoted for grants to aided institutions whose resources also will be increasesd by this proposal. Whenever the manager of a private institution approached me for increased grant, I asked him why he did not raise the fees. The reply was "We do not dare to do it unless Government increase the fees in their schools."

Sir, I had no intention of referring to personal matters. However, as my honourable friend has misunderstood the whole situation, I beg to say that in my private capacity as chairman of a trust, for the last nine years the trust has been helping poor students studying at the local institutions in Ahmedabad with fees, books, etc., and last year the trust helped 125 students of the Gujarat College, out of 550 to 600 students with fees and books. In picking up these people for help, only those for instance who had obtained more than 50 per cent. marks in the matriculation examination were taken up, and the rest though poor were rejected. In spite of that, the results were less than 50 per cent. at the examinations. So that, it will be seen that material which is not fit for taking up secondary and collegiate education, has been going towards it. That has been more or less of a craze. Consequently, the only way to help aided institutions and to improve efficiency is this. As I have said before, I have no intention of closing the schools and colleges to poor people. More freeships, half-freeships and scholarships will be given. At present the scholarships to backward classes amount to Rs. 5,27,000. Under these circumstances, as I have already said Government will take into consideration the debate that has taken place. In view of that I hope the honourable mover will withdraw his motion.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: May I ask what will be the percentage of scholarships that Government are going to give?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: We have not determined that yet.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District): Sir, I beg to move:

Reduce by Rs. 1,00,000 total demand Rs. 2,02,26,000.

Sir, my object in moving this cut is to raise a discussion on the policy of Government regarding primary education. Since the Act of 1922 was passed, nothing has been done by Government to give effect to that Act passed by this Council. For the last five or six years no practical effect has been given by Government to the Act passed by this legislature to make education free and compulsory in this presidency. When the predecessor of the present Honourable Minister, namely Dr. Paranjpye, moved in this honourable House the bill for making education free and compulsory, he very clearly stated in the course of the debate that primary education would be made free and compulsory in this presidency in the course of ten years, and that it would involve an expenditure to Government of 40 lakhs in the case of district local boards and 13 lakhs in the case of municipalities. In the case of municipalities Government was to contribute half (that is 13 lakhs by Government and 13 lakhs by municipalities); in the case of district local boards, the cost was to be shared in the proportion of two-thirds and one-third, two-thirds by Government and one-third by district local boards (that is to say, 40 lakhs by Government and 20 lakhs by the district local boards). What we find is that with the exception of four district local boards, all the district local boards have taken over the control of primary education. Most of the district local boards have appointed a special officer to investigate into the question of introducing free and compulsory primary education. In the Press Note issued by the Honourable Minister it was stated that 45 schemes for extension on a voluntary basis have been submitted. I do not know the number exactly, but some schemes were submitted for extension on compulsory basis. But, Sir, the difficulty is this. At the time when the Compulsory Education Act was not in vogue, that is prior to 1922, Government used to contribute to the extent of 88 per cent. of the cost of primary education in district local board areas and to the extent of about 50 per cent. in municipalities. But after this Compulsory Education Act Government decided that in future they would give the same amount of the grant that they used to give to the district local board at that date and in addition two-thirds of any extra expenditure for primary education either on a voluntary basis or on a compulsory basis. From my experience of the last five years, it appears to me that the idea of Government behind it probably was to throw the whole responsibility for primary education on local bodies and get out of the muddle. The idea probably is not to spend a substantial sum towards primary education. Before the Act was passed, schemes on a voluntary basis used to be given effect to immediately. Now, after the passing of the Compulsory Primary Education Act we find that the schemes are held up in the Government Secretariat for years and years. There have been bitter complaints from most of the district local boards and municipalities that they do not get even sufficient building grants for building primary schools and that they do not get Government's share for extension even on a voluntary basis. The local bodies have to run the whole show on their own responsibility and to spend from their own resources. Government have not been contributing their share and everything is kept in abeyance. If we see the figures prior to the reforms and after the reforms, we find that the reforms have not produced any effect on primary education in the presidency. Government have rather been very slack in spreading primary education more than ever. The figures I am going to quote are very interesting. Sir, the number of pupils in 1919-20, the year before the reforms, in this presidency was 8,18,440, whereas after a period of eight years of reforms, we find the number is only 9,71,105. That means that the increase has only been

[Mr. M. S. Khuhro]

[Mr. M. S. Khuhro]

1,52,655. Now, this increase is largely due to the efforts of the Bombay Municipality which has introduced compulsory primary education in two of their wards. Another reason for this increase is that most of the municipalities have now taken over institutions which formerly used to be run by private persons or associations.

If we were to look into the figures for the year 1922-23 you will find the number of primary schools was 13,456, at present it is about 14,000. This is also due to the fact that the Bombay Corporation has contributed much to this scheme. As regards the activities in this direction, so far as the funds are concerned, I find that only Rs. 48 lakhs more are spent than what was spent one year before the reforms ; out of this about Rs. 8 lakhs are given to the Bombay Corporation. Therefore, the increase, really speaking, in the grants is not much in the Bombay Presidency. If we compare the figures of grants made last year with those of this year, you will find that the Honourable the Minister for Education has only succeeded in getting Rs. 4 lakhs extra for the primary education, both voluntary and compulsory. This appears to be very ridiculous. There should have been more funds at the disposal of the Honourable Minister for giving more grants for the compulsory education.

Sir, when the Primary Education Act was passed, all sorts of hopes were given to this honourable House and a glowing picture was painted. We were told then that if the local boards did not come forward with their own schemes, the Government would even take the initiative in appointing an officer of their own and ask him to collect statistics and make a report, for each local authority, and Government would insist upon introducing the compulsion in areas approved gradually. Now, what do we find ? We find that the local boards have come forward with their schemes, they are prepared to bear their own share, and those schemes have been forwarded to Government for sanction. What has happened to those schemes ? I am sorry to say that the schemes have been thrown in a waste paper basket by Government. I would give one instance in this respect and that is of my own local board, I mean the local board of Larkana. This local board has taken an initiative in this matter. They have undertaken the responsibility of starting primary education in Larkana. But Government do not come forward with their share. They say : " The funds are not available at present, and you will have to wait for some time. " That is what is happening at present. When Government do not want to help any cause, they push it aside on some technical objection or some such ground.

Under these circumstances, I submit, Sir, that it is very difficult that any advance can be made in respect of full compulsory education in the Bombay Presidency. I think under these circumstances it will take about 50 years to achieve this object.

Now, I shall come to the secondary education. What steps have been taken by Government to improve this ? We find that all institutions—aided institutions, Government institutions and other institutions—are all starving in this matter. I have got an experience about this. We made several complaints to the Honourable Minister that some institutions are not getting adequate grants and the Honourable Minister gave the same reply of having no funds. I think that he should increase the grants of the institutions, at least these grants should be given in accordance with the rules. I say "Government should give what is due to each institution." But that is not done at all. I shall give you one instance. There is one academy school in Karachi about which I had a discussion with the Honourable Minister and have often put questions in the Council. That school has been educating at present about 300 boys, who are Urdu and Gujerathi speaking. There are no facilities provided in any other school in Karachi except in this school, for the Urdu speaking boys though there may be for Gujarati speaking in one or two schools. For this school a legitimate demand for a grant of Rs. 4,000 was made last year, but Government reduced it to Rs. 2,000. It is most surprising that for such a useful school in Karachi, Government instead of increasing the grant have felt it advisable to reduce it. This year they have rightly demanded a grant of Rs. 5,000 for the current year's expenses and I hope the Minister will sanction it as he promised a few days back. Therefore, you will find that the secondary education in the Bombay Presidency is also starving.

Therefore, I say that it is a very serious question for this Council to consider. This Council should know the policy of Government in regard to education. Government should come forward and tell this House what their policy in regard to education is. As it is, I do not think that Government would be able to carry out the policy as laid down in the Primary Education Act. At least for some years to come, Government will not be able to do much in this respect on account of want of funds.

(At this stage Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI crossed the floor of the House.)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. The honourable member has distinctly violated the rule.

(Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI resumes his seat.)

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO: Therefore, I say, Sir, that it is for the Honourable Minister to come forward and lay down his cards on the table as regards the policy of education. Government should effect retrenchment in other departments, but they should provide more money for education. The Honourable Minister and Government know that all the resources of revenue have been tapped and people will not be willing to pay extra taxation. He must therefore insist upon retrenchment in the reserved department to effect a saving for utilizing it on education.

Question proposed.

THE THAKOR OF KERWADA (Northern Division): Sir, I rise to support the motion for cut moved by my honourable friend Mr. Khuhro. As a matter of fact, a good deal more should be done for education. I am really anxious to see that Government should define their policy of education; they should clearly make a statement to this effect. I can say, Sir, that Government have not kept their promises given to local boards, when the Primary Education Act was passed. At present I find that their policy is only to cut down the grants from time to time.

[The Thakore of Kerwada]

To-day I have not got the figures to quote here, but I know that the Honourable Minister was once connected with a local board and he knows too, whether it is a fact that the grants are not given adequately to the local boards. Not only that, but I find that even the number of trained teachers is reduced in each district. Whenever there is a vacancy of a senior teacher in any district, I mean—when there is a vacancy of a senior teacher, this post will never be filled up with a senior man. It is said that Government have issued instructions not to fill up the posts of senior teachers, and they appoint a junior to effect saving, in order that, when education is taken up by the district local board, Government grant can be reduced accordingly.

Really speaking, when the educational policy was enunciated by Government, at that time the Council was given a distinct assurance that the income derived from entertainments tax will be utilised for education—and we have been often told the same thing again and again when any tax is imposed—and a part of that income will be utilised for education and it is high time that the Honourable Minister should clear that position, namely, whether they are going to give effect to the educational policy laid down by Dr. Paranjpye the then Minister for Education.

Khan Bahadur S. N. BHUTTO (Larkana District): Sir, our honourable friends on this side of the House are very anxious to reach the land revenue demands as only few hours are left to close up budget grants, and to meet their wishes, I do not want to take the time of the House, but as this question is also of a very great and vital importance we feel it very necessary, Sir, that we must speak out our mind even in a few words and record our protest against the policy that is being pursued. Sir, so far as our Sind province is concerned, I think the press, public and the local authorities are all unanimous of the opinion that the Primary Education Act of 1923 is simply a fraud. Sir, due to this Primary Education Act of 1923, what do we find? It has completely set back not only the primary education, but the secondary and higher education as well, it is nothing short of mockery and a farce. Sir, it is not only that Government do not come forward to admit their inability to keep to their promises, but they are bent upon to behaving a crooked way and not tell us in a straight way that they are not able to carry out their pledges and the undertakings that they gave to this House and the public at large. Sir, there were apprehensions in the mind of Government, at the time when this Primary Education Act was passed that perhaps the local authorities may not be able to meet the cost of providing their own share, as under the old system we had only to contribute Rs. 12 out of Rs. 100, but the liabilities were raised to 33 per cent. in spite of our protest. Sir, what we find now is that municipalities and local boards are ready to face all the criticism and protests of the people by imposing on them fresh taxes provided in the new Local Boards Act, to improve their means and provide more funds for primary compulsory education, and they have actually pushed through their taxes, raised their cess and submitted their proposals to Government for their formal approval, and Government not finding themselves in a position to meet their own share simply have kept away now for some years past these proposals with one pretence or the other. It is nearly five years since the passing of the Act. In the very 1st year of the passing of the new Local Boards Act, some of the boards without loss of time imposed their taxes, they have suffered to the extent of lakhs and lakhs owing to their proposals not having been materialized simply for want of sympathy from Government, who appeared to be only anxious to encourage and support the local boards at the time of the passing of the Act. I would further submit what right we have got to recover increased cess from agriculturists, which they have been paying for the last so many years, when it was raised on the clear understanding to provide compulsory education for them. Sir, the only honourable course left for Government is to admit their failure and to have this Act of 1923 repealed. Otherwise, Sir, if Government will not carry out their pledges and simply go on postponing the matter from time to time, with an excuse of financial stringency which will take years to improve, it will be terribly hard for the local authorities to deceive people with false hopes and continue recovering increased cess for which there is no justification unless the undertakings are carried out to introduce compulsory education. So far, Sir, as my district is concerned, I was simply forced by the circumstances, to restrict our pledges with people, who not knowing the facts accuse local authorities for breach of faith and say that things were far better and progress steady while the control of Education was with Government. Now almost every proposal of the district local boards is turned down by Government with one pretence or the other, even to get a reply to an ordinary reference from Government it takes about twelve months. So I had to recommend to my district local board to introduce compulsory education on their own responsibility, and we have sent our proposal to the Director of Public Instruction simply for the administrative approval. We will provide all funds at present till Government realizes their responsibility to come to our help. I do not know, Sir, whether Government, who would like to save their faces through their anxiety not to admit their failure as they are unable to keep their own pledges, will give us an opportunity to keep our own pledges with people and grant us their administrative approval. Sir, things are not only so bad. They are still worst. What is the state of poor school masters. Their case is only pitiable, these masters in charge of primary education are not paid salaries for three and four months at times due to the delay in recovering grants from Government. These poor masters who are drawing only 20 to 22 rupees pay have to mortgage their property and raise loans at 33 per cent. in the hope and on the understanding with the money lenders that they will repay loan as soon as they receive their salaries. By the time they receive their salaries, one-third of their pay goes towards the interest they have to pay on loans they raise. Should one be proud of it.....

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: May I, Sir, enquire of my honourable friend which local authority does he refer to, that the teachers salaries are not paid? Is it the Larkana district local board?

Khan Bahadur S. N. BHUTTO: Yes; Larkana district local board is the first concrete instance I will give to the Honourable Minister. It is not the first time. Repeatedly for the last two or three years it has happened, and nearly one-third of their salaries are paid towards the interest on the loans they get and their properties are mortgaged; necessity compels them to run in for loans at such a high interest to save their children from starvation, they expect their salaries in time and continue expecting every day, their disappointment has got no bounds when days pass into months without realizing their expectations and on the other hand interest goes on accumulating, and I had to wire to the Secretary of the General Department for the sanction of Government from District Local Board, Larkana, to raise a loan of Rs. 50,000 on its responsibility to advance to the school board to pay the masters their salaries, and I was informed by him that "Government has just sanctioned one of the instalments, therefore, it will not be necessary to raise an advance." But that one instalment was not enough at all to pay the salaries of the masters. So, I had to advance a loan to school board from District Local Board; this happens once or twice in every year. I appeal to Government that it is high time that they should realize their responsibility to the public and come to the help of local authorities and give them fair chance instead of handicapping them all round; otherwise Government should take courage in both hands and approach the Council to repeal the Primary Education Act of 1923 as we were far better before this Act came into force. But if things are allowed to continue as they are at present I think instead of wasting the taxpayers'money it is better to do away with the Minister of Education, the Director of Public Instruction and to close up the whole Educational department and end the farce.

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL AZIZ ABDUL LATIF (Central Division): Sir, I must say that the policy of the Honourable Minister as regards primary and secondary education is not what it ought to be. At Dhulia we have been trying to advance primary and secondary education. The municipality tried to promote secondary education by appointing a teacher able to educate the students in English through the vernaculars, i.e., Marathi and Urdu. The institutions were continued for two or three years and then we applied to Government to register these schools. The Government thereupon asked the municipality to levy their scale of fees before they could register the school. The municipality said that they did not want any grant at all from Government but they wanted merely to register the school. But the Government were adamant. Our argument was that so long as we do not ask for a single pie from the Government treasury we do not see the necessity of Government insisting on compelling us to levy a particular scale of fees. I know the House will agree with me that we are right in this attitude of ours.

At Malegaon, the municipality has passed a resolution introducing compulsory primary education and has levied a tax on cotton, but the approval has not been given by the Honourable Minister to that scheme which is still hanging fire. But strange as it may seem, approval to the secondary education scheme has been granted. I do not know really what the policy of Government is in this matter. I think that primary and secondary education should be advanced side by side, but the first duty of the Government is to promote compulsory primary education and then the secondary duty comes to help the secondary education.

If we look at the report for 1925-26, we find that in point of primary education the Central Division stands the lowest. In East Khandesh we have a large Mahomedan population of Tadvi Bhils. In every other district Government have established hostels for Bhil students but in East Khandesh that is not so. When I asked a question about establishing hostels for these students the Honourable Minister replied that the point was under consideration, but when I looked at this budget I could find no provision there.

I should like some explanation from the Honourable Minister as to the different points I have raised and brought to his notice here.

Mr. D. A. JANVEKAR (Southern Division): Sir, first of all I am sorry to say that the Primary Education Act and the rules thereunder are not worth the paper on which they are written. In the Primary Education Act there is nothing to show that the Government will interfere with the local authorities in the way they are now doing. Under the rules of the Primary Education Act, the proposition statement of the establishment of the teaching staff and the administrative and executive officers is to be approved by the local authorities alone and by nobody else, but now under some press-note the Director of Public Instruction and Government have asked local authorities to submit their schemes of proposition statements and of the staff through the Collector, the Educational Inspector and the Commissioner of the Division and the Director to Government. When a proposition statement is submitted by a local authority, it takes nearly one year to get it back either sanctioned or with a request for some further information. Till then the local authority or the school board will have to sit quiet without giving effect to the scheme. When any scheme on the voluntary or compulsory basis is submitted, it is returned for some reason or other in order to put the scheme in abeyance. Many such schemes have been sent to Government for their sanction and though they are on voluntary basis, those schemes are still held in abeyance by Government. The Bijapur Local Board sent one scheme nearly two years ago but as yet it has not been returned with or without Government sanction. The latest press-note of Government says that owing to the financial stringency Government are not in a position to approve of compulsory schemes but that such compulsory schemes will be taken into consideration subject to certain conditions laid down in the press-note. When schemes are submitted, they are not returned. Some boards and local authorities have increased the taxes in order to be able to bear their share of the cost and some have increased their cess but for years together they have been waiting and waiting to receive Government sanction. In the Karnatak in the Southern Division, the Belgaum board has doubled its one anna cess. The amount collected has been lying idle for three years. As is well known, my district of Bijapur is always a famine stricken district and yet our people are willing to come forward cheerfully to pay the one anna cess that has been doubled with the sanction of Government for primary compulsory education. The board is trying to collect the increased cess from this year, but the scheme sent by the local authority of Bijapur has not been sanctioned by Government, and it has not been replied to.

About the pay of the staff, the scales which have been submitted by the local authorities have not been approved, neither have they been replied to. There has been some discontent among the teachers on account of the attendance allowance, which has been brought to the notice of the Honourable Minister and the Director of Public Instruction, but nothing has been done up till now. There being such discontent among the primary teachers, the teaching suffers. The teachers in the primary schools are not paid regularly. My honourable friend from Larkana made some complaints ; the same is the case in some of the boards in the Southern Division also. The datum line has been fixed, but the grants are not paid according to the datum line. In some way or other some portion of the grant is curtailed and is kept with Government till the next year, and when the accounts are adjusted that portion is paid to the boards. This causes hardship to the boards, and they have to keep in abeyance the pay of the teachers for a month or two in these hard days. Underpaid teachers who are getting Rs. 15 a month—they are vernacular final teachers—suffer very much on this account.

Sir, many municipalities and local boards are coming forward asking for help in the matter of building grants from Government, but Government is always inclined to say that, owing to financial stringency, it is not in a position to help these local bodies. If Government is not going to finance the local authorities by giving building grants, I want to ask the Honourable Minister where the local authorities should provide accommodation for those boys who attend schools in such villages and small towns where it is quite impossible for the local authorities to get any rented suitable buildings. The local authority will either have to hold the schools under a tree, or they will have to close the doors of education to the poor boys. This being the case, Government is not seriously considering the question of primary education. In Belgaum, the Belgaum local authority had opened many schools some two years back, but they had to close the schools on account of the technical objection raised by Government that the previous sanction of Government had not been obtained. The board had to suffer on that account and 150 teachers, who had joined the department in the hope of getting permanent service, had to go home. Sir, it is well known that the Mahomedan community as a whole is backward in education, and the local board of Belgaum had been kind enough to open 15 schools for Urdu boys, but they had to be closed on account of this technical objection raised by Government.

Sir, when a scale of pay for the staff or the administrative officer is submitted to Government for their sanction, it is curtailed in such a way that the local authorities are unable to get efficient men to work as administrative officers. In the case of the Bijapur Municipality, the school board had recommended for the administrative officer a scale of pay from Rs. 150 to Rs. 250, with an annual increment of Rs. 10. But Government reduced the minimum pay to Rs. 100, so that the local authority and the school board is unable to get any man on that scanty pay. That means, Sir, that by hook or crook Government is trying to postpone the application of the Compulsory Primary Education Act, and they are not very serious about having compulsory primary education in this presidency as a whole. If that be the real intention of Government, I would inform them that instead of giving all sorts of explanations, and keeping the Act on the statute book, it will be better if they repeal the Act. With these words, I support the motion.

Khan Bahadur SYED GHULAM NABI SHAH (Thar Parkar District) (Addressed the House in Sindhi) : Sir, it is an admitted fact that Sind is the most backward tract in the whole of the presidency, in the matter of education, and again in Sind, the Thar Parkar District is the most backward. Yet, it is regretful to state, Sind and particularly Thar Parkar District receives the least attention of the Education Ministry. We have always impressed upon Government the necessity and urgency of doing something special for Sind to remove the blot of illiteracy that remains upon it. Higher education is practically non-existent among the Sind Mussulmans ; and secondary education has not yet made much headway. Primary education is for the greater part imparted through the Mulla Schools ; and it is not primary education at all, in any sense. It will thus be seen that there is no serious attempt being made in Sind to improve the education of Mussulmans, who form the greatest bulk of the people. After all Mulla schools' education is no education at all ; and in that the Mullas cannot be blamed much, they receive so little encouragement from Government. The department gives too poor grants to these schools ; and it is no wonder that they are not able to do much.

In Thar Parkar, we have only one high school.—It is a Government high school. Last year 80 boys sought admission in the first standard but only 30 of them were taken up. We appealed to Government to open a second division of standard I ; but no favourable consideration was given to our request by Government. In sheer despair, we opened a separate school with standard I ; we have applied for its registration ; but it has not yet been registered. The District Local Board realizing the great necessity of encouraging education and finding great demand for admissions into English school, has resolved to open an A. V. School, teaching up to the third standard and has also decided to open 10 English classes, along with the big vernacular school, where there is demand. The papers have gone to Government but we do not yet know what the result of it all is.

In our neighbouring tract, Tando Bago, a philanthropic gentleman, Khan Bahadur Mir Ghulam Mahomed Khan, O.B.E., has started a School, and has created a very big endowment. He has spent no less than two lakhs of rupees on it. Every effort was made to induce Government to take up the school and manage it and maintain it. This school is serving admittedly the needs and requirements of a very backward tract—yet Government have refused to take up the school, though it would not have cost them much and all the endowment funds were to be placed at the disposal of Government. That is the extent of sympathy Government show towards the promotion of education of Mussulmans of Sind, who are admitted to be the most backward.

I have already said that there is no primary education worth the name in Sind. When the Primary Education Act came to be enforced, Sind began to feel that it will have a chance of promoting primary education through it. As President of the Thar Parkar District Local Board, I regret to say that Government are not extending to us the help and encouragement we, along with others, expected. At every step we are handicapped by the Government circulars, in the matter of opening any new school and in receiving the promised Government grant. This attitude of Government is disheartening to every local authority. There is always uncertainty about everything; and the result of this uncertainty is that local authorities are never able to take any steps to open new schools and to promote education.

When it is admitted that Sind is notorious for its illiteracy, it is the duty of Government to give its fullest attention to Sind, to give every available pie to Sind. Great diseases require special treatment; and Sind does need special treatment at the hands of Government to raise it up educationally.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Sir, I am sorry to observe some benches empty on this side of the House. The only members that seem to take interest in education are the Mahomedan members. But the subject is very important. Hence my apology for these remarks. Sir, as this cut is moved to ascertain the policy of Government upon an important matter in connection with education, I think it was absolutely necessary that the House should desire the Honourable Minister to declare his policy. We have just heard his policy. Personally, Sir, I have many complaints to note regarding the attitude of the Honourable Minister. First, Sir, I complain of his sense of fairness.

The House will remember that the honourable member Mr. Munshi had given notice of a resolution asking for the appointment of a committee on secondary education. In his resolution he had very kindly put down the names of several gentlemen, and from among the Mahomedans he had selected my honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed and myself.

The Honourable Minister did not accept the motion and on account of certain reasons the motion could not then be taken up. But at the Poona session the Honourable Minister said that he himself was about to appoint two committees, which would go through the subject of secondary education. Sir, I was one of the critics of the Honourable Minister, in the University Bill along with the honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed and his sense of fairness may be inferred from the fact that he omitted my name as well as that of Mr. Noor Mahomed from his committees. I think I have done something in my life for Mahomedan education, as the House would readily testify, but I was not considered by the Honourable Minister to be worthy of being included in his committees, while a friendly critic of his is not only made a member but a chairman of a committee. I would not pursue the matter further.

The House would like to know the policy of Government with regard to technical education. What have they done ? We know that the report of the Technical Education Committee is kept somewhere in the dusty corners of the office of the Director of Public Instruction or in some of the pigeonholes of the Honourable Minister. Sir, the Indian members and English members of that committee were divided in their report and we have all been awaiting the decision of Government regarding it since long. We thought the Indian Minister would give intelligent direction, but his policy with regard to technical education has not yet been revealed.

Now, with regard to the education of Mahomedans. Sir, it was promised by him in this House that a professor of Arabic would be appointed, that early steps would be taken to appoint a professor of Urdu in one of the Government colleges. In his reply to my two resolutions on the subject I am not aware of anything having been done in the matter. I should like to know—and I think the Council also would expect some mention to be made—as to why the professor of Arabic has not been appointed and as to what has been done as regards a professor for Urdu. Two resolutions were passed by this Council. Is it not a matter of shame that in this advanced presidency of Bombay—more advanced in education than any other province,—there is not a single institution for Mahomedan women to learn English through Urdu,—I am not talking of a college, I am not talking of a high school, I say there is not a single middle school as yet and no prospect of its early establishment. I had three years ago proposed a resolution that an English middle school should be opened for Moslem girls at Poona. That resolution was accepted, and it was promised that as soon as 30 girls were found to attend the school Government would open it. Enquiries were made ; and we were ready with 30, 40 and 50 students. It is now three years, and nothing has been done. This is the way in which the Honourable Minister looks after the education of the Moslems.

Then, Sir, this Council had accepted a resolution for the establishment of an Urdu side at Jalgaon High School for teaching English through Urdu. Estimates were sent, for, much correspondence passed between the Director and the headmaster at Jalgaon. All in vain.

Now, let me again remind you, Sir, that in the year 1913 Government appointed a committee for Mahomedan education. That committee went through the question thoroughly and made very important and urgent recommendations. I do not know whether the Honourable Minister has so much as read them. The Moslem members of this House reminded him of them ; we went on deputation to His Excellency the Governor ; we sent some urgent demands to the Minister based on the several recommendations that have been made by that committee. The Honourable Minister said yesterday that one or two items were carried out out of 14 demands. But we at this moment want to know the policy behind, why the recommendations of the committee have not been carried out. Want of money is no answer. Surely, if Government had really been in earnest money would have been found in 15 years for the purpose. I think similar committees were appointed in Sind also, which made certain recommendations. As usual they too have been shelved. The Honourable Minister has more important matters to attend to than the education of the Mahomedans. His attitude seems to be: "They are not a troublesome body; why should I care for them. I have my party behind me." Sir, educational facilities are more important to us than anything else, because for all posts we are told we have not the necessary qualifications. Government replies "The Mahomedans are not educated, they have not got graduates enough among them, how can we appoint them to high places? But when we want facilities for education they are denied to us. Whose fault is it? Speaking on the University Bill in this House I explained why Mahomedans were backward. It was not their fault. Certain facilities were given to Brahmins and other classes, but Mahomedans were relegated to the shade of neglect. But now, when we are awakened, we find all doors bolted. We do not want somebody else's share; we want only our share. If all the money that could have been lawfully claimed by us as our share and which was not spent on Mahomedan education in the past, were accumulated and set apart, I think the Mahomedans will have not only one college but two or three colleges in the presidency. Sir, we have heard nothing about the college at Andheri. This brings me to another subject. I had the honour to be present at the foundation stone ceremony laid by His Excellency, three years ago. The Honourable Minister said last year that the college would be opened in June this year. I do not know what has happened to it, whether the institution is going to be established, whether the building which is being erected for this purpose is going to be utilised for this purpose or for any other purpose. We should like to know the Minister's policy. Sir, I do not want to take the time of the Council, but this is a question of life and death to us. Advanced communities might get on without additional educational facilities but the Moslems could not. There is a reserved department for European education. That community knew they would not have any chance with an Indian member and got their education reserved. But really speaking if any community required a separate or a reserved department, for taking care of their education I think it was the Mahomedan community. We expected that an Indian Minister would impartially forward our cause; we expected him to be a Mahomedan in this respect and not a bigoted Brahmin. We expected him to take up our cause enthusiastically. We were disappointed. Even now we are ready to support him; if he would demand more funds we would be ready even to tax ourselves. But, Sir, he shows no will in this direction. Where there is a will there is a way. We are ready to provide the way, but he must have the will.

I hope he will pardon me for some hard expressions but I had to use them. My constituency expects me to do my duty. Now, I have nothing more to say, except this, that at least we ought to know where we are with regard to higher education. I have received several letters inquiry as to what has happened to the Andheri College, and I hope the Honourable Minister and the honourable member the Secretary will go into these subjects and explain to us fully. We do not want to carry this cut; we do not want to reduce the amount. But we want to know his policy as there are serious doubts as to whether the Honourable Minister is giving that importance to Mahomedan Education which it deserves. With these words I support the cut.

Mr. ALLAHBAKSH walad Khan Saheb HAJI MAHOMED UMAR (Sukkur District): Sir, I desire to bring one point to the notice of the Honourable Minister. When the Primary Education Act was introduced it was definitely stated to this House that the education would be made compulsory. But what do we find? Sir, we find that more than 75 per cent. of the students who join the schools, leave the schools before they go to the fourth standard. More than 75 per cent. boys go away after taking practically no education. Is it compulsory education? We, therefore, find that the money that is spent after primary education —about 75 per cent.—is wasted. If the Honourable Minister cannot find funds sufficient to meet the demand, why should he not stop this primary education instead of wasting public money? He should stop this education totally. Until we have compulsory education, we cannot ask the boys to prosecute their studies further. It is quite necessary that Government should either make the education compulsory or have no education at all. If the funds are not available why should Government waste public money in this manner? I request the Honourable Minister that he should amend the Primary Education Act in such a way that a boy once voluntarily joining the school should not be allowed to leave the school without prosecuting his education up to standard IV. If he cannot, I would advise him to utilise the money that is spent in this way for a better cause.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District): Sir, I have not to say much after all that I have already stated, but I shall only refer to one point which was brought forward by my honourable friend, Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad. That point is with reference to the appointment of an Arabic professor for a college. I remember that an assurance was given last year and year before last that Government are doing their best to provide a professor for Arabic. I know that one Muslim 1st class M.A. who belongs to Sind was sent to England on Government scholarship to do the research work of Arabic and qualify himself and now he has returned with success a few months ago, by obtaining the degree of Ph.D. It was then stated that on his return he would be appointed in one of the colleges, either in the Elphinstone College or Andheri College. We do not know what Government intend to do regarding his appointment. I would again emphasise the need of having an Arabic professor and I hope Government would move in the matter. Bombay is one of the most important provinces in India and it is indeed disgraceful that there should be no facility provided for the Arabic learning students. It is rather ignoring and killing oriental languages, by this kind of indifferent attitude of Government.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Sir, I may inform the honourable members who have spoken that there is no want of will on my part to give effect to the provisions of the Primary Education Act, or to help Muhammadan education as well as the education of backward classes. It is only the want of funds which stands in the way of all schemes being brought to fruition as early as possible.

Last year my honourable predecessor, under the Primary Education Act, had demanded a budget provision of Rs. 19 lakhs—but Government could only spare Rs. 9 lakhs. This year I demanded Rs. 27 lakhs to be provided for schemes under the Primary Education Act and it is with the greatest difficulty that I was able to secure only Rs. 15 lakhs.

Secondly, my policy with reference to primary education is as laid down in the Act, but as to the carrying out that policy, everything depends on the funds available. We have up to now had about 47 schemes out of which 35 schemes have been already sanctioned. I would also submit that while the city municipalities take less time in formulating schemes of expansion within their area, the district local bodies find it very difficult to make a scheme so soon. When a scheme is drawn by them, it has to go to the Director of Public Instruction for being examined and naturally the examination of the scheme takes time. But I must repudiate the suggestion that the Director of Public Instruction has been on one pretext or another, delaying his sanction to the schemes submitted. It is not correct at all. During the last year there were several schemes for voluntary expansion in local board areas. About these schemes a legal point was raised whether schemes of voluntary expansion could be allowed. Eventually, it has been decided that they should be allowed and the district local boards should have schemes of voluntary expansion, but in order that compulsion may also be brought into operation, one-third of such scheme should be for compulsion and the other two-thirds of it may be for voluntary expansion. That has been decided, and in the next year such schemes as come before Government will be sanctioned on that basis from the amount budgetted. I would have been very glad to do more, had it been possible for me to do. But I must admit that this matter is beyond my control. It is more in the hands of this House to supply the funds, which are necessary for carrying out the policy as laid down in the Primary Education Act. I may, however venture to say that the line on which expansion of education is generally undertaken at present requires to be revised if we are to make any progress. I may give you an instance. A school in a village, if newly opened, will cost at least Rs. 500 a year. On that basis it will not be easy for both the local boards as well as the Government to meet the cost. An experiment is at present being made in the Surat District where day and night schools are being opened on different lines. The villagers supply the school house, they select the teacher and they expect a certain grant-in-aid from the local authority or the Government. If that policy were pursued it may be possible to have greater expansion of village schools and at a less cost. This is a matter which requires consideration. On the other hand, under the present system it will be very difficult to find grants for numerous primary school buildings for villages and towns as also their maintenance. That is the only reason why it has not been possible for us to go forward as much as one would desire.

My honourable friend, Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad, referred to the Andheri college and to the non-appointment of a professor in Arabic. I may tell him that that college was to be provided for in the budget as a new item for being taken up next year, but on account of want of funds several items had to be cut out and this was one of them. If it had been possible to open the Andheri college, the gentleman referred to would have been appointed as professor of Arabic. I very much regret that in spite of my own desire to hurry up that matter, on account of want of funds we have not been able to provide for this college.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Why should you not appoint that gentleman in the Elphinstone college?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: That matter will have to be considered hereafter. It was only in connection with the Andheri college that there might be a demand and, therefore, that matter was considered. Whether there is a demand for the expenditure for a full time Arabic professor at the Elphinstone college is a matter which will have to be looked into.

There was a complaint, Sir, that the fixed grants or the datum line grants are not being given in due time and therefore, the salaries of teachers are delayed. The difficulty, Sir, is on account of something for which the district local boards themselves are responsible. Ordinarily grants in the first instance are given on a provisional basis and at the end of the year and after the audit takes place, the amount is adjusted. There are audit objections and they are sent on to district local boards for reply. They keep them over for a long time without replying to them, which delays the giving of the grants on the final basis. That is on account of the rules as they stand at present. But I feel that the greatest difficulty.....

Khan Bahadur S. N. BHUTTO: On a point of information. May I ask the Honourable Minister whether there was any delay on the part of the Larkana district local board in meeting objections? Were the replies to objections sent in time or not?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I am referring to the general question in a general way. I cannot off hand say what was the position with reference to the Larkana district local board. However, the rule that exists at present is one which requires to be overhauled, so that there may be no delay in the giving of grants, and I promise to look into that matter further so that there may be no delay in the local boards getting their grants in time. I may assure the honourable House that while I am in full sympathy for the advancement of the education of the backward classes and the Mahomedans, I feel bound to state that, as compared to the Mahomedan population in Sind, the Mahomedan population in the presidency proper is far in advance in the matter of education than the backward and the intermediate Hindus in the same area. That is a point which any one who cares to look into the administration report on public instruction will find. It was one that was even noticed by the Dewan Saheb of Junagadh who presided over the Mahomedan educational conference at Poona a short time ago. And consequently, the complaint which my honourable friend makes about the Government or the Minister for Education not taking proper care of Mahomedan education is not a right complaint. They are far in advance of the intermediate Hindus in the presidency proper, who are far more backward, and as compared to them, they are getting as much encouragement as possible. However, I do submit that whatever educational facilities are required and which are due to the communities which are educationally backward, would certainly be given to them as funds permit. But the main difficulty is the department of my honourable friend the Finance Member, and whatever I am able to get from him I am trying to provide for in the budget, and I will try my best to get as much more as I possibly can. But I feel bound to say that looking to the present financial condition of the presidency, unless the Council goes in for some special taxation, or helps me even by private advice as to the form such taxation should take, I would be very glad to bring it up and to face the odium for it. As in the case of fees, the question of taxation has to be faced, and without it nothing more is possible. As long as more money is not available, I must regretfully repeat that it would not be possible to go as far as one would desire.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: What about the Government of India's 37 lakhs ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: This year's 37 lakhs have altogether been used up to balance the budget. For the next year, certainly I have my eye on that amount, and I will try to get as much as possible.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: I want to know from the Honourable Minister what arrangements are being made for the transfer of education to local boards in Gujarat ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: The district local boards of Gujarat have been asked to state what their objections are to their taking over the control of primary education, so that the department may consider how far they could meet those objections and make it possible for them to accept the transfer of control.

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL AZIZ ABDUL LATIF: What about the registration of secondary schools ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: As regards the registration of secondary schools, the rule exists that no secondary school could be recognised unless it levies a fee to the extent of two-thirds of the Government scale, and if they do not do that, then, owing to the existing rule, no secondary school could be recognised.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District): Sir, my motion stands for the cut of a substantial amount of one lakh, and as every one of us here wishes to get as much as possible for education, I would not wish to press this motion. Hence, I would like to withdraw my motion. I only wanted to show our emphatic resentment at the policy hitherto followed and that object has been amply served by the speeches that have been made in this House by the different honourable members.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Has the honourable member the leave of the House to withdraw his motion ?

Question put and leave granted.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Now, I will put the total demand What is it ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: It will be less by Rs. 100 owing to the cut which was carried by the House.....

Mr. G. WILES: The cut has been made by the honourable House of only Rs. 100, and, as the figures in the budget are in thousands, it is not necessary to make or show that deduction of Rs. 100, I suggest.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: There is a suggestion from the honourable member, the Finance Secretary, that as the demand is in thousands, a hundred rupees cut need not be shown, that it is a mere matter of record and if it is not shown by deduction it would not matter, unless the House wishes me to be too technical and deduct the amount. I would, however, not take the responsibility myself of not deducting the hundred rupees from the total.

Question that the demand for Rs. 1,95,81,900 be granted put and carried.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Sir, I ask for a grant of Rs. 6,79,000 for Education, Reserved, under 31, Education.

Question proposed.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Sir, I would like to ask the Honourable the Home Member to give the House more information, with regard to the matter of fees charged for Indian students attending English schools. It was pointed out last year that certain European schools charge double the ordinary fees for Indian students wishing to attend them. That is a matter of legitimate complaint and it was fully discussed in the House last year. If my memory serves me right, I think the Honourable the Home Member said that he would make enquiries or that he would do something in the matter. But, if I am not correct, I do again ask the Honourable the Home Member whether he considers it fair that this racial distinction should be continued. I leave it to his sense of fairness to arrange this matter or at any rate assure this House that he himself is not in favour of such a racial distinction being observed in the schools in question.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Sir, I am afraid the view which I took last year was not the view which has been represented to the House by the honourable member who has just spoken. I happen to have a report of the last year's debate here and what I said was that the action taken by the management was in no way unreasonable or or unfair, and I hold to that view now. The school is there for a particular class of the community. If that school opens its door to other classes of the community, it is entitled to do so on conditions which it fixes for itself and if those conditions are unacceptable to the other classes, there is not the slightest reason why any one should send his children there. If the other classes think that the education in that school is so good that it is worth while to send their children there, they will do so but not otherwise. I am afraid I cannot ask any of the European schools which come under Education, Reserved, to take any different line from what they are doing at the present time.

Question that the demand of Rs. 6,79,000 for Education, Reserved, under 31, Education, be granted put and carried.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Sir, I make a demand for a grant of Rs. 87,000 under 30, Scientific Departments. Transferred.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Sir, I move for a grant of Rs. 21,000 under 27, Ports and Pilotage, Reserved.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Sir, I move for a grant of Rs. 1,61,74,000 under 26, Police.

Question proposed.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN (Poona and Sholapur Cities): Sir, I move:

Omit Additional Police Establishment—C-2 (b)—Rs. 1,40,000.

I do not see the point of the speech of the Honourable the Home Member on the subject of the punitive police in Sholapur during his remarks on the general discussion. His words, I am confident, have not convinced the members of this House of the necessity of having a punitive police force in Sholapur. The Honourable the Home Member said that because Sholapur was naughty, why should the general taxpayer pay for that city? Am I right, Sir?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Approximately.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: I ask the Honourable the Home Member in return, why should nearly a lakh of the general taxpayers of Sholapur city, who are innocent, be made to pay for the punitive police because of the naughtiness of a few badmashes who caused the riots in Sholapur?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: It is proposed that the assessment should be as far as possible upon those sections of the inhabitants who either took part in or were privy to the riots.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: If the Honourable the Home Member can catch the badmashes, I shall support him with all my heart. It is the poor and innocent people who suffer most by the imposition of the punitive police in Sholapur. Rich landlords will raise their rents and thus recover the money they pay by way of the punitive police tax. I may mention here that the millhands during the riots were working in their mills and took no part in the riots. They attended their mills peacefully and quietly. Is this the reward which Government is going to give them for their peaceful behaviour? They live in hired rooms and chawls, and their landlords are sure to raise the rents of the chawls. Is it justice? In short, it is the poor innocent people who suffer most. Again, helpless widows, orphans, minors, and even those who were not in Sholapur during the riots will have to share the burden for no fault of theirs, and, Sir, there is no certainty that the culprits would not escape their legitimate share of the burden. In short, it is the poor innocent who suffer most by the imposition of the punitive police.

In the course of my remarks in the general discussion of the budget, I had proved to the satisfaction of the House that about 100 more policemen are required as the legitimate addition to the present police force of Sholapur because of the vast increase in the population in Sholapur, and other views were mentioned by me. I do not want to repeat those views again. They are known to the honourable members of this House. Most of them are very anxious to reach the Land Revenue head, and they have requested me to curtail my remarks.

Sir, it is on record that 30 honourable members of this House, from all castes and creeds, from all parties, from all parts of the presidency, from Larkana to Kanara, who are the real representatives of the general taxpayers, demand with one voice that it should not be a tax on the people of Sholapur only. With these words, I move that the grant of Rs. 1,40,000 be thrown out entirely, if the Government do not withdraw it of their own accord.

Question proposed.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI (Indian Merchants' Chamber): Sir, I have great pleasure in supporting the motion, because the principle of imposing punitive police on an industrial town like Sholapur is a very bad principle. If Government are sure that there are certain culprits, they have got wide powers to prosecute them and to bring them to book and recover from such persons as are proved to be liable for such deeds; but for the faults of some few people not found out yet you must not punish the whole of the industrial population. I therefore think that Government will be wise in accepting this cut.

Khan Bahadur S. N. BHUTTO (Larkana District): Sir, I sympathise with my honourable friend the mover of the motion, and I wholeheartedly support him.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Sir, I must say that I do not support the motion. It appears to me that the effect of this motion would be to shift the burden of cost that would be required for this additional police establishment at Sholapur on to the general taxpayer. It does not appear to me at all reasonable that the general taxpayers of this presidency should be made to suffer for what has been proved to be the excesses of the mob at Sholapur. Nothing is further from my intention than to take any side in what might have happened at Sholapur. I dare say both the parties, Hindus and Mussalmans, must have been to blame in the disturbances that had led Government to propose this additional police establishment. Both the parties are to blame. Admittedly, there have been disturbances, and if there have been disturbances, and if, owing to those disturbances, it is necessary—as I believe it is necessary —that there should be additional police establishment maintained at the city of Sholapur.....

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN : We want it.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN :.....it seems to me extremely unfair that the people of Sholapur should not be made to pay exclusively for this additional establishment, but that this burden should be thrown upon the general taxpayer.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I should like to know from the honourable member how he argues that. The motion is for the omission of the additional police establishment.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Well, I took it to mean that the additional police establishment would be there all the same.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The motion is that it should be omitted.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : I am sorry the honourable mover of the motion has not made that clear.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN : I made it clear.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: What I understood from his speech was that the burden of expenditure on account of the additional police establishment should be borne not by the people of Sholapur but by the general taxpayer, and I feel that I am strengthened in my view by certain remarks that fell from the lips of the honourable member Mr. Lalji Naranji.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think the whole situation has been misunderstood by the honourable member. It is a motion to omit the expenditure on the additional police establishment; not only that but the argument used by the honourable mover was that in imposing this additional police on Sholapur the innocent would also be brought under the pressure of the expenditure. That was the point.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Even supposing that is the argument....

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I want to understand the position a little more clearly. I think the position of the honourable mover was that there should be no extra police in Sholapur.....

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN : We want extra police, but not at the cost of the Sholapur people.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member's interpretation of the motion which is before the House would not very much help the House. The motion is "Omit Additional Police Establishment—C-2 (b)—Rs. 1,40,000 (C. E. page 143)." That would mean, if the motion is carried, all that item goes out of the budget.

[The President]

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: That is the proposal What I wanted to understand was whether the House understands that if this motion is carried, there will be no extra police in Sholapur....

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: At the cost of the Sholapur people.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: There is no such condition.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: I am glad that, after all, the position has been made clear. I think the honourable mover of the motion himself is responsible for the misunderstanding that has been given rise to. Even after the explanation that has been given, I must say that I oppose this motion, and for this reason.

If there have been disturbances, if people have suffered on account of these disturbances, and if damage has been done to property on account of these disturbances, it is one of the elementary duties of the Government that some provision should be made in order to punish the offenders and to prevent the recurrence of such disturbances. If the executive comes to the conclusion—as it has rightly done in this case—that additional police should be maintained at Sholapur, it is but fair that such an establishment should be maintained. It would not at all be right that this cut should be passed, the result of which will be to prevent Government from maintaining the necessary additional police establishment, the far-reaching consequences of which upon the peace and order of this presidency will be serious.

Mr. J. GHOSAL: Sir, I think the honourable mover did not fully realise what he was moving when he proposed this cut. If I know his views rightly, he is one of the first persons who would like to insist that there should be extra police at present in Sholapur, and if he wants additional police in Sholapur, I do not think he has got any right to suggest that the general revenues should bear the cost. I fully agree with the honourable member Mr. Pradhan in his remarks on that point. Whether the extra police is justified or not is quite a different matter. How the expenditure is to be met, or who are the parties who should pay for it is also quite a different point. If the honourable member wanted, he might have moved a vote of censure, but that is quite different from his present proposal. All that the honourable member has virtually proposed is to remove the extra police in Sholapur, and I do not think, knowing the facts, any one in this House would agree to this proposal.

The honourable mover urges that some innocent people might be assessed and that would be undesirable. As to this, I am sure he can rely on Government making the fullest enquiry and satisfying themselves that no particular community or no particular locality is assessed unless it has taken part in this riot. These are the few points that I wished to bring forward.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN (Bombay City, South): Sir, I oppose this cut. It is admitted by every one that the Bombay Police is absolutely undermanned. Only the other day one or two honourable members opposite.....

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: Sir, that is not the point before the House.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN: Sir, this provision, I understand, is for the city of Bombay.....

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: He is making a mistake, Sir.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN: I beg your pardon, Sir.

Mr. N. R. GUNJAL (Poona District) (Addressed the House in Marathi): Sir, I rise merely to say that I support the motion for the cut.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, I want to have some information. I understand, Sir, - I think my information is correct --that there was an order by the city magistrate under section 144 prohibiting a procession on the day on which this riot is supposed to have taken place. If there was an order, then it seems to me that those who took the responsibility of moving in the procession must naturally be amenable to the consequences of their disobedience. I do not know if the order of the city magistrate was cancelled or could be cancelled by any authority. Supposing it is not possible to run in any particular persons, because it is difficult to fix the guilt on any particular persons, for having participated in the riot, still every one who was in the procession would be liable to be prosecuted for disobedience of the order unless and until that order was cancelled and was not in force. So, I would like to know from the Honourable the Home Member if the order was in force and if so why an attempt was not made to prosecute any of the people who were in the procession. Apart from that they may have taken part in the riot or not or may be guilty of rioting or not, the mere fact of being in the procession would make them punishable under the sections of the Penal Code. It seems to me, Sir, that the honourable mover aims at cutting Rs. 50,000, and not the whole of the demand at page 143. We find that the total amount is Rs. 1,40,000, but the lump provision for additional police is only Rs. 50,000. If I understand the honourable mover aright, he aims at cutting out Rs. 50,000, and not the whole Rs. 1,40,000, because from his speech it appears that he aims at dispensing with this additional provision which is only in Sholapur, and that is only Rs. 50,000.....

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Rs. 90,000 for Sholapur and Rs. 50,000 for the rest of the presidency.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: So, the lump provision is Rs. 90,000 for Sholapur, not Rs. 1,40,000. I would not at all be prepared to support the reduction of the whole provision of Rs. 1,40,000, because Rs. 90,000 only is the additional provision for Sholapur. My point is that if, as a matter of fact, the police failed to prosecute the delinquents for having disobeyed the order, they cannot now come to this House and try to impose a punitive police, because it seems to me that the principle is that the punitive police is imposed because it is not possible to trace the offenders and therefore all the persons who might be rightly suspected of having been responsible for the riot that took place are being indirectly hit. My question is, why was no prosecution undertaken against persons who had taken part in the procession, because they would be liable ipso facto by being in the procession without any further evidence being necessary to be proved against them ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Sir, this provision of Rs. 14,00,000, which it is proposed to omit, consists of two items, one of which is Rs. 90,000 for additional police in Sholapur. The other is of Rs. 50,000 as a lump provision for additional police which may be found necessary in other parts of the presidency during the coming year. As yet, there is no proposal to appoint any such additional police, but the occasion may arise and it is necessary for us to be prepared for it, and therefore this item of half a lakh has been put in with a view to meet eventualities.

As regards the omission of the item of Rs. 90,000, if this is omitted, the result will not be merely that the inhabitants of Sholapur will not have to pay for the police, but that the police will not be sent there at all, because there will be no provision from which the cost could be met. Now, I very much doubt whether there is any honourable member of this House who knows the conditions that have recently prevailed in Sholapur who will say that these additional police are not necessary now for the preservation of safety in the town itself.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN : I do say that we want additional police but not at our cost. Government should raise the police according to the increase in the population of Sholapur.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : It is not only this year, but for several years in succession, that there have been troubles in Sholapur. Those troubles have arisen on nearly every occasion on which an important religious procession has been about to go through the town. On some occasions it has been a Hindu procession with which the Mussalmans have interfered ; on other occasions it has been a Muslim procession with which the Hindus have interfered. As I said on the last occasion, in the course of the general debate on the budget, both the great communities have been at fault, and both of them, as far as one can estimate, have been almost equally to blame in Sholapur in the last few years. But the position is this : that the force in Sholapur of regular police is doubtfully sufficient for the preservation of the peace there in ordinary times. We have explained on more than one occasion, and on the last occasion I spoke I quoted a speech made by my honourable friend the Leader of the House. that our policy has been during this present time of financial stringency to trust to the people of the presidency to keep the peace for themselves, to behave in a reasonable manner, not to pick quarrels with their neighbours. On the whole our trust in them has been very well repaid. There have been occasions in Sholapur and elsewhere where hot blood has been aroused, where troubles have occurred, and it has been found unfortunately that the reductions in the police which were forced upon us by the need of retrenchment all over the presidency and in every department of the administration, these reductions dating from 1922 and continued in subsequent years, have been so great that the police are scarcely able now to meet the stress of any sudden emergency. In the case of Sholapur in particular I quoted the figures on the last occasion. I do not remember the figure at the moment, but I think I am right in saying that something like 300 extra police were sent to Sholapur, when these riots occurred and before they came to an end, from every district in the Deccan and from every district in the southern part of the presidency. It was only by sending a very large force of extra police, by keeping those men on almost continuous duty day and night for several days successively, that peace was finally restored in Sholapur. If we take away this extra police, I am afraid there is no doubt that on the next occasion of a big procession, there will be further trouble. Some of the people who have suffered in the several riots during the last two years will almost certainly try to get their own back. It is, therefore, absolutely necessary for the maintenance of peace that there should be an additional police force in Sholapur. I hope this need will be temporary and I trust that the people will realise that they have been very foolish indeed and that in the course of a few months the advice of the officials and the advice of the wiser heads among the leaders on both sides will be effective and it will be possible to withdraw this additional police and to resume the trust in the commonsense of the people of Sholapur, which we formerly had. But so far we cannot say that complete reconciliation is in view. Our local officers tell us that the atmosphere is still heated and that at any moment, on the slightest provocation, or even an accident might be enough, there might be riots. We must, therefore, keep this force there. It is primarily in the interest of the city of Sholapur, the inhabitants of Sholapur—Hindus and Muhammadans, merchants and labourers—that we should have a sufficient force to keep the place in order and to prevent further troubles.

I shall now refer to a very important point raised by my honourable friend, Rao Bahadur Kale. I will tell the honourable House exactly what happened. The city magistrate issued an order prohibiting a certain procession. The district magistrate himself was in Poona when this order was issued. As soon as he heard that troubles were likely to take place in Sholapur, he went back to Sholapur. Before the day fixed for this procession, he was approached by the leaders of the Hindu community, namely, Dr. Mulay, Mr. Majmudar, who is a member of this Council, and Mr. Abdulpurkar who was formerly a member of this Council. They proposed to the district magistrate that the Ganpati procession should be allowed under certain conditions. They told him that if he would cancel the order of the city magistrate prohibiting the procession, there would be no trouble at all. The district magistrate believed that they were in a position to speak for the inhabitants of the town and that they would be able to make good the promise that there would not be any trouble. He, therefore, cancelled the order prohibiting the procession.....

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : May I know if this is within his jurisdiction to cancel the order issued by the city magistrate ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Yes, the district magistrate has power to do so. There was nothing illegal or irregular in his action. So, as I said, he listened to the request of the leaders of the Hindu community and he allowed the procession to go on. As a result of this, unfortunately riots did occur and lives were lost.

Nobody can be prosecuted for the breach of an order which was no longer in force. However prosecutions have been undertaken for the breaches of the peace which occurred. I have not got the details with me at the present moment to quote, but the charges were brought against members of both communities. Some of the cases have ended in convictions.....

Now, what we have to do is to levy an assessment from the people to make up the cost. What Government propose to do is to levy this assessment as fairly as possible. We cannot lay the responsibility for these riots on any particular individual. We are not allowed by law to say that such and such individual must pay the whole of the cost. If we were allowed to do that, we could certainly have made one particular individual pay quarter of a lakh, and another quarter of a lakh more and so very speedily and fairly have made up the whole amount. But we cannot do so. Therefore, the only way is to tax the people of the place where the riots occurred.....

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN : You want to tax innocent people.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : No, we do not want to tax innocent people. Unfortunately the law does not allow us to place the whole burden on individuals. We have to assess the tax upon the inhabitants of parts of the town or of the whole town. It is inevitable that in doing so, some innocent people will have to suffer.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN : About 99 per cent. of the people will have to suffer.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : I do not think that 99 per cent. of the people will unjustly suffer. But I do admit that some innocent persons will have to suffer. The district officers have sent in certain proposals in which they advise that the town should be further sub-divided and that the inhabitants of certain wards and the inhabitants of certain gullis should pay this tax and the inhabitants of other wards, who did not take part in the riots, should not pay anything. We have sent back these proposals because we are not entirely satisfied with them. Since then, we have not yet had a further report from the local officers. This explains why we have not yet been able to comply with the requirements of the Pistrict Police Act, as recently amended, which deals with the recoveries of such charges from local areas. The directions which Government will issue will be placed on the table of this Council and then it will be open to all honourable members to suggest changes. But the time has not yet come for that. We hope that before the next session of the Council, we shall be able to place our directions on the table of the Council and it will then be open to the members to say not whether the police force should be sent to Sholapur, but whether the people of Sholapur should or should not pay for the police, and whether the expenses should or should not be met from the general revenues. I do not know what other honourable members will think of the latter suggestion, but I think honourable members like my friend, Mr. Pradhan, would want to know why the general taxpayers should be charged because of the misdeeds of the inhabitants of one town. But as I have said that the time has not yet come for the consideration of that point. At present we have to consider whether, in order to preserve peace and good order in Sholapur, it is not necessary to have additional police at Sholapur. That is the question before us to-day. I think that there is not the least doubt in the minds of honourable members that the necessity for such police does exist at the present moment.

[Mr. J. E. B. Hotson]

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Sir, after the lucid explanation that has fallen from the lips of the Honourable the Home Member and further explanation that has come from the honourable the Commissioner for the Central Division, perhaps it would be doubtful policy to support this motion in its entirety. But, Sir, I would like to make a few remarks as to the principle. Now, I think the Honourable the Home Member went so far as to say that even 98 per cent. of the people could not be charged with this.....

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: No; I did not say that.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Approximately; a very large portion?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: I think I would not say that; I would say perhaps 15 per cent. would be not guilty.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: 15 per cent. not guilty, and 85 per cent. guilty! Well, Sir, I am very sorry to hear such an expression of opinion from the Honourable the Home Member, because it shows how little credit it gives to the peaceful citizens of Sholapur who have built up its trade and industry. Now, I want to bring to the notice of Government one maxim that, if you want to prevent a person committing suicide, you must not kill him yourself. I think the case here is very nearly similar to the maxim, you are adding fuel to the troubles of the people of Sholapur, and you are injuring them yourself. I myself think that about 80 or 90 per cent. of the people of Sholapur are entirely innocent and about 10 per cent. possibly may be guilty. But, if 90 or 95 per cent. of the people are to be charged with this punitive police for the sake of the 5 or 10 per cent. why should not the whole of the Central Division be charged? Because the principle would be just the same. You charge 95 per cent. innocent for the sake of the 5 per cent. guilty!

[Moulvi Rafiudin Ahmad]

Why should you not charge the whole of the Central Division, or for that matter, the whole of the presidency ? I, therefore, say it is wrong in principle. I do not know what ingenuity the Honourable the Home Member will use or the police will use in finding methods of catching the right people and bringing their guilt home to them. But my experience about Malegaon is quite different. Sir, I am very sorry to say that all the people who helped the Government loyally in that riot, that came to the magistrate and gave information, all those persons had to pay this penalty with the knowledge of the Collector, and the whole of the town is ruined ; its trade crippled. Then, Sir, it passes the wit of man to understand how the rioters will now be arrested. There are people worthy of your consideration as the Honourable the Home Member himself will recognise. I would rather see that those 5 per cent. guilty should go without any punishment than that the 95 per cent. innocent should be punished. I would, therefore, ask the Honourable the Home Member to consider this. I am not going to support, as I said, this motion in its entirety, because there would be time yet for us to consider that, but I would certainly ask him to take this aspect of the question into serious consideration and, if possible, not to charge Sholapur at all.

Mr. J. W. SMYTH : Sir, the honourable member who has just spoken, said something about what happened at Malegaon. So far as I understand, he said that the people who helped Government were the people who were made to pay. Well, Sir, as the District Magistrate of Nasik at the time that the compensation money was being recovered, I am afraid that I must contradict that statement. There is very little doubt that the real people to blame in connection with the Malegaon riots were the Momins, and it was the Momins who ultimately paid the six odd lakhs which we recovered as compensation for the damage done by the rioters.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Did not the minority at the moment support you ?

Mr. J. W. SMYTH : I was not there at the time of the riot, Sir, but I very much doubt whether any appreciable number of Momins did support Government. All the Momins were stirred up to such a state of mind that it resulted in those riots, and for those riots they collectively paid the full price.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind) : Sir, as the Honourable the Home Member wanted to know the principle from this side of the House, I may as well inform him, on behalf of myself and many others, that this kind of vicarious levy is unacceptable to many of us.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN : I have nothing to say, Sir, because most of the members have supported me.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Does the Honourable the Home Member wish to make a reply ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : I think there are still several points, Sir, which it is necessary for me to deal with.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member has, of course, a right of reply. But I thought that, in view of his statement he would not need much time to give a reply. But if he wants time, I must adjourn the House till after tea. The House will now adjourn for tea till 4 o'clock.

(After Recess.)

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Sir, before the tea interval I spoke mainly on the particular merits of what happened at Sholapur and the action which Government is proposing to take in that particular instance. It was because I thought from what had fallen from the lips of several honourable members that it was necessary to speak a little more on the general question that I asked your forbearance, Sir, in order that I might have a few more minutes at my disposal to speak now.

One or two honourable members—my friend the honourable member from Sukkur in particular—suggested that the steps which Government were about to take amounted to what he called vicarious punishment and that, when coupled with the suggestion of my honourable friend, the Moulvi, that the area over which the recovery should be spread should be widened, leads me to think that it might be well to point out that what Government is attempting to do and what the law empowers them to do is to recover the costs of the additional police from the local areas, the conduct of the inhabitants of which has made the imposition of those special police necessary. What we want to do in this and in every other similar case is, as far as possible, to prevent the punishment from being vicarious, to put the charges as far as we can upon the shoulders of those who were responsible for the trouble and not upon the shoulders of other persons who have been in no such way responsible. My honourable friend, the Moulvi, said that he thought that it would be fair that the charges should be imposed upon the whole of the Central Division. Now, that is a suggestion which Government might possibly be prepared to accept if we thought the honourable House would approve of it, but, unfortunately, I do not think that an order of that sort could be brought within the four corners of the Act as it now stands. The District Police Act, section 25 (1), says:

"Government may, from time to time, by notification, direct the employment of additional police for such period as it shall think fit in any local area which shall appear to be in a disturbed or dangerous state, etc., etc."

I do not think any member of this honourable House would allege that the whole of the Central Division is in a disturbed or a dangerous stage, and I do not think any lawyer would consider that the Central Division, 99 per cent. (to recall the figure recently suggested) of which is entirely innocent of complicity in the present trouble, could be properly described as a local area. The local area is either the whole of the town of Sholapur or a part of the town of Sholapur. That I think is the only interpretation of the law which could be considered to be correct.

Now on the general principle, it is probably within the memory of this honourable House that Mr. A. N. Surve, who is no longer with us in this House, introduced a bill, the object of which, in its original form, was to take away from Government the power of recovering charges from local areas and to impose those charges, as a general rule, upon the general revenues of the presidency. That bill did not, in the form in which it was introduced, meet with the assent of this House, and was considerably amended, with the result that, under the Act as it now stands, Government retain the power of imposing the additional police and of assessing the charges upon the inhabitants of the local area, subject to the provision that a copy of every direction given by Government regarding the assessment of the charges shall be sent forthwith to each member of the Bombay Legislative Council, and shall be laid on the table of the Bombay Legislative Council at the next session. The question whether the cost shall be defrayed in the manner directed by Government or from the general revenues may be raised by any honourable member. I think from these facts it is only reasonable to assume that this honourable House approves of the general principle that the power should be vested in Government to charge the local area concerned, in the first place, subject to the revising power of this House, if it thinks proper, to direct that the local area shall be exempted and the general revenues shall be charged.....

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: How will they revise it? By a resolution?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: That, Sir, is provided in the recent amendment of the Act. It says that this question 'shall if so required by due notice given at that session by any member, be decided by a resolution duly passed in this behalf by the said Council; and recoveries shall be suspended pending the consideration of such resolution if any at such or the next succeeding session. That is the law as it stands now, and that is the general principle, and it appears to me that it is an extremely sound general principle, which this House were well advised to adopt in 1925. If the motion that is before the House to-day were to be carried, it would mean that Government were deprived not only of the power of charging the local area concerned, but of the power of posting the additional police to this particular town. Now, I have pointed out, I am afraid almost with wearisome iteration that Government have cut down their police estimates year after year. They have left out many essential items; they have reduced the number of the police not only in the towns but in the talukas in every district of this presidency down to the lowest possible limit, down to a level which, in the opinion of many sensible and reasonable men, is below the minimum required for safety, and Government can only do that in the belief that the presidency is going to support them by itself keeping the peace. If we are prevented from sending additional police to any area, for a strictly limited period, to be withdrawn as soon as Government are satisfied that the conditions in that area are once more normal and that they can, without prejudice to that area and to its inhabitants and its trade, withdraw those police; if Government does not have this power, I do not see any alternative but to ask for a very large increase in the police in every district throughout the whole presidency. That would mean an enormous increase in the charges for the police, and I know that this honourable House would be very reluctant to face the bill. At the same time, I do not think that if you look at the question fairly and straightly, there is any other way of doing it. We must either have a sufficiently large force everywhere at all times, to be able to meet any emergency that may occur, or else Government must have the power to send extra men to such places and at such times as they may be required. This is not a question of the reserved side of Government or the transferred ; it is not a question of the official benches against the un-official benches ; it is a question of the peace and the prosperity of the presidency as a whole, with which every businessman, every agriculturists, every house owner, and every woman and child is most vitally concerned.

Well, in the present case, the motion, I believe, goes considerably further than the honourable member himself intended. It asks this House not only to take away the provision of Rs. 90,000 for Sholapur, but to take away the remaining provision of Rs. 50,000, which is there in reserve, in case similar unfortunate occurrences should take place in any other part of the presidency. It means that during the whole of the year 1928-29, if there was any such disturbance, Government could do nothing to restore peace in that area. It could, for the moment, send a few police from this district or from that district, but it could not keep them there ; it would have to remove them in, at the outside, a few days, 10 days, or a month. But we see, from the history of Sholapur itself very particularly, that, after some trouble of this sort, peace is not restored within a few days, or even within a month. The ill-feeling which has been aroused continues to exist, and there is a danger, for a very long time afterwards, that there may be another outbreak of a similar kind. It is only by keeping an adequate police force at the particular place in danger that it is possible to prevent an outbreak even more serious than the one which has just taken place and which has been stopped. I think, therefore, that the House would be very well advised to think twice before it takes away the whole of this grant from Government.

Now, there is, as I have already mentioned, a further opportunity that will be offered to the honourable members of this House. If they pass this grant now, the charge will, in the first place, be met from the general revenues of the presidency. Then, in accordance with the law, Government will decide from what parts of the town of Sholapur, from what sections of its inhabitants, and at what rates these charges should be recovered, and the direction which Government will issue in due course will be placed upon the table of this House, and it will, as I have already brought to the notice of the House, be within the power of the present mover of this cut or of any other member who feels himself or his constituents to be prejudicially affected, to move a resolution to say that the local inhabitants shall not pay, but that the general revenues shall pay. Now, I ask even those who are most closely interested in the present motion whether that is not really the better way of achieving their object than the one now before the House, which is to take away the power of imposing the additional police in Sholapur altogether. If the House is willing to allow this cut to be withdrawn, I can assure them that Government will do, as it is already doing, everything in their power to assure themselves and this House that the charges are levied as fairly as possible. We cannot pretend so to levy them that no innocent person suffers. That is impossible, I am afraid ; but we can, and we hope so to levy them that it will only be the inhabitants of the particular areas in which the rioting occurred, or from which the rioters issued, or in which the instigators of the riot live that will have to pay, and that those who are innocent will, as far as we can arrange it, not have to pay.

That is the farthest I can go in meeting the wishes of the honourable member from Sholapur, and I am sure he may be confident that Government will act to the full upon the promise which I now give.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN (Poona and Sholapur Cities) : Sir, in view of the explanation given us by the Honourable the Home Member and his promise to reconsider the whole thing again, I do not press it.

Question put and leave refused to the withdrawal of the motion.

Question was then put and lost.

Question that the demand for a grant of Rs. 1,61,74,000 under 26, Police be granted put and carried.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Sir, I move for a grant of Rs. 24,14,000 under 25-Jails and Convict Settlements (Reserved).

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Sir, I move for a grant of Rs. 64,12,000 under 24-Administration of Justice (Reserved).

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I beg to move for a grant of Rs. 1,58,000 under 22-General Administration (Transferred).

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I beg to ask for a grant of Rs. 1,01,71,000 under 22-General Administration (Reserved).

Question proposed.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South) : Sir, I beg to move :

Reduce by Re. 1 (4) Revenue Department—Total Voted—Rs. 2,21,000.

Now, Sir, I do not want to take up the time of the House by inflicting a speech, but I must make my position clear as to the object with which this cut is moved. This is moved with a view to have a vote of censure against the Government of Bombay for their revenue policy which has drifted the people of certain parts of the presidency to adopt a no-taxation campaign. There is only half an hour left and I want honourable members on the other side to play the game manfully and like true sportsmen. I am going to request them not to play what we call in cricket a cowardly game and play for a draw. Let them play the game. There is half an hour yet, and there is an opportunity for both sides. If you want the verdict of the House on your policy, do not utilise this half an hour by inflicting speeches. Both sides know the facts very well. I say again, if you take this opportunity, this eleventh hour opportunity, of obtaining the verdict of this honourable House, there are even chances. "Do let this matter go to the division. Do not play a cowardly game, do not play for a draw. Play at the wickets till the last moment." I appeal thus to the honourable members on the other side. If they do not, by inference, by default the verdict will be construed as against them not only in this House but outside the House; it will be considered that an opportunity was given to them to have a verdict but that it was not taken and therefore the verdict was certainly against them. I hope this appeal will not go in vain and that the opportunity will not be lost.

[Mr. K. F. Nariman]

Question proposed.

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON: Sir, I wanted to respond to some of the remarks made by the honourable mover, but as I find no details I would rather defer my remarks for some time.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member has stood up to speak and if he likes to speak, he may do so now. I do not want any explanation from him at all.

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON: Sir, after having waited for a long time to get an opportunity for giving replies to the several allegations made with regard to the resettlement of Bardoli, I got an opportunity to-day, but I am afraid the time is very limited for me to deal with the question fully. I shall, however, do my best to deal with the salient features. The leading points are these. It has been stated that the assessment levied is very high, the people are very poor and they find it very difficult to pay the revenue. The rental basis of the assessment is absolutely wrong and misleading. We are also charged of having deprived the people of their ancient rights, which as a matter of fact is not correct.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Will the honourable member state as to where this has been said?

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON: These are the points I have taken down from the speech of the honourable member from Surat, which he delivered at the time of the general discussion on the budget; these are also the points which have been widely raised in public correspondence in the press. I shall now give a short sketch of the history of the revenue assessment. I find that it will not be possible for me to give details in such a short time, and I shall, therefore, confine myself to the conclusions. I find from a careful study of the situation that was prevailing right back as far as 1802, that the system of the British Government in Bardoli has not been harsh or oppressive. If you look to that period, and then the first British Settlement of 1833 and the three subsequent revisions, what do you find? I have got here the figures ready with me to prove what I say just now, but I have not got sufficient time at my disposal to give all the details. If you go back to the period of 1802, you will find that the present assessment is only two-thirds of what it was in 1802. If we discard that period when the Peshwa's rates were in force and come to the first settlement by the British Government, that is, 1833, before which year there had been a great expansion of cultivation, we find that the assessment which is being levied from the present year stands, as compared with the revenue levied in 1833, at the ratio of 117 to 100. That is to say that there is an increase of only 17 per cent. over the rates which were in force about a century ago. Some honourable members will say at once that of course the revenue derived from Bardoli is now very much larger. I do not deny that fact. But I would point out that if a man has got about 1,000 acres of land, and if he demands Rs. 5 per acre, but nobody takes up any of it, his revenue will be nil. But if you demand only Rs. 2 per acre and all the acres are then occupied, then the revenue will be Rs. 2,000 and will be enormously greater than it was before. So, from that point of view you will find that the ratio comes to 117 to 100 per cent. which was levied in 1833. There is another well recognised fact, thoroughly recognised not only in this presidency but throughout India, that if too high a land revenue is demanded, land will be resigned.

It is an axiom of all settlements that the first warning that the revenue demand is in excess of, or even approximating to, the total rental value is that resignations occur. Our land revenue system is more generous than that accorded by almost any other type of landlord. Every person who holds land under Government is at liberty, complete liberty, to resign it and cease to pay any revenue for it the moment he finds that its rental is lower than the revenue demand. It is a safety valve which operates automatically. No Government can control it. What has been the operation of this law in Bardoli during the last 30 years ? There has not, Mr. President, been a single case of resignation during the whole period. So far from resignations there has been a great expansion in the occupied area.

We know that in 1833 the area under cultivation and occupation was about 30,000 acres ; we have documentary historical evidence to show this. By 1840 it had risen to 41,000. Then in the second revision settlement we find that the area has risen to over 1,15,000. That was in 1896. Then in the last 30 years, it has risen to the neighbourhood of 130,000. Thus under British Administration prior to 1896 over 100,000 acres have come under the plough, and within the last expiring settlement the occupied area taken up from waste exceeds 14,000 acres, and to put it more picturesquely we can say that it is 23 square miles of land. Now that land has been taken by the people voluntarily under no sort of compulsion—but on the contrary they have paid good money for this waste land—just think of it : 23 square miles one mile by one mile taken voluntarily, from what was previously jungle into cultivation subject to our assessment. There could be no clearer proof than that assessment was just and easily payable.

I will now take the last settlement period. I shall deal with that only. I will not go back to the previous settlements. During the five years I was myself Collector of Surat District I think there is scarcely any village in the Bardoli taluka the land of which I have not walked through on foot, and I can say that there are very few talukas of which it could be said that there is so little sign of empoverishment or less complaint of the weight of assessment. There is another test. When land revenue is not paid we first issue a notice of demand. That is more or less a formality and common to every species of tax collection. If it is not then paid, we have power to attach movable property and to sell it, and if that does not succeed in recovering the demand we can next proceed to attach and sell the occupant's right title and interest in the land, and if the land is unsaleable, we can even forfeit it and as a last resort, if the refusal to pay is wilful and not due to economic causes we can put the defaulter in jail. Everyone knows that the extent and severity of the coercive processes that have been necessary is a just and true measure of the burden of the assessment. What then has happened in Bardoli during the last 30 years ? Mr. President, during that period, none of these coercive processes have been resorted to, none have been necessary. And yet we are told that the assessment is too heavy !

Again, since the settlement was made in 1896-97 there have been two outstanding, two tremendous, events which have taken place, events which justify not the 22 per cent. increase of the revenue which we have now imposed, but in my opinion substantially more. In the early period of settlement, about 1896-97, it is true that the assessment was not too high ; but still it was higher than our general standard has usually been. In view of the fact that there were grounds for complaint in the earlier period of settlement, I advised Government, and they accepted the advice, that the assessments should not be pressed up to the level suggested by the Assistant Settlement Officer far short of the full limit which the rental value would admit, but should be kept to the very modest limit of the 22 per cent increase.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Is the honourable member giving us the policy of the department on revenue settlements, or will the Honourable the Revenue Member himself do it ?

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : Then, another point that has been made .....(Interruption.)....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member may proceed. These interruptions, of course, are very uncalled for.

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : One of the arguments which has been used in this House by an honourable member from Surat,—although he is not present this afternoon,—is that the rental values upon which we base our rents are rentals which are not what might be called economic, they do not represent market values. It is said that they represent the interest on debts, or loans given by sowkars and extorted under severe pressure by the money lenders from unwilling tenants. I have had before me a case of an actual village in that taluka in which the whole of the lands are said to be held by sowkars of the worst variety, and it is said that the rentals in that village are so high that they ought not to be taken as a standard for the land revenue. I do hope the House is following this point. It is said, when sowkars are in possession of the land and take a high rental, we should not be guided by those rentals, but we should take a much lower pitch of assessment. In short, Mr President, it is said that, when the land has passed into the possession of non-agriculturist, rent-receiving landlord, those landlords who pay the assessment, should be let off, while the tenants who pay these exorbitant rents should not be called upon to have one anna rebate in the rents they pay to those landlords. Of course, as regards the tenants, the rentals are high. But, nevertheless, it is the sowkars who have to pay the assessments and not the tenants. I fortunately, lately, was passing through the Surat district and I will tell the House one rather interesting fact about the rise in rentals in Chorasi taluka, which is close upon the borders of Bardoli, and wherever new assessments are calculated on the same basis as those in Bardoli and have been now introduced and are being paid this year for the first time. I, therefore, went through a large area of land to see what the present rentals were as compared to the new assessments, and I found in a number of cases the incidence was very reasonable. When I say "very reasonable," I mean that our assessments were taking approximately one-third, about 33 to 35 per cent. of the gross rental which was being collected actually in cash by the landlords. But I came to another case in which the rents were very much higher, and immediately it struck me that here we had a case of sowkar's rent, a case of rack-renting which cannot be made use of in calculating the ordinary level of rents. I remarked that this was a high rent, and found the tenants who came forward and said. "No, there was no moneylending, this is a market rate." I asked, "Who is the landlord?" He came forward and said "the land is in my name, but I am not really the landlord, though it was entered in my name as trustee, because the land is held in trust for and by the whole village community and this rental is used by them for village expenses, religious purposes." Therefore, they hold every five years or so a sort of village auction and it was divided amongst seven or eight tenants on the recorded rentals, and when I said "these rents are very high," the reply was "Oh, no; not at all. We can get these rents from anybody." And these rents, Mr. President, were higher than the general pitch of rents that we rely upon, and they were the fair rents in the opinion of the village people themselves, in a case where the village community was renting its own land to some of its own inhabitants.

[Mr. F. G. Anderson]

I will not waste the time of the House by dealing with another argument that the years that we have selected for computation of these prices and values has been years since the war. We are told that we should go back to years before the war in order to get true values. But in a House where there are representatives of many other commercial interests, especially the great cotton interest, which is the leading product of Bardoli, will such an argument weigh for a moment that "future contracts" or present engagements should be guided by prices which ruled before the war? Properly the idea is so ridiculous that it is not even worth consideration, and yet it figured very prominently in many of the arguments that were used as regards Bardoli.

[Mr. F. G. H. Anderson]

There is one great event which has happened since 1896-97. That is the world war, which, as we know, has had effects on prices throughout the world. We never can go back on that. But another important thing that has happened peculiarly to Bardoli is that there has been built right through the heart of that taluka, through the very axis of its lands, a new railway,—the Tapti Valley Railway,—the cost of which, the capital for which, gathered together under the auspices of the Government, represents many year's revenue of those lands of Bardoli. And yet, while all that money has been spent directly and obviously for the benefit of every landlord in that taluka, the argument advanced is that we cannot now raise the revenue even by one rupee ! That railway line, as every one knows, is fringed with cotton gins, cotton presses, and all the industries associated with cotton and other trades in the taluka, and it affords ample communications east and west, and also to the main B. B. & C. I. Railway line from Surat to Bombay. And yet we are told that it is not possible for these land-holders to meet a modest increase in the assessment they paid without difficulty in the closing years of last century.

Another point which I wish to make in the few minutes at my disposal is that we have often listened in this House to speeches on the subject of Prohibition. We have been told that there was no real fiscal difficulty as regards Prohibition ; that, if it involved a loss of revenue, then the additional resources that would be put into the pockets of the people by stopping expenditure on drink would be available for other taxes of a less demoralising kind. I appeal to the House whether I am not stating a fact that these have been in the fore-front of the arguments in favour of Prohibition. What are the facts, if we apply that theory to Bardoli ? During the last seven years, under the influence of the rationing policy (in which I take a step-fatherly interest), the consumption of country liquor in the Bardoli taluka has been so reduced that the expenditure of the people is now Rs. 2,25,000 less than the annual expenditure in 1920. Mr. President, that is what we have taken off the expenditure under the head of Drink. And what are we putting on under the head of Land Revenue ? It is only Rs. 155,000 or about $\frac{2}{3}$rds of what we have saved their pockets under the head of drink.

There are a number of other points that I am most anxious to make but I cannot touch upon them in the time at my disposal, but I may say that I am prepared to publish a number of these facts in detail which I am not at present able to give for reasons of which you, Sir, and the House are aware. I will tell the gentlemen who are leading and championing the movement of resistance to the payment of revenue in Bardoli, that it will all be futile. They know perfectly well that the rental value of this land is just as high or higher than we have ever known it to be. I know it ; Government knows it and Government also knows that it is right, that its cause is just. There is no likelihood that Government will quake and falter in this matter. Their strength is as the strength of "ten" because their cause is just. I would appeal to those gentlemen opposite not to commit political suicide in full view of their sorrowing countrymen by once more resorting to that worn out process of bluffing on an absolutely empty hand. We have been told that Bardoli has become famous throughout the world for its splendid gesture in civil disobedience a few years ago. Mr. President, I admit that it did become famous but it is not a fame most of us would covet or care to attain, the fame of having been supremely futile and ridiculous. I say let those who are now conducting this campaign know quite well that as soon as the time comes for selling those lands there will be plenty of people to come forward to buy them up. Neither violence nor the absence of violence can prevent people coming forward to take up the good property what it is going. I beseech them therefore to think twice lest in marching to what they are pleased to call their Thermopylæ they do not by mistake find themselves at Panipat.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Mr. President, the honourable mover of this cut has challenged us to accept a decision of this House. We have taken up the challenge, although, in a manner that is altogether unprecedented, we have been faced with no accusation whatever. This is the first time that I have heard that an accused person has been put on his trial without even the semblance of an accusation being brought forward against him. However, we have taken up the challenge, but at the same time I would inform this House that we shall not accept the verdict whatever it may be as being the final verdict of the House or as being binding on Government. It is obvious that on an important question like this it is impossible to bring forward all the arguments for or against in the space of about half an hour. This is a question which is of a far reaching character, which is most complicated, and which has been the subject of lengthening controversy; it is not a question which can be disposed of in a few minutes. However, there are just a few facts which I wish to place before this House.

The broad issue in this case is simply whether or not Government are justified in raising the assessments which have been in force in Bardoli taluka during the last 30 years by 20 per cent., that is to say, by one-fifth. That is the broad issue that is before us. It is true that in certain cases individual villages have been raised beyond that 20 per cent., this being due to the fact that although the rates in each group have only been raised by 20 per cent., they have been promoted from one group to a higher group. I wish to state to the House that in the 32 cases where this raising of villages from one group to a higher group has proceeded further than the original recommendations made by the Assistant Settlement Officer, Government are still prepared to consider the individual circumstances of such villages. Notifications have been issued inviting objections to the assessments in the case of these 32 villages and the objections have not yet all been received, but I undertake that, when they are received, they shall receive my most careful and personal consideration. I have already given consideration to the question of those villages but I am only waiting to receive the objections that are still outstanding and the Collector's report upon them, and then I shall come to a decision regarding these 32 villages. But on the general issue whether or not Government are going to raise the assessments by 20 per cent. in each group, Government have come to a final decision on the question and there is no opening for its reconsideration. And here I wish to give the House very briefly a few figures which I consider justify Government in making this rise of 20 per cent. As the House knows, the Assistant Settlement Officer has collected a large mass of statistics in the shape of leases and their rents, and from them he has calculated what is called the average index figures for three successive periods during the last settlement, viz. :—

[Mr. J. L. Rieu]

(1) from 1900 to 1910,
(2) from 1911 to 1916,
(3) from 1917 to 1925.

This index figure shows for each period what is the admissible rate of assessment based on 50 per cent. of the average rental. Now, for the first group which is at present being assessed at a maximum rate of Rs. 6, the index figure is Rs. 6-1-5. For the second period this figure rose to Rs. 8-4-0, an increase of 33 per cent., and for the third period to Rs. 10-5-2, an increase of 69·3 per cent. These index figures are not taken on any small area selected here and there, but over very large areas. The area rented during the first period was 8,333 acres ; for the second period 14,800 acres and for the third, 12,993 acres. Now you have to compare these index figures with the present rates and the rates which Government are now introducing. As I said. the index figure for the first period is Rs. 6-1-5, compared with a then existing maximum assessment rate of Rs. 6, therefore the assessment rate in that first period was very close to the admissible figure, falling short of it by only Re. 0-1-5. But in the second period the admissible figure rose to Rs. 8-4-0 and so gave a large margin not only over their current rate of assessment of Rs. 6, but also over the rate now introduced of Rs. 7-4-0.

I will now take honourable members briefly through the figures for the other groups. In the case of the second group, we start off with an index figure of Rs. 5-12-0 as against an assessment rate of Rs. 5. I have no time, unfortunately, to give all the figures that I have before me, but I may briefly say that the increase of the index figure of the last period over the first index figure is, in the case of the second group 39·9 per cent., in the case of the third group 37·1 per cent., and in the case of the fourth group 70 per cent., and that these percentages have to be compared with the increase in the revised assessment of only 20 per cent., ordered by Government.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That concludes the budget. As to to-morrow, would the Honourable the Leader of the House enlighten the House again as to what definitely would be taken up ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, as explained yesterday, we will proceed to-morrow with the supplementary demands. There is one supplementary demand that is yet unfinished. That will be taken up first. The next one will be the demand for the Harvey-Nariman case. I understand that the Council desire that that should be taken before the other demands.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Some honourable members approached me and were anxious to know as to when the resolutions about the appointment of the committees will come up.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Directly after the supplementary demands are finished, then the various resolutions that are in the name of my honourable colleague Mr. Rieu will be taken up. I cannot tell whether the resolution about the railway committees will be taken to-morrow. That will depend upon how much time is taken in supplementary demands. But, as I explained, Sir, it is proposed that if we do not finish Government business—by to-morrow, then we will go on with Government business the day after. There will be Government resolutions and there will be the University Bill which will be taken up, and then two days will be given for private business. The election to the Finance Committee will come day after to-morrow unless we finish quickly to-morrow, which I do not think is likely.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That was the point honourable members wanted to know. The election to the Finance Committee and the Railway Committee. That, as I understand from the Honourable the Leader of the House, will be before the House, if time permits, to-morrow ; otherwise the day after.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Yes.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Statutory motions ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : The Statutory Motions relating to the department of which my honourable friend Sir Ghulam Hussain is in charge will be taken before the University Bill.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The House is adjourned to 1-30 p.m. to-morrow, Wednesday, the 14th March 1928.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Questions.

INDIAN STORES DEPARTMENT: PURCHASES OF ARTICLES AND MATERIALS

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD (Poona City): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that all materials required for the Public Works Department and all medical stores are purchased through the Indian Stores Department;

(b) whether it is a fact that a percentage is charged on all goods purchased through the department over and above the price; if so, what the rate of the percentage charged is;

(c) the amount they have to contribute for the maintenance of the establishment of the said department every year;

(d) whether they are aware of the fact that the rates for articles and materials purchased through the department are higher than the rates for the same articles if purchased locally;

(e) if so, what the advantage in purchasing through the Indian Stores Department is;

(f) whether it is a fact that they have received representations from their officers that they should be allowed to make purchases locally on the ground that the local rate is lower than the rate charged by the Indian Stores Department;

(g) if so, from whom they have received the representations and whether they will be pleased to place them on the Council Table.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: (a) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to rules 4, 5, 7, 9 and 10 of the Provisional Stores Purchase Rules published in Government Notification No. 356, dated the 16th December 1926, printed at pages 2748-2773 of Part I of the Bombay Government Gazette dated the 23rd December 1926.

(b) A charge of 2 per cent. is levied by the Indian Stores Department on the value of goods purchased through its agency. This charge consists of 1 per cent. commission for the purchase of the goods and 1 per cent. for their inspection before purchase by the expert technical staff of the Department.

(c) No contribution is made.

(d) and (e) Attention is invited to rule 9 of the Provisional Stores Purchase Rules published in Government Notification No. 356, dated the 16th December 1926, which permits officers to make purchases, independently of the Indian Stores Department, in cases where they can do so more cheaply or (in a case of urgency) more expeditiously. It has been found generally that purchases can be made through the agency of the Indian Stores Department, with the vast resources at its command, at more favourable rates than through any other similar agency.

(f) and (g) The question does not arise as officers have already been empowered to make purchases locally in cases where this can be done more cheaply or more expeditiously [vide reply to parts (d) and (e) above].

KRISHNA CANAL: SATARA DISTRICT

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased—

(a) to lay on the table a copy of the Government Order sanctioning the insertion of the conditions stated on page 761 of Volume XX of the Council Debates of 1927;

(b) to state whether they have looked into the validity of the insertion of such conditions in the printed application as assured in reply to a question printed on page 1081 of Volume XXI;

(c) to state whether they have sanctioned the insertion of any other conditions in the printed application?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: (a) Conditions Nos. (1) and (2) have been sanctioned in Government Notification No. 1556, dated 1st April 1927, a copy of which is kept on the Council Table. Conditions Nos. (3) and (4) are only explanatory details of section 61 of the Bombay Irrigation Act, 1879, and rule 5 (1) of the Bombay Canal Rules, 1922, and have been inserted with the object of bringing them home to the irrigators.

(b) Yes. The intention of the condition, viz., "No complaint shall be made if there be an insufficiency of water in the canal" is that the supply of water being fitful is not guaranteed to the applicant. It does not debar the applicant from getting such remission of the water-rate payable by him as may be authorised by the Governor in Council if he suffered loss from any stoppage or diminution of water supply due to causes mentioned in section 31, (d) of the Bombay Irrigation Act. Government are, however, considering steps to make this intention clear.

(c) Yes. The additional conditions sanctioned in respect of canals having a precarious supply in the Central Circle are given in the Government Notification referred to in reply to clause (a).

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT

Bombay Castle, 1st April 1927

No. 1556.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 70 of the Bombay Irrigation Act, 1879 (Bom. VII of 1879), the Governor in Council is pleased further to amend the Bombay Canal Rules, 1922, published in Government Notification in the Public Works Department, No. 1556, dated the 19th December 1922, in respect of canals having a precarious supply of water and specified in the schedule hereto annexed, as follows, viz. :—

(1) For note 4 of the notes on the back of duplicate Form I appended to the said rules, the following note shall be inserted, namely :—

"4. After an application has been sanctioned full water rates shall be payable for the sanctioned area entered in column 10 for the period entered in column 9 whether the area is irrigated or not. No assessment will be charged in the case of perennial crops when the applicant gives a written intimation to the Executive Engineer within one month from the date of sanction to the application that water is not required."

(2) The following additional notes shall be inserted on the back of duplicate Form I appended to the said rules, namely :—

"10. No complaint shall be made if there be an insufficiency of water in the canal or canals.

"11. Water will be given for the whole season or for as many waterings as can be given.

"12. Full water supply is not guaranteed but intimation of the possibility of shortage of water during the season for which application is made will be given.

"13. Water will be allowed to be given to the lower irrigators by a water channel aligned by the Executive Engineer."
